FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 13

A letter was lately thrown into the London post-office containing £10,000 in bank notes without any address. The astonishment of the clerk in the dead letter office, who opened the letter, at so large a sum being, as it were, presented to the public treasury, may be imagined. It appears, however, to be no uncommon occurrence in London for money to be thrown away in this manner although rarely of course in such large sums as in the case specified above. The state of mind of a man who could set in the way described must be very extraordinary; apparently money was a drug in the city on the day that the owner of £10,000 put them in the public letter-box without inscribing their destination on the envelope. Any person, however, who has seen the careless way in which letters are posted in London towards the hour for dispatching the mails will scarcely be surprised even at this act of carelessness. A crowd of persons, principally boys, fling the letters over the heads of other boys into the letter-boxes, and a scene of confusion ensues which cannot be described. It is easy to comprehend that a junior clerk told to direct a letter containing money at the last moment might forget to do so, and the boy sent with it to the post-office would no more dream of looking to see if the letter was addressed than he would of flying through the air. On his arrival at the post-office the letters would be flung into the letter boxes in the manner of missiles darted at the heads of invisible enemies.

Not a thousand miles from Richmond, a wife lay in a dying condition. Having brought up a clever orphan girl, who was grown, the dying woman called the young woman to her and said: "I will soon leave my little children motherless. They know you and love you, and after I am gone I want you and my husband to marry." The young woman, bursting into tears, said: "We were just talking about that."—Lynchburg News.

E. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

PHILADELPHIA LETTER.

Correspondence of the Mobile Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6th.

Since the destruction by fire about four weeks ago of Shanty-Town (the popular name for the small city of huts, stands, stalls, variety shows and gaming saloons which had infested Elm Avenue in the neighborhood of the main Exhibition building,) the Centennial Exhibition has been exempt from threatening visitations by the fire-fiend until last evening about seven o'clock, when the alarm of fire was sounded. It was Lauber's Restaurant, which is situated in the north-eastern part of the grounds, which had been attached. The fire, which originated in the rooms of some of the attendants, spread with marvellous speed through the building. This, being a frame structure, could not be saved, and the efforts of the fire-companies which turned out in full force, were therefore concentrated in saving the surrounding buildings. A brisk north-east wind was blowing, and a shower of sparks and burning cinders were constantly carried over to the Horticultural Hall; but fortunately it did not take fire and the loss, amounting to about $20,000, was limited to the restaurant building which was almost entirely consumed.

In paying a visit this morning to Baron Kermelin, as Commissioner of Sweden and Norway, and himself an artist, the attention of your correspondent was attracted by an unfinished, or, to speak more correctly, a recently commenced canvas, representing a burning building. It looked familiar, and was indeed a representation of the fire scene at the centennial on the previous evening. The painting, of course, was in a rather primitive state of perfection, but the incident goes some way to prove the enterprise of our foreign visitors.

The grand show has now reached a stage of perfection which those who made their visit to it two or three months ago can scarcely form an idea of. The exhibits have gradually increased in number, and are all beautifully, and, what is better, symmetrically arranged, so that no time need be lost in finding any one that may possess special interest. The attendants who, before they became familiar with their duties, were often dubbed rough and ignorant, are now as intelligent and accommodating a set of men as could well be found, for centennial purposes. The attractions of the Exposition, on the whole, have increased wonderfully, and it would well repay any one who has only seen it in its early days, to return and spend a few days in reviewing the objects of interest which have been added. The average daily attendance, for some time past, has been between 80,000 and 90,000, and bids fair to continue so, or even to increase. The average number of visitors to the present time falls but a fraction short of five millions.

The Siamese exhibits, numbering about 200 boxes, have at length arrived, after a detention of several weeks at San Francisco, and are now ready for unpacking. This strange, and to many, mysterious land, in the heart of Asia, is expected to make a wonderful—or, at all events, a curious show. Its standard of civilization, however, is higher than most people are aware of; so, at least, says Mr. John K. Chandler, the royal interpreter, who has charge of the exhibits, and who is now engaged in translating the catalogue.

The U. S. Centennial Commission are up still at work upon the list of supplementary awards. The expectants of bronze medals are still kept waiting and hoping, the commissioners refusing to let out the reports until everything is finished.

What they are now waiting for are the stock-awards, which will be acted on to-day in their afternoon session. With a cruel disregard of the feelings of those anxious Exhibitors who were not in the first list, the commission spent yesterday afternoon in looking at the artistic workings of butter at the Judges' Hall. This Exhibition, by the way, was both unique and amusing. The artist, Mrs. C. S. Brooks, put about a dozen pounds or the material in a granite basin, and soon transformed the uncouth lumps, by the aid of two small wooden paddles into an alto-relievo model of a human profile, the artistic perfection of which spoke well for the talent of the lady. The interest of some of the judges, however, seemed to be centered on the good quality of the butter, which, as a glaring advertisement displayed in front of the stand, said was made in a certain patent churn. These gentlemen live at boarding houses, where so much good butter in one lump is rarely seen.

A unique dinner was given yesterday, at the Ne Tayette Restaurant, by the American Fish-culturists Association, which has convened here. The meat composed fish served up in every style, and no less than 58 varieties of the scaly inhabitants of the briny deep were represented on the table, some of which were evidently relished by the guests, while many were not.

Grand preparations are now being made for the 19th of this month, which will be southern day at the Exhibition. A novel and attractive feature of the day, will be a tournament, in which it is expected that a large number of distinguished southern gentlemen will participate. If the attendance on this day is as large as on Pennsylvania Day it will not be the fault of the leading spirits who are certainly entitled to great credit for the zealous and judicious manner in which they are managing the preparations. The day will be mainly for the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbus, but it is hoped that the remaining southern states, one and all, will be amply represented at this grand reunion of the south in the interest of the spirit of the age, "progress."

THE DEMOCRACY
OF MOBILE COUNTY
place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the
HON. F. G. BROMBERG,
subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.
Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled :
1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.
2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the true wishes of the people of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.
3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of this District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.
4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations to support a party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.
The conditions of this subscription will be such that no subscription will become due and payable, nor bonds issued, until the amount of one million dollars shall be obtained in solvent subscriptions thereto—thus securing the success of the undertaking beyond peradventure.
Circulars fully explaining the plan, and any other information desired, may be had upon application at the office of the Company.
FRANCIS B. CLARK,
President.

The citizens are laughing at Col. Langdon's theatre (or theatrical) speech, as it is reported in the Register. We only glanced at it yesterday.

Let us add a few words.

Col. L. said that "before the Jackson convention he was in favor of the nomination of Mr. Bromberg." He didn't like "the course of the supporters of Mr. Bromberg in the Jackson convention;" and, therefore, he is now opposed to Mr. Bromberg, and because of—what does the reader suppose? Why, because he "voted for Mr. Blaine as Speaker of the House of Representatives." That, at the time, was no great crime. But, worse than this: he was absent from the country "in time of war;" that he had some "connexion with the reconstruction measures," and similar skimble skamble stuff.

Didn't Col. Langdon know all this at the time he said that "he was in favor of the nomination of Mr. Bromberg"?

The gentlemen was worthy of a nomination before the so-called Jackson convention. The 32 thought so, and have not changed their opinions Col. L. also thought so, but now he thinks that Mr. Bromberg's record unfits him for the great trust!

The inevitable conclusion is this: Mr. B. was a very worthy gentleman before the mass meeting was held at Jackson. Now he is a very unworthy man, because some of our staunchest old Democrats refused to submit to the domination of a minority.

This may be logical, after a partisan or demagogical fashion, but it is not by any means conclusive to those persons who think that Mr. B. was not converted into a monster by the refusal of the 32 to submit to what they consider a wrong. Vide Col. Percy Walker.

There is one method by which Col. Langdon can escape the dilemma in which he has placed himself: "to wit," by a frank confession that before the Jackson convention was held he was ignorant of Mr. B.'s record. He may take another way, if he think it better; that is to allow us to suppose that he has an "ax to grind."

One of these positions he is obliged to assume. We shall not intimate that he has been bought up, for that would be rude, and place him on an equality with one of the chief men who lead the 32 at Jackson.

We find in the Cincinnati Daily Enquirer of last Sunday, a very interesting letter from our well known fellow-citizen, Dr. Charles Mohr, addressed to Judge Stallo, of Ohio, in relation to the social and political condition of our Southern States—not local et all, but comprising all of these harassed states.

It is full of sound sense, and describes with accuracy and acumen, the difficulties which are now so much oppressing our people.

The conclusion which it reaches is that there will be no return to satisfactory government until a change shall have been made in our federal rulers.

This is unquestionably true, if a new set of demagogues do not get the power of the set that we desire to get rid of.

Here is a danger, but it is worth the trouble that it may put us to.

We should take pleasure in reprinting this very calm and truthful letter, if it were shorter, or if our columns were longer.

On Thursday morning we publish ed a "rumor" that Gen. Beauregard was likely to accept a nomination for the office of civil sheriff of New Orleans. The Picayune of Thursday publishes a note from the General stating that he had been offered a nomination twice by the persons who manage what is called the "Independent movement," and he refused it. He only denies his assent to it, and makes no comments.

53,836 voters have been registered in New Orleans. According to the common rule of calculating the number of voters to a population, this shows that the Crescent City is growing fast.

The dry weather in New Orleans, as is here, continues. A harbor boat is giving some relief to the thirsty citizens. It has thrown 40,000,000 gallons of river water into the streets.

The cashier of a bank in St. Paul was murdered recently by some robbers. Already $11,000 have been gathered for the widow.

Gas in Cincinnati now costs $1.90 per thousand feet.

There are now 1983 pupils in the public schools at Richmond.

The Czar is well again, and will no doubt be better after he partakes of Turkey.

Cardinal Manning's solicitor has run away with $150,000 which he held as trustee of Catholic charities and associations. The Cardinal himself loses $40,000.

The registration of voters in New Orleans is now going on, and a large number of persons have been arrested and punished for frauds. Which of the parties they belong to is not definitely mentioned—a good many, no doubt, in both.

It was warm yesterday at meridiano, and it will get warmer un-il after the coming of rain; and of that we think it is likely that we shall have not much for several days. Then there will be for a time a little bit of Indian Summer. Perhaps, from the hazy appearance of the sky, it may be that we have it with us now.

We have had some destructive fires of late—two of them within three hours. How is it that these calamities come so close to each other—in bunches?

The insurance companies which, we suppose, are the chief sufferers, ought to adopt some means of discovering whether they are the result of accident or design. It would be economical to look into the subject, or to employ experts by the proffer of large rewards to look into them.

Col. Percy Walker, in his speech at the theatre last Thursday night, said what is reported as follows:

"The bolt by the Ketchum delegation from the county convention of Mobile was wrong. But when the 32 had sat in the Jackson convention and participated it its acts up to the moment of their withdrawal, they rendered themselves by so doing amenable to that convention, and they were wrong when they withdrew from the District Convention."

This is a mistake which entirely vitiates the conclusions that are drawn from it.

There was no organized "convention" at Jackson when the 32 left it. The "Convention" was organized after they left the meeting, which had not been organized. They had nothing to do with its organization.

How is it possible to make men "amenable" for what they had no part in? Well, that is of not much importance, for the essential part of the matter is in what Col. Walker said; namely, that "the bolt by the Ketchum delegation from the county convention of Mobile was wrong."

This is true; and the only way to remove that wrong, was to do as the 32 did. That was not to allow the "Ketchum delegation" to have any voice in a business that it had no right to meddle with. It had no right to appear in an official capacity at Jackson. This confession of wrong approves the manly stand that was taken by the 32.

And the result of that wrong was to deprive Mobile of a vote in the so-called convention. In short, it had not a solitary properly constituted delegate in that body of "politic worms." Imperfect logic—prompted perhaps by bad feelings—cannot make the 32 wrong in the opinion of those persons who believe that a wrong, as Col. Walker says, was fundamentally wrong.

TELEGRAPH

THE CUSTER FIGHT.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—The steamboat John M. Chambers, Capt. Lasarge, which left St. Louis with military supplies for the Yellowstone, last August, being the first arrival. Capt. Lasarge had an interview with Kill Eagle, one of Sitting Bull's chief warriors, at Standing Rock Agency. Kill Eagle claimed that Gen. Custer could have escaped had he been fit to abandon his men; that the Indians, who always loved the long-haired warrior, would have permitted him to escape. He intimated that Gen. Reno could have prevented the fight had he been fleeter of foot. He says that Sitting Bull was not in the fight, but in the council. Capt. Lasarge denies the report that Sitting Bull has white blood in his veins, and says that he is a full blooded Indian, insignificant in figure and a cripple, but has a fine head. He considers Sitting Bull as the most famous Indian of the day, and says that army officers endorse his opinion. He further states that Sitting Bull is in camp at the headwaters of the Little Missouri, with the main body of the hostile Sioux. As soon as they received word that the campaign against them had been abandoned, they decided to remain on American soil and not claim British protection. Friendly Indians will supply them with provisions and they will make a raid into the Black Hills country, close to their camp, when their provisions fail.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—On the docket of the supreme Court there are now 770 cases, being an increase of about 100 over the docket of last year. Among the cases for decision standing over from the last term are the Granger cases from the west and the war policy cases from the south. The former determining the power of the states to regulate railroad tariffs, and the latter the validity of insurance policies issued prior to the war upon southern risks, by northern companies, the companies issuing which failed to keep agents for the receipt of premiums, and the transaction of general business in the localities of the risks.

COTTON.

A private letter from Portsmouth, Va., says; We are having the heaviest run of cotton over the Seaboard and Roanoke railroad ever known. The arrivals at Norfolk average 1800 bales a day.

BELIEF FUND.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 13.—Up to the present date nearly $11,000 have been received at the First National Bank of St. Paul in response to the circular asking donations for the benefit of Mrs. Hywood, widow of the bank cashier, who was killed by robbers at Northfield.

OHIO REPUBLICAN.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 13.—The Republican State Committee to-night revised their returns, and now estimate Foraker's majority at 677. The 52 counties reported on Boynton, Supreme Judge, indicate the majority on the balance of the State ticket will reach 9000. The Republicans gain five Congressmen.

INDIANA DEMOCRATIC.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13, 9:40 P. M.—Returns from 896 townships an 1 wards in 85 counties give a net Democratic majority of 1344. The same places in 1873 gave a net Democratic majority of 35. The counties from which nothing has been heard gave Hendricks a majority of 3135.

INDIANAPOLIS, October 13—In the Fourth Congressional District Saxton (Rep.) is elected.

WEST VIRGINIA DEMOCRATIC.

WHEELING, West Va., Oct. 13.—Ohio county gives a Democratic majority of 189. On the vote for Governor returns from the interior come in slowly, but generally show increased Democratic majorities. West Virginia's Democratic majority will probably be 13,000.

THE SAFE BURGLARY.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 13.—Richard Harrington, alleged connected safe burglary at Washington returned here and appeared before the United States Commissioner and furnished bail in $10,000 for his appearance at the present term of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Harrington refuses to state where he has been staying, but it is generally thought that he has not been outside of this State since his disappearance. Upon his release he left for Dover, where his family resides.

OVERDOSE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Star says: Dr. W. H. Calvert, of Louisiana, died at the residence of his brother in Prince Georges county, Md., from an overdose of morphine, taken to relieve acute rheumatism.

THE FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 12.—Total interments to-day 16, of which 7 were from yellow fever.

Among the deaths was Jos. H. Guerard, aged 73 years.

THAT TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—The details of the terrible explosion at Zug & Co's mills, are as follows:

At the time of the explosion 150 men and boys were working in the building, which was literally torn to pieces; the roof falling back rested on one of the nail machines, enabling the men to crawl out before the wreck was in flames.

The following is a partial list of the killed: Thos. Murphy, Andrew Sullivan, foreman; Frank Oppps, Peter Kendrick, John and Joseph Anderson, feeders; two brothers named McCafferty, and an unknown man whose head was blown off and whose body has not been identified. A large number of persons were wounded.

The scenes on the outside in the vicinity of the works for a considerable distance were of wildest and most heartrending character. The news of the explosion spread like wild-fire through the city and in a short time people began to gather from all parts. Men, women and children, who had relatives and friends in the establishment rushed frantically forward. A scene of the wildest confusion followed. The police, with ropes exteuded across the street, kept the surging crowd from interfering with the success of work of the firemen and their apparatus.

The Chief of Police, with a large body of patrolmen, were kept busy in keeping back the crowd and assisting in carrying out the wounded and killed from under the debris. The office of the works, on the corner of Elm street, opposite the mill, where this terrible explosion occurred, was considerably used up. The building was improvised into a temporary hospital, where the dead and wounded were carried. A large number of surgeons were on the ground. The causes which led to the frightful calamity are enveloped in mystery. The boilers were in charge of a careful engineer, and had been duly inspected before the works resumed operations, some five weeks ago.

LATER.—Frank Maugers, Andrew Maugers, and Louis Turcotte have died from their injuries, and Pat Griffin, John Higgins, John Klein, Frank McCafferty and Harris Lauer will doubtless die.

A GOOD NOMINATION.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The Democrats of the Fourth District last night nominated ex-Gov. Gaston for Congress.

WOODWARD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—E. W. Woodward, Tweed's protégee, arrested in Cuinacy, reached here yesterday morning and went direct to the Police Central office. Supt. Walling ordered him to be taken to the District Attorney's office.

Woodward pleaded not guilty to five indictments for forgery in the third degree. He was then committed to the Tombs, where he will remain until trial.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—One hundred and forty one bodies of brandy, fifty seven pieces of lace, one piece of silk, and eleven silk handkerchiefs, were seized from the steamship Frisia.

[Special to the New Orleans Picayune.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The feeling in Democratic circles is one of general exultation, and they are now looking forward to November with entire confidence in Tilden's election.

The Republicans are trying to break the force of the elections by boasting over some of the Congressmen, which were the result of gerrymandering.

Good judges figure up the Democratic majority in the next House.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's EXTRA OLIVE, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in it manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contained, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture,

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,

"Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just." It is not presumed that the attenuated gentlemen, whose desk is directly under the Tribune editorial rooms, ever had a quarrel with anybody. He is so merry in any kind of weather as to forbid the thought that he could ever be provoked into a controversy. Yet he received by railroad yesterday 342 arms, whether of the Spencer or Springfield pattern was not stated; and is now equally prepared for defense or aggression.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 73, minimum 56, a range of 17 degrees.

A theatrical bill board utilizes the court house, or that part of it on the corner of Royal and Government. Mammoth posters there will be very conspicuous.

While they were in antagonism the other day at the convention, two prominent white republicans walked down Royal street yesterday side by side; and shortly after two of the most conspicuous colored citizens who were also in antagonism that day were sauntering along the same street in a similar manner.

River News.

The Peerless, Captain Tom Frank, came in late yesterday morning from Selma, having been detained thirty-six hours by getting aground at Haines'; afterwards getting aground at Silver Creek and still later running upon a log at Tait's shoals. She brought in 500 bales of cotton, a fair trip of sundries and about thirty passengers.

The Peerless went out again last evening for Selma with a very excellent freight.

The R. E. Lee, Frank Johnson master and Dick Eanes clerk, will back out at five o'clock this evening for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The S. J. Tilden, Captain Jim Williams, will leave this evening at five o'clock for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The friends of Charles Coblenzer, also those of his wife, MARY COBLENZER, are requested to attend her funeral TOMORROW (Saturday) MORNING, at 10 o'clock, from their residence corner of Dauphin and Lawrence streets.

SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 14

In the little village of Ra Echon, New Mexico, the Christian people are not afraid of work. The members of the Presbyterian Church living in that locality are building a church. They devote one day in each week to the work, until the building is finished. They have already completed the wall around the grave-yard, and have prepared dried (adobe) for the church. The women have plastered the walls of the grave-yard with their own hands, and as soon as the building is ready will do the same for its walls. These poor people have willing hands but no money.

In a communication to the Academy of Sciences M. A. Moret states that during a recent balloon ascent off Oberbourg with M. Durnof they were surprised, at a height of 1700 methers, to see the bottom of the sea in its minutest details, though the channel at the point must be 90 or 80 metres deep. The rocks and undercurrents were clearly visible. He suggests that ballon observations might prevent shipping disasters due to deficiencies in charts.

A mercantile agency in Toronto proposed to make, through its system of espionage, a correct statement of the status of a retail dealer. The presumed knowledge was sold to a wholesale dealer, who sold to the retailer on the purchased hypothesis that he would receive the money for his goods. The retailer absconded, and the wholesaler recovered $524 at law from the mercantile agency and a higher court has affirmed the judgment.

Taft's Order Will Not Save a Violator of the Law.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

CHESTER, S. C., Oct. 5.--Edward McDonald, a Republican negro, was convicted of political intimidation in the Court of General Sessions of York county, this morning. The jury was composed of six colored Republicans and six white Democrats. It was in proof that the defendant, in company with another negro, approached Reuben Seigle, a respectable colored Democrat, and cursed him because he had declared in favor of the Democrat nominees, and threatened to take his life if he voted the Democrat ticket. W. B. Williams, Esq., himself a Democrat candidate, defended the prisoner ably and earnestly. The charge of the judge was thoroughly impartial, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty in ten minutes after retiring. Judge Mackey sentenced the prisoner to three months in jail.

In his charge to the grand jury Judge Mackey characterized that part of Attorney General Taft's order which instructs the United States marshals to disregard the authority of State officers, and to make arrests on mere suspicion, as a most formidable and audacious act of political intimidation, and stated that any officer who violates the constitution or legal rights of a citizen shall not be exempted from punishment by pleading the authority of such an order. He at the same time enjoined upon the citizens the duty of aiding the United States marshal and his deputies to the fullest extent in executing the laws of the United States.

A melancholy case of the effect of the baleful habit of opium taking in Brooklyn, N. Y., is thus described in a correspondent of the Providence Journal: A beautiful woman and a reigning belle, some years ago, in that city, was protrated with a prolonged and excruciatingly painful sickness to alleviate the suffering of which the physicians in attendance prescribed laudanum which was taken with the result of fixing the habit upon the patient. That habit has dragged her down into such depths of physical and moral degeneracy as would almost be incredible if related. The appetite has become so ravenous that it has demanded the constant use of the strongest tobacco smoked in the immense quantities or laudanum which are taken. If any one could see this once beautiful woman now a sallow wrinkled prematurely aged hag bent over, and in the act of the smoking her vile pipe and know of the absolute loss of all self-respect and total collapse of the moral sense in her it would add much force to the touching advice of your reporter, "don't." It will scarcely be believed when it is stated that she drinks nearly five quarts of laudanum every month; yet such is the fact.

Thaller, the French bicyclist, completed on Saturday evening, September 23, at Wolverhampton in England the feat of riding 650 miles on a bicycle in six consecutive days of twelve hours each. He started at 7 o'clock on Monday morning and up to Friday night had covered 546 miles thus having 104 miles to accomplish on the last day. He started on Saturday morning at a few minutes after 7, and rode till 11:38, when having gone 44 miles he rested for dinner. Starting again at 2 o'clock, he went along at a splendid pace, and eventually completed the distance at twenty minutes to 8.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN.--The examination in the case of William Butler Duncan, bankrupt, was continued yesterday afternoon before Edgar Ketchum, Register in Bankruptcy. In the commencement of the proceedings Mr. Duncan stated that he desired to correct the testimony he had given upon the previous examination in relation to the cotton held by the firm. He said "he did not wish to be understood that the firm had no other cotton than that which was pledged with Andrew Low; we had also a large amount with Baring Bros & Co., in Liverpool under advances. Mr. E. B. Brown counsel for Mr. E. G Haight one of the creditors conducted the examination. Nothing of importance was developed.—N. Y. World 10th inst.

Sunday schools have reformatory tendencies not by any means to be ignored; but they are not an invariable assurance of a righteous life. Impressed by the terrible depravity of the James and Younger gang of bandits in Minnesota, who have killed from one to a dozen apiece, an Iowa minister, more active than discreet, wrote to ascertain if they had "had sanctuary privileges in their youth." He seems to have been horrified to elicit the fact that the James boys were sons of a clergyman, that one of the Youngers was educated for a minister himself, that six of the eight were former Sunday school scholars, and "two taught a Bible class in Texas." Cole Younger wrote: "We all have high respect for Christianity; we know what the right road is, but have not followed it."—Exchange.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

Hon. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole State of Mobile to a delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage of which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people; so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention as the nominee of an Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That in case there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile county.

6. That we are resolved to keep Hon. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people on the Thirty-second, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by such action.

Veracious, Very.

"Truth is mighty, and will prevail," is an old maxim that has met with general favor amongst men. There is another maxim that has met with perhaps equal favor amongst that specious class of men who are known to the public as politicians—a maxim that is sometimes ascribed to Talleyrand, but which is really much older than she or that astute French statesman. The maxim; namely, "that a lie well stuck to is as good as the truth."

Both of these maxims contain a certain measure of truth, and both are widely applicable to human affairs. In the long, long run truth, of course, is certain of vindication and acceptance; but very often plausible falsehood, for a time, does good service for a bad cause; while the truth gets itself recognized sometimes only after the bad cause has triumphed.

Here are three assertions that have been made several times over, sometimes in one shape and sometimes in another, in the columns of the Register:

1. That Mr Jones is the regular nominee of the democratic party of this congressional district.

2. That Mr. Turner is the regular candidate of the republican party of the district.

3. That the republican district convention endorsed Mr. Bromberg as a republican.

Now these assertions are doubtless well calculated to serve the political purposes to which the Register tends in its advocacy; but in the eyes of honest men they exhibit one very grave defect, namely this: Not one of them is true. Nay, more, not four of them makes even a decent approximation towards the truth.

The Register's notions of what constitutes regularity as to nominations, and candidatures must be of a very incoherent and confused character.

We think that to the apprehension of common men, the proposition will need no proof, that a regular candidate is one who receives the nomination of his party in accordance with established party usages and customs.

Judged by this standard, Mr. Jones is not the regular nominee of the democratic party of the district, because it is certainly true that he was not nominated according to the usages and customs of the party. It is impossible to remind the people too frequently, or with too much emphasis, that Mr. Jones was not regularly nominated by a regularly organized democratic district convention; but that, in fact, he was very irregularly nominated by the rump of a convention that was organized in utter disregard of traditions and in wanton defiance of democratic usages.

We will in a few days show this with the clearness and certainty of a mathematical demonstration. For the present, we content ourselves with the assertion.

But if Mr. Jones is not the regular nominee of the democratic party, still less is Mr. Turner the regular candidate of the republican party, for he has not been endorsed by even so much as the rump of his party convention.

In the Register of Friday there is an advertisement which purports to give the proceedings of the meeting held in the custom house which resulted in all the nomination that Mr. Turner has except his nomination of himself some weeks ago. Like the editorial utterances of the Register in relation to our local politics, this report is not to be commended for its accuracy. We are credibly informed that the nominating committee of six broke up in a row; that it was denounced as fraudulent and venal by F. H. Threatt; that Threatt's friends retired in disgust; and that Mr. Turner's unanimous (?) nomination was the work of the four patriotic gentlemen (?) who remained. Of this also, we may, perhaps, have more to say hereafter.

As to the facts connected with Mr. Bromberg's endorsement by the republican convention, the Register is more than usually emphatic, if not more than usually reckless. "When Mr. Bromberg was endorsed by the republican convention," says the Register of the 12th, "the was endorsed as a republican, and when Mr. Bromberg is supported, it must be as a republican, and not within the democratic party." These indeed are brave words. Yea, verily; but, unfortunately for the Register, they are not truthful words.

In the preamble and resolution which were adopted as the formal act of endorsement, there is not a single hint that Mr. Bromberg is anything but a democrat and in all the speeches that were made on both sides of the question Mr. Bromberg's democracy was either quietly assumed as needing no proof or passionately asserted as the most potent argument against him.

H. J. Europe, who introduced the resolution, spoke at length of Mr. Bromberg as a Democrat. Allen Alexander, said: "I know that Mr. Bromberg is a Democrat, and I do not expect that he will give any other than Democrat votes in congress."

F. H. Threatt, of Marengo said, "I thought when I left home that I was coming to a republican convention, but tomy surprise I find myself for the first time in my life a member of a democratic convention."

But of this point, also, more anon.

The Register has excommunicated Mr. Bromberg from the fold which it assumes is composed of all the virtue of the democratic party. For him there is no hope—nothing left but despair. It has not said that he ought to go out and drown himself—for that might be construed, legally, parliceps criminis before the fact.

Our neighbor says that "it was not in a sarcastic sense" that it advised Mr. Bromberg to shame himself and the several thousand citizens in Mobile by taking its insolent, presumptuous and indelicate advice.

Here is another thing which he says the animus of those men who call themselves Democrats, but are, no means, entitled to the appellation. What untruths are said in the article we are referring to are patent to every citizen who has taken the trouble to find information.

Mr. Bromberg has not chosen to desert his Democratic friends; and then this bit or impertinence is brought in:

"Mr. Bromberg, therefore, having after mature deliberation, failed to record his protest, both against the fact of the nomination [that is of the colored nominee] as well as against the grounds and reasons assigned in urging it, has severed the last tie which united him to his people, and burning his vessels, forever precluded the possibility of again deserting the Radical shores.

"As such, he must be treated as an open adversary, and the batteries of popular feeling opened upon his present as well as his past career."

This would be nice in a dime novel. Who are "his people"? How has he burned "his vessels"? Mr. B. stands on the St. Louis platform.

That, we assume, is the test of Democracy.

This "high-falutin" bluster is really only deserving of ridicule. When one swallows a dictionary without healthy gastric organs, it is very likely that he will throw up just exactly what he swallowed, with some additions of acerbity.

But, to be very serious, let us state that there is here in Mobile the very cream of the Democratic party standing by Mr. Bromberg, and that there is not one in a thousand of them who is willing to be fooled by those persons who think that they can be used as the slaves were before and during the war.

You see how it is. The colored citizens had a meeting last Friday night. The very so-called Democrats. It is a falsehood to give them that name. They were moving in that meeting for the purpose of deluding the negroes into a belief that Mr. Jones was a better negro than Mr. Turner, and some of the poor fools believed it, and thought Mr. Turner would elect Mr. Jones by dividing the negro vote. This was the purpose, and it is a disgrace to the manhood of those who took it part in it.

Those very persons would hang Mr. Turner if they could find a legal mode of doing it; and as for Col. Langdon most of them would like to attend his funeral.

To be more serious, this local party strife has a large amount of good in it; and because it will rebuke those who have so long managed by the patience of the public to obliged good citizens to vote for those whom they had no voice in naming, and not much respect for. The election of Mr. Bromberg by those who are averse to this partisan craft will make a change, and this change is most desirable.

The foolish Register has excommunicated Mr. Bromberg, as though it had power to disfranchise those who are supporting him!—disfranchising two-thirds of the Democratic population of this city! This is amazing, and exhibits a presumption that would make one sorry, if it were not very ridiculous.

A Saintly Swindler.

How Gired Got Ahead of A Dozen French Monasteries.

Something new and remarkable in the way of swindling has just come before the Assizes of the Manche. The prisoner was a man named Gired, aged sixty-four, a meek and oily character of monastic aspect and wearing blue spectacles. In the course of his checkered career he has made the acquaintance of several prisons, and at the end of 1873, after having served eighteen months on the treadmill for embezzlement, he found himself once more free. The clerical agitation being rampant, he thought he might turn it to account. His modus operandi was very simple. He went to a monastery and declared he was tired of the world and its vanities. He said he possessed property at Turin worth several thousand pounds, which he desired to make over to the community, but unfortunately there was a little mortgage which must be cleared off first of all. The father superior, confident in the sincerity of the repentant sinner, advanced the sum to pay off the mortgage, and sent one of the monks with him to arrange the sale of the property and the entrance of the convert into the monastery. Arrived at Turin Gired easily managed to get rid of his companion, and nothing more was heard of the promising old sinner. In this way, backed up by all kinds of forged documents and certificates, the prisoner succeeded in swindling $200 out of the Abbey of Soligny-la-Trappe, $300 out of the Monastery of Sept Fons, $120 out of the Olivetain Brothers of Parmenie, $400 out of the missionary fathers of Lourdes, $350 out of the superior of Notre Dame du Laus and $150 out of the Marist Brothers of Besance. But the pitcher went to the well too often. The monastic confraternity were aroused by these repeated deceptions, and a warning was sent round to the various monasteries. The consequence was that when the meek and repentant Gired presented himself with his old story to the Trappist Brothers, of Bricqueboc, he was caught in his own trap, and handed over to the police.

August Lachel advertises in the Chicago Staats Zeitung his matrimonial experience. A widow ask him to marry her and offered $2000 as an inducement. He hesitated and then she gave him all her property. Their honeymoon was not over before she became disagreeble. Says he: "She has insulted me in all thing and charges me with having a weak memory and God knows what else. An old woman like her ought to be glad to have a husband like me who has all his military papers. At first it was always 'I have the honor to present to you my husband here.' And all the people were surprised that so old a person could get such a respectable looking husband." He had separated from her and to warn other men is the avowed object of his card which closes as follows: "I learned, unfortunately, after my marriage, that she tormented and beat her first husband to death. He was a weak man. She cannot thrash me. Finally she was always telling me that I should buy poison—only for the rates of course. But I was very careful not to do it."

Truth.

The following from a recent Democratic speech tells some truths which are admirably descriptive of what we have seen for several years It is worth the readers attention

"The caucus system has robbed our Government of its representative character. The right to vote implies of necessity the right to be a candidate. I cannot exercise the blessed privilege of a voter unless I am free to select the man for whom I wish to vote. This business is taked from my hands. I am relieved of all anxiety on this score. When I go to the polls a red-nosed gentleman tenders me a ticket and if not to my liking another red nosed gentleman tenders me another. There are two to select from—no more. The systems thoroughly acquiesced in that I feel the utter hopelessness of attempting to get up one of my own. The candidates I would select would not accept the offices could I or others select them. And why not listen to the cry now going up over the land to attend the primary meetings and take the caucus from the control of the professed politician! Because we know that so long as there is this blind adherence to party that makes a man sustain a bad candidate because nominated and causes him to look more earnestly to the success of his faction than to the good of the service such efforts are in vain. What is it to me whether the postmaster of this beautiful village is a Republican or a Democrat so long as he faithfully discharges his duty in the reception and distribution of mail matter? What do I care for the politics of a judge on the bench if he is a just judge! And yet there is not a voter within the sound of my voice who would not cast his ballot for Judas Iscariot or Pontius Pilate should either of those historical characters receive the regular nomination of his party.

"These monstrous follies have demoralized and if not corrected, will eventually destroy our Government. Every year sees us sunk to a lower level. Of the million of officials that yearly are changed and every four year are swept aside, we are left with our wisdom or integrity, in the heads of Departments, while the entire land suffers from a horde of incapables who feed on our treasury that each day gets nearer bankruptcy.

"We want adequate salaries paid officials—salaries that will command the best talent and the highest integrity. We want the tenure of office made more permanent so that an official may not be turned out at the moment he begins to comprehend the duties of his position and is making himself of use to the country.

"We want fewer elections. The judiciary and all other than legislative, filled by appointment, as far removed from the political arena as possible. We want, above all, a party of noble scratchers, several hundred thousand strong, who, going to the polls, will disregard the red-nosed gentlemen of the nominated tickets and vote for such men as their conscience elects and the better judgment approves.

Terrible Invective.

Extract from a speech of Hon. Geo. F. Hoar, of Massachusetts in the Belknap impeachment:

"My own public life has been a very brief and insignificant one, extending a little beyond the duration of a single term of Senatorial office, but in that brief period I have seen five Judges of a high court of the United States driven from office by threats of impeachment for corruption of maladministration. I have heard the taunt from friendliest lips, that when the United States presented herself to the East to take part with the civilized world in generous competition in the arts of life, the only product of her institutions in which she surpassed all others beyond question was her corruption. I have seen the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs in the House, now a distinguished member of this Court, rise in his place and demand the expulsion of four of his associates for making sale of their official privilege of selecting the youths to be educated at our great military school. When the greatest railroad of the world, binding together the continent and uniting the two great seas which wash our shores, was finished, I have seen our National triumph and exultation turned to bitterness and shame by the unanimous reports of three committees of Congress, two of the House, and one here, that every step of that mighty enterprise had been taken in fraud. I have heard in highest places the shameless doctrine avowed by men grown old in public office that it is true way by which power should be gained in the Republic is to bribe the people with the offices created for their service, and the true end for which it should be used when gained is the promotion of selfish ambition and the gratification of personal revenge. I have heard that suspicion haunts the footsteps of the trusted companions of the President. These things have passed into history. The Haliam, of the Pacific, or the Stanwood, of the Macaulay who writes the annals of our time will record them with his inexorable pen; and now, when a high Cabinet officer, the Constitutional adviser of the Executive, flees from office before charges of corruption, shall the historian add that the Senate treated the demand of the people for a judgment of condemnation as a farce, and laid down its high functions before the sophistries of lawyers of the criminal bar? Shall he speculate about the petty political calculations as to the effect on one party or the other which induced his judgment to connive at the escape of the great public criminal; or on the other hand, shall he close the chapter by narrating how the charges were detected, reformed and punished by constitutional processes which the wisdom of our fathers devised for us, and the virture and purity of the people found their vindication in the justice of the Senate!"

THE DEMOCRACY
OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of this District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representmen from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention is the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is accepted in the field; but if Jackson Convention is accepted in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded or that will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

The National Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT,

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA.

FOR CONGRESS,
(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,
OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET!

ELECTORS AT LARGE:
JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:
1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTZCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. TAGGELL, of Russell.
4. JOHN T. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. Wm. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL K. MOSPADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Political Notes.

One fact is certain: namely, that Mr. Bromberg is gaining strength not only in this city, but also in various parts of the interior counties of the district.

Another fact is certain: that his election will add some strength to the Tilden and Hendricks ticket. It may not be much, but it will be something.

Another fact, also: Some of the people who are opposed to the movement of our fellow citizens are very much afraid that a Republican will be elected to congress from this District, and that the House of Representatives will fall back to the control of the Republicans. We are not afraid of that, even if Turner were elected, and there is as much probability of that as that the man in the moon will pay us a visit at "All Fools' Day."

Among those timid saints that encourage this belief, there is one way to make "assurance double sure:" "to wit." Withdraw Capt. Jones, and promise him an election next time.

We use Capt. Jones's name with all respect, and only use it as an euphemism for those persons who are not willing to be convinced of their errors, and who, having once declared that the horse is sixteen feet high, will insist on it. They will not deduct an inch from its altitude.

This is the trouble with us. Truth falls, like the leaves of autumn—that's now—at their feet. They won't be convinced, and they are hazarding the Democratic Congressman of this District by a stubborn purpose to humiliate Mobile county.

Hazarding it! So they think. We shall take the risk—that is we, the people—and can give some assurance—not, like the Register, impudence—that Mr. Bromberg will be elected. Conditionally, of course; namely, if the Jones men stop bugging the colored people, and otherwise deluding them into the belief that Mr. B. is a very unfit man to represent them and us in congress. If there were a score of Freedman's Banks, which defrauded the negroes, it is possible that there would be among them an irrepressible resolution to reject the embraces and other enticements which they are now subjected to.

It is thought that, if Capt. Jones get all the votes of this district, Mr. Turner will not be elected. This is a logical conclusion.

We have not complimented Mr. Threatt, of Marengo county, as he exhibited himself at the Convention held last week at Odd Fellows' Hall. We know nothing of his antecedents—nothing of his character—only saw him on that occasion. Well, his ease, of manner, facility of speech, and some measure of wit, made him respectable in the opinions, of a great many of the Democratic auditors. Whether he is a good man or a mere political demagogue, we cannot say, but are sure that he has a considerable amount of brains, and some culture.

The Great Tupper.

The great poet, Martin Farquhar Tupper, arrived at New York last Wednesday. He comes for the purpose of lecturing—and, we suppose, selling his "Proverbial Philosophy"—copies of which may, no doubt, be found within a hundred Mobile families.

The author has been ridiculed without mercy; and yet within that "Proverbial Philosophy," there is a vast amount or most valuable matter. Mainly, it is merely a compendium of the wisdom of the Old Testament with much gathered from the New Testament. We have a gilt-edged copy of it in a form that the publishers thought would attract custom, without reference to its intrinsic value.

Mr. Tupper is not a great poet—indeed, not at all a poet; but he has given much moral instruction by his books.

And one of these, which we have read with pleasure, is called "The Crook of Gold." It is a brief novel, and very cleverly written. Of all his works, we think that that is he best.

The fact is, Mr. Tupper—who is, or was, a rich man—has a great desire to be classed among the literary worthies—men born in poverty, but whom the world will not willingly let die. This is the rock on which he has split. He is a good journeyman literary workman—nothing else—except that he has no estimable gain man, and has done much good. We should like to see him in Mobile. His portrait, which we have, is a "letter of recommendation."

The Register has risen to an explanation. Thus:

"The management of the Mobile Daily Register takes this occasion, once for all, to state that it is both unjust and unfounded to believe, fancy or assume that the opposition made to Mr. Bromberg in these columns extends beyond his political, public career, or that it is intended, overtly or covertly, to cast blame or censure on those Democrats who, before and since the Jackson Convention, have been his avowed supporters. Neither the purity nor disinterestedness of their motives is questioned, and it is only to their judgement, misled by their heart, that this opposition makes a respectful appeal."

In the very next column it is declared that Mr. Bromberg has joined the Radicals. Here is a terrible sentence:

"Mr. Bromberg has then thrown off the mask, drawn out the sword and cast off the scabbard, and finally taken the field against the South. So let it be; and woe to the conquered!"

Mr. B. has been wearing a "mask." That means trying to cheat some people; not only worn a mask, but has thrown it off and also drawn a sword and cast away the scabbard, and, finally, actually, taken the "field against the South"!

The man who can do all this must be a dangerous fellow, and ought to be looked after. Even Dogberry could hardly have made a more terrible report. We are opposed to the "so let it be," if it be. If it be true, it ought not to be, and if it be not true, why then we may be allowed the privilege of laughing at the person who has been scared into the folly of making himself so ridiculous.

And all this rodomontade is because Mr. B's. friends are using his name to resent what they consider a fraud.

But, worse than this: "woe to the man who shall be conquered" and, of course, if the general be conquered "woe to his friends, who if they do not immediately, if not sooner, submit, shall be ostracised and not the baton of a policeman shall be within the highest reach of their political aspirations.

Whoa!!!

Isn't this very ludicrous? Here is a theatrical man, with a tin pot on his head and a lath in the shape of a sword at his side, threatening our people with "WOE." There is, we believe, a lunatic asylum at Tuscaloosa; but, we are sorry to say, it is full.

Mr. Bromberg, as we understand it, remains quiescent at home, except when his mirth is stirred by the impudence of the Register. That may serve him as an appetizer for his matutinal meal. Anyhow it makes his friends laugh.

Logical and Illogical.

For the Mobile Tribune.]

The leaders of the Jones faction of the first district of Alabama are getting angry, and the natural sequence of that and fact is that they become illogical. For several days past the arguments of both speakers on the stump, and of the editor of the Register, have clearly shewn that the position held by the supporters of Mr. Bromberg is impregnable. Like the scuttle fish, those gentlemen are attempting to muddy the waters, in order to hide the true issue, by flimsy rhetoric and sophistry, to inflame the passions, and by the waving of the bloody shirt to scare up the ghost of the past. They are making a fight on Mr. Bromberg, when that gentleman is clearly not the man they have to whip. They are shifting the issue, that the people, the yeomanry of the county of Mobile, are making, with the so-called lords of the county, on the shoulders of Mr. Bromberg, who is simply the instrument in the hands of the people. Mr. Bromberg has absolutely nothing to do with the fight, and the epithets must be addressed to his supporters, and not to him. Come out boldly, gentlemen. Do not stand behind the post, and direct your fire where it belongs. The issue is plainly drawn, and we have a lively hope that it will induce Capt. Jones to withdraw from the canvass.

It is wasting your ammunition to point your guns at Mr. Bromberg. Battles never depend singly upon one commander. Let Mr. Bromberg fall, and hundreds of leaders will spring up to take up the fight. Mr. Bromberg to-day stands before us the same man he was when first he carried the banner of the first district of Alabama. He was thought worthy then. His former acts were closely scanned, and, though he differed from us politically, not a breath of suspicion was ever raised against his fitness or, what is more in these days, his honesty. He went to Congress, stood up boldly for the rights of the people, received the praises and laudations of the entire press of the state; and, in a word, was an ornament to the body. He came back and again received a nomination at the hands of the people of the district. Please read the columns of the Register of that day. It was gushing with praise. Those were the days when we were yet weak—when the bloody shirt was lustily waving from every housetop north, east and west. We were anxious to show the country that we had accepted the situation, and were truly and virtuously conservative. But things have changed. We are to-day strong. We have become so by the voice and works of the people you are now spurning. We need no more conventions, and particularly those foreign to conservatives, to lead us in the fight. Stand aside, good and faithful servant! The people, it is true, are your friends, but we are the lords and kings, and care nothing for the people. We are the sovereigns, and you are the vassals—the hewers of wood and drawers of water. We are the true Americans! Away with your foreigners. They are good in the west and the east, where they can be used, but only good as long as they can be used. The Register says Mr. Bromberg has burned his ships behind him. Not so. Mr. B. had no ships to burn that carried contraband or unclean freight. His manifest was public property, and had been accepted twice and passed upon. He had nothing to conceal. Every act or his life was known to those who took passage on his ships. Twice he sailed under the same colors, called there by the same crew. No! If ships must be burned, let those set flames to theirs who have reason to believe that amongst their merchandise, cargoes, or papers, they may not find some stray documents which might militate against a clear bill.

When did Mr. Langdon, who, by the by, voted for as many different parties as ever any man did, find out that Mr. Bromberg voted for Mr. Blaine? Was it before or after he was a Bromberg man, as he styled himself? Or was it before or after Mr. B. received a second nomination from the first district or Alabama? And still did that grand democratic party of the glorious first district stultify itself to the extent of nominating, supporting, ay, contesting the seat for a man who had committed the heinous crime of voting for Blaine? Consistency, thou art a jewel. But Mr. Langdon said it with regret, sadly. He nearly weeped over the fact that he had to so expose Mr. Bromberg's congressional record. But did Mr. Langdon also weep over the other acts of Mr. B.? Why did he not go further, and tell us of the course of the man after that terrible crime of voting for Blaine? Has he, and he is a man who reads, heard of the Freedman's bureau, the force bill, etc., etc.?

J. S.

We had the pleasure yesterday of hearing read an exhaustive letter from G. N. Stewart, esq., to Hon. F. S. Lyons concerning the party condition of this Congressional District. It covers the whole ground of the controversy, and was written in reply to a kindly letter from Mr. L. in which that gentleman shows an earnest desire to see the establishment of concord, and in which he as good as confesses that he is not familiar with the subject. He will thoroughly understand it, after he shall have read the epistle of Mr. Stewart, and we have a lively hope that it will induce Capt. Jones to withdraw from the canvass.

The Daily Cribune.

TUESDAY,.....OCTOBER 17

There was frost yesterday morning at Whistler.

The board of aldermen will meet this evening at half past seven o'clock.

The largest receipts of cotton at Mobile this season was yesterday, 3,578 bales.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 71, minimum 47, a range of 24 degrees.

The 384th anniversary of the discovery of America by christopher Columbus was celebrated at New Orleans last Sunday.

Turner Hogan and Vinny Hogan, his wife, were before Judge Semmes yesterday, on a writ of habeas corpus and discharged from the custody of the sheriff.

On account of the burning of three or four spans of the Bay St. Louis bridge, the train from New Orleans due here at twelve o'clock yesterday did not arrive till about five.

As a consequence of the present excellent management of the Battle House, in all its departments, and the liberal rates offered, many of our editorss are taking board and apartments there.

Mr. Simon & Brother, 36 Dauphin street are doing an extensive business in the sale of clothing and furnishing goods, and giving wonderful satisfaction to customers who go where they can buy cheapest.

There are some impecunious young gentlemen in Mobile. Four of them were comparing financial notes in a public place the other day, and the aggregate of their funds amounted to one lead five cent piece, a counterfeit silver half dollar and five one cent nickels.

River News.

The R. E. Lee, from Selma, brought in 480 bales moss, 1 bale fodder, 1 bale hay and 20 passengers. She went out last evening with a good freight and several passengers.

The elegant steamer Mary, Captain Jno. Quill as master and Mr. Jimmy Quill as clerk, will be at her landing this morning ready to receive freight for Selma and Montgomery. Spalding & Co. agents.

The pretty little steamer W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whiteside on the roof, will back out this evening at five o'clock for advertised points on the Bigbee river. W. Johnson, North Front street, agent.

Nothing has been heard from the S. J. Tilden, due from the Bigbee.

Railroad Collision.

The fact that a steamboat excursion on the Old Colony and Fall River Railroad, of which Mr. J. R. Koudrick (the first superintendent of the New Orleans and Mobile Railroad) is superintendent has been mentioned. The details are given in a Boston dispatch of the 13th:

The steamboat express train, conductor Cobham, from Fall River for Boston collided with the local freight train, which leaves Boston for Fall River, at 6.05 o'clock this morning. The accident took place at Randolph, Mass., where the freight train should have turned out upon the siding, and at the time was backing down slowly for that position. The approach to the station here is down grade, and the steamboat train came on at the rate of 40 miles an hour, and the locomotives of the trains struck each other face to face. The steamboat train was drawn by two engines, the fireman was killed outright, and the engineers, Dorcow and Crosby, of the passenger engines were badly injured. The three engines are complete wrecks, and their remains lie scattered about and upon the track in every direction. Near the scene of the accident the track was torn up for a distance of fifty or sixty rods. The smoking car was thrown at right angles with the track, one end lying in a field. The baggage and smoking cars are completely destroyed, some of the crate being 20 rods off the side of the track in an open field; baggage is strewn about promiscuously. John Magie and James M. Watson of Boston were in the smoking car and both were seriously injured. Mr. Magie's leg is bad ly cut and Mr. Watson's shoulder is dislocated. About a dozen passengers including the two mentioned here made their escape through the windows of the second class car. The engines, baggage car and second class car broke the force of the collision so that but little of it was felt in the passenger cars, and only the passengers did not realize that the accident had occurred. The freeking train left the Boston depot at 7 o'clock for the scene of the accident. The boat carves near the station, and the position of things about the depot cannot be seen from the approaching train until close upon the depot.

There was a cook in our town,
Would she was wondrous wise,
She bought "Gillet's Cream Dry Yeast"
And caused her bread to rise.
And, when she saw how nice it was,
Declared with might and main
That Gillet's was the only Yeast
She would ever use again.

YELLOW FEVER.

The total interments at Savannah yesterday were fifteen; yellow fever, eight.

FEDERAL TROOPS.

WASHINGTON, October 16.—The Chronicle says editorially: "When Southern people cry out about the oppression of the Federal troops they prove them selves hypocrites. Every poseed man knows that the rank and file of the army is composed of the best material in the country and their sympathies would not permit them to abuse the poor southerners. General Patrick O'Donoughe and General Michael O'Flanagan of the regular army would much sooner assist the Ku klux in abusing negroes than in protecting them from the outrageous treatment of disaffected and unreconstructed rebels.

AN INDIAN FIGHT.

OMAHA, October 16.—An official dispatch from Fort Laramie to-day confirms the dispatch from Cheyenne last night [illegible] engagement of Sergeant [illegible] and Richard Creek [illegible] Colonel Duffy, a raccheboard, has come into that place and reports adding a count of [illegible] on the Platte, about 11 miles from Fort Laramie. He found several hundred pounds of fresh meat in the camp, and the scalps of the men killed on the Baw bids a few days ago. Colfoy and Jamieson have lost thirty head of horses during a few days. Captain Egan went out last evening to find the camp if possible. The telegraph is down west of Fort Laramie; it is supposed to have been cut by the Indians.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

He states that the latter numbered 5,000 but were defeated after six hours hard fighting with the loss of a large number of killed and prisoners, a quantity of arms ammunition, and one mitrailleuse. Later reports say that several skirmishes have taken place but no important movement has been made on either side. The Government forces have received supplies and arms from New York and Curacoa. The Ministers of War of San Salvador and Guatemala has resigned.

DEATH OF P. O. J. SMITH.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 16.—Hon. P. O. J. Smith died at his residence in Deering, Me., today.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUREL SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contained, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture,

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their wood made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that he fats of their undoubted purity is fully established.

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 17

A great gun, weighing eighty-one tons, and throwing a projectile of the weight of seventeen hundred pounds a distance of seven miles, is the latest triumph of English skill. The trial of this enormous piece of ordnance at Shoeburyness was acomplete success. The "smashing" power of the seventeen-hundred pound shot now makes it necessary to undertake fresh experiments on the resisting power of iron plates.

Mr. Scott, an iron merchant of Edinburgh, having received an order for 400 tons of iron girders for the new station being erected in Glasgow, is having the girders manufactured in Belgium and delivered in Glasgow at considerably less cost than he can have them made in England.

There are over 185,000 names registered in Philadelphia. It is supposed that twenty or thirty thousand of them are frauds. According to the usual ratio, the number would make the population has on to a million.

Corpus Christi (Texas) Times: It is thought that the year's product of wool marketed at Corpus Chrisi will exceed 6,000,000 pounds.

The Indians are a costly luxury. The past seven years the Indian department has expended $51,851,615.

R. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

The Fever in Brunswick.

Dr. Stone of New Orleans, has been interviewed by a Picayune reported since his return that city from Brunswick."

He says that for miles around the unfortunate town a panic prevailed among the people. It reminded him of the consternation and fear which preceded and followed the appearance of an invading army during the war.

The condition of the citizens of Brunswick was fearful. The poverty and destitution can not be imagined. The people who could leave did leave and persons in the surrounding country would not approach within miles of the stricken place. Whole families were down with the fever, without attention, medicine or food, although those who were able to get about did all they could.

On the arrival of himself and Dr. William R. Manderville advised by Dr. Bruns, who had preceded them a regular system and plan of operations was organized and carried out, although with considerable difficulty.

They had to contend with the fears of the people many of whom would perish in doctoring themselves when there was no necessity for it; "and frequently," said Dr. Stone, "when called in we found the patient filled with calomel." Then, again, notwithstanding the nurses sent from the city, the sick lacked proper attention. Negroes were employed, and oftentimes when the physicians made their rounds, they would find that these model nurses had either deserted their charge or were fast asleep, and had utterly ignored or forgotten instructions.

Dr. Stone says that the fever was of a rather mild type and that probably not more than one in ten cases was virulent.

He attributes this to the healthy situation of the town and to its arrangement.

Up to Wednesday evening, so far as he could learn, there had been from the time of the outbreak of the fever 103 deaths from it, 85 being whites and 18 colored."

Mr. Bradlaugh and Mrs. Besant have been lecturing at Congleton England, under the auspices of the Progressive Club. Mrs. Besant lectured on freedom of thought and speech, Mr. Bradlaugh being in the chair. The lecturer was proceeding to denounce Christianity, when one of the audience shouted, "Put her out." Mr. Bradlaugh intimated that the first man who interrupted would be put out, whereupon Mr. Barbery, a local tradesman and a well-known wrestler, invited Mr. Bradlaugh to attempt it. Mr. Bradlaugh at once left the platform and closed with his opponent. They fell over a form together, and a scuffle ensued, and the excitement in the room was intense. The supporters of Mr. Bradlaugh cheered, while their opponents hooted, and a crowd outside smashed the windows of the building. Mr. Bradlaugh had succeeded in pushing his antagonist half way down the room, when the latter was rescued by his friends and induced to retire.

Cardinal Manning has written a letter to a Methodist clergyman on the position of the Protestants in Spain, in which he says: "So far as I know, the English Catholics have made no representation to the Government of Spain in reference to the Protestants in that country. So far as I know, and I learn it also from the papers of to-day, the laws in Spain do not extend to the private conscience or belief of any one, but restrain only the public propagation of religious tenets or worship at variance with the religion of the Spanish people. Under these circumstances no Catholic would consider any representation to be justified. The Spanish people are united in faith and religion, and are fully justified in preserving their country and their households from the miseries of religious conflict.

And believing as they do that this unity of faith and worship is a divine law, they hold it to be of the highest obligation to transmit it faithfully to their children."

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against whom we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the primary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that the nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way the people can be do s and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by that action.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECTORS AT LARGE:

JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:

1. SYDNEY T. PARKE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLLINGSLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WARDLAW, of Russell.
4. JOHN Y. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. WM. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL S. McCLADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. REUBEN O. JONES, of Lauderdale.

There were eight deaths in Montgomery last week—two white and six colored. The whites were adults; five of the colored were children.

The complaint is still of a lack of water. A Montgomery paper says that "a two inch skiff could hardly make its way in the Alabama river."

In the same city many of the cisterns are exhausted, and some of the wells are dried up.

Political Notes.

The rumor that Capt. Jones is coming down, we suspect, is not true. It is thought, however, that some of his intolerant friends will go up.

The news from some of the interior counties shows that Mr. Bromberg is gaining strength. Notably so in Marengo county.

Mr. Turner, it is confidently predicted, will not be elected.

We do not know how the colored voters will go; but it is said that they have a profound respect for our candidate; and as they will have none of their own, they will be at liberty to choose between Capt. Jones and Mr. Bromberg. The friends of the former, it is also said, will not reject their votes. This, we think, is true; and we suppose that the friends of the latter-named gentleman will not reject them. No candidate or party does reject votes. They go for them, and never "look a gift horse in the mouth."

For our part, we should be very glad to see our colored fellow-citizens dividing themselves within the District between the Congressional candidates, but hoping that nine-tenths of them will go for Mr. Bromberg. He has the respect of all of them, as well as that of the white men, for those orators and papers that abuse the Republicans have no ill-word to utter in respect of Mr. B. This is a negative compliment which is much more valuable than any that can be constructed by mere positive partisans for their leaders.

In all this pacific strife, it must not be forgotten that there is another duty. Namely, that in relation to the candidate for the Presidency. This, we are sure, is not forgotten; and we are also sure that our family troubles will increase, and not diminish, the strength of Tilden and Hendricks.

We are requested by the gentleman who gave us the information, upon which we based our report of Major Thomson's speech at Wheelerville, to state that in reply to the irate Major's charge of falsehood and slander, he deems it necessary to say nothing, inasmuch as Major Thomson, in his own report of that speech, clearly admits that—by implication, at least—he pronounced Mr. Bromberg a Radical, and, of course, that his supporters were like unto him. Major Thomson did not say, in so many words, that "Brom erg and his supporters are Radicals," but he implied it clearly. The gentleman in question has been absent from the city since the day he gave us the information, and only returned last Monday. Hence this delay. We shall only add that he is responsible for what he says and does.

Judge Rapier.

The remains of Judge C. W. Rapier were interred yesterday. Well, his death surprised no person who had seen him on the streets for several months. There were signs of a growing feebleness that denoted the early coming of the "inevitable hour."

We knew him intimately several years before he was elected to the bench; and a gentler, more placable and-kind hearted man is not within our recollection. He was never out of temper, and even, when inexorable organic disease took possession of him, he was still the same humane, considerate person that he was when in full health.

Of his learning, either in law or literature, we cannot speak, for he rarely referred to books, or law, when he was among his acquaintances, away from his professional business. What is better than this, was the good sense of his impulses and intentions.

We call it good-hearted-ness.

There was another characteristic of the man. That was his modesty, or, better, his diffidence. This was not from a lack of self-confidence, but from a natural deference to the feelings and opinions of those persons whom he met and talked to. No one addressed him without respecting him. Some thought that he lacked stamina. This was a mistake, in what was right; there was no firmer mind, although he sometimes seemed to yield. Well he did yield, but it was only in non-essentials. Otherwise, he had a resolute firmness.

We regret the gentleman's death, although we had forecasted it; but are not all of us, as Hamlet's uncle said, "passing through nature to eternity"? We hope that all of us may wrap the drapery of our couches around us, and lie down to as pleasant dreams as those which are within the coffin of Judge Rapier.

Nominations; Regular, Irregular and Defective.

In Mr. Jones the regular nominee of the democratic party of the first Congressional District? To answer this question correctly is to furnish a solution of the problem which is now vexing our political community. If Mr. Jones is the regular nominee of the party, then it is plain that all good democrats ought to vote for him; but if Mr. Jones is not the regular nominee of the party, then good democrats may vote, if they please, for Mr. Bromberg without any violation of party loyalty.

Whether Mr. Jones's nomination is regular, irregular, or defective, depends upon the action of the conventions concerned in making the nomination. No question has been raised as to the regularity of the action of any of the primary conventions in any of the counties in this district; and so the regularity of five out of the six conventions is unchallenged; so that the discussion is confined to the conduct of the county convention held in Mobile on the 25th of August, and to the conduct of the district convention held in Jackson on the 1st of September.

The story of these two conventions has been told already on several occasions, and particularly, and with some detail, in the Address of the People's Democratic Executive Committee, published in our issue of the 1st of October.

We shall, therefore, make our argument as brief as possible, and mention only the more prominent facts of the case.

THE MOBILE CONVENTION.

The first upon which the whole argument hinges is the bolt in the Mobile convention. But for this bolt there would have been no trouble at all. But for this bolt the democracy of this district would not have been divided into two hostile camps. But for this bolt the success of the party would not have been endangered by the presence in the field of two Democratic candidates for Congress. It is not idle declamation, but the dictate of the plainest reason, to say that the men who are responsible for this bolt, are also responsible for all the consequences following from it.

The logical presumption is that the bolters were in the wrong. It is in cumbent on them to sustain the justice of their cause by positive arguments; otherwise it falls to the ground of its own weight. What arguments then have the bolters and their friends been able to adduce in justification of the bolt? They are these three, and no more:

First. That the rule adopted in the May Convention, on the motion of Col. Laugdon, was a precedent which was binding upon the August Convention.

Secondly. That the recommendations which the Executive Committee saw fit to attach to the call for the August Convention was a sort of organic law for that convention which it had no right to disregard.

Thirdly. That the action of the August Convention in adopting the majority rule was an outrage on the rights of the minority.

Let us examine these three propositions seriatim.

The object of Col. Langdon's resolution in the May Convention was to allow every separate ward and precinct of the county to select its own delegates to the State Convention, and to the District Convention; so that the thirty-two delegates from Mobile county would not every one of them represent the aggregate sentiment of the whole county; but so that every separate section of the county should be separately represented by delegates of its own choice. At first view, this seems to be a very plausible proposition; but a little examination will show that it is absurd in theory and impossible in practice. If this pain were adopted, it would leave Mobile county, as such, entirely without representation in district and state conventions; and when the vote was taken by the call of the counties, nobody would be authorized to answer for Mobile county. Indeed, it is easy to see, if the District convention, or the State convention, is not a convention of counties, but a convention of precincts, that the vote ought, in common consistency, to be taken, not by calling the roll of the counties, but, contrariwise, by calling the roll of the precincts. One proposition would have no more right to cast the vote of another precinct than one county would have to cast the vote of another county. If it should happen, therefore, that in a District Convention, or in a State Convention, that the delegates from some of the precincts failed to be in attendance, the vote of such precincts could not be taken; just as when all the delegates of a county are absent, the vote of that county must be omitted. Take an illustration. According to the established practice of our party conventions, if there had been in the Jackson convention only one delegate from Mobile county, that single delegate would have had the rigus which would not have been challenged by any body, of casting the whole thirty-two votes to which the county was entitled and he would have had this right because he represented, not any special precinct, but the whole county. But if this solitary delegate had been appointed in accordance with the rule of the May Convention, he would not have been the representative of the county at all, but of some one of the precincts say of one of the smaller country precincts, when he would have had the right to cast only half a vote—or of the eighth ward in the city, when he would have been entitled to four and a half votes. In one word—if the delegate represents the county, he votes for the county; if he represents the precinct, he votes for the precinct.

Still further. Under this rule the county convention would not be the people of the county in convention assembled at all—would have no power to make rules for the selection of delegates, and no power to select delegates. For example, if the four delegates in the county convention from Whistler were to elect two delegates to represent Whistler in the District convention, surely nobody could claim that such elections would be the act of the sixty-five delegates constituting the county convention. To sum up the whole argument into a single proposition. Under this rule the county convention would be in fact not an assemblage of the sovereign people, with power to make rules and to elect delegates, but simply a committee of consultation and convenience; and its only functions would be to issue credentials to such delegates to the district convention as had been severally elected by the representatives of the several wards and precincts. Such in theory and in practice is the famous rule presented by Col. Langdon and adopted by the May Convention. It is to be hoped that after this reductio ad absurdum, it will be heard of no more.

The Daily Tribune.

WEDNESDAY,...OCTOBER 18

Three rooms for rent on the southwest corner of St. Emanuel and Conti streets.

The firm of H. S. Hammond & Co. has been dissolved. A. F. Hammond will continue the drayage business.

As extended report of the republican mass meeting at the corner of State and Stone streets Monday evening, embracing an abstract of the speeches made there by Whitehead, Bryant and Mayer, will be published tomorrow morning.

Arrangements have been perfected by the new management of the Battle House for the reception of winter boarders from the north and west, a large number of whom, it is intimated, will be diverted to Mobile from their usual winter sojourn in Florida. This looks like business.

Two More Fires.

Shortly after twelve o'clock yesterday, before an alarm was sounded from the tower near the guard house, the machines of one or more fire companies went thundering along North Royal towards Government street, and the gallant firemen knew by intuition that there was a fire in a certain direction. There was a fire and it proved to be at the grocery store of Philip Gunn, southwest corner Canal and Jefferson streets. From this fire extended to the building on Jefferson street adjoining, occupied by Mr. Baptiste and Isaac Smith.

Both of these were frame buildings and both were destroyed. Mr. Gunn had $300 on his stock and $1000 on the building in John C. Rice's agency.

The other building belonged to the estate of H. P. Foard, and was insured for $800 in the Manhattan office. The fire originated from sparks coming out of the chimney of Mr. Gunn's house that set fire to some hay on the premises.

The building belonging to the estate of H. P. Foard was offered at auction last Monday by Stoutz Bros, but no bid was made on it.

Second Ward Democrats.

At a meeting of the Second Ward Tilden and Hendricks Reform Club last evening, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved.—1. That the members of this club regard with indignation and contempt the efforts of certain local politicians and of the Register newspaper to weaken, by the dissemination of gross misrepresentations, the hold which Mr. Bromberg has won for himself in the confidence of the people of Mobile and of the first congressional district.

2. That, having the amplest assurance of the political orthodoxy of our candidate, his confession of political faith being the Louisiana platform as construed by Mr. Tilden, we make his cause our cause, and consider the weapons of denunciation, misrepresentation and abuse which are aimed at him as being aimed at ourselves.

3. That we denounce the assertions of the Register, to the effect that Mr. Bromberg was endorsed by the republican conventions as a republican; that he has separated himself from his people and thrown himself into the arms of the radicals and others of similar character, as without foundation—as false both in principle and in fact.

4. That, knowing Mr. Bromberg to be an honest man, a good democrat and a statesman worthy of our suffrages, we intend to stand by him, through evil reports as well as through good report; and that, in the absence from the field of any regularly nominated Democratic candidate, we will bear his banner to victory on the 7th of November.

River News.

The Mary, from Montgomery, arrived at a late hour Monday night with 516 bales of cotton, a tolerable trip of sundries and about 40 passengers.

The Emma, No. 2, from Selma arrived with 326 bales of cotton, a few lots of sundries and 18 passengers.

The Mary Boyd, a new steamboat, has been purchased by Captain Woodie Stone and others, to ply between Mobile and Tuskaloosa.

The flag ship D. L. Tally, of the Grange Line, Captain Frank Stone in command, will commence her regular trips on the Bigbee as soon as there is water enough in the river for her to run. The Tally has been thoroughly overhauled and painted, and under the command of that popular steamboatman, Captain Frank Stone, who has hosts of friends among shippers in the city and among planters and traders along the line of the Bigbee, will do a successful business. An extra announcement will be made when the Tally is ready for her first trip of the season.

The Mary went out last evening for Selma and Montgomery with a splendid freight and a large number of passengers.

The steamer W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whiteside, arrived last evening about seven o'clock, from the Bigbee, bringing 314 bales of cotton, a large lot of sundries and 56 cabin passengers. The cause of delay was that the Holt got aground above Coffeeville. As tigbe as a special freight awaiting her on the wharf, she will be ready to depart this evening at five o'clock sharp for Demopolis, with Captain G. H. Whiteside on the roof and Mr. Virgil H. Powers in the office.

The clerk of the Holt reports the Sam J. Tilden high and almost dry at Turkey Shoals in 16 inches or water, with 120 bales of cotton on board, and says "she will be here as soon as she can get off."

TELEGRAPH

RIOTOUS DEMONSTRATION.

GREENFIELD, N. H., Oct. 17.—Work upon the Manchester and Keene Railroad has been entirely suspended, owing to the inability of the contractors to meet their liabilities, and as a result the large force of workmen are without means and have become so riotous that the Governor was called on for militia, but refusing to grant them, a police force has been sent from Nashua and Manchester.

SHIPPING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Pacific Mail Company's steamer Colon was seized yesterday morning at her dock by the City Marshal for $180,000 taxes, due the city for 1874.

VANDERBILT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The report of Vanderbilt's death is ascertained to be untrue.

The dispatch announcing it came from the New York Herald and was signed "Rev. Chas. F. Deems." Vanderbilt is as well as usual.

The following dispatch was sent to a Wall street firm at noon yesterday: "I am alive and doing well; better than I have been in many months.

VANDERBILT."

BIG ROBBERY.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—A pawnbroker's shop here was robbed of jewelry and diamonds to the value of $20,000.

TWEED'S ESCAPE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Tweed's escape from Cuba was under the most painful circumstances to him. The United States Consul at Havana, on discovering his presence in that city, reported the fact by telegraph to Secretary Fish at Washington.

The Secretary directed the Consul to arrest Tweed. The latter obtained information of these orders and escaped to Santiago de Cuba. But the pirate here becoming very warm for him, he was forced to go aboard the Colon, a vessel about to sail for Spain. It has been supposed heretofore that Tweed sailed as a passenger, but information from Vigo states that he went aboard the ship as a sailor man, and was compelled to serve as a deckhand, and bare-footed, bare legged and bare armed, was forced with squilgee and swab to wash down the decks.

In this disguise he was discovered and identified by Consul Hoyt at Vigo Bay. This harsh experience, it is added, did not seem to have in any way discouraged Tweed or impaired his health. When he was placed on board the Franklin he was given the most commodious and elegant quarters on board the ship.

HELL GATE.

About thirty-five men are at work in three gangs, which relieve one another, each spending eight hours in the rock, so that the work goes on without ceasing night and day. Three drills are kept running, and each drill is supposed to bore ninety feet every twenty-four hours. Holes are drilled in the floor of the head ings about three inches in diameter, three holes to the walls are one inch smaller. The depth of the holes varies from four to ten feet. The stones of flood rock, while being part of the same stratification as the Hallett's Reef, and with soft mud to the side of it, is of a much softer nature.

But eight ounces of dynamite are placed in the ordinary paper cartridges used, and that quantity is found sufficient to rend away a great quantity of rock as it is expedient to shake down a one time. On Wednesday last a large portion of the roof of the main heading fell in, but fortunately no one was standing beneath it. Should the stone be found to increase in stiffness as the shaft is sunk deeper and the heading penetrate the body of the rock, it will seriously enhance the difficulty of the work, and render extreme caution necessary a every blast.

SENTENCE OF MOLLY MAGUIRES.

POTTSVILLE, Oct. 17.—The Court yesterday morning passed the following sentences on the "Molly Maguires" convicted at the last term of the Court: John Kehoe, 14 years imprisonment; Dennis F. Canuig, 14 years; Christopher Donnelly, 14 years; Michael O'Brien, 14 years; Frank O'Neal, two years and a half, and Jno. Gibbons and Jn. Morris seven years each; Polk Dolan, Sr., one year; Edward Monaghan, one year.

Sentence was also passed on a number of the witnesses who had committe perjury at the trial.

TREATY WITH THE INDIANS.

BISMARCK, Oct 17—The Indians at Standing Rock signed a treaty relinquishing the Black Hills, so modified as no to insist upon their removal to the Indian Territory.

F ROED LETTER OF CREDIT.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 17.—The First National Bank of this city is advised that a forged letter of credit and drafts, purporting to be drawn by it on the American Exchange Bank of New York have been offered at Memphis. The fraud will probably be attempted elsewhere.

FAILURE OF A SHIPPING H USE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—The failure of the shipping and commission house of Macke, Victor & Co., was announced yesterday. Cause, over speculation. The assets will probably be in excess of liabilities.

YELLOW FEVER IN HAMPTON ROADS.

RICHMOND, Oct. 17.—A special to the Dispatch reports yellow fever in Hampton Roads. Several cases have occurred on a schooner from Savannah.

SNOW STORM.

There was a snow storm at Norfolk Sunday; also hereabouts, and the weather is extremely cold. The thermometers at sunrise Sunday and yesterday, 31 degrees. It is feared that the heavy gale which prevailed off the capes was disastrous to vessels.

THE GOLD WATCHER.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 17.—During last Sunday night the mercury fell to 30, and thin ice formed.

YELLOW FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 16.—Total interments to-day 8, 4 whites and 4 colored; yellow fever deaths 3. Father Kelly, and John H. D ivis, of the firm of Palmer & Dupree, were buried to day.

DISASTROUS LAKE ONTARIO.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—Ten gales of the past few days proved disastrous to shipping on the lake.

The schooner Wood Duck, Capt. Thomas, with 600 of Oswego's work squad for Toronto, is reported missing. Several other vessels are overdue here.

The schooner British Queen is riding at anchor six miles east of Coburg, the sails and part of one and the crew unable to reach the shore.

Several vessels put back to Port Colborne last evening in bad condition, and a number arrived there today, reporting the loss of anchor and sails.

AN EDITOR DEAD.

MONTGOMERY, Oct. 17.—M. M. Cooke, for several years past one of the editors of the, Montgomery Advertiser died last night after long illness of consumption. He was regarded as among the most brilliant newspaper writers of the country.

A $600,000 FIRE.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 16.—The most destructive fire which has visited Louisville in many years occurred at 1 o'clock this morning. Flames were discovered in Hunt & Harris' clothing house, thence communicating to Lowe-Kilgore liquor store, Gerard & Dunn's grocery and A. Lowy's clothing house. All these establishments represent large wholesale firms and are in one block owned by Tuorner & Co., of Cincinnati. The flames spread across the street to another block damaging the Alexander Hotel, Geo. W. Wicks & Co.'s tobacco and cotton house and G. G. Clevers' hardware store the Falls City furniture factory and other houses were also damaged. The loss will exceed $600,000, with very heavy insurance.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, October 17.—The negroes belonging to the State militia and their arms concealed near a joint meeting at Calhony, nine miles from Charleston, at which, by agreement, both arties appeared unarmed. A disturbance occurring, the militia obtained their arms and commenced firing from the bushes, killing two and wounding seven whites. Eighty armed whites have left the city to secure the bodies and protect the people of the vinicinity.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, Sr. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LUNDAY soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that it is manufactured from pure and fresh materials and have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contain, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, Sr. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From our results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by assistant chemist Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their unbleached purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical college of Alabama.

The New Orleans Republican says that last Sunday as one of the trains crossed the bridge a Bay St. Louis, sparks from the locomotive fell on the wood work and caused a fire, which was not discovered until considerable smoke became visible. Before the fire was extinguished two or three sections of the wood work were destroyed, thus delaying following trains a few hours. Workmen were at once engaged and as rapidly as possible the damage was repaired. Trains now pass over the track as usual.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 75, minimum 53, a range of 22 degrees.

Breaking the Ring.

To the Mobile Tribune:—I am a colored man and a republican and I intend to vote for the nominees of the Cincinnati convention, because I believe the perpetuity of the republic depends upon a continuance of the republican party in power. However, this is my opinion; let it be worth what it may.

I do not intend to discuss national matters in the columns of your valuable paper, but I do intend to discuss the necessity of electing to congress the Hon. Frank G. Bromberg, and the necessity of every man, white or black, voting for him; especially the black man, for it is patent to the mind of every one of us that since reconstruction the ring politicians of Mobile have been composed of the bitterest class of democrats and have tended to engender a spirit of hostility against the black man, while the more conservative democrats were willing to accord to us every right guaranteed to us by the constitutional amendments.

The ring have not only in the past attempted to deprive us of our right as citizens, but they have, in a measure, deprived every poor white man of his rights. You may deny the assertion that we have been deprived of our rights, poor white men, especially you of foreign birth and descent; but a careful observation of the past will lead you quickly to the conclusion that the assertion is true. Has not every election shown you clearly that you have only been the faithful servant of the master? Have not the ring planned out and manipulated every office to suit the gain or the people of Mobile and of the state?

I tell you plainly that the conservative democrats and the colored men must in the future govern local politics, and when that is done there will be no more rings to speculate on the rights of poor men.

Respectfully,
SPENCER TRIMBLE, a Colored Citizen.
Mobile, October 15, 1876.

Board of Aldermen.

At the regular weekly meeting of the board of aldermen last evening, in the absence of President Smith, Alderman Molton was called to the chair. Fourteen members were present.

Report of the city assessor, collection of $39 45 for the week ending the 14th instant. Referred to ways and means.

Report of keeper of powder magazine, collection of $36 00 in September. Referred.

Report of committee on markets, that the receipts from the markets are decreasing, owing to the taxt of all the peddling being done before the authorised time, nine o'clock, a. m., and that the ordinance in relation to that has not been enforced.

The board of health, in their report, refer to the very abominable habit of throwing dead animals into the streets, as well as kitchen garbage, still practiced, though proper officials have been instructed to arrest and bring before the mayor all parties who may be detected as guilty of this act.

A petition was presented for the erection of a gas light on the corner of Wilkinson and Charleston streets, numerously signed. Referred.

Alderman D. E. Smith asked leave of absence for 60 days for President Smith, at the request of the latter gentleman, which was granted.

On the petiton of W. M. O'Connell for reduction of rent of Stonewall Exchange, the committee reported recommending that the rent for 1876 be $400.

Justice Loomis.

George Wilson had Sherwood Pickens arrested for shooting and making a valuable dog on the premises of Mr. Wilson, over Three Mile Creek on the St. Stephens road. Sent to the city court for trial on the charge of malicious mischief, under a bond of $100.

By Mobille and Ohio, Railroad yesterday 148 barrels of apples and 100 barrels of lime were received, and over the Mobile and Montgomery railroad was brought in a car load.

Duncan, Sherman & Co.,

Have filed, (at 10.)

The General Term of the Supreme Court yesterday, on appeal, upheld the order of arrest against William Butler Duncan and others in the suit against them by Washington A. Bobbing upon a bill of exchange purchased of Duncan, Sherman & Co. for collection just before their failure. A motion to vacate the order was first heard and denied by Judge Lawrence. Then a rehearing upon fuller papers was had before Judge Barrett, who in an elaborate opinion also denied the motion. The General Term, Judge Davis giving the opinion, and Judge Brady and Daniels concurring, after reciting in full the opinion of Judge Barrett, say: "A careful examination of the case has led us to substantially the same conclusions expressed in this opinion. It seems unnecessary therefore, that we should do more than briefly express our concurrence in the views and conclusions of the opinion of the Special Term. The case stands upon a few bold and striking propositions. First, that at the time of the plaintiffs of the bill of exchange the defendants were in fact hopelessly insolvent. The bankrupt law was absent $5,000,000. Their nominal assets did not exceed $3,000, and were in fact of much less value. They probably did not know the extremities of their condition; but enough is shown to establish that they did know that their condition was one of utter insolvency unless they could realize relief to a very large amount from sources which they say were in contemplation. That relief was contingent. It wholly failed, and it seems to us that it must have been at all times so doubtful in character that the defendants had no right, with what knowledge they must have possessed respecting condition of their own affairs of those upon persons who dealt with them in good faith with full confidence in their entire solvency, to the chances of loss upon the failure of their alleged expectations. Certainly they were bound to show to the Court, in the most clear and convincing manner the basis of their expectations, and that they had just reasons for relying upon them, and opportunity was twice offered to do this on the two motions in this case. We agree with the courts below that the general statements were not sufficient under the circumstances. Dealers with brokers, while acting in good faith, in reliance on their apparent agency, must be protected against the consequences of the concealment of their real condition, when such condition is not merely insolvency but utter bankruptcy, and where such concealment involves a degree of bad faith on which the law will imply fraud, although no actual representation be made."

The question of the determination filtered as was quickly spread, and the matter was the subject of animated discussion and the source of spontaneous excitement.

Strange Death.

Daniel and six years a son of Mr. T. Kilpatrick, living 18 miles south of this place, was smothered to death on last Sunday, under the following circumstances: He had built a cotton house to play with under tables, and after a time his mother wandered off, and did not miss him for some little while, and when they did, they went at once to the house where he was last seen and found his head and body completely buried in the cotton and life entirely extinct. He had fallen into a hole made in the cotton and was smothered. His parents have our deepest sympathy.—Kosciusko (Miss) Star.

The University has 119 students, Professor Hill, at the Tuskaloosa Female College 116, Professor Lanneau, Alabama Central Female College 65, Dreadine Conrent—, and Professor Dill 45. This is a very fair showing for these hard times; and besides these, there are several small schools, from which we have been unable to get reports of the number of pupils.—Tuskaloosa Gazette.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG, subject to the action of the Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, existing from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by the action; and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the Interim Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to submit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to the suffrages of the Democratic party of the district, and we decline to be bound in any way by the action; and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention be refused, or if the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result.

Gen. Newton, who blockades up the Hell Gate Obstruction, is receiving much honor. The little baby—three years old who touched off the thing—is now made a heroine.

On the 14th instant a sister of charity (Miss. Bircham) died at Savannah of yellow fever. The Rev. Fathers James Kelly and Pius Potassi were at the point of death from the same disease.

Ex-Queen Isabella is now in Madrid. She is trying to get a large amount of money from the Spanish government, on the strength of some trumped-up claims. She won't get all she demands. The Cortes is willing to give her something, but only about one-fifth of what she wants.

BUSINESS FAILURES.—Dun, Barlow & Co. have published a report of the number of business failures for the past twenty-one months. The whole number is 14,783, with an indebtedness of $358,000,000. For the nine months of the present year, as compared with the corresponding months of last year, the failures increased 1,765 with increased liabilities of $25,000,000.

Presidential Speculations.

All sorts of estimates are made as to the result of the election next month. The last one that we have seen is in the New York Marshall—a paper that has a balance wheel—writes decent English—unlike our neighbor—and never gets frantic. Here is how it fixes the business: for Tilden: Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, California, Nevada and Oregon.

These states carry 180 electoral votes. The whole number is 369—and, as ninegroes do not count, 185 will elect a President.

The World says:

The result of the Indiana election has added to the column, making 184 more votes, or 204 in all. The nine more votes they have held during the year have renewed the assurance that Connecticut, Delaware, Oregon, West Virginia, Arkansas, Alabama, Texas and Georgia will cast their votes for Tilden and Hendricks. One word of advice to the Register. Weigh well what you say, and do not set your self up as a censor. We humbly suggest that you temper your [illegible] abuse is not argument, and is invariably a sign of weakness. We say, mate you, we will as cheerfully and do as cheertully support Tilden and Hendricks as the Register does, and will not be read out of the fold by the editor or the Register, or any self-constituted Sanhedrim of political doctors of the county of Mobile.

Patents obtained in the United States, Canada and Europe, terms as low as those of any other reliable agency. Inventions protected and introduced into the English and foreign languages, with circulars, Attorneys at Law and other Solicitors, especially with those who have had their cases REJECTED in the hands of other agents. In rejected cases our fees are reasonable, and no charge is made unless we secure a patent. If you want a Patent, send us a model or sketch and a full description of your invention. We will examine and advise you FREE. Address, with stamp, MUNN & CO., Solicitors of Patents and Counsel on Patent Law, Publishers of the Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York.

J. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

A Successful Conundrum.

"John has never given you a ring!" said Katie's sister to her one day. John was Katie's lover.

"Never," said Katie, with a regretful shake of her head.

"And he never will until you ask him for it," returned the elder.

"Then I fear I shall never get one," was the reply.

"Of course you never will. John is too stupid to think of such things; and you can never pluck up courage to ask for one; it follows that you will never get one."

This set Katie to thinking, and to what purpose we shall see.

That evening her lover came to see her. He was very proud and very happy, for the beautiful girl by his side had been for several weeks pledged to marry him as soon as the business could be properly done, and John was a grand good fellow, too, notwithstanding his obliviousness to certain polite matters.

"John," said Katie, at length looking up with an innocent smile, "do you know what a conundrum is?"

"Why, it's a puzzle—a riddle," answered John.

"Do you think you can ask me one I could not guess?"

"I don't know, I never thought of such things. Could you ask me one?"

"I could try."

"Well, try Katie."

"Then answer this: Why is the letter D like a ring?"

John puzzled his brain over the problem for a long time, but was finally forced to give it up.

"I don't know, Katie. Why is it?"

"Because," replied the maiden, with a very soft blush creeping up to her temples, "we cannot be wed without it."

In less than a week from that date Katie had her engagement ring.

Police Scenes.

Edward Hall, of Brooklyn, was arrested helplessly drunk on the streets of New York, and locked up in the Tombs. Arraigned before Justice Duffy yesterday morning, he said:

"Judge, here is $5 which I brought over to buy a ton of coal. I did get drunk, sir, and I deserve to be punished. I have a wife and eight children dependent upon my support. I deserve all the punishment that you can give to me. Take this $5, Judge, and please let me go home."

"Hadn't you better stay here five days and send the $5 to your wife to buy a ton of coal?" said Justice Duffee.

"Your Honor, I am needed to support my wife and eight children. I cannot lose five days; besides, if I am locked up I shall lose my position. Please take the $5 and let me go."

"Go on home, sir, with the $5 and by your ton of coal."

"Thank you, Judge, thank you; and if you ever catch me here again sick it to me, Judge, tor then I will deserve no mercy."

Martha Montag was found by a policeman in the Bowery, telling the citizens all about the Western elections. Judge Murray sentenced her to three months on the Island.

"Make it six, Judge," bawled out Martha.

"Six it is," said His Honor.

Martha, looking at the officer who brought her in, exclaimed; "I'll be on the Bowery long after that fellow is broke, so you may as well make it ten, Judge."

"Ten it is," said His Honor.—N. Y. World.

The report of the Georgia State Commissioner of Agriculture for September shows that the corn crop is 34 per cent. better than last year's; cotton, 15; sugar cane, 33; ground-peas, 4, and sweet potatoes, 11. The turnip crop is almost a failure on account of drought. Very little small grain has been sown. It is not too late to sow yet in this climate. Cotton picking is much further advanced than last year. It is estimated that the bulk of the crop will be gathered by the 1st of November. Hogs have been universally kept from cholera this year and those for slaughter this fall are 7 per cent. greater in number and better in quality. The stock of hogs is generally improving. All forage crops saved are in extraordinary fine condition, and nearly a full supply is made. The season is remarkably favorable for gathering matured crops, but very unfavorable for crops not matured and for sowing small grain.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile & Ohio delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention is the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for that position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result. oct7 1

FOR PRESIDENT,

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT;

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS,
(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,
OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET.

ELECTORS AT LARGE:
JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:
1. SIDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTZCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WADDELL, of Russell.
4. JOHN T. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. Wm. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL R. McCADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

The Register has been "eating the insane root"—Shakespeare, we suppose, meant that preparation of hemp which is used in India, and tempts the poor fellows who indulge in it to run what is called a muck: that is to go out on the highways and slay every wayfarer that they meet. Some humane person ought to deprive our neighbors of this root which is so productive of folly.

Our colored fellow citizens are coming to two important conclusions. The one is that the best friend they can have in Congress will be Mr. Bromberg—not because that he is a Democrat, but because he is an honest man, and will see that justice, as far as he is concerned, shall be done to men of all colors. And in that he is wise, for all our Southern States depend on the harmony of all the voters. Within the country we are weak, as compared with the rest of the States. By harmony we can make these States potent in their influence at Washington; and within them what is good for the white man is good for the colored men. The interest of the two cannot be separated; the labors of designing men for nefarious purposes, to separate them, is one of the worst of the evils of our present condition.

A new candidate for the public favor has entered the field: namely, "The Daily Cycle." It is published by Messrs. Walthall, Thames & Smith. The last-named gentleman, General Melancthon Smith, managed the Star at Scranton. The Cycle is entered as "By the Cycle Company". Mr. Smith purchased the interest of Ex-Gov. Bard, who, we are glad to hear, is about to enter into some commercial pursuits. With his energy and intelligence, there will be "no such word as fail."

The Cycle supports the Jones party, and does it by abusing, we might say maligning, the candidate of the two-thirds of the Mobile Democracy. This is bad, but here is something worse:

LINDEN, Marengo Co., Oct. 16th.

Editor Cycle:—It would be a source of pleasure to the people here who patronize Mobile exclusively, to know what business houses in your city are supporting or giving their influence to Mr. Bromberg. Can you give us a list in your paper at once and oblige

MANY DEMOCRATS.

This betrays a mean, proscriptive spirit. The date of it proves that it is of home manufacture. It never saw Linden—"Linden when the sun [of Captain Jones] was low."

It exhibits a very bad spirit. Its purpose is to nurture the selfish motives of men and make them belie themselves. It is as it were, as if a Methodist gentleman should go into a Baptist church, and declare that if a membe of it he refused conformity, he should be starved, nay, that the church itself should be burned down.

This is an extreme example, but it accurately illustrates the infamous suggestion made in the communication—not from Linden, but just contrived here in Mobile to scare honest men.

If this sort of meanness and intolerance alarm any one, we hope that he will quit the Bromberg ranks and fawn on those who are trying to buy both his body and his soul. It is an insult—and a very gross one—unpardonable!—to those who think they have some manhood.

A great deal may be pardoned in party excitements, but this insult is not to be pardoned by any measure of license that is tolerated on such occasions.

Political Notes.

The Democrats who have heretofore supported Mr. Bromberg are forced, themselves, to admit that he has never professed to be a Democrat.—Register.

Are they? That is news to us. We were of the opinion that when a man accepted the platform and creed of a party and published to the world that he was standing "with both feet upon it," that he would be regarded by most intelligent persons as in full fellowship with that party. See Mr. Bromberg's letter to Col. Hodgson, published in the Register just before the time for holding the congressional convention at Jackson. If such as this is not an open profession of Democracy and does not entitle the person making it to rank as a Democrat, then what are we going to do about the Democracy of such men as Col. Langdon and scores of others now prominent in the party, but who were all Whigs? They came into the party by simply endorsing its platform and creeds. Shall we read them out?

"After referring to rings, the manner of Mr. Bromberg's delegation, and the recent convention of the Democratic party of Mobile, the speaker took up the political record of the gentleman, and dwelt upon his absence in the time of war, his presence immediately after, his acceptance of office, as well as his connection with the reconstruction measures. His first congressional act was to vote for the great and good James G. Blaine for Speaker of the House of Representatives in opposition to that true gentleman and sterling Democrat, Fernando Wood. He disliked to refer to this dark and damnable record, but the time had come when all must speak plainly.—Register's report of Colonel Langdon's speech at the Theatre last week.

For the honor of Democracy be it hoped that no one will believe that these people are in earnest in their efforts to append a most fearful chapter of corruption to the records of the Democratic party of the First Congressional District. If Mr. Bromberg is really the very bad man that they seem disposed to have the people believe, what then are we to say for ourselves, when it is pitched into our teeth that we have nominated and fully endorsed him twice, as a united party, taking him gladly with all his record?

Can any one be weak enough to suppose that Mr. Bromberg could poll a single Republican vote in this community or in this District, in any other capacity than that of a Democrat?

A SUGGESTION.—As many of our citizens were denied the rare pleasure of witnessing the recent Radical convention, and as there will doubtless never be any occasion for another, it would be well to hold one before the election and charge one dollar admission and two dollars for reserved seats.—Register.

We do not doubt that the Register has many friends who would gladly pay more than two dollars each to have another "Radical Convention" held before the election.

A TOUGH PROBLEM.—Politics often presents problems that are difficult of solution, and we have one of them in how the Jones faction of the Democratic party and the Turner faction of the Republican party, entertaining as they do views so widely at variance, manage to get along together in such dove-like peace and delightful harmony. For instance, at the late Theatre meeting Dr. Ketchum declared Mr. Bromberg a "Liberal Republican who has never yet had the courage to proclaim himself a Democrat," while at the Gliddon's Blacksmith-shop meeting Mr. Turner declared him a democrat of the deepest dye. And yet each faction looks approvingly upon what the other is doing. Never a word is said against Turner or his friends by a follower of Jones, and never a word against Jones by a follower of Turner. "Let us have peace!" Beautiful motto, but one whose application is hard to explain in this instance; provided, always, that these two factions are really what they pretend to be: one purely Democratic, and the other purely Republican, and each earnestly contending for the success of its party principles. Are they?

Items.

Judge W. G. Jones has been appointed County Attorney, to fill the place which was occupied by the deceased Judge Rapier.

There is not much now talked of on the streets, except local politics. The general impression is that Mr. Bromberg will carry the district by a large majority. There is no doubt of it as far as this county is concerned, and we hear constantly that he is growing in strength in the other counties. This is to be expected, for he has experience and much honesty—is not any body's man. He belongs to the people, and intends to stand tast by them. This is the kind of congressman that all of us want.

Fires of late have been many. They come not "single spies, but in battalions." This is worthy of the consideration of the moral philosopher, or the insurance agent. Crime runs in "bunches." The ornate descriptions of some desperate evils will tempt imitators. This is strange, but it is true. The late fires, however, we do not attribute to evil design; but they do come in "bunches."

We looked at the fire the other day in the south-west part of the city; and the firemen looked at it. They were as eager as usual. Their beautiful engines might as well have been in New York as there, and simply because there was no water. What is the use of those machines, with brave and skilful men to manage them, if the essential element of their potency is lacking?

It seems to us that the insurance companies might make those engines useful, if they would put their heads together, and furnish water. A fireman is ashamed to run his legs off to a conflagration, and when getting to it, sees that he has run and worked for no valuable purpose.

There were some drops of rain yesterday morning. It came down churlishly, and did not do much good. The watering pots looked at it with disgust; but they went on their devious way before nightfall.

It is strange to observe the growing regard for Mr. Bromberg as a candidate for Congress. We have been surprised at this manifestation of respect. No gentleman speaks ill of him, and most of the men who are not seeking office are respecting him because he does not go down to the shambles.

The Daily Tribune.

AYFRID,.....OCTOBER 20

It was a pleasure to meet yesterday on the street, the tax collector of this city, Mr. W. H. Sheffield, who has just recovered from a serious illness.

Dr. Mandeville, six horses and a druggist, who have been to Brunswick, Georgia, passed through Mobile yesterday morning, en route to New Orleans, the yellow fever having abated in Brunswick and there being no new cases there.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad trains brought in yesterday 555 sacks and 2 cars of corn, 16 bales hay, 36 crates of cabbages and 175 barrels of rosin. The Alcotte and Montgomery road brought in 600 barrels of rosin, 145 barrels of apples, 40 barrels potatoes and one car of stock. The New Orleans and Mobile Railroad brought in yesterday 1 car of lumber.

Another Fire.

Yesterday morning about half past two o'clock, two frame dwelling houses on the south side of Poe street, between Hamilton and Lawrence, were destroyed by fire, which originated in that owned by Dr. J. C. Wilson and occupied by Mrs. Reid. The other house was owned and occupied by Mrs. Fitzgerald, whose loss is about $250, and no insurance. Dr. Wilson had insurance of $700 on his building in the Home Protection office.

Murder at Toumainville.

Coroner Harwell held an inquest yesterday morning over the body of Julia Lawless, colored, about 34 years old, who was killed by her husband, John Lawless. It seems that Lawless had separated from his wife, on account of disagreements between them; but yesterday morning about three o'clock, he went where she was and first attempted an attack on Henry Johnson, who was sleeping in the same house with Julia, in an adjoining room. Failing to injure Johnson, he made an attack on his wife as she was fleeing from the house and almost literally split her head open with an axe. After the perpetration of this act, Lawless escaped from the scene of this dastardly and unprovoked murder, and at last accounts had not been arrested.

Third Ward Democrats.

At a meeting of the Third Ward Tilden and Bromberg Reform Club last Wednesday evening, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, 1. That the members of this club, recognizing the fact that there is no regular nominee of the democratic party of the district in the field for congress, deny that they are under any obligation of party loyalty to support the nominee of the so-called Jackson convention.

2. That we repudiate with indignation the utterances of certain local politicians and of the daily Register, to the effect that Mr. Bromberg and Mr. Bromberg's supporters are acting in contravention of democratic doctrines and democratic discipline.

3. That, in spite of all the denunciation and abuse that have been showered upon him, we hold that Mr. Bromberg's nomination is just as regular as Mr. Jones's; and that, under all the circumstances of the case, he is far more worthy of the suffrages of the Democratic voters of Mobile county.

4. That we make his cause our cause; that we consider all the abuse aimed at him as aimed also at ourselves, and that we pledge ourselves anew to use our best efforts to secure his triumphant election on the 7th of November.

THE AMERICAN CENTENNIAL, 1876.

Wheeler & Wilson Victorious!

Again the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines triumph over the world. The Centennial Commission have officially announced the awards and decreed for the New Wheeler & Wilson Machine two Diplomas of Honor and two Medals of Merit. This is a double victory, and the highest award which it was in the power of the Centennial authorities to bestow. No other sewing machine received such a recognition. More than thirty of the best producers of machine in this and other countries entered for competition, and at Philadelphia in 1867 as at Vienna in 1873, and at Paris in 1867, Wheeler Wilson lead the last. After a careful, rigorous, and exhaustive examination, the judges unanimously decided that the superior excellence of these machines deserved more than one medal or diploma, and, consequently, they recomended two of each. The Centennial Commission unanimously ratified the action of the judges, and the public will indorse the decision of these ablest of mechanical experts. A claim of equally distinguished honor for any other sewing machine is only an attempt to hoodwink the people. Read the following, which stamps the "Wheeler & Wilson" as the Standard Sewing Machine of the World:

[From the Official report.]

AWARDS TO WHEELER & WILSON.

1. A medal and Diploma for "The New Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine," for the following reasons:

"A Lock-Stitch Sewing Machine unsurpassed in the fine workmanship of its parts, great originality, great adaptability to different kinds of work both in cloth and leather, beauty of stitch ease and rapidity of motion, and completeness of display."

2. A medal and Diploma for "The New Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine" for leather, for "Superior quality of work in Leather Stitching."

TELEGRAPH

EFFECTS OF THE WAR NEWS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Express says the sharp advance in gold and stocks today carried down a number of houses on the bear side of the markets and also crippled others. The failures officially announced on the Stock Exchange and in the Gold Room were Howe & Nicholas, Henry Daier, John P. McKewan and J. A. Joseph.

ACQUITTED.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Hoose, who killed her husband, the divorce lawyer, was acquitted.

INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 19.—The aggregate vote on the State ticket is 433,430, of which Williams received 213,098, Harrison 207,979, Harrington, Independent, 12,226. Williams majority over Harrison, 5119. The largest Independent vote was cast for Newsom, candidate for Treasurer of the State—15,945. The Legislature stands: House—Republicans 53, Democrats 45, Independents 2; Senate—Republicans 25, Democrats 25, Independents 2.

TUG WRECKED.

KEY WEST, Oct. 19.—The steam tug Godfrey Koubler, from Philadelphia for Galveston, struck on a reef last night, and will be a total loss. No lives were lost. The crew will probably be taken off by a pilot boat.

THE FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 19.—Total interments 9 day seven, of which three were from yellow fever.

SITTING BULL WANTS TO TRADE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has received a letter from the Indian Agent at Fort Peck, stating that Sitting Bull asks permission for his warriors to come to that agency to trade for ammunition. Little Elk, Sitting Bull's messenger, says he was in the Custer fight. There were eleven different tribes in the fight. There were so many Indians they could not all get in the fight.

TEXAS PACIFIC RAILWAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—A dispatch from Yuma, Arizona, says: Ground will be broken this afternoon on both sides of the Colorado River and approaches to the river on either side graded at once for the Texas Pacific Railroad.

DEATH OF F. P. BLAIR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Francis P. Blair, journalist and statesman, is dead, aged 87.

FOR SOUTH CAROLINA.

Twelve companies of artillery have arrived and two companies of infantry left several eastern garrisons yesterday for Columbia, S. C.

JNO. M'KINSEY.

NEW YORK, October 19.—Morrissey has withdrawn from anti-Tammany. He considers the success of the party in November more important than the inter ests of office-seekers.

ST. LOUIS OUTDONE.

ST. LOUIS, October 19.—A quantity of molten steel exploded at Vulcan Steel Works today. Two are probably fatally hurt.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 19.—The Democratic State Central Committee of Ohio met here yesterday and agreed upon making an aggressive political campaign from this time until the Presidential election. An address was issued to the people on the political situation.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The annual meeting of the Woman's Suffrage Convention was held yesterday in St. George's Hotel. Resolutions were passed favoring the objects of the Association, and declaring that while he association rejoices in the fact that new avenues of profitable employment and better education have been opened to woman, and that she has gained partial access to the professions of law, theology and medicine, and that the legislatures of many States now protect, to a great extent, the property rights of married women, still they protest against the injustice which withholds from one half of our citizens the power to exercise their rights of suffrage. The resolution also opposes taxation without representation.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

LONDON, October 19.—The Cabinet meeting summoned for Tuesday will meet to-day, the members having reached London yesterday.

It is rumored Parliament will be convened in consequence of the grave aspect of the Eastern question.

The Advertiser says: Lord Napier, of Magdala, has been ordered to hold himself in readiness to take command of the army. Russia has 21 iron-clads carrying 2 to 26 guns each.

The Times says it is stated that orders have been given by the War Office to the commander-in-chief to hold three army corps in readiness for immediate dispatch to the Mediterranean, and that the plans for the defence of Constantinople, prepared by the Royal Engineers have been forwarded to the Admiral commanding the British fleet in Besika Bay.

Reuter's Constantinople dispatch announces that Gen. Ignatieff, the Russian Ambassador to Turkey, who had been on leave of absence, returned to that city last night.

The Indian troop ship Jumna left Portsmouth yesterday for India with 994 artillerymen, and upwards of 70 officers, surgeons, etc. She will embark another battery of artillery at Plymouth. The departure of the troops at Woolwich for Portsmouth was witnessed by vast crowds, and the excitement displayed was the greatest since the Caimean war.

The Times announces that the Juma has been directed to call at Gibraltar and Malta for orders in case circumstances should necessitate a change in the destination of the troops.

This morning's Financier says it was first of five shillings per cent. was required yesterday by Lloyds and various insurance companies on British vessels trading between England and Australia. No business is yet reported in risks on Russian, American and Italian vessels but the rates on these would of course be higher.

VIENNA, October 19.—The Newspapers here publish intelligence from Athens announcing that the Greek government will submit to the Chamber of Deputies, proposals for calling out 60,000 men and obtaining a credit of 50,000,000 drachmas, and authority to contract a loan of 10,000,000 drachmas.

The Register has been "eating the insane root"—Shakespeare, we suppose, meant that preparation of hemp which is used in India, and tempts the poor fellows who indulge in it to run what is called a muck: that is to go out on the highways and slay every wayfarer that they meet. Some humane person ought to deprive our neighbors of this root which is so productive of folly.

Our colored fellow citizens are coming to two important conclusions. The one is that the best friend they can have in Congress will be Mr. Bromberg—not because that he is a Democrat, but because he is an honest man, and will see that justice, as far as he is concerned, shall be done to men of all colors. And in that he is wise, for all our Southern States depend on the harmony of all the voters. Within the country we are weak, as compared with the rest of the States. By harmony we can make these States potent in their influence at Washington; and within them what is good for the white man is good for the colored one. The interest of the two cannot be separated; the labors of designing men for nefarious purposes, to separate them, is one of the worst of the evils of our present condition.

A new candidate for the public favor has entered the field: namely, "The Daily Cycle." It is published by Messrs. Walthall, Thames & Smith. The last-named gentleman, General Melanchton Smith, managed the Star at Scranton. The Cycle is entered as "By the Cycle Company". Mr. Smith purchased the interest of Ex-Gov. Bard, who, we are glad to hear, is about to enter into some commercial pursuits. With his energy and intelligence, there will be "no such word as fail."

The Cycle supports the Jones party, and does it by abusing, we might say maligning, the candidate of the two-thirds of the Mobile Democracy. This is bad, but here is something worse:

LINDEN, Marengo Co., Oct. 16th.
Editor Cycle:—It would be a source of pleasure to the people here who patronize Mobile exclusively, to know what business houses in your city are supporting or giving their influence to Mr. Bromberg. Can you give us a list in your paper at once and oblige

MANY DEMOCRATS.

This betrays a mean, proscriptive spirit. The date of it proves that it is of home manufacture. It never saw Linden—"Linden when the sun [of Captain Jones] was low."

It exhibits a very bad spirit. Its purpose is to nurture the selfish motives of men and make them belie themselves. It is as it were, as if a Methodist gentleman should go into a Baptist church, and declare that if a membe of it be refused conformity, he should be starved, nay, that the church itself should be burned down.

This is an extreme example, but it accurately illustrates the infamous suggestion made in the communication—not from Linden, but just contrived here in Mobile to scare honest men.

If this sort of meanness and intolerance alarm any one, we hope that he will quit the Bromberg ranks and fawn on those who are trying to buy both his body and his soul. It is an insult—and a very gross one—unpardonable—to those who think they have some manhood.

A great deal may be pardoned in party excitements, but this insult is not to be pardoned by any measure of license that is tolerated on such occasions.

Political Notes.

The Democrats who have hereto fore supported Mr. Bromberg are forced, themselves, to admit that he has never professed to be a Democrat.—Register.

Are they? That is news to us. We were of the opinion that when a man accepted the platform and creed of a party and published to the world that he was standing "with both feet upon it," that he would be regarded by most intelligent persons as in full fellowship with that party. See Mr. Bromberg's letter to Col. Hodgson, published in the Register just before the time for holding the congressional convention at Jackson. If such as this is not an open profession of Democracy and does not entitle the person making it to rank as a Democrat, then what are we going to do about the Democracy of such men as Col. Langdon and scores of others prominent in the party, but who were all Whigs? They came into the party by simply endorsing its platform and creeds. Shall we read them out?

"After referring to rings, the manner of Mr. Bromberg's delegation

The Best Civil Service in the World.

We will not hire a blacksmith who never lifted a sledge; we will not hire a school-teacher who does not know the alphabet; we will not have a man about us in our business life—in any walk of it, low or high—unless he has served an apprenticeship and can prove that he is capable of doing the work he offers to do; we even require a plumber to know something (laughter, and a pause by the speaker) about the business (more laughter); that he shall, at least, know which side of a pipe is the inside (shouts); but, when you come to our civil service, we serenely fill great numbers of our minor public offices with ignoramuses; we put the vast business of a custom house in the hands of a flathead who does not know a bill of lading from a transit of Venus (laughter and applause)—never having heard of either of them before (laughter); under a treasury appointment we pour oceans of money and accompanying statistics through the hands and brains of an ignorant villager who never before could wrestle with a two-weeks' washbill without getting thrown. (Laughter.) Under our consular system we send creatures all over the world who speak no language but their own, and, even when it comes to that, go waddling all their days through the blood of murdered tenses, and flourishing the scalps of mutilated parts of speech. When forced to it, we order home a foreign ambassador who is frescoed all over with—indiscreetnesses—but we immediately send one in his place whose moral ceiling has a perceptible shady tint to it. And then he brays, when we supposed he was going to roar.

PROBABLE FATAL ACCIDENT.—This morning John Kennedy and Mose Callahan, residing about seven miles from Jackson, on the Livingston road, started in a wagon for a political meeting to be held at Madison. They had in the wagon half a keg of powder to be used at the meeting, and just after starting, Mr. Kennedy lit his pipe and threw the match over his shoulder.

By some means the bung had worked out of the powder keg and the match fell in the keg, of course immediately igniting the powder, which exploded with a terrible result. The wagon was wrecked and both men so badly burned and bruised that it is improbable either of them will recover.—Jackson Times 14th.

J. BALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

From the World, 15th inst.]

Yesterday Washington Place Police Court presented an animated scene, and it would also have been a gay one had it not been for the abundance of female tears. At an early hour the street in front of the court-house was crowded with carriages so that it might have been believed a brilliant wedding was in progress rather than a trial before a police magistrate. About 10:30 the night previous the police of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, under Captain Williams, had "pulled" the Parisian Varieties, on Sixteenth street, a theatre of questionable repute, capturing Julius A. Robinson and W. H. Woodley, proprietors, and the entire troupe of actors and actresses, consisting of fifty-three persons.

Promptly as the doors of the court-room were thrown open Captain Williams and the police filed in with a long line of weeping women and frowning men under escort. Angry fathers and brothers and crying mothers and sisters added to the interest of the scene and soon the court was so densely packed that not even standing-room could be had. The actresses were all clad in the gayest costumes—jaunty little hats set off with cocks and red birds feathers, brilliant riubons and sparkling jewelry all contrasting strangely with the gloomy precincts of the court-room, the woe begone expression of the wearers, their sobs and abundant tears.

Julius A. Robinson and Wm. H. Woodley were first arraigned before Justice Bixby. Captain Williams said he had attended the "Varieties" nightly for about a week, and gave a vivid description of the scenes he had there witnessed. According to his account the can-can, as they performed it, though bad enough in all conscience wasn't half so demoralizing as the plays of 40 years ago. He considered that no one in New York so well calculated to corrupt the growing youth and lead them to perdition. Other witnesses bore the same testimony and what was elicited from the players themselves only confirmed it. Justice Bixby said calmly: "This thing must be stopped. Such exhibitions cannot be tolerated. This play of 'A Woman of the West' is a representation of life in a disreputable house, painting it as a proper life to be followed. It is a shame for such things to be. It is ordered that Julius A. Robinson and Wm. H. Woodley be held to answer in $1,000 each. If you do not give the bond you must go to the Tombs to await your trial for misdemeanor."

The proprietors were thereupon handed over to a couple of policemen. Robinson and Woodley were of opinion that they might be able to find securities; but not much time was given them for deliberation. They were borne away, and the heavy doors of the Tombs closed upon them. Up to dark yesterday evening they were still there. It was cold enough last night to make exercise absolutely necessary for comfort. It is presumed that they may have danced the can-can to perfection all night in sheer seltdefense.

The two chiefs being disposed of came the weeping women, all of them of tender age. Judge Bixby questioned them about the character of the performances and their individual parts therein. He had them repeat to him passages from the acts, but the poor creatures were so badly frightened that they made a poor face of it. Some of them would break out into loud crying in the middle of a sentence. The Judge ordered that all be held in $50 each. Fathers and mothers and friends rushed up, and the clerks were kept busy for a while in making out the bonds. Some put the entire amount of money in the clerks' hands. All of the women were thus released except six, who had no money and no friends strong enough to relieve them. These unfortunate six were Alice Sheppard, Lou Thorne, Lizzie Laurie, Lydia Clark, Tillie Carleton and Emma Weston. The first and last named are mere girls, very pretty and attractive in appearance. When told that they must be locked up their weeping was extravagant, in so much that Justice Bixby had them called close to him, and, leaning over them, said: Poor girls! I will do the best I can for you. I do not hold you for prosecution—simply for witnesses. I will not send you to the Tombs. You will go to the House of Detention. You will find it a nice place, and good ladies will attend to you. You will not be there for more than two days certainly, and you may be released to-morrow. So do not cry. You really have nothing to cry for." But Emma would not be comforted. "Oh, let me go home to mamma!" said she. "Oh, Emma, be still, darling; you make me so awful nervous," said Lou Thorne. The girls were marched off, under the escort of two officers in citizen's dress, on their way to the House of Detention. Said one of the officers, cheeringly: "You could not fare better in the finest hotel in New York than at the House of Detention. And you are only witnesses, you are not criminals."

Several of the men also gave bond, but most of them were put under lock and key.

"Ah," said Justice Bixby, "this has been a tiresome job." And he threw himself back in his easy chair, with a weary and exhausted look.

"I wish I could see only the bright side of human nature. Such scenes as this are painful.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE, COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that Justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party;

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention is the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

"A Columbus (Miss.) paper puts it in this way:

Mobile district is in a congressional muddle. Bromberg was beaten for the nomination before a democratic convention and now runs as republican, supporting Hayes, Wheeler and reform.

There are three errors and one truth in the above extract. Mr. Bromberg was not in nomination before any convention. His name was not proposed to any convention. He is not running as a Republican, but as a straight-out Democrat. He is not supporting Hayes and Wheeler. He is in favor of Tilden and Hendricks, and, through their election, of Reform.

We like our country cousins, but they would escape many errors, if they would read the papers.

No !--Yes !!

No rain yesterday. No nothing, except an improvement in the quality of the oysters. But we shall presently, as Hood said, have November, and that will make or mar some people's ambitions. Mr. Bromberg is safe; Turner is no where; Jones will run well; and, as far as Tilden and Hendricks are concerned, we have plenty of hope, but not a thousand ounce of certainty. If every section of the country will take care of itself, the whole will be taken care of. We Democrats of this district are taking care of it. Let all the rest do their duty and we shall have a government, in district, or state, or general, that will make these southern provinces—so we now call them—grow into prosperity and influence which shall extort the respect of all the states—and because there will be profit in it. This profit is a great thing. That granted, and then follow the respect and the power.

Boo-hoo.

We recollect the reading, many years ago, of a very pathetic story. A maiden was sitting on the margin of a swift-running river; and she was crying as though her poor tender little heart would fall to pieces. A inquired into the cause of her sorrow. She boo-hood more. "Sir, I was thinking that if I were married, and had a little boy, and he should come down here and fall into the river and be drowned—(boo-hoo !)—my heart would break and life would be of no value for evermore."

The story is better tola as we read it; but, as it is here, it will serve our purpose.

We give it as an introduction to the following from the Register of yesterday :

In the event of a prospective possible Republican majority in the House and one about certain in the Senate, it becomes a matter of viral moment to risk not the loss of a single District, for that District might save to the Democratic party that one supreme vote so much extolled by Benton.

Should such majority be lost, the President will be powerless; his Cabinet impotent for good, it not actually imposed on him by factions opposition to his appointments and the fruits of the victory ignominiously lost to the country for four long years more.

In presence of such a threat, can a any citizen of the South, no matter what the private wrong may be which he fancies to have been inflicted on him, hesitate a moment in adopting the only course dictated by lofty patriotism and self-abnegation ? If the final party complexion of the House should depend upon one vote, and that one vote should devolve on the Representative of the First Congressional District of Alabama, what awful responsibility would attach to those who, by misdirected efforts on behalf of a helpless cause, would have secured the election of a Radical !

And all this because Mr. Bromberg is to represent us in congress !

"If the sky fall, we shall catch larks !" This is an old-time adage which illustrates the above extract from the Register. The election of Jones may save the country: the election of Bromberg may destroy it. Hurra for Jones, and his vassals and the country !

All of the article and others of similar quality are intended to make the impression that Mr. Bromberg will desert the South, when the temptation presents itself.

Desert the South ! He who was born in Mobile and has repeatedly stated that he stands just exactly where all good Democrats stand; "to wit," on the St. Louis platform !

The extract above is intended to deceive. The device is too shallow. It is to intimate that it is possible, nay, probable, that Mr. Turner can be elected to congress from this district; and that that terrible result would ruin the country and all of us—break us up root and branch, and leave us weeping over the little chap that fell into the water and was drowned ! Boo-hoo ! boo-hoo !

We assure our anxious and unhappy contemporary that Mr. T. stands as much chance as he does : that Capt. Jones will get a good vote there can be little doubt; but that Mr. B. will carry the St. Louis platform to Washington is not doubted by any thoughtful man. The Register in effect—(omitting Turner)—by implication confesses it. Let it stop crying; and submit to the clearly expressed will of the major part of the Democratic party.

It was nearly of summer temperature yesterday. The people liked it, because it put them to no straits in order to get coal or wood. We rich people prefer the cold, because it is so pleasant to sit by a fire, hearing rude Boreas whistling about our windows, trying to get in. Even this has its pains—for a good man, sitting by his pleasant fireside, cannot divest himself of the pain that he feels for those who have no fuel and no fireside; and so we should get out of our houses and walk mentally, if not bodily, into those of the poor people who may have neither food nor fuel.

It will rain to-day or to-morrow. This is what a weather-wise man has said. He is not cultivating turnips. We said that it would rain last week. The blessed rain has not yet come, and the dust reigns with potent influence on those persons who seem to think that they have lungs.

Dr. Mohr has just returned from a visit to the Centennial at Philadelphia. He has expressed his views in light at what he saw there—not running around everywhere, but examining those especial parts of it, which he is so competent to pass an opinion on. In the methods of chemistry, he has brought back with him a store of information. We thought at one time that no one could teach him any thing on the subject.

Many of us think that we know every thing. Happy is the man who, like Newton, when complimented on his great knowledge, said that he was like a little child gathering shells on the margin of the great ocean of scientific mysteries.

The last news by mail is that Com. Vanderbilt was living without any apparent physical change of condition. His tenacity of life is exceptional. He was expected to die two months ago; and all the papers had in type that long ago a whole history of him, waiting to hear the doctors announce his demise. He may still outlive some of the writers, as he has one or two of his doctors.

The European crop of sardines, it is reported, will be large this year. Well, there are plenty just as good along our coast; but no one has learned how to "put them up."

More About the Bolt.

We have shown that the rule of the May Convention, about which so much has been said, is utterly absurd and impracticable. But if it was in every way as admirable as we have seen that it is weak and foolish, it could not be made to afford any color of excuse for the bolt from the convention held in August.

The August convention was just as much an assemblage of the sovereign people as the May convention; and had the undoubted right to make its own rules. The precedent of the May convention was no more binding on the August convention than were the precedents of the conventions of former years binding on the May convention. If precedent is of binding obligation, by what right did the May convention violate the usages of all previous conventions and establish a rule never anywhere heard of before ? The whole argument, therefore, which the bolters base on the action of the May convention is without substantial foundation, and falls to the ground of its own weight. The only legitimate use to which it can be applied is as a key to unlock the meaning of the sphinx-like recommendation which Colonel Price Williams attached to the call for the August convention ; and this recommendation we now proceed to consider.

We have said that it was sphinx-like with quites ufficient reason; for certainly not even a Philadelphia lawyer could extract the real meaning which it is intended to convey from the various collocations which it embodied—or we should perhaps say, in which it is hidden away, and buried out of sight. The words are these : "It is also recommended that in the selection of delegates to the district convention, the several wards and precincts shall be allowed their proper ratio of voice." The most plain and evident meaning of this sublime utterance is certainly this: That in selecting delegates, the eighth ward, for example, should be allowed as many nine votes, that being the proper ratio of voice for the eighth ward; and that Whistler should be allowed in the selection of delegates to cast four votes, that being Whistler's proper ratio of voice. But then in this sense the proper ratio of voice had always been allowed to the several wards and precincts; and the recommendation so construed was a mere platitude and amounted to nothing. Here it is that the rule of the May convention comes in, and gives the clue of a different interpretation, which but for this rule no mortal would ever have been able to guess at.

There has been a great deal of contention as to the true meaning of this recommendation; and a great deal of testimony could be adduced to show that its author, who ought to know what meaning he intended it to convey, has on several occasions asserted that his intention was to express the first of the two meanings that we have indicated; and has asserted on several other occasions just the contrary. The bolters insist that the real intention of the chairman of the executive committee was to recommend the adoption by the August convention of the rule enacted in the May convention; and this point we are willing to concede.

So far as the argument we are engaged in is concerned, it is a matter of indifference how many constructions can be placed upon this recommendation, and which one of them is the true one. No matter what the recommendation means, it is simply a recommendation; and that recommendation of an executive committee cannot give law to a convention of the people. This principle has been generally conceded; but it has been asserted that the people, by the fact that they held their primary meetings under the call to which the recommendation was attached, gave their sovereign endorsement to the recommendation; and that it thereby became obligatory upon the convention to adopt it. Surely that must be a very weak cause indeed that is driven to, depend upon arguments like this. It is sufficient to say in reply that the recommendation was never in anyway submitted to the people. It was not printed on the tickets. It was not made an issue at the ballot box. The people never voted for it. In simple truth the people generally had never heard of it, and the people did not give instructions to their representatives in the county convention in relation to it.

So far as this famous recommendation is concerned, then, the convention was left untrammeled. The convention did not expressly discuss the recommendation, and the recommendation was void in itself and of no effect. Colonel Price Williams had just as much right to have recommended that as a badge of distinction at Jackson the delegates from Mobile should be required to wear red flannel shirts, and that recommendation to wear red flannel shirts would have carried with it just as much authority as the recommendation to allow the several wards and precincts their proper ratio of voice. It was a matter that belonged exclusively to the convention; and not at all to the executive committee. The second of the three arguments which the bolters have evoked for their detence, vanishes therefore into smoke.

Let us see, next, if the third and only remaining argument, the argument as to the right of the minorities, will serve their purpose any better.

The doctrine of the protection of minorities against the tyranny of unscrupulous majorities, drunk with power, may be very beautiful in theory, and in defence of it there can doubtless be argued many plausible reasons based on considerations of abstract justice and latest equity. But it is a doctrine that has never been practically applied in the management of party conventions. In our party conventions majorities have always ruled—and there is no device known amongst men by which, in party conventions, or, as for that matter, in the management of democratic states and nations, the rule of majorities can be overcome. If statute rights and constitutional rights are granted to the minority in parties or in states, the grant is made by the consent of the majority; is held by the grace and at the mercy of the majority, and at any time the power of the majority which made the concession to the minority can unmake it.

The two-thirds rule which has been for a long time a very general, but not a universal rule, in democratic conventions, is itself the act of a majority of every seperate convention that adopts it—is a concession which the majority makes to the minority wherever they choose to make it, and not a right which the minorities have the right to demand. Every convention adopts its own rule in relation to this matter by the vote of its own members. If it was a law already established and already obligatory upon all democratic conventions, why then it would be the duty of every convention to accept it without question, and not to consume time in the empty farce of pretending to discuss and to vote whether it will adopt the two-thirds rule, or the three fifths rule, or some other.

If the two-thirds rule is the established and organic law of democratic conventions, then no legal democratic convention has been held in Mobile county since the war; for we can remember none that had adopted this rule. But all of this argumentation is really useless. The people assembled in convention are sovereign within the limits of the purpose for which the assemblage is created. They are bound by no enabling acts; they are bound by no precedents; and one convention cannot give law to another.

Lightwood was put under the front door steps of the residence of Colonel Stuart W. Cayce last Thursday, on Bayou street, and set fire to, while the family were at dinner. But the house was not burned.

Messrs. Brink & Jacobsen are daily receiving additions to their stock of goods clothing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

The residence of John Pecase, corner Law rence and Elmire streets, was set fire Thursday night; but the fire was extinguished before any material damage was done, the smoke awakening the occupants of the house and alarming the neighbors.

A Republican meeting was held at Spring Hill last Thursday evening, which endorsed the nomination of Hon. F. G. Bromberg. The meeting was largest attended and was addressed by Allen Alexander, Louis Avendorph and others.

A very large and fine picture of Hon. F. G. Bromberg, drawn by a Mobile artist, Mr. P. C. Bonnecaze, adorns the show window of J. H. Snow, 102 and 104 Dauphin street. This is a portrait of our next Congressman.

A Mobile citizen took an extended ride into the country two days ago, on business, and was surprised to find that every white man he saw was an an ardent Bromberg man. This citizen is not himself a supporter of Bromberg.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 1 car of corn, 1 car of stock, 70 barrels apples, 30 barrels onions and 489 sacks corn were received. By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad, 100 barrels lime, 10 onions and 140 barrels rosin. By steamer Peerless 12 mules, 1 horse, 3 bales hay and 16 bales moss.

The Gem, formerly the Ruby, on South Royal street, will be thrown open this evening, after a thorough repairing and adorning with paint, under the proprietorship of Bowzer & Gale. Every body knows our Jack Bowzer, and Mr. Gale made numerous friends while he officiated at the Ben Briggs in the Battle House bar. A free lunch, to which there is a public invitation.

Editor Tribune:—In answer to the card in the Cycle dated Lindeu, Marengo county, October 17th, asking "who are supporters of the Hon. F. G. Bromberg in Mobile," allow me to give you the enclosed document, which is the Mobile Directory, and request the Cycle to publish it, omitting those few names who are still in the "ring."
DEMOCRAT.

MOBILE, Oct. 20.

Benj. Wadsworth, at one time street commissioner of New Orleans, was shot and almost instantly killed in Gentilly last Wednesday night on Bienville street, between Tonti and Rochebleve, it is supposed by Wester Logan. The deed, it is supposed, was prompted by Mrs. Pringle, a neighbor of Wadsworth, who had accused him of slandering her, an assertion which Wadsworth denied. Logan escaped. Mrs. Pringle, her adopted daughter and George Keeler were arrested as accessories.

River News.

The steamer Peerless, Captain Andy Black, from Selma, arrived yesterday morning with 442 bales cotton, a fair trip of sundries and several passengers. She went out again last evening, with a very respectable freight.

The jaunty little steamer Lulu D., Captain Owen Finnegan on the roof and Mr. P. J. Lyons in the office, will depart for Selma and Montgomery, at five o'clock this evening. Spaulding & Co., agents.

The stately steamer R. E. Lee, Frank Johnson master and Dick Eanes clerk, will back out at five o'clock this evening for Selma. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Home Industry Foundry.

There is so much enterprise in the management of the Home Industry Foundry, of which Meyers & Kleng are proprietors, that it is a pleasure "to write it up" one is in the while, if, for nothing else, to show that Mobile is still alive.

The proprietors are putting up, of their own casting, an elegant iron, roofed verandah, two stories high, on the front of the old Mobile Savings bank building on South Royal street, to be occupied by Captain Van B. Gunnison as a hotel. This will greatly improve that portion of the street. They are also turning out of their foundry a 25 feet water wheel. They have orders for eight timber vessles for that enterprising Rass, Bocagoula manufacture, Mr. C. A. Greiner, the first work of the kind that has ever been done in Mobile. This will put about $400 in circulation here that otherwise would have been sent abroad for the same work.

The old two ,bitts store, 95 Dauphin street, is undergoing reconstruction, and the Home Industry Foundry is casting Corinthian columns and iron sills for the front. He of the Waverly Saloon, Mike Curtin, will have iron sills in the front of his building, cast at the Home Industry Foundry.

The steamer Emma No. 2 came in with her water wheel and flangs broken, and without the interruption of a trip, this enterprising firm, Meyer & Kleng, put in new work and Captain Tom Meaher, just walked the roof more prondly than ever after this triumph of skill, energy and genius over obstacles.

THE FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 19.—The total interments to-day were 18, of which 8 were from yellow fever.

POLITICAL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The indications in Virginia are that Tilden will receive an overwhelming majority. The negroes take very little interest in the election.

There are only two congressional districts seriously contested, and the Democrats are counting on a solid delegation.

Mr. Blair's health failed rapidly during the last year, owing to his deep grief for his favorite son, Gen. Frank P. Blair. Up to last Friday he was able to move about his house, but he expected to die soon, and was entirely resigned to his fate.

THE IRISH ADDRESS.

WASHINGTON, October 20.—It is found that court etiquette requires that the Address from the Irish People to the President of the United States, which was to have been presented to him in person by O'Connor Power and Mr. Parnell, shall reach the President through Sir Edward Thornton, the British Minister, and the State Department. There are some phrases in the address which make it awkward for Sir Edward and all concerned. It seems likely now that the bearers of the address will carry it back with them. A despatch from New York represents the Irish citizens there much disturbed and anxiously awaiting a remedy.

CRIME.

BALTIMORE, October 19.—Dr. Buckler Jones has been arrested charged with a fatal abortion.

A FOREIGN GOSSIP.

PLYMOUTH, England, October 20.—An order has been received at Devonport dock-yard to complete the repairs on the four turret steamships, Cyclops, Hydra, Gorgon and Hecate, each carrying four guns, and on the iron-clad steamer Agincourt, carrying twenty eight guns. Three composite gun vessels are building here, and two others, in private yards, are being prepared for commissions.

LONDON, October 20.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, from Constantinople says: General Ignatieff, the Russian Ambassador, will to-day present his credentials to the Sultan. It is believed that negotiations are about to reopen between the Porte and the Ambassedors of the Powers on the basis of the English proposals.

The Cabinet met yesterday, all the Ministers present. The Times says the meeting was rendered necessary by the critical state of affairs in Europe. The negotiations which have occupied the last twelve months are virtually at an end, and war between Russia and Turkey is supposed to be unavoidable. The Cabinet did nothing which can justify the prevailing fears of British participation in the war.

The Times Paris correspondent says there is doubt of accord between Russia, Germany and Austria. It can be easily seen that England and France will not break the neutrality: therefore Russia has only Turkey to face.

The Queen will hold a Cabinet Council next Monday.

The Times' special from Belgrade reports that it was rumored there Wednesday, that 20,000 Russians had crossed the Pruth. The French, Italian and Austrian Consul-General went to Arnova to ascertain whether the report was true, and no confirmation has come, so it is probably false.

If you will eat bread made with "Gillet's Cream Dry Hop Yeast" you will find speedy relief.

The prices of goods, at the clothing and furnishing goods house of Pincus is so very low that purchasers do not ask a reduction.

Spear & Co., are selling pure lump Pittsburg coal at $9 a ton and $4 50 a half ton. They are also agents for the Double-Quick Platform Cotton Press.

Frequent changes of undergarments and adaptaunity of these garments to the changing seasons, prompts many gentlemen to visit the store of Pincus, to make a selection from his large stock.

From the large, fresh and well assorted grocery stock of W. Crosbie, southwest corner of Dauphin and Jackson streets, it will be easy to select a week's supply today. He makes no extra charge of drayage.

Owen Farley's mammoth grocery establishment, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street, will be visited today and this evening by hosts of customers, who trade there on Saturday. Our price only and that very low.

Let the market ordinance prohibiting the sale of vegetables and provision from carts and wagons before nine o'clock in the morning be repeated. It is a restriction on the rights of the purchasers, who live remote from markers.

Every guest of the Battle House who comes here from the north or west to enjoy the winter in Mobile, will distribute among our people a few hundred dollars, in addition to his hotel bills. And that is why this excellent hotel is being made attractive and and popular, the profit of all our people.

Dixie Saloon.

The announced opening will take place this evening at 6 o'clock. If appearances are not delightful the new Dixie Saloon, 99 Conti street, promises to be one of the nicest and quiesest places in the city. A fine free lunch will be spread, to which the proprietors invite all their friends.

Space Annihilated.

A prominent cotton shipper of St. Michael street received a cable from England at 10:20 A. M. yesterday. At 10:40 he replied to it. At 12:40 he received an answer. Twice across the ocean the ocean in and from Mobile in two hours, and three times in half a day. In the language of the shipper it was "sharp practice."

This evening the Mobile Varieties will inaugurate the amusement season by a grand opeing with a combintion of rare attractions and novelties. The full strength of the company will be brought into requisition and those who are accustomed to go there to be entertained will be delighted with the new songs and familiar faces as well as with familiar songs and new faces. The novelties will be numerous and attractive.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile :

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Pure," purchased.

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official star ard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

I witnessed the routine of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

CENTENNIAL.
The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It is being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route is or can make.

The management, in announcing to the public this

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedules to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not forced it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequently missing connections, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of superior quality; Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge. Courteous, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, there fly insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all-rail route; and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 21

A late Charleston circular puts the present rice crop of Georgia and South Carolina at 75,500 tierces, or about five per cent more than any crop since the war.

We've suspected for some time past that measures would have to be taken to check the alarmingly rapid growth of the Smith family. And here, now, sure enough, a Pennsylvania man proposes to exhibit at the Centennial "Smith roller auctioneer."—Ex.

It is a curious fact that the edition of Shelley, with notes by Rossetti, issued in 1870, can not now be procured in England, even at the British Museum, the copy there having been carried off by an over enthusiastic admirer of the poet. It is about to be reissued.

An English writer has been engaged in estimating the amount of gold in the world in bulk. He says it could—melted into a lump—be contained in a cellar twenty-four feet square by sixteen feet in depth. A small lump, indeed, to cause so much crime and sin and misery.

A California anecdote of Gen. Sherman. As he was ascending the elevator in a hotel he was suddenly set upon by the only other passenger, who was subject to occasional fits of insanity. The maniac stunned the attendant by a furious blow with his stick, and, grappling with the General, attempted to stab him with a murderous looking knife. In the melee the lights went out and the elevator stopped between two floors, about half way up. Gen. Sherman seized the man by the throat and forced his head over the edge of the floorway. He then felt for the starting bar with his foot, and put the machine in motion. The result was that, in passing the next landing above, the head of the unhappy wretch was severed form his body, and went bouncing down into the office.

Great London Preachers.

From a London letter; Having had excellent opportunities for hearing the great preachers of London, I will give my impression regarding them. It is strange that the rare advantages possessed by the established church in its universities, the greatest and most popular preacher in the city should be a Nonconformist; who has had no collegiate training. Mr. Spurgeon, to whom I refer, has been over 20 years in London. There is nothing in his manner that ordinarily gives a preacher popularity. He is not sensational, and has few eccentricities. He is never coarse, vulgar nor profane. There is no trifling or levity in his discourse, though there is sometimes trenchant wit. There is however, a careful and thorough exposition of the truths of the Scriptures as he understands them. His sermons are constructed simply, and clothed in the language of common every day life. They are lighted up with brilliant metaphors, and impress at on the mind with strong illustrations drawn from various sources, but mainly from the Bible. Of the 7,000 people who go to the tabernacle every Sunday are held face to face with God. They are placed beneath His law, and are pointed to the eternal judgment which awaits them. All this is not calculated ordinarily to make the preacher popular. But after these years, Mr. Spurgeon has a firmer hold upon the public than ever. It may well be asked how he succeeded in maintaining and strengthening it. The answer is near at hand. He has been a most laborious student of everything connected with the Scriptures. He is thoroughly in earnest. No one questions his sincerity. His life has been above all reproach. Besides, he has been gifted with great common sense and a marvelous voice. His labors are almost incredible. More than sixty of his sermons are published every year, and they are of such merit that they are eagerly reprinted and read by the inhabitants of two continents. His lectures and preaching and the pastoral work among the students in his training college for preachers are unsurpassed. His exposition of the Psalms of David has grown already to four large volumes, and is acknowledged to be the best ever given to the world, being read by all, Ritualists, high and low churchmen and Dissenters.

A very different preacher is Dean Stanley. His sermons are as polished in their style as his lectures on the Jewish or the Eastern church. They are broad enough for the most liberal. In the sermon which he preached in Westminster Abbey, in concluding a course delivered by various clergymen recently, from the text, "Gather up the fragments," the Dean said they should "gather up the fragments" of truth obtained in hymns like one which he quoted from Doddridge, and then he followed the hymn with a glowing eulogy upon this great Nonconformist of the last century. "Gather up the fragments," he said again, "of truth found in the Zends Vesta," and in the scientific teachings of the times. The Dean, too, is very popular, as might be judged from hundreds being unable to get admission to the Abbey on the occasion.

Canon Liddon of St. Paul's is a preacher of a different order. His style and form of expression are unexcelled. Although his voice is not strong, no one of the 5,000 people who sat under the great dome last Sunday afternoon need have lost a words of his discourse. Unlike Dean Stanley, Canon Liddon leans toward the Ritualists. This party is just now giving the establishment a great deal of trouble. The Arches court is busy dealing with accusations of ritualism. Whatever may be their faults it must be admitted, however, that the Ritualists set in some respects a good example. St. Alban's church, which has a confessional, and a system resembling that of the Roman Catholic monasteries, is in Baldwin court, a wretched place inhabited by the very lowest classes. The rector of this church, who has been repeatedly under discipline for his ritualistic practices is doing more for the poor people of this district than all the other churches therein. Perhaps after all he is not under discipline of "the Judge of all the earth," who may look more to his work than how he does it.

A few days since Mr. Evans Stover, of Spring Valley, Bucks county, Pa., while working in his mill, noticed that the machinery was not working as it should do, and kept getting slower. Finally it almost stopped. He immediately proceeded to investigate the matter and ascertain the cause. He raised the stones inspected the machinery, and did other things without avail. Finally he went to the water-gate, and raised it up. Finding that the water did not flow as fast as it should, he inserted his arm in the race, and, to his horror, pulled out one of his own children, aged about three years. It was, to all appearances, dead, but as he was carrying it to the house its nose began to bleed, and the color came back to its face. The child was resuscitated, and is at present as well as if nothing had happended. How long the little child had been in the water no one knows.

GRASSHOPPERS.—Now those would-be train-wreckers, the grasshoppers, have gone to Texas and commenced operations. A railroad train near Austin was two hours runing six miles last week, the hoppers being so thick and the track so slippery that the car wheels would not revolve at all. In some places they were two feet deep and the car windows had to be closed to shut out the intolerable smell arising from the crushed insects.—N. O. Bulletin.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the HON. T. G. JONES,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excinding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that Jissaes can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention in the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for a new convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result sep7 tf

8. A. BERRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Summer was with us yesterday.

J. D. Bell, who not long ago killed M. A. Carey in Jackson (Miss.) has been sent to the penitentiary for life.

Strange! No one outside of our own limits thinks that the salvation of the whole country depends on Bromberg, Capt. Joues, or even Mr. Turner.

Ex-Speaker Blaine is "stumping" N. Jersey. That is a state which is considered very important by both parties. They are struggling for it.

There was a fine rain at Montgomery last Thursday, to the great gratification of the dust-choked citizens. Here in Mobile there has been much promise of rain, but without pay.

M. D. Graham, Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, has issued a stirring and strong address to the voters of the State. He has wisely made no allusion to the "bottom" of this District.

An official report of the Republican majority in Ohio, it is said, has not yet been published. A Democratic paper says that the reason of the delay is because it is so small it would not look well in print.

The Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad is like the elephant which a man bought, didn't pay for, and, finally, begged somebody to take off his hands. Here is the last phase of the business, as represented in the Montgomery Advertiser:

Some weeks ago, at the sale of the A. & C. road, in Mobile, it was stated at the time that the requirement by the court, of $100,000 cash paid down, was complied with. It now turns out that Balch gave to General Healy, one of the Commissioners of sale, a check for that amount and that check, instead of being paid, has been protested. Everything is at sea again and another order of sale will probably be made.

The Montgomery State Journal is much troubled about the condition of political affairs within this Congressional District. It calls both the Bromberg men and the Jones men, "Bourbons". That is terrible! It is not denied, however, that they are Democrats. Perhaps that is worse than "Bourbon;" or some other thing

It deeply deplores the fact that the Republicans are likely to support Mr. B. If they have no man of their own politics whom they can elect, is it not virtuous for them to go for the best man that can serve them and the whole public?

The Eastern War.

There is much talk in the marts of an Eastern war—Turkey on the one side and Russia on the other. It is a useful thing to those persons who hold stocks and food. They will have a pretext for advancing the prices. Cotton, which is Mobile's life, will probably be not much affected, except through indirect relations that a war would be sure to create.

But, at all events, we of Mobile have no reason to be disturbed by any apprehensions of it.

And, really, there will be no war. There will be much diplomatic humbug and muttering; but the Turkey, unless the West interpose against him, will make that turkey cockable. Not allowing him to get possession of Constantinople, but stopping a strife which seems mainly directed to the murdering of women, old men and children.

The Register is getting frantic.

The Cycle is composed of a good many blunders. Its editor was at Jackson without authority. He is apologizing, or, rather, trying to make the worse appear the better cause.

Let those pretentious persons get together—they have influence—and ask Capt. Jones to come down. If they succeed in that, we shall have a straight-out Democrat in congress, who has had experience in it, and is not to be turned out of a right path by any kind of chicanery—one who will weld our people into some degree of unity—teaching our colors of fellow-citizen to trust in the white man, and that he and we must work diligently together in order to make the state prosperous and him and us prosperous.

Why, it is so strange to see a negro and a white man running about the streets, like clowns, with caps and bells on their miserably poor heads, trying to make people believe that the world is coming to an end unless Capt. Jones shall be elected.

Our partisan Mobile papers, and the no less stupid ones of the interior of this Congressional District are doing the same thing. The latter are to be pardoned, because they are ignorant. But they should keep quiet and not expose their ignorance. Here in Mobile there ought to be some regard to the essential purposes of the election of a man to Congress. That seems to be lost sight of, and there is nothing in it but whether Jones, or Smith, or Turner or Dauphool shall go thither—all of the essential purposes being forgotten in the wretched strife, wherein is forgotten all the reasons why we vote for a member of Congress.

This is painful to thoughtful men, until it is becoming a question of some importance, whether nineteenths of the white voters, as well as that number of new made colored ones, ought not to be deprived of the privilege of suffrage.

There are a great many excellent buildings erecting in Mobile at present. You will find, them as you go west. In the eastern part of the city there are many changes of business and improvements. The one which has struck us in our neighborhood is that of Mr. J. O. Robeson. He is between Mr. Curtin's and Messrs. Smith & Dumas's. For short, he is better known as Friz. That is apropos of his calling. He has fitted up his barber-shop with a great deal of taste, and much elegance. It is no luxury, ordinarily, to be shaved, but if one desire to have that necessary business done, Friz will make it a pleasure, and not a torture. Besides this, he has other qualities to recommend him to the public esteem. Colored, he is a gentleman, in the best sense of the word—gentle and kindly and polite under all conditions of his business. We have a great regard for him and take pleasure in giving this notice of the elegancies which he has made in his establishment.

The citizens of the Fourth Ward in favor or organizing a Tilden and Bromberg Democratic Club in that Ward are requested to meet at the Tunnel Hall TOMORROW (Monday) EVENING, at 7½ o'clock.

it REFORMERS.

Political Colloquy.

Brief let me be!—That is what the ghost in Hamlet says—an honest ghost. We saw him the other day, and in his gloomy style, he spoke to us. He said: "Bromberg! Jones is a good man, but not a good Democrat, as you interpret the word." "Why?" was the interrogatory. "Because," was the reply, "his friends are in favor of Turner for congress." "That doesn't interfere with Mr. J.'s democracy." "No! You are right; but it betrays the kind of democracy that is entertained by his friends." "Well, what is that kind of Democracy?" "Why, nothing but this—a determination to make every man conform to the rule of those who assume a right to make Smith work at the polls and Brown to run party errands." "Well, some persons must work. Why not Smith and Brown?" "Nothing more than this: Smith and Brown are two greenhorns, with some recondite expectancy of a party reward—office, perhaps, or greenbacks. They run on the service of the party leaders. These men are contemptable, although they have not the slightest knowledge of their own degradation. They lack the manhood to stand up and demand the respect that is due to them." "They won't do that," was the reply. The answer was "let them be serfs. They deserve nothing better. These very men think themselves superior to the negroes. They are not equal to them, because they are slaves—in the worst form—to those people who are trying to rule them and have—neither by intelligence nor moral worth—any right of assuming what they claim but by their soft words, or threats, (or money, perhaps,) which tempts the mean man to submit to a wrong." "But bread and meat are important to one's comfort." "Why yes: that is true; and you think that your bread and meat depend on your lack of manhood. Well, if you have come to that point, black your miserable faces and get on some vessel that will carry you to Cuba."

"But, sir, stop! The Register tells us that Mr. Bromberg is a Radical." "That is true; but the Register doesn't tell the truth. It has some small schemes of its own, that are to be made successful by the misleading of you. That is where you incur cents find sources of deception."

"I didn't know that, and shall go home and think about it;" and the poor fellow went home, and was thus roughly satisfied next morning that a newspaper can be untruthful for a purpose. This was a remarkable conclusion—perhaps it was a very wrong one.

SUNDAY,.....OCTOBER 22

There is no mistaking the meaning of the special notice signed by Colonel A. J. Ingersoll.

By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday, two car loads of stock were received.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 80, minimum 70, a range of 10 degrees.

A Fourth Ward Tilden and Bromberg Reform Club will be organized tomorrow evening at Turner Hall, at half past seven o'clock.

No Wonder!

That "Gillet's Cream Dry Hop Yeast" is having such a large sale. It never disappoints expectations.

Justice Flanagan.

Mrs. Brown had Jane Jackson arrested for assault and battery and threats. Assault proved, threats dismissed. Fined $1 and costs.

The large dry goods stock of T. Danziger and Son, 203 Canal street, was badly damaged by fire Thursday evening. Estimated loss on stock, $50,000, covered by insurance.

The doors of the clothing and furnishing goods house of A. Finess will stand ajar, while this morning, so that belated customers may not suffer for the want of a new suit of clothing or new undergarments.

Young men's prayer meeting this evening at half past five o'clock. All young men are cordially invited to attend. As usual, the meeting will take place at St. Francis street Baptist church.

It is a demonstrated fact that a cistern holding a thousand or fifteen hundred gallons, coming from fifteen to twenty dollars, will save its price in one year over those well water for washing purposes alone. These are made by J. C. Gwin and put up at a few days notice.

William Schneider, a native of Germany, 46 years old, formerly proprietor of a drinking establishment at the corner of Bayou and Gravier streets, New Orleans, committed suicide in that city last Friday afternoon at his residence by hanging himself with a rope fastened to the hinge of a door. Poverty was the cause.

John H. Geanon, a representative elect to the Alabama legislature, will leave for the Centennial this evening. Mr. Glennon has during the last two weeks, filled the position of local reporter of the Register, with credit to himself individually and to the profession he has gone to.

At an informal meeting of the grand jury after final adjournment yesterday our esteemed friend, Major LeBaron, was made the recipient of a gem from the hands of the jurors; for the able manner in which he has conducted the proceedings. We know our friend, the major, did all he could to please. Judge Price Williams, jr., was especially thanked for favors—favors duly appreciated.

Dixie Saloon.

In these days when swords are beaten into ploughshares and bayonets into pruning hooks, there is nothing remarkable in the circumstance that the foundry building on Conti street, between Conception and Joachim, has been thoroughly reconstructed and converted into a first class establishment, called the "Dixie Saloon." The choicest wine liquors, cigars and western lager beer and the most tempting oyster, served by police and attentive employes.

A cyclone two days ago became indignant because his mother was arrested for violating a market ordinance and abused the officer making the arrest, who preferred charges against the son. It was proved that the officer did nothing more than his duty, and treated the lady in question with the utmost kindness. The mayor decided the assult on the officer unmerited and unprovoked, and for the protection of policemen in the performance of their duty, imposed a fine of $20 on this citizen, from which the latter appealed.

Live Items.

The steamer W. S. Holt, Captain White side, arrived here yesterday morning from Wright's landing, 8 miles above Bladon and 150 miles from Mobile. She made a quick run to and from that point, having left here last Wednesday evening. The Holt went out last evening with a fair freight and a few passengers.

The steamer Lulu D., Captain Owen Finnegan, went out last evening for Selma and Montgomery with a good freight and several passengers.

The Mary, Captain John Quill, will be due here Monday evening from Montgomery, and the Holt will probably be back here in season to go out on a return trip next Tuesday, the same day that the Mary will go out.

"At half past eight o'clock last night the E. E. Lee from Portland, on the Alabama river, arrived with 324 bales of cotton, a good list of sundries and several passengers. The R. E. Lee, with Captain Frank Johnson on the roof and Mr. Dick Eanes in the office, will back out at five o'clock this evening for Selma and intermediate points. Spaulding & Co. agents.

A Jones Meeting.

A Tilden, Hendricks and Jones meeting was held at the theatre last night, over which T. A. Hamilton presided, and on taking the chair advocated the election of Jones and the defeat of Bromberg.

Hon. P. S. Lyon, of Demopolis, (new partner of Capt. Jones, of Marengo) followed, in a speech of very little force, the principal points in it being directed to the advocacy of Jones. He tried to frighten timid democrats by the display of a Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg Gilddon's shop republican poster, which the Jones men have had reproduced as a campaign document. But his efforts to show that Mr. Bromberg was not a democrat were fruitless, as was attested by the clamors for "Bromberg" that came from all parts of the house.

Bromberg's election is as certain as any event of the future.

An episode of the meeting last night developed the illiberality of Jones' supporters. Mr. Lyon, while speaking, asked, "Is there any one here who can tell whether Bromberg is a democrat or a republican?"

A gentleman in the audience promptly arose to respond to that question, and began by saying, "Mr. Lyon, before you go any further, I can answer that question."

Then arose shouts of "Put him out!" were heard, and two policemen did lead that Bromberg man out.

Home Industry Foundry.

There is no such enterprise in the management of the Home Industry Foundry, of which Meyers & Kleng are proprietors, that is a pleasure to write it up" as one in the while, if, for nothing else, to show that Mobile is still alive.

The proprietors are putting up, of their own seeking, an elegant iron, roofed verandah, two stories high, on the front of the old Mobile Savings bank building on South Royal street, to be occupied by Captain Van B. Gunnison as a hotel. This will greatly improve that portion of the street. They are also turning out of their foundry a 25 foot overshot water wheel for Elm Bluff. They have orders for eight timber wreckers for that enterprising East Pascagoula seaveiew, Mr. C. A. Greene, one first wreck of the kind that ever were done in Mobile. This will put about $600 in circulation here that otherwise would have been sent abroad for the same work.

The old two bits store, 26 Dauphin street, is undergoing reconstruction, and the Home Industry Foundry is casting Corinthian columns and iron sills for the front. On the Waverly Saloon, Mike Conlin, will have iron sills in the front of the building, cast at the Home Industry Foundry.

The Grand Jury.

The grand jury of the city court adjourned yesterday. We are sorry we are unable to give copy of their report to our readers—as in it they could find food for reflection. Heating it, we can only call attention to the different points. There were 281 witnesses examined, about 120 cases investigated, 114 true bills found. The jail was found in perfect order. Sheriff Parker and Deputy Neil were complimented. The City Hospital, against which complaint had been made, was viewed and found all right. How could it be otherwise, the Goods Sisters of Charity being in charge! Mr. Parsons, of the Mobile Asylum—the poor house—was visited. 117 inmates. Justly so, is superintendent and the energetic members of the Parsons board were complimented. With the jury we agree they have the right man in the place. Our just cos of the peace received the attention of the grand jury. Some had made their reports but the grand jury reported that they had not been made enough. The blanks of the jury were referred to the officers of the county, in a special manner to Jno. B. Rabby, deputy sheriff, and in a more especial manner to Solicitor Martinez. We certainly endorse these resolutions of thanks. Solicitor Martinez has made a good officer and our people must appreciate him.

TELEGRAPH

GOLD COIN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The steamship Russia brought $760,000 in gold coin, making $1,500,000 for the week.

THE TOURNAMENT.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—The Chief Marshal ordered the riders to the starting point and the tilting was begun. The knights were entitled to three trials, the victor being the winner of the greatest number of rings. The arches were placed ninety feet apart, and the knights, after getting their horses under full speed rode with their lances held well up at the side under the three arches, endeavoring to pick a ring from each wire.

New Hampshire came first and carried off one ring, Massachusetts failed to win any, but Rhode Island caught one. The other States came in succession as follows: Connecticut two, New York none, New Jersey two, Pennsylvania none, Delaware two, Maryland three, Virginia one, North Carolina one, South Carolina two, Georgia two, Centennial two, Union two. In the second trial New Hampshire took one, Massachusetts none, Rhode Island one, Connecticut two, New Jersey two, Pennsylvania one, Delaware three, Maryland one, Virginia one, North Carolina one, South Carolina two, Georgia none, Centennial two, Union none.

In the third trial New Hampshire won 3, Massachusetts 1, Rhode Island 1, Connecticut 2, New York 2, New Jersey 1 Pennsylvania 1, Delaware 3, Virginia 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 2, Georgia 1, Centennial 2 and Union none.

Delaware having gained the largest number of rings, was declared the victor, and the tilting was continued in order to run out the ties, until the list stood as follows:

Delaware first, Centennial second, Connecticut third, South Carolina fourth, and Maryland fifth. The entertainment lasted until almost 5 o'clock, and as darkness was then rapidly approaching, the crowds of spectators soon dispersed.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—In the tournament, Delaware was first, Centennial second, and Connecticut third. Miss Jenkins, of Rockingham county, Va., was crowned Queen of Love and Beauty.

A PAYTON DEAD.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Rev. Dr. Richard Foller, aged 72, pastor of the Eutaw Place Baptist Church, died this morning of carbuncle. He was born in Beaufort, S. C., ordained a minister in 1833, and came to this city in 1847.

ENROLLED.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—E Wilkinson, of Louisiana, in the third class, was appointed a midshipman to the Naval Academy for refusing to testify in a hazing case. The whole class will be expelled if they persist in refusing. The class numbers about fifty.

SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The case of the Louisiana State Bank was argued by T. J. Durell, for defendant in error, and submitted on printed arguments by E. T. Merrick and G. W. Race, for plaintiffs in error.

JOKE RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Dr. Bachelot has his wife and other children of Mrs. Hetherton of New Orleans here in behalf of their father.

ENGLISH GRAIN TRADE.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 21.—The leading grain circular says: Under the changing aspect of the Eastern question holders of wheat are less inclined to part with their stocks; at the same time there has been an active inquiry resulting in considerable business chiefly for cargoes to arrive at the daily advance of prices the improvement on yesterday's market being one to two shillings per quarter since Tuesday.

THE FENIANS.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 20.—Total interments to-day eight, of which three were from yellow fever.

THE BAYONET POLICY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Seattle Republican candidate in North Carolina, has written here professing that there is distinct order in that State and calling for troops.

Intelligent observers believe that the bayonet policy will be applied to four or five Southern States.

These movements are injuring the Republicans at the North and the Democrats universally claim Tilden's election as assured.

New York is no longer regarded as doubtful.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Herald denounces Grant's proclamation as too dangerous an abuse of power to pass unnoticed by Northern voters.

SILVER BULL.

WASHINGTON, October 21.—The following telegram was received at the Indian Bureau this morning:

"Fort Peck, Montana, October 18, via Bismarck, D. T.—To the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington: Messengers from Sitting Bull's camp report that the entire hostile camp has crossed the Yellowstone at the mouth of Big Horn, en rout for this place. They claim to want peace. What course shall I pursue toward them?

"(Signed) Thos. T. Mickey, Lieut. Ag't"

After consultation with Gen. Sherman instructions were telegraphed to agent Mitchell this afternoon as follows: "Inform Sitting Bull that the only condition of peace is his surrender of war. Issue no rations except after such surrender, and when fully satisfied that the Indians can be held at the agency. Make every preparation to defend the agency, stores and property. The military will cooperate as far as possible.

"(Signed) R. A. Gloney, Ass't Gen."

TURKEY MEDDLING.

LONDON, October 21.—The Paris correspondent of the Times intimates the probability that Turkey is throwing overboard the protection of the Powers and negotiation directly with Russia. Turkish statesmen think they can save Asia Minor by granting the liberty of the Bosphorus to Russia. It is true that Turkey is bound by the treaties of 1856, to which the freedom of the Bosphorus is contrary; but the powerlessness of Europe is driving Turkey into negotiations with her bitterest enemy, and the Porte may break the treaty in despair. The man of war Sloop, 23 guns, the swiftest vessel in the English navy is ordered to Besika.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, from Paris says: It is stated here that England has replied to Russia that as she has already supported the six months' armistice, she cannot now recommend one of six weeks; but she will not oppose it. No Power appearing willing to take the initiative, the question rests between Turkey and Russia. A solution can thus only be looked for at Constantinople. Diplomatic circles here still hope for a peaceful settlement.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Stan dard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

GENTLEMEN—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, as stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter, that in manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contained, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official star ard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,
(8 good) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the result of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

Last night twenty head of horses were stolen from a camp near Custer. A detachment of soldiers followed the train and found the animals in possession of a Mexican and white man, who, resisting arrest, were both killed. The Indians drove a wood party into the station, who were working seven miles from Sage Creek. A number of Indians are reported to have left the agencies at noon to-day, and stolen twelve horses from Mellvany Ranche, near the Clug Water. Sergeant Parker with a detachment of the Second cavalry, who arrived at the last-named place on night, encountered large bodies of Indians at 5o'clock this evening, 10 miles from the Hunters' alRiches at the head of Richards Creek, and in a fight which ensued, private Taske was killed, and left on the field. The Indians have in their possession about 100 head of stock, and are heading for Bridge fer y.

Dreading the Russians.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a long statement which it says is by a person fully entitled to speak on behalf of the whole body of American missionaries in Turkey. The writer says the Protestant missionaries do not hesitate to say that the Turkish Government affords better assurance of religious liberty than some forms of Christian rule which might replace it.

The missionaries have such dread of Russian ascendancy that they have requested me confidentially to say be the German Government certain proofs of Russian intolerances, and to solicit Germany to secure from Russia guarantees or religious liberty before consenting to the dismemberment of Turkey or Russian occupation. This missionary appealed to Germany because America's policy of non-intervention in European affairs precludes her treating the question by diplomacy.

Deaths from yellow fever in Savannah show, from September 1st to October 11th, were 726, an average of 18 per day. It is estimated that the population has been reduced by refugees about 8000.

As the trial of a breach-of-promise suit was about to begin in San Francisco, a juror arose and asked to be excused because he was engaged to be married, and consequently his mind was not free from bias. He was excused.

Two of the largest wine casks ever imported into England have been landed at the London and St. Katharine docks. One contained 638 gallons of sherry, the other 600 gallons of port. The latter had to be floated on board the vessel at Oporto, as there was no gear at that port strong enough to lift it.

We advise persons not to shoot partridges for a while. Many deaths have resulted in the black belt, among negroes, from a peculiar disease, which has been accounted for in the opinion of the doctors, by the fact that the negroes had been eating birds which had become impregnated with poison from devouring worms killed by Paris green.

One of the wild cats in Barnum's great show got loose the other day, and tried his claws on the face of the gentle hippopotamus. The beast, not insensible to the attack of his small enemy, opened his huge mouth and took him in. But the keeper saw the movement just in time to catch the cat by the hind leg and save him from a worse fate than Jonah's.

It is significant of the change which is taking place in marine locomotion that, of all tonnage imported into Great Britain last year, steam vessels represent 12,324,116 tons, as against 10,369,047 tons in sailing vessels; 15,190,901 tons were conveyed in English, and only 7,502,172 tons in foreign vessels.—N. KILLED ON A RAILROAD.—On Monday, a negro, known as Charlie Brown, alias, Bob Brown, fell off a train on the M. & O. Railroad, on the Lockart grade, and was run over and mangled and instantly killed. The body was picked up and brought down here, and put off on a platform where a great concourse of people of this race assembled to view it. He has been a refugee from justice for a burglary and larceny committed here some three years ago, in entering Marks' store and taking goods. He had come in here slyly and received some wages due him, and was returning to his place where he had employment. With the money it is understood he got drunk, which was the cause of his falling off the train.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention re-nominal ng Jackson, excluding from that Convention the w o Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of this District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention is the nominee of the democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for the position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that this will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result oct7 1f

It is said that a national conference is to be held in London concerning the eastern war troubles. That is all that is necessary is to preserve the peace, it all the diplomats desire it.

Francis P. Blair, who died last Wednesday, was a very prominent man among the partisan Democrats. He was of Virginia birth, and about eighty-five years of age. He left his party in 1848 and became a Free-soiler. As far as we know, his life was above reproach. He was a very discreet and skilful party editor.

Col. Gere, who is a member elect in Sumter county (Ala.) to the Legislature, was an officer in the Union army. He was nominated by the Democrats of the county, and ran with a vote equal to that of Gov. Houston. Those Democratic supporters ought to be ashamed of themselves. Here in this 1st congressional District the purists object to Mr. Bromberg because he didn't fight against the South, or for the Union. All the patriotism and virtue of the state and of the U. S. are here within this section of Alabama.

Young man, the personal merits of Capt. Jones or Mr. Bromberg have nothing to do with our local dissatisfactions. We have no doubt that both are worthy of public regard—although Mr. B. has had much experience in national legislation, and not one word has been expressed as to his intelligence or trust-worthiness. He stands above reproach in this respect.

Well, what is the matter?

This is easily answered. He is not "a clay in the hands of the potter." If the people want a man who is a clay in the hands of the potters, let them work for him and vote for him.

The Cycle says that the brief note which we commented on a few days ago was exactly what it purported to be. We guessed differently from its date and that of the paper.

This is satisfactory, but it in no degree lessens the meanness and impudence of the writer of the note. If the animus it betrayed were general, all freedom of opinion would be crushed out of the people, or there would be rebellion; and, perhaps, the first to differ from that would be the cheap who calls himself "Many Democrats"—Cerberus with more heads than one.

The reader may have passed over the nasty thing without reflection. We should have refused to publish it, except as an advertisement—cash in advance. Here it is:

LINDEN, MARENGO Co., Oct. 16th.
Editor Cycle:

It would be a source of pleasure to the people here who patronize Mobile, exclusively, to know what business houses in your city are supporting or giving their influence to Mr. Bromberg. Can you give us a list in your paper at once, and oblige MANY DEMOCRATS.

Political Notes.

There is some apprehension expressed in respect of United States troops interfering with our elections. There is not the least danger of that, if white men will not make fools of themselves, to the great detriment of those of them who are not fools.

There is no doubt that this state will record its vote for Tilden and Hendricks; and this first District will give them a splendid majority—for our colored fellow-citizens are coming to the belief that that is a ticket which will be of service to them and to all of us. We honestly think so—have nothing to gain or lose by the election, except what every other man—white or colored—has.

We care nothing about Mr. Bromberg. Yes, we do care something about him; but he, as a man against the welfare of the state, weighs nothing. We must have a man in Congress, and there he is,—one man, and who can say that he is not worthy, in all respects, to represent our people? We should like to see a sensible dissenter come to the front and tell us about it.

It is believed that the Tilden men are getting stronger in the northern states. Like our candidate for Congress, Mr. Bromberg, he has not stooped to answer the lies of his opponents—most of them good men, but, as is the case in all party strifes, lead by sordid men.

We have on hand a long communication in which our vis-a-vis the Register is crucified; but it is so long and so true in its longitude that we hardly know what to do with it, except to print it.

A strong man is averse to the exposing of any person's weaknesses; but this tender desire not to wound must give way to what we Bromberg men consider a duty.

We look on the Register with only that degree of respect that we do on the contract of a gentleman who has no newspaper; and as the newspaper is supposed to represent the opinions of a million men, more or less, it is not improper at all to give it the attention which it is presumed to deserve.

In some respects, the article, which we shall publish to-morrow, we do not like; but there is within it so much truth that we shall let its errors go with its truths. We are all "poor miserable creatures," as Mrs. Partington says; and we must submit. To what? Why, a difference of opinion—toleration—the right of every man to have his opinion, with the right of no man to meddle with it.

Here comes along a man whom one talks to. He declares that two and two are twenty-seven. Any man of mathematical skill knows that that is not true; but the poor man or some other man thinks that it is true. What are you going to do? Not fight. That is the worst argument that a man can use, and it ought always to be the last. What, then? Why, let each go his own separate way—the one believing that two and two are four, and the other believing that two and four are twenty-seven. This is the way that we have been accustomed to do it, and found that it has always been a pacific method.

To-day two weeks hence the election will be held. That will be a day ding-dong with the fate of Cato and of Rome." Big, also, with the fate of all the country, by means of this first congressional District of Alabama. It is said that on the result here within this district depends the fate of Cato and of all the forty or fifty millions of people who dwell within these innumerable states. How many of them there are it is not possible for us to mention with any degree of accuracy. They are made so fast that it is not possible, without some mental trouble, to "keep the run" of them.

We have seen the whole country ruined—by the politicians—twenty times, and yet the thing still lives. Brats, who are just getting into their breeches, and older chaps, who have worn out their breeches for fifty years, solemnly assure us that if Capt. Jones be not elected, the world will come to an end. That is appalling, and must fetch every Christian and sinner to a pause. Capt Jones, an honest gentleman, standing on the St. Louis platform—Mr. Bromberg, a well approved and honest gentleman, standing side by side with Capt Jones—such, in this respect, agreeing with the other; and yet here comes in a fellow who has a purpose in saying that the one is lovely and other base. Why, that fellow wants something which the one can give him. From the other he can get nothing which he is not worthy of.

In a nutshell, this is the mystery of these party machinations, which are devised to delude the poor young chaps who are ignorant of party devices. They don't know anything in this respect, and are manipulated by those who know how to delude them. We pardon and pity them: that is the young fellows. The older boys have purposes which the young chaps are being made the instruments of. We shall pardon both after the election, when they shall have become calm, rational and charitable, and have gained offices, or lost the hope of them.

The boys of to-day will be the men of the future—men in the proper sense of the word. They shall not deserve any respect, unless they be men, and hold the right to act on their own opinions—not being held in hand by the crafty fellows who want to use them.

The young men—grand men, if they choose to be—who are to control the future, must not allow themselves to be deluded by party "humbug"—a common word, which we have often seen used in regard to youths just coming to the voting time, in order to mould them into any form that is desirable by the crafty political set.

The Daily Tribune.

TUESDAY,.....OCTOBER 24

There was just rain enough Sunday to lay the dust. "Only that and nothing more."

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 69, minimum 57, a range of 12 degrees.

Bound to Please!

"Gillet's Cream Dry Hop Yeast" never fails to please.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 343 sacks corn, 1 car corn, 32 barrels apples and 25 barrels onions were received.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday 30 half barrels and 100 quarter barrels of beer for the Mobile Ice Company, 94 barrels apples, and 20 barrels potatoes were received.

A colored man at the store of Holt, Murray & Co. was knocking goods up the hatchways yesterday, when some of the hoisting apparatus gave way and he was struck on the head and was so severely injured that he was sent to the city hospital.

The Battle House, Rivers & Mason proprietors, is one of the best conducted hotels in the south and a credit to Mobile. It has a pretty large home patronage, the greatest proportion of the transient visitors to Mobile, and after November will entertain numerous winter visitors, from the west.

Fourth Ward Democrats.

A Tilden and Bromberg Reform Club was organized by the fourth ward democrats last evening, and the following officers elected:

Daniel McNeill, president.
Nat Stearns, W. H. Kelly, sr., Joseph Cady, vice presidents.
M. L. Goldsmith, secretary.
Erwin Ledyard, treasurer.
Wm Frolichstein, Chris Costello, John Barbee, Dominick Kunz, John Lawrence, finance committee.
Henry Williams, Frank Draxler, L. Freukel, executive committee.
The meeting to form this club was the largest for a similar purpose held this season.

A series of resolutions expressive of the objects of the club were adopted.

River News.

In addition to cotton before reported, the R. E. Lee brought in Saturday night 17 bales hay, 1 bale fodder and 1 bale moss.

The Emma No. 2, Captain Meaher, arrived yesterday from Wilcox Landing with 202 bales cotton, 6 bales moss, 2 bales hay, 1 bale fodder, 1 bdl hides and 12 sacks cotton seed.

The R. E. Lee went out last evening for Selma with a splendid freight and a good number of passengers.

The Mary, from Selma, arrived early yesterday afternoon with 464 bales of cotton, a long list of sundries and about 40 passengers.

The W. S. Holt, from the Bigbee, ought to be in this morning.

The elegant steamer, Mary, Captain John Quill as master and Mr. Jimmy Quill as clerk, will leave this evening at five o'clock sharp for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The steamer W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whiteside as the root and Mr. Virgil H. Powers in the office, will leave this evening at five o'clock sharp for advertised points on the Bigbee. W. Johnson, North Front street, agent.

Chapter of Events.

About seven o'clock Saturday evening as the conductor of car No. 25 was sitting in the car at the turn table near the gate of Magnolia Cemetery, counting the money which all those conductors carry in a little book, never exceeding $3 to make change with, a colored man appeared at one of the windows with a pistol aimed at the conductor, when he ordered to give him that money and that book. The youthful conductor couldn't see the point of that joke and refused to yield. The negro fired one shot at the conductor, which did not hit and then struck him with a small club or stick. The driver got out of the car and called for help and then the would-be highway robber vamoosed.

About 8 the same evening a lamp exploded in the grocery store of Mrs. Ellen Carry, Southeast corner Texas and Wilkinson street near the car stables, which, in haste to get it out of the way, was put on a vessel of powder. The powderand exploded lamp were thrown into the street and no damage was done.

About 11 o'clock Sunday night Sarah Donaldson, colored, heard the screams of a child on the corner of Texas and Bayou street. It was in a sick and crying lustily, and proved to be a white female child—supposed newly born.

Admission for the child into the Catholic Orphan Asylum having been refused for good reasons, the little one was sent by order of the mayor to the city hospital, where it is cared for at the expense of the city.

Yesterday morning about five o'clock, an alarm of fire was sounded from box 34. The stable of Garrett Barry, a carriage driver, in the rear of the east side of Scott street, second west of Augusta, was burned. Loss about $400. No insurance. A kitchen in the yard of James Breuninghan cab driver, residence Augusta street, south side, 2nd west of Wilkinson, caught from the stable and was damaged to the extent of about $100. No insurance.

TELEGRAPH

DEATH.

AUGUSTA, Ms., Oct. 22.—Sylvanus Caldwell, ex-Mayor and Assistant State Treasurer, died this evening.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Commissioners of Arrangements of the Produce Exchange, who have the reunion of the Exchange in charge, which takes place Tuesday, October 25, in Philadelphia, request that the members of the Exchanges of the different cities wear badges representing their respective organizations.

DEDICATION.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—The Hebrew Orphan Asylum, an imposing new edifice on Calverton Heights about two miles from the north western section of the city was dedicated to-day with solemn and interesting religious ceremonies, to an immense congregation. Gov. Carroll and Mayor Latrobe were present.

STEAMER SUNK.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 22.—A private telegram from Pine Bluff says the steamer Rosa Miller, of the Memphis and Arkansas River Packet Company, from Little Rock, for Memphis, with four hundred bales cotton, struck a snag and sunk near Swan Lake yesterday. No particulars are given.

THE FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 21.—Total interments to-day 11, of which 5 were yellow fever.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 22.—The total interments to-day were 7, of which 3 were from yellow fever. Nurse of the burials were colored persons. Capt. Carpizar Nadal, of the Spanish bark Olympia, died to-day.

TWELVE WHALERS LOST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Twe whaling bark Fourteen vessels have arrived in the Arctic Ocean, with 190 men aboard, being parts of the crews of the whaling fleet, 12 of which were lost in the ice. The remaining survivors have gone to Hudson inn on the bark Three Brothers.

The fleet consisted of 14 vessels. There was plenty of ice in Behring Sea and extreme weather, but few whales, being the early part of the season. The ships worked north toward Point Barrow as fast as the ice opened.

The following is a list of the abandoned vessels:

Barks Onward and Clara Bell, of San Francisco; ships St. George and Mirenga, and barks Corneilus Holland, James Allen and Java, of New Bedford; ship Camilla and barkentine Josephine, of Boston; barks Nonora, Barnes, of New London, and Hawaiian barks Desmond and Arctic. The vessels had on board altogether 1500 barrels of oil, besides a large amount of whalebone and ivory It is individual opinion of every master that no hopes can be entertained of the rescue of the ships or those who remained on board of them. All are undoubtedly lost, carried away to the northeast in immense ice packs, which closed them in for miles around.

THE HURRICANE.

HAVANA, Oct. 22.—The hurricane which visited this section on Thursday night is believed to have caused less damage than that of September, but no accounts have been received from the interior so far.

During its progress the American steam or Margaret went ashore, but got off without damage, and the American ship Hugh Hamilton, bound for cut-water slightly injured and martingale broken. There were no other accidents to American vessels.

Six Spanish schooners were sunk, and many were damaged by striking the wharves. The weather is now clear. The steamer City of Mexico arrived from Vera Cruz yesterday. She experienced a tremendous hurricane on Thursday and was compelled to throw over board 130 bales of hemp to lighten her. For twenty-three hours the officers had no hope to carry vessel.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, October 23.—Riotous demonstrations of negroes, supposed to be the result of the Cainhoy affair, are reported from various portions of Charleston county. A serious demonstration of armed negroes occurred at Mount Pleasant, a village opposite Charleston, causing great alarm to the white residents who will petition Gen. Roger for troops.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Stan dard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUREL SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, pertumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,
CHAS. MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that he fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

Bromberg Re-Endorsed.

A republican mass meeting was held Saturday night at Moore's store and at Citronelle in this county. Mr. Bromberg was unanimously endorsed for Congress. At the former place Lou. H. Mayer, Esq., Rev. H. J. Ayres, Allen Alexander and Louis A. Avenhorn were the speakers. At the latter place Wilbur J. Boyd, W. Washington and Oliver E. Boyd.

Messrs. Brick & Jacobson are daily receiving additions to their stock of gents clothing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

"Speer & Co., are selling pure lump Pittsburg coal at $9 a ton and $4 50 a half ton. They are also agents for the Double-Quick Platform Cotton Press.

By the C. M. Newlin, from New York Owen Farley, the Government street grocer, received large consignments of staple groceries.

Leather in One Hour.

A joint stock company was recently formed in Detroit for the purpose of tanning leather in one hour. The process is a chemical one, performed by the action of certain inexpensive materials, the compounding of which in the right proportions is a secret. It is claimed that rotes, tanned with the hair on, are as soft as the finest wool; hides of the deer, horse, dog, etc., are smooth and soft, while calf and kip show the texture and grain which good shoemakers most admire. No bark is required, except a little to give the proper color to the leather. Bark is worth $8 to $9 a cord, and about 200 cords are required to tan 1,000 hides by the common method. Two cords would be sufficient to give the proper color to the same number of hides, and the saving in this item will be enormous. We understand that the company are turning out from 2,000 to 3,000 hides per month. How the article is wearing we have not been able to ascertain, but shall watch the result with interest.—New York Commercial Bulletin.

The Daily Tribune.

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 24

Mr. Chatterton has reopened Drury Lane with a revival of "Richard III." Mr. Barry Sullivan as Richard, and the Times says of the artist's performance: "His idea of Richard has been drawn after the most conventional of models; he is pre-eminently the crook-backed tyrant, lame, hump-backed, and of the most malignant aspect. To this outward seeming Mr. Sullivan, to the best of his abilities, conforms the inner. There is nothing kingly about him, no evidence of birth, no refinement even in his cruelty. He conveys the impression only of a man with a craze for human blood—a sort of half-witted monster, who is occasionally given to chuckling and jesting in a low, coarse manner at his physical and moral deformities. This is Mr. Sullivan's view of 'Richard III,' and this view he expounds with a strict observance and nice appreciation of what we must presume to be the traditions of a certain school of tragedy."

TWEED.—At the Cabinet meeting last Friday the Acting Secretary of State presented a communication from the Governor of New York, in which he made the request that, on arrival of the United States steamer Franklin, at the port of New York, Wm. M. Tweed should be delivered to sheriff of the city and county of New York, and that measures should be taken by the general government to prevent any communication being held with Tweed previous to his delivery. The right of the Governor to make this demand was promptly recognized, and the President directed the Secretary of the Navy to take the necessary steps for complying with the request.

Sweeps by the Car Load.

from a San Francisco Paper]

Mr. J. S. Harbison, of San Diego county, California, arrived in this city yesterday with ten car loads of honey, each car containing 20,000 pounds. This vast aggregation of bee labor was taken from Mr. Harbison's six apiaries on the sides of the coast range of mountains, as near to the Mexican line as they well can be and yet claim the protection of the Stars and Stripes. Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Harbison made a stir in the bee world by selling at one time two thousand pounds of honey, the product of his apiary, near New Castle, Pennsylvania. So much honey had never before been raised by a single producer, and the sale led hundreds of staid farmers to embark in what looked like a most profitable field of industry. The result was not flattering. Short season and limited bee pasturage forbade profitable bee culture. Old-fashioned hives were then the only kind known. The modern means of rousing bees without killing them had not then been thought of.

Having invented a hive that enables the culturist to obtain successive crops of honey from the same colony of bees, Mr. Harbison began to look for a region that would supply the food for the bees. He searched for this in the equable climate of the Pacific coast, and found it in a narrow strip of country in the extreme southwestern corner of the United States, now known as the bee belt of California. Sheep raising was the only industry of the natives found by Mr. Harbison when he first visited the country. The country inland was thought good enough for sheep pasturing, but no one dreamed that the soil could be made to produce grain in paying quantities. Timber was confined to the bottoms of running streams and to the canons the valleys and hillsides being covered with a growth of stunted brush wood from which sprang a luxuriant growth of white sage, sumac and other flowering shrubs, which bloom there nine months of the year.

Mr. Harbison's first apiary was started on a mountain side, twenty miles east of San Diego. He embarked for the West with seventy hives of bees, but these were reduced to sixty two by casualties. From them he now has six apiaries, and a total of 3,000 hives. He employs fifteen men constantly, and is reaping rich profit from many thousands of acres that must otherwise have been a barren waste. He soon had many imitators, and now not less than three hundred persons are taking honey along the "Bee Belt."

The London Echo relates that when Prince Bismarck was in Versailles, he met with a man who was singularly agreeable. The two used to walk about, arm in arm; they were like brothers. Bismarck found that his friend entered into all his views and schemes as to the politics of the future. It is even possible that they addressed one another as "Du." The dominant characteristic of Bismarck's friend was his bitter detestation of Roman Catholicism. One day the German Chancellor said to him in a soothing tone, "Do not vex yourself so much about it; in a few days there will be no Catholicism. I shall destroy it from the face of the earth." His friend smiled grimly and sadly. "You will have to be much more clever than I am," said he; "for eighteen centuries I have been working against it with all my power and cunning, and I am obliged to confess that I am just as far from success to-day as when I first began." "Who, then can you be?" asked the astonished statesman. "I," replied he? "I am the devil!"

THE DEMOCRACY
OF MOBILE COUNTY

Will place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two voices, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention is the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

FOR PRESIDENT,

OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,

OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS.

(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECTED AT LARGE:

JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:

1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTCCLAW, of Montgomery
3. JAMES F. WADDELL, of Russell.
4. JOHN C. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. Wm. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL K. MOSPADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

We learn from the Register that Col. Forsyth and Col. Holgson have come home. The one went away in pursuit of physical health: the other because he committed a crime against the 32. We shall call it a blunder, which Talleyrand said was worse than a crime. That was true, by his action in the perpetration of it, but it is not a crime which any court can take cognizance of. Forty thousand blunders—more or less—have we committed in our newspaper life; and if they had been criminal in intention, we should have been hanged forty times.

Those two gentlemen we can frankly express a liking for. The one we admired at Jackson, and are sorry that he abjured the good which he did there. In condonation of that, we shall expect him to support Mr. Bromberg, whose resolute position on the St. Louis platform has made him and is still making him strong friends among the straight-out Democracy. It is not too late for Col. Holgson to repent and the men who love him would like to take him to their arms, and give him their blessing. Vide the parable of the "Prodigal Son?"

Col. Forsyth every one welcomes back to Mobile, and we trust that he has brought enough of physical and mental health to correct the errors of his locum tenens, for he has been bred in a school of ab olute party politics, and has the great virtue of having always been consistent in it. He knocked some of our Know Nothings with sledge-hammer blows. That was easy enough, for the hammer was there. It only required a strong man to use it. That was all, and it was used with a resolute and vigorous arm.

Col. Forsyth—he whom we long ago received kindnesses from—needs none of our compliments, but it is graceful and pleasant to say that we respect him, and that we are glad to know that he has returned to Mobile with some restoration of health.

The past is dead! Let it be buried; and no man try to restore it to life. We move fast. We old boys are deserving of the virtue of the young boys; and for the reason that they are made old by being taught to forget the present, and forced back to the past, which we have got rid of. The future, and not the past, is the true philosophy, except as that past may give us instruction.

But this is only an apology for the printing of the article signed "Countryman". It is long and, perhaps, may be considered tedious, but it has one merit: It is true. We wish that it were shorter, and nothing in it pleases us so much as its censure of Col. Hodgson, and the compliment that it gives to Col. Forsyth.

Editor Mobile Tribune.

The Mobile Register of the 5th contained an article under the caption, "Courting the enemy's support," which is unsurpassed in audacity. That article proved the Register to be the champion Sappiel of the age, as well as the impersonation of cool and unspeakable impudence. In 1872 and in 1874, the Register was loud-mouthed for Mr. Bromberg, and annealed all his sins of omission and commission. All the Democrats, who now puke at the mention of his name, voted for Mr. Bromberg in 1872 and 74 and were ready to swear he was a "marvelous proper man" and a sound Democrat. They knew just as much about his political antecedents then as they do di present, yet they voted for him with alacrity. Only a few short weeks ago, the Register was the noisy champion of Bromberg and endorsed his political soundness with the most refreshing "gush" and with the utmost rhetorical laxity. Its editorial bowels yearned for Bromberg. It brandished its editorial cudgel, and defied all the foes of Bromberg to lift a finger against him. Its editor, Col. Hodgson, wrote Mr. Bromberg a most complimentary letter, and endorsed the letter which he wrote in reply. People said Hodgson was bound to have a hobby, and had made Bromberg his hobby; others said Hodgson had an attack of Bromberg on the brain. At the Jackson "mob" Hodgson ranted and bellowed for Bromberg. He helped to nominate him in the public meeting in Mobile, and published the speech made by Bromberg, without one word of censure, or dissent. Joseph Hodgson did all this, but the Register adopted his sentiments and sent them forth as its own views, by publishing them as editorials. Mr. T. C. DeLeon published in the Register a sensible, manly and pointed letter, warmly eulogistic of Mr. Bromberg, and highly favoring his nomination. That letter was pitched to the right tune, and soared above the dirty, sooky atmosphere, in which hackneyed politicians and party hacks are wont to "live, move and have their being." Mr. DeLeon stood on the political Pisgah and saw the Promised Land flowing with milk and honey. He also saw the road which the Democracy must tread in order to escape from wilderness and desert into this glorious Promised Land, fairly bursting with plenty and affluence, and gorgeous with grapes of Exhol. Like a true pioneer he blazed out this road. It was this, that being in a minority in the nation, the Democracy must needs recruit its ranks, and that bigotry and intolerance must deter recruits from joining. Mr. DeLeon felt like a patriot and expressed himself like a statesman, in that letter. The Democracy should act in this exigency precisely as Napoleon the Great declared that he had done: "I had neither minorities, nor prejudices, nor passion; I constantly employed men of all classes and of all parties, without looking back, without enquiring what they had interpreted by Gov. Tilden, or what they had done, what they had said, or what they had thought, only requiring that they should pursue with sincerity in the future—the common object—the welfare and the glory of all—that they should show themselves true and good Frenchmen."—LesCases, p. 384.

Now, it seems, two enforcements by the democracy are powerless to draw a veil over Mr. Bromberg's antecedents. His political offences admit of no atonement. Although Mr. Bromberg "stands on the St. Louis platform with both feet" and supports Gov. Tilden, he is still a political leper who must be quarantined for an indefinite period. Although twice nominated and voted for by the Democrats who are now assailing him with strange vindictiveness, he is still not a Democrat in full fellowship and good standing, but is set on the pillory.

Is this the road that a minority must tread to power? Is this the way to win recruits? This "looking back" is foolishness. When a vessel springs a leak in mid ocean, no man is kept from working at the pumps or the raft, because of his past religious or political opinions. No more should the Democracy drive them from the pumps or from the wheel. In New York, Lucius Robinson, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is a Liberal Republican; in Massachusetts Mr. Adams is still a Republican. This is right. It is sensible.

In Mobile no man who did not "wear the gray" is fit to be voted for by Democrats; He must have been in favor of secession; he must, from his cradle, have been a democrat "without variableness or shadow of turning." That is the bed of Procrustes erected in the Register of the 18th instant. That is the narrow, intolerant, illiberal and vindictive creed laid down, with the manner of Sir Oracle and the Spirit of Mouttfort, by the leading Democratic paper of Alabama. Truly, "there is one sconce chair" in the Register office, and that is the chair John Forsyth filled.

Does it behoove the Register know that in 1861 a majority of the people of Alabama were opposed to secession? Will it exclude these men from the lottery for public office? Will it tell them, they committed the unpardonable sin and are doomed to dwell in outer darkness? Will it brand and stigmatize all such as opposed secession? Such seems to me to be the tenor and drift of its leader in its issue of the 18th inst. Let the issue be made distinctly, clearly, and the democracy will lose half of its rank and file. Union men will not consent to be slack into a political pest house, like so many lepers. Judge McClellan, of Limestone, has already sounded the tocsin of alarm to thenion men of this. The Register has unmasked its batteries and opened a savage fire upon these old union men now seeing as auxiliaries in the Democratic army. Nothing more impolitic was ever done, even by a confirmed lunatic.

The Register goes behind the Democratic endorsements of Mr. Bromberg and its own fervid and gushing eulogisms of him, and digs up acts, confessed by it and its party, to sharpen its invectives and to arouse prejudice. It insists that the Democracy condoned and annealed all Mr. Bromberg's political offences and slips when it nominated and voted for him in 1872 and 1874, and that it is now estopped from going behind that condonation and amnesty. The Register is peculiarly estopped by its repeated eulogiums of Mr. Bromberg and by its recent endorsement of him from going behind 1872 for dirt to fling at him.

I cannot believe that either Mr. Hodgson or Mr. DeLeon penned the leader in the Register of the 18th instant, because its tone, temper and spirit are inconsistent with their articles August. After having supported Mr. Bromberg in 1872 and 74 and favored his renomination, those gentlemen could not have gone behind that season of condonation and amnesty for materials of assault against Mr. Bromberg. They could not have so belied their former praises of Mr. Bromberg.

But the bare fact that a fragment of Republicans decided to vote for Mr. Bromberg, has established the good humor of the Register, and induced it to appeal to passions and prejudices that should be buried. I dare to say that J. H. Jones would not feel insulted, should he be elected by negro votes. I am sure he would not say he did not want negroes to vote for him. There is little doubt that his partisans are fishing for negro votes, and mean to "gobble up" all the negro votes they can. Now, I am a plain man, and I would thank the Register to tell me how it ruins Bromberg for Republicans to vote for him, and does not sell the white sober innocence of Mr. Jones for negroes to vote for him.

Plain men are of opinion that "what is sauce for the gander is also sauce for the goose," and will not think it is any worse for Bromberg to receive negro votes than for Jones. The Register will have to haul down its ragbear about Bromberg not being fit to be voted for by Democrats because Republicans mean to vote for him.

Suppose the negroes in Grabull beat were to hold a meeting and "endorse" Gov. Tilden, would that circumstance prove Gov. Tilden was a Republican? According to the logic of the Register, Gov. Tilden's democracy would be anurched by this sort of an endorsement, and Democrats would have to drop him. Such logic does not suit plain men. It does not convince them that Mr. Bromberg is not a Democrat, "with both feet" planted on the St. Louis platform, as "interpreted by Gov. Tilden." What constitutes orthodoxy in the Democratic party? This is quite pertinent at this time. Is "wearing the gray" the touchstone of orthodoxy? Is advocacy of secession in 1861 the test of orthodoxy? All who "stand with both feet on the St. Louis platform, as interpreted by Gov. Tilden," and who support Gov. Tilden, are orthodox Democrats. There must be no repetition of the old folly of putting new wine in old bottles, or of a small patch on a big hole in the trousers of the Democracy. Mr. Bromberg is a sound Democrat—just as much so as Mr. Jones. Twice have the Democrats endorsed the democracy of Mr. Bromberg; the very men now assailing him voted for him twice, without the least grimace, or open protest. Since they so voted, Mr. Bromberg has done nought to justify these men in their present assaults upon him, or in withdrawing their confidence from him.

He is justly entitled to a re-election by having "borne the brunt of the fight" in 1872 and 74. Then candidates were not found besieging the convention—for what is called "head s for lorn hope," such as Mr. Bromberg headed in 1872 and 4. Mr. Jones is a new comer in the Mobile District, and has no claim upon the people of Mobile. Monroe, Clarke and Washington. He is a stranger to them. He never lead them on a "forlorn hope" when leaders could hardly be drafted into the service. Mr. Bromberg merits a re-election at the hands of the democracy. He has fairly earned it. All reasonable and fair minded men know and feel this truth.

The partisans of Mr. Jones seem resolved upon sectionalizing the democracy and preventing any recruits joining it in future. The quintescence of their objections to Mr. Bromberg, is that he was a union man and "never wore the gray." His crops out in the Register of the 18th inst. It trickles and oozes from every sentence. This sectionalizing spirit—this "looking back"—this running in the old grooves—this branding of Southern unionists and promoting of men avowedly because or their "wearing the gray," is today the insidious wound to the neck of Gov. Tilden. It denationalizes and segregates the Southern Democracy. The plan pursued by Napoleon should be adopted—is a man right now? Read, national sentiments backed by corresponding actions, are demanded. Statesmen perceive this truth. Party bigots fight against it. Unfortunately Southern editors are not statesmen, nor do they like to swim against the current, even when they know the current leads to ruin. To defeat Bromberg, the passions and prejudices, kindled to a white heat by the late war, must be stirred up anew. Intolerance must be made the touchstone of Democratic orthodoxy. Recruits are to be told they must be content to serve in the ranks and to be forever mistrusted That is the programme of the leaders of the opposition to Mr. Bromberg. Jones is but their instrument.

Will reasonable and patriotic men vote against the dictates of their own judgments from an unmanly fear of offending a few rancorous bigots? Nine tenths of the white men of this district, would vote for Bromberg, were they to obey the dictates of their own judgment. They trusted for him twice, and have had no cause to repent of it. With his democracy, they are satisfied. His ability and purity have been proved.

He is experienced in the details of public business.

Mr. Jones is without the least experience in legislation, or the least knowledge of parliamentary law, and is a raw recruit. His ability remains to be proved. Under these circumstances, Mr. Bromberg would have more influence in congress, and make the more useful member. Scarcies sold men had to serve an apprenticeship to every trade, but that no apprenticeship was deemed necessary to qualify one for political office. The partisans of Jones attach no value to experience in public business, and by their actions, they belie the St. Louis platform, so far as it demands reform. Bromberg is able, honest, pure and experienced, and should be kept in office. He certainly ought not to be flung feeble to make room for a raw recruit like Jones. Personally, I care not a fig for either of the men whom I barely know by sight, still I hope he will be elected by the people.

Mr. Jones is not the nominee according to Democratic usage, and not being the nominee, Democrats are free to vote as they please. COUNTRYMAN.

TELEGRAPH

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, October 24.—Chamberlain has sent a written demand to the German Fusiliers of Charleston, one of the oldest military organizations in the Union, to surrender their arms, and enquiring whether the disbanded Fusiliers, organized in 1775, served in the revolution and in the war of 1812.

STRIKERS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Last night the engineers and firemen on the Jersey Central road struck at midnight when over the trains happened to be. The fires were dumped and the men all left.

EUROPE.

DUBNIS, October 24.—The Turks have advanced their headquarters five miles. The fortified mountains over which the road to Krushevatz leads is still to be formed.

BELGRADE, October 24.—There is intense suffering in both armies; the majority of the soldiers are wearing linen and have no boots. There are 180,000 Bulgarian and Bosnian refugees in Servia.

Gen. Ignatieff is instructed to inform the Porte that the intervention of Russia in Greece and Roumania will follow the rejection of the terms offered.

PESTH, October 24.—The Russians believe it the Turks take Krushevatz, Russia will make an armed intervention.

LONDON, Oct. 24—The Post says: "England will resist any infraction of the stipulations of the Treaty of Paris.

The Russian Minister Ignatieff, had a private audience with the Sultan to day and it is stated that the Porte is ready to grant Russia's latest proposals, provided the integrity of the Ottoman Empire is guaranteed.

A Reuter telegram from Constantinople says it is reported that Russia is already tendering her willingness to agree to a six weeks prolongation, if necessary of a six weeks armistice. It is hoped an agreement will be reached on the basis of Turkey's acceptance of such an armistice, as announced in the semi-official statement in this morning's Post.

A special from Pesth to the News reresents that there is intense excitement there, and a strong hostility to Russia. In case Russia commences the war, it will be difficult for Austria to preserve neutrality.

A Vienna despatch to the Times says that only from Constantinople, but from all the provinces of European Turkey is there news of a growing excitement among the Mohammedans, of conventicles held in mosques, and of armaments. The ministry is divided against itself, and the Sultan is too inexperienced to take the leading part in affairs. The position is most favorable for Russia's diplomatic action, and Gen. Ignatieff the Russian Ambassador to Constantinople, may carry everything before him, or, if he fails, may create such an excitement that Mohammedan feeling as might justify instant and swift war on the part of Russia.

A dispatch to the Times, from Therapia, announces that M. Baring, the secretary of the British Legation, is about to retire from Parliamentary life, being convinced that the Commission or the enactment of the perpetrators of the iniquitous atrocities is a dead loss and a mockery. The worst criminals are regarded as humane, and moderate murder is disgrace; the old pasha is renewed, and a most trustworthy old gentleman has travelled with them a gendarme has travelled with them a message to Constantinople and informed the British Ambassador that the Turks intend no new massacres, and have even appointed a day for beginning slaughter.

THE ARCTIC FLEET.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—The masters of the abandoned Arctic fleet express uncertainty as to the number and names of men who intend by their ships or retire to them after beginning the homeward trip, but so far as can be ascertained, it seems that fifty or sixty were left behind, many of whom were Kanakas.

ENGLAND'S FRIENDSHIP

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—His Honor, Mayor Stokely, has been informed by the Duke of Richmond, the head of the British Commission to the Centennial Exhibition, that Her Majesty's Government intends to present St. George's House, at the Centennial grounds, to the City of Philadelphia after the close of the Exhibition.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LUXENT SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably and is fully up to the official standard of "Ivo United State Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that in fact of their unbounded purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

Fourth Ward Resolutions.

The following are the resolutions adopted at the meeting to organize a democratic club in the fourth ward last Monday evening:

Resolved, 1. That this club be styled the fourth ward Tilden and Hendricks and Bromberg and Reform Club.

2. That notwithstanding the contest now existing in this district in regard to the congressional candidate, we unitedly adhere to the national democratic party.

3. That we pledge ourselves to give our undivided support to the St. Louis platform and to the nominees for president and vice president of that convention.

4. That we heartily endorse Hon. F. G. Bromberg as our candidate for congress and hereby pledge him our undivided support.

Messrs. Brisk & Jacobson are daily receiving additions to their stock of gents cashing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

Speer & Co., are selling pure lump Pittsburg coal at $3 a ton and $4 50 a half ton. They are also agents for the Double-Quick Platform Cotton Press.

River news.

The Steamer Mary went out last evening for Selma and Montgomery with a good freight and a long list of passengers. The Lotus No. 2, for Beck's Landing, also left last evening with a respectable freight.

The W. S. Holt left Jackson at twelve o'clock yesterday with 300 bales of cotton. The Holt will back out for the Bigbee river this evening at five o'clock, with Captain G. H. Whiteside on the roof and Mr. Virgil H. Powers in the office. W. Johnson, North Front street, agent.

The latest reports from the Bigbee are that the river has fallen one inch at Demopolis.

Sergeant Dick Moore, of the Mobile police, residing at corner of Wilkinson and Charleston, has adopted the "sweet little cherub" that will smile after its sorrowful wailings in the sack that enveloped it the other night on Texas and Bayou streets. The gallant sergeant has lately been "putting his house in order" and materially enlarging it, not for this event which he could foresee, but under his roof this "waif on the world" will find a happy home.

Miss Nettie Hearin, of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, has been by a certain legitimate process, transformed into Mrs. John Quill, of Mobile. The latest from Captain Quill has wooed and won in graceful in person, beautiful in face and feature, and will soon be home, where she will reign as the queen of the elegant steamer Mary. Atlanta welcomes her last accession from Arkansas.

The colored man, Jacob Jackson, 31 years old, who was mortally wounded by the hatchway accident at the store of Holt, Murray & Co., Monday afternoon, died that evening, not long after he was carried to the city hospital.

A collision occurred yesterday morning of two trains of the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad between Pine Barren and Bay Minette. John Coleman, a brakeman, had his legs badly crushed.

Judge Semmes, of the city court, was engaged in matter-hearing cases yesterday.

A meeting of the 2nd division of the Eighth Ward Tilden and Hendricks Reform Club will be held this evening at half past seven o'clock, at Gelbke's Garden.

The attention of the German citizens of the city and county is called to the advertisement of a meeting at Turner Hall on Thursday evening.

WEDNESDAY....OCTOBER 25

The high price of provisions in England brings into the markets vast quantities of food unfit for use. The inspectors of the Fishmongers' Company of London seize upon an average every month about fifty tons of fish unfit for human food; and at a recent meeting of the London Commissioners of Sewers was stated that so prodigious is the mass of decomposed Australian meat constantly being condemned at Deptford, that the Commissioners' power are taxed to the utmost to dispose of the horrible stuff. It is surmised that some of that material eventually finds its way into the market in the shape of Bologna sausages.

One of the signs of approaching winter in Paris is the appearance in the markets of oranges; They are supplied from Portugal, and it is estimated that ten million oranges are eaten in Paris every winter. Their present price is ten cents each, and this season's crop is said to be of very inferior quality.

The Duchess of Edinburgh it is said, wears imitation lace on her Worth dressing gown she ought to be ashamed of herself.

Walked on the Car.

Last Friday night Samuel R. Pelty a resident of Pickens county in this State, walked from a railroad car, while it was in motion, not far from Cincinnati. The Louisville Journal says:

After the above-mentioned train (11:30) he got up, when no one was looking in the car, and walked to the rear door, opened it and deliberately walked off.

As he opened the door of the car the passing car conductor was coming out the front door of the next car and saw him, but he was off before the conductor could catch him. He was bareheaded, in his shirt sleeves and stocking feet, and had his overcoat thrown over his left arm, and from this it is supposed that he imagined the train had stopped and he was at his destination. The train was rushing at a rapid speed, and came a mile before it was stopped, owing in part to the bell cord being out of fix. When it was made known that he was off, several of the train hands ran back and found him in an unconscious condition lying doubled up on his right side against an embankment. He fell face foremost, striking on his head and shoulder. The train hands picked him up and placed on a freight train which came along immediately afterward, and was taken to the passenger train, which brought him to this city.

He was a wealthy planter of Pickens county, and was highly respected in the community in which he lived. He was unmarried, but has a number of relatives in that county. The body was placed in a metallic case and taken to Alabama.

A man named Courbalon is before a Paris court charged with the death of his wife under extraordinary circumstances. He discovered an intimacy existing between herself and one Joseph Partridge. Partridge fled, impelled by several vigorous kicks, and the lady implored pardon. "Pardon, oh yes," replied Courbalon in a sinister tone. The next day, at noon, the servants placed on the table six roasted partridges, which, in France, are much larger than in the United States. As soon as his wife sat down, he locked the door and drew from his pocket a revolver, "Madame," he said, "the hour for your punishment has come. You have dishonored me by means of a man named Partridge, and here are six of his namesakes for you to dine on. You will please eat them to the last morsel. If you make a long face, or attempt to give an alarm, I will blow your brains out." The unhappy woman, feeling the impossibility of accomplishing the task without killing herself, fell on her knees and uplored his pity, and she therefore commenced her task. "I forgot to say that I forgot to say that I forbid your drinking while you eat," said Courbalon. The poor woman, after finishing the second partridge, showed signs of illness. She lifted her sad eyes to her husband with an imploring expression, but he pointed the pistol inexorably at her head. In two hours and a half the six birds were eaten; at 9 o'clock that night the woman died of digestion.

A strange breach of promise case is on trial in a San Francisco court, the peculiarity being that a woman sues a man for refusing to keep a matrimonial engagement made with her while she was the wife of another man. Mrs. Edwards was the young wife of an old husband named Edwards, and the alleged love affair grew out of the incongruous relation. Mr. Keating was nearer her own age and disposition, and she bestowed on him the affection which her husband could not gain. Mr. Keating gave her his heart, and promised to give her his hand as soon as she could be freed from Mr. Edwards. Several years were occupied in securing that freedom, for Mr. Edwards behavior as a husband was not bad enough to make a divorce easy to get; but a legal separation was at length effected. In the meantime the courtship between Mr. Keating and Mrs. Edwards had progressed in a way that would have been proper had she not been a wife. Many love letters were written, and preparations were made for marriage. After the husband was no longer an obstacle, however, Mr. Keating's ardor cooled gradually until he no longer desired to marry Mrs. Edwards. Thereupon she brought the suit, which the presiding judge says is unprecedented in the history of law.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the plain Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention as the nominee of th Democratic party of the district, but we there fore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support in the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if some other convention is assembled, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg as ready subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result. sel7 1f

7. SAMUEL K. McSPADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HEPBE U. S. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Capt. George E. Bicker has been ordered to take charge of the Pensacola Navy Yard.

There were 131 deaths in New Orleans last week. Nothing in the record is mentioned of yellow fever.

Major Thomson, after doing good service in Mississippi for Tilden and Hendricks, has returned to the city. Of course there will be something for him to do here before the election.

The official returns of the Indiana election give the democratic candidate for governor (J. D. Williams) 5119 plurality. The Republicans have a majority in the legislature on joint ballot, and nine of the thirteen congressmen.

The latest news is that apprehension of the war in the East spreading is beginning to subside. In New York it had an immediate effect. Gold on the 18th jumped up three per cent. Wheat rose six cents a bushel, and 450,000 bushels were sold the same day. Of course, people who buy at this advance want war. It is to be hoped that they may "burn their fingers."

It is said that we had a trust about the outskirts of the city several days ago. This may be true; but here it is at the end of October and we believe that there has been no well authenticated frost; and the rain which was given to us a few days ago—that was less than might wet one's coat.

We have so much water here—going down beneath the surface—that we never get dry—unless one's house is burning, and then there will be a half dozen splendid engines of no use because it is not possible for them to dig wells, in an extempore manner.

Our Hook and Ladder companies: they are very useful, but they can do without water, do what there is no water for: that is tear down, and keep fires from running all over the houses which are in danger of conflagration. This is of great value, and is essential, if there be no water—as there is none.

From the Cycle.

The Mobile Tribune in an editorial on the canvass in this Congressional district, says:

"Our partisan Mobile papers, and the no less stupid ones of the interior of this Congressional District are doing the same thing, trying to make people believe that the world is coming to an end unless Capt. Jones be elected"). The latter are to be pardoned, because they are ignorant. But they should keep quiet and not expose their ignorance."

What a pity it is, that there is only one paper in all this District, that is possessed of brains.

You "stupid," "ignorant" gentlemen of the Demopolis News Journal, Choctaw Herald, Butler News and Monroe Journal, we commend the above extract to your attention.

"Oh 'wad some power the gifte gie us,
"To see ourselves as others see us."

Our expression was a little broad. We shall omit our contemporary from the sweep of it. But we did say that some of the papers are "ignorant." There is no getting around that fact. Well, if they choose, they can accept either of the other horns of the dilemma: "to-wit," that they are not knaves, or so innocent as to be "fooled to the top of their bent" by those who pull the strings which make the puppets dance.

We are not familiar with the papers above named. Perhaps they are wise, or otherwise. We are too ignorant of their merits to venture an opinion on the subject.

The couplet from Burns we are familiar with, and it is most excellent in its philosophy. Burns—like all great poets—was a philosopher, although he didn't know it.

Suppose that we were to quote it in reply. Stick it right here, as applicable to the Cycle. That would be rude, and we shan't do it—for none of us poor fools has a right to ask any man to take a long-glass, in order to see his own shadow in it.

We have not printed much in respect of general party politics; and for reason that there is no material to work on—less the colored people, and that is a forlorn hope, except within this First District of Alabama.

There is no use of trouncing ourselves with the badness of the north, while we are sure that beyond peradventure Alabama will "go" for Tilden and Hendricks. The weight of opinion in all the South has no influence on the other sections. Our newspapers have no authority in those places. It is presumed there that the Democratic paper lies, and the Republican paper also lies; and so there is an equilibrium.

This is bad enough, but it is not true; and it may be well that we shall not trouble ourselves about it.

One thing ought to be done. Let every man take care of his own household.

Gov. Tilden has written a letter which we do not like. It appears to be intended for consumption in places where prejudices against the South exist. It seems to declare that all southern claims against the government are fraudulent. That is not true. Here in Mobile are men who have claims for work done after the war was at an end—work done for the government by authorized authority, and the only pretext put up for not acknowledging them is that the work was done by "rebels"—work done after the federal forces on land and water were here in Mobile, and commanded it to be done.

What occurred up to that time is not worthy of consideration; but when a federal commander of a ship—after the war—required his vessels to be repaired, why then came a new condition. The rebel was brought back to his allegiance, and after that what he spent in repairing vessels for the government, it was and is just as much bound to pay for as if they had been repaired at Boston. Mr. Tilden seems to think that this is no obligation on the part of the government. We differ from him. It is an obligation which no honest man or honest] government can get rid of without disgrace.

As far as the loss of the value of slaves is concerned, it is a falsehood and an injustice to say that there is no right, but that was one of the results of the war, and we submit to it. No relief is possible and very few men expect it. We abandon this claim on the government, although it is a good one, if the government were fair, to our poor conquered Southern people.

About ten thousand millions of Confederate money—more or less—were issued during the war. We could not have redeemed it, if we had won, and we suppose that no sensible men expects that it can now find a redeemer any where. We should be glad it the thing had some purchase in it—a loaf of bread, or a scrawny beefsteak.

Gov. Tilden was acquired a high reputation as a ban-dog to pursuit of the thieves. This is a very estimable characteristic; but ever party necessities cannot reconcile us to the injustice which his letter, in answer to Mr. Hewett, has expressed. No shame can be put on our Confederate people with our assent; and, although in the letter of the coming President, there is much truth, there are also inferences to be drawn from it—logical inferences—that will shock our people.

A New London lady has taught her large Newfoundland dog to hold up her train when she is crossing muddy or dusty streets.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

☞ THE MEMBERS OF THE GERMAN TILDEN AND HENDRICKS Reform Club are requested to attend a meeting on THURSDAY EVENING, October 26th, 1876, at Turner Hall. All Germans not members of the Club are cordially invited. By order of the President.

THURSDAY.....OCTOBER 26

As an example of the almost incredible prices paid for good building sites in London a transaction just completed is cited. The demolition of Northumberland House and the formation of a new approach to the Thames embankment at Charing Cross have left two plots of eligible land vacant. The post on the east side of the new avenue has been let on a building lease for 99 years at a rental of £58,000 a year. The land comprises nearly an acre, and is triangular in shape, though only two sides could at best be used for shops.

The manner in which the Indiana Legislature has "gerrymandered" that State, for the purpose of securing a majority of Republican Congressmen, is shown by the result of the election in the congressional districts. The nine Republican districts gave an aggregate majority of something more than 13,000, while the aggregate majority in the four Democratic was over 18,000.—N. O. Picayune.

WHERE NICKEL COMES FROM.—It may not be generally known that the nickel deposit near the Gap, Lancaster County, Pa., is considered the largest yet discovered in the world, and the only deposit of the ore worked in America. The mine is on the high dividing line between Chester and Pequea Valleys.

Preparations are already making in England for celebrating, on the 1st of April, the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Harvey. The great physician and discoverer of the blood's circulation was born at Folkestone on All Fool's Day, 1578. Part Derby is the chairman of the Committee.

An agent representing several companies of English capitalists, has written to the Tennessee Bureau of Agriculture, Statistics and Mining, asking whether or not there are 300,000 acres of coal lands in the State for sale, and if so, to inform him at once, that his principals can purchase.

The result in Colorado, now that the remote counties in that extensive State have been heard from, probably is that the Democrats have elected the Congressman and the Republicans the Governor, while the Legislature is of doubtful complexion, but likely to be Republican.—N. O. Bulletin.

The New York Foundling Asylum has now under its care 1651 infants, of which 1100 are put out to board, at an annual cost of $118,000. The names of parents are not sought or asked.

[illegible] AND THOMAS B. LYONS

Impurities in Water.

The Dangers which Menace.

From the Boston Courier.]

At the recent meeting of the British Association the anatomical and physiological section was occupied with a most interesting discussing upon what we ought to drink and what to eat. Professor Wanklyn, the well-known analytical chemist, opened the controversy by reading a paper on the effects of the mineral substances in drinking water on the health of the community. He commenced with some statistics which ought to strike horror into the heart even of a Good Templar. The Professor tells us that an adult male drinks in bulbibus from half a gallon to a gallon of fluid in some shape or other and, however small may be the percentage of salts contained even in the purest well water, it yet stands to reason that six gallons of well water contain an appreciable amount of solid matter. Professor Wanklyn, indeed, shows that there is even more mineral matter in ordinary drinking water than in household bread. If, in either words, a loaf of bread is burned to ashes, a very small residue of mineral matter is left, while if on the other hand, a gallon of drinking water is evaporated, its mineral contents will be found much larger than might have been supposed. Take, for example, two Blankford of drinking water—the hard and the soft—and a man who is accustomed to the one cannot without risk suddenly adapt himself to the other. So is this all; for even those who object to water for drinking purposes can't help taking it in various shapes. Beer, for instance, is made with water, and so is tea, and water is daily consumed by many people in combination with alcoholic liquors. There is an old story of an Irish squire who said that upon principle he never touched a drop of water, but he liked his cup of tea in the morning and his tumbler of grog at night. Now, according to Professor Wanklyn, it makes all the difference in the world to a man what are the precise mineral constituents that enter into the water with which his tea is made and his grog is mixed. Lime, for instance, is an essential element of the human body. It enters into the bones and into the enamel of the teeth, and, without a steady supply of it in some shape or another, and in districts where only soft water can be procured, the children are apt to suffer from what is commonly called rickets—a painful and distressing malady, believed by medical men to be due to a deficiency of lime in the organism. Upon the diseases which are the result of drinking impure water we need hardly dwell. It is now generally recognized that typhoid fever and cholera are almost entirely due to contaminated water supply. The result has been that of late years cautious people have taken to boiling their water in the hope of thereby destroying all organic matter in it and afterwards filtering through a charcoal filter. Such a process, of course, thoroughly eliminates every possible source of contagion. On the other hand, the water thus treated becomes soft, but is altogether deficient in lime and those mineral salts a certain supply of which is absolutely necessary for health.

INFAMOUS.—The coinage act of Feb. 12, 1873, not only deprived us of the silver dollar, but actually increased the weight of the gold dollar from 23.2 grains to 25.8 grains. This is an increase of over ten per cent. The indebtedness of the American people, public and private, is set down at about 10,000,000,000, and by this change an extra burden of one billion of dollars is imposed.

It will be remembered that $1,000,000,000 was the amount of indemnity for war fine, imposed by the Germans upon the French. What have the people of the United States done to their creditors to render them subject to such a fine?

A College professor, who was very rigid as to grammar, suspecting that a surreptitious game of cards was going on in one of the college rooms, knocked at the door. "Who's there?" was the response. "It's me—Professor Simpson," was the reply. "You lie!" Simpson never'd say 'It's me!' He'd say 'It is I.' The professor saw the boys had him, and quietly left.

The Norwich Bulletin says cider is so cheap in New England this year that farmers are paying people fifty cents a barrel to drink it, and ableboilied men are making from $1 to $2 a day at this rate.

"The Lord of Harvest" hath given us an abundance of corn. Any quantity of the new crop can be bought for thirty-five cents per bushel. Old corn goes a begging at thirty cents.—Eutaw Whig.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the HON. P. G. BOSSELLO,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done us and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Democratic party in the State, hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. P. G. Bosselo, of Mobile.

5. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if Jackson Convention is conceded, our demand for another convention is conceded, or that this will of this people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result. se27 tf

FOR PRESIDENT,

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,

OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,

OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS,

(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,

OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECT-ED AT LARGE:

JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:

1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WADDELL, of Bullock.
4. JOHN T. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. Wm. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL K. McSPADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

The Fair of the Alabama State Grange is now under weigh at Montgomery, and it is said to be well attended and making a large and beautiful display.

Our people are now engaged in party strife—each side, we suppose, honest. Let it go on without leaving a residue of ill-feeling—for two or three weeks from now the men of each side, it is likely, will be laughing at the men of the other side: that is those of them on the reverse who have not botted and lost.

Both parties are honest. Without this presumption we should be ashamed to enter into the controversies which underlie all these temporary turmoils. To-day friends are angry the one with the other: to-morrow they shake hands and each thinks that the other has been a fool. Perhaps both have been, but they can meet on a common ground: that is of good intentions.

You colored people! Don't you offer to vote for Captain Jones. If you do, you will be sent to the guard house. It is likely that you will be permitted and welcomed, if you vote for Tilden and Hendricks; and our opinion is that you couldn't do better—for they are good men—full of wisdom, and, better than that, honest. We have no desire to blame you if you vote otherwise; but it is pleasant for an honest man to give this small amount of advice to those persons who are to dwell with us.

You negroes, it is supposed, have no wisdom. That may be a great mistake. Some of you are obliged to pay taxes. In your humble domicils there is an ownership. Take care of that, and then you will be in a condition to defy parties and all the powers at Washington.

We want your votes for Mr. Bromberg. If any of you are offered prices for those votes, for any candidate reject them, for it is not possible to suppose that any man is worthy of respect, if he sell his vote.

It may be a dollar or two, and that is the price that is to be got in exchange for the loss of the respect which the colored man ought to desire from his white fellow-citizens.

If the colored man can forget the duty that he owes to Mr. Bromberg, he is a knave, or a fool, and has no gratitude in his nature. So also of the white people. For what does any one want, except a faithful public servant at Washington—not only one that we can rouse on with our eloquence, but can rely on from the experience in the ways and methods of legislation? If our people choose to think that a member of Congress is a mere figure-head, let them vote under that impression, but they will give pain to those of us who know better, and think that party organizations are only respectable because they try to find the best and most experienced men for official positions.

The Register is very much troubled by a letter which Mr. Bromberg has written. It seems to think that it is a "mouse in a meal-tub." It agonizes over that letter—wrestles with it in very imperfect logic—seems to think that it means a conspiracy against the whole world and, as President Taylor said, "the rest of mankind." It is addressed to divers people from Maine to the Pacific. It is full of treason, and is expected to destroy, root and branch, all that our forefathers fought for, and also all that the Confederate soldiers fought for.

This agony will be relieved at a meeting to-night, as is announced in the papers.

We know nothing of what is in it—have no desire to know until it shall have been read.

It must be very bad, or our neighbor would not make so much fuss about it. We shall know to-night; and it is possible that the pensive public may afterwards go home, kiss the children and rest satisfied that the world is not just now coming to an end. The Register takes much pride in the repentance of Gov. Bard, who was called a Radical day before yesterday, and next day was welcomed into the fold of the blessed. Mr. Bromberg—ask Col. Hodgson about it—put both feet on the St. Louis platform—and now he is not nearly as good a sinner as Gov. Bard. He put both of his feet on that platform, and now it is declared that he "failed to say that he was a Democrat"!

These purist Democrats will reject any colored man who goes to the polls to vote for Mr. Jones. You may be sure of this, and the white man who votes not for him will be considered a traitor to his country and his party—indeed, classed among the wicked.

The Register seems to have a contempt for the intelligence of its readers. It seems to be controlled without any purpose, except a desire to obtain a party victory—without any regard to the stubborn feelings of the mass of our citizens, or the benefit of the people of this District.

It were wasting paper and time to reply to this folly—for it is an old adage that a fool can ask more questions in a minute than a wise man can answer in a lifetime.

Forti Nihil Difficile.

In our article entitled "More about the Bolt," the printer made two or three mistakes which spoil the harmony and elegance of several sentences; but, inasmuch as they do not greatly damage the sense, they may be allowed to pass without further notice. We, therefore, resume the argument at the point where it was left off.

Majorities must rule. This is in the last analysis the law and the practice of republican states, and of all deliberative bodies, and of all party conventions. If for any reason whatever there is adopted any other rule than that of the rule of the majority in the selection of delegates or of candidates, as the two-thirds rule, or the three-fifths rule, the same majority that makes the new rule can unmake it at its pleasure. The adoption of the majority rule, then, by the August Convention furnishes no justification of the action of the bolters. In leaving the county convention they were guilty of an act of bad faith to their constituents whose interest they had undertak en to represent. In leaving the county convention to which they had been elected and accredited, they carried with them no party powers or political functions whatever, except such as belonged to them in their private individuals. They were elected by the people to go there as the delegates of the people, to represent the people in the county convention which was to assemble in Odd Fellows' Hall on the 25th day of August; and they had no power to represent the people in any other capacity, or in any other convention. When they left the county convention they left their delegated power, and their representative character behind them. They ceased to be delegates. They no longer represented the people. When they assembled in the Court House they were a convention of private persons, and could act for nobody but themselves. They had no more power to send delegates to represent the people of Mobile county in the District convention than any other assemblage of private citizens had to do the same thing. This was so evident from the beginning that when the thirty-two met for consultation before starting for Jackson one of them seriously submitted the proposition to act as a few of Mr. Bromberg's friends should get together and appoint a third delegation of twenty or thirty persons to go to Jackson and demand seats in the convention. "It is true," said this gentleman, "that delegates so appointed will have no right to seats in the convention—true that the credentials that will be given them will be utterly worthless. But they will have as much right to seats in the convention as the delegates appointed by our bolting friends, and their credentials will be just as valid. Both will be bogus; but we can then fight one bogus delegation against an other, and in this way we will be able to neutralize the influence of the bolters upon the floor of the convention during the preliminary organization, when the vote must ex necessitati rei be taken per capita."

There is one more point in connection with this part of the argument that deserves to be noticed. The immediate occasion of the bolt was the adoption of the majority rule. A substitute for this rule had been offered by the bolters, proposing to establish the two-thirds rule, which was voted down. Now the point we desire to make here is this: That the two-thirds rule was no more calculated than the majority rule, to serve the purposes of the bolters, and to carry into practice the rule of the May Convention. For it is the very gist of the May rule that the county convention, as such, should not elect the delegates to the district convention at all, but that the delegates present in the county convention, from any particular ward or precinct should select the delegates to represent such ward or precinct in the District Convention. According to this principle, as we have already seen, the delegates to the District Convention are to represent the wards and precincts as such. They do not represent the county; and the county convention has nothing to do in their election. There is, therefore, in the execution of this plan, no question of majorities, large or small; and the majority rule and the two-thirds rule are both equally useless and absurd. All that the county convention can do is to issue the credentials; and it can do this only by certifying that which is not true.

We have shown in this discussion that the three arguments upon which the bolters have sought to justify their action are all fallacious and untenable.

We have shown that the rule of the May convention is absurd in theory and impossible in practice; that the August convention, was under no sort of obligation to accept the rules of the May convention; that the recommendation of the executive committee was a mere recommendation and carried with it no power to bind the convention; that this recommendation was not endorsed by the people at the primary meetings; that the majority rule adopted by the county convention was perfectly legitimate and right, and that it stood no more in the way of the principle of the absurd May rule than would the two-thirds rule, or the three fifths rule. In a word, we have shown that the bolting delegation went up to Jackson without any case at all—without even so much as the shadow of a rightful claim to seats in the District Convention.

If further evidence were needed, it could be found in the admission of those who are advocating the election of Mr. Jones. No old, experienced politician has expressed any opinion of this bolt, except in terms of condemnation. Colonel Langdon, if we understand his position, asserts that the principle for which the bolters contended is right, but the bolt itself wrong. Colonel Percy Walker said in his speech at the theatre that the bolt was wrong. Colonel Price Williams said in a published address that the bolt was wrong, and that if such things are allowed, they will destroy the discipline and organization of the party.

Indeed, while many are to be found willing to endorse the consequences of the bolt, nobody has yet made any attempt to justify the bolt itself, except the gentlemen who did the bolting.

Bromberg Meeting Tonight.

The Tilden, Hendricks, Bromberg and Reform democrats will rally in grand numbers at the theatre this evening, when local issues will be explained by able speakers and an important letter from Hon. F. G. Bromberg will be read. The theatre will be packed on this occasion.

The Turner Hall republican meeting Wednesday evening over which L. A. Avendorph presided was very large and very enthusiastic for Bromberg. It was addressed by Leo. Mayer, esq., Hon. Gustavus Hortou, Rev. H. J. Europe and James Bragg. An abstract of the speeches will be published tomorrow. The seventh ward colored club whose members will vote solid for Bromberg, attended the meeting over four hundred strong. F. Lawson is president and Jas. T. Fools secretary.

United States Commissioner.

Simeon Wheeler, John Mobley, Alfred Brondus, arrested on the affidavit of Thos. Fincher, were brought before United States Commissioner J. J. Osborne yesterday, charged with conspiracy under the civil rights law, because he is a republican. They waived examination and were held in bond of $500 each for appearance before the United States circuit court. The bonds were given and the defendants released from arrest.

About nine o'clock Wednesday night the flooring of the grocery store of Howard Rice, on Davis Avenue, between Cedar and Warren, was discovered to be on fire. The fire was extinguished without assistance, but an alarm was given. Early this morning the frame house corner of Montgomery and Lawrence streets, owned by John Smith, colored, was totally destroyed by fire. Loss $500. No insurance.

The Common Council.

At the regular weekly meeting of the common council last evening, (the first since the 28th of September) President Quigley in the chair, Messrs. Anderson, Danner, McCaw and Perryman were also present.

Papers from the aldermen were adopted.

The resolution of Alderman Hanna authorizing she ways and means committee to negotiate for greenbacks to pay city employes, came up.

Councilman Danner moved an amendment (which he modified three times) providing for the burning of all the city scrip in treasury on the 1st of January next and between the 15th and 20th of each month afterwards.

Councilman Robert H. Smith sent in his resignation as a member of the board on account of continued ill health and pressure of private business. Councilmen Perryman and Danner were appointed a committee to wait upon Councilman Smith and request him to withdraw his resignation.

Councilman Danner offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the mayor and the joint committee on ways and means be hereby authorized and requested to carry into effect the resolutions submitted by the joint committee on laws and ordinances relative to the bids for the sinking fund, approved Oct. 6, 1876.

The same member also offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the joint committee on laws and ordinances be requested to examine into and report to the board as early as practicable what changes, if any, are necessary to be made in the city ordinances, so as to conform to the provisions of the constitution of the state, relative to assessment of property for taxation.

At a quarter past nine o'clock the board adjourned.

NO COMMERCIAL REPORTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—There are no commercial market reports today, the Cotton, Produce, and Butter and Cheese Exchanges and Grocers' Board having adjourned over until Friday, the 27th.

SICKLES DECIDES.

Gen. Sickles declines the Congressional nomination on the ground that being a retired army officer, he cannot serve.

CONTINENTAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

A receiver has been appointed for the Continental Life Insurance company on petition of a stockholder. The officers of the company attribute its failure to the general suriukage in real estate, stocks and bonds. With judicious management and curtailed expenses the officers think the policy holders will not lose anything eventually. The statement for 1873 showed—liabilities $5,387,627, and assets $6,294,371, leaving a surplus of $705,544; the income for 1875 was $2,564,630, and the number of policies issued for the year 6047, making the total number of policies issued 74,170.

WORTHLESS DRAFTS.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—A number of drafts, signed Samuel M. Stanford, drawn on Brown, Graves & Co., general commission merchants, of this city, and made payable to the order of different houses in Chicago, have recently been received at various banks in Baltimore and presented for payment. The firm pronounce all these drafts fraudulent. A person name Samuel M. Stanford, was a short time since in the employment of the firm, but was discharged early in September.

BALTIMORE DEMOCRATS.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—The municipal convention the Democrats elected committees in eighteen of the twenty wards. Same branch last year was a tie election. The election was very quiet; 43,000 votes were polled. The Democrat-ic majority is about 6,000.

THE CENTENNIAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—After the 10th, exhibitors who wish can withdraw stocks, but will be allowed time to dispose of articles. Some time will be occupied in closing out establishments, during which visitors will be admitted as usual. Gov. Hayes arrived at the Centennial depot, opposite the grounds, at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hayes, Webb C. Hayes, Esq., Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Noyes, of Cincinnati, and several members of the gubernatorial staff. The Governor has a reception to-morrow at the Ohio state building.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26.—The Secretary of State authorizes the following as the result of the recent election. The highest vote cast was for Treasurer of the State: Democrat 212,019; Republican 206,216; Independent 10,082; total 434,-319, average plurality for Democratic State ticket is 5816; that for Williams over Harrison for Governor being 5139.

THE FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 25—Captain J. Codd, of the British brig Fanny, of Preston, England, and Captain Thomas Lyon, harbormaster of Savannah died to-day.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 25.—Total interments to-day, five, of which two were from yellow fever. Three of these were colored persons.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 27.—The court appointed a special commissioner to sell enough of Brigham Young's property to satisfy the award of the court in favor of Eliza, Brigham's nineteenth wife.

CHURCH REUNION.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 25.—A large number of Methodist ministers and laymen, representing the Northern and Southern branches of the church held meetings here yesterday for the establishment of more fraternal feeling between the two sections of their denominations that have prevailed since 1844. Bishops Foster of Massachusetts, Kavanaugh of Kentucky, and other representatives of the Northern and Southern divisions delivered addresses, thanking God that a reunion has occurred, after thirty-two years of separation, in the largest ecclesiastical denomination of the United States

THE IRISH ADDRESS.

WASHINGTON, October 26.—John S. Cadwallader, Acting Secretary of State, wrote to Messrs. Power and Parnell, the bearers of the Irish Address, that it was customary to make such presentations through the Minister of the country and a copy being sent to Sir Edward Thornton, he declined to participate, not having received instructions from his Government on the subject; also, that the contents of the address itself were objectionable. Mr. Cadwallader, under the circumstances, regrets his inability to assist them in the matter. The objection raised by Power and Parnell was that the intervention of the British Minister was not necessary, as the address was from the Irish people, not the British nation.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, October 26.—The Times Vienna dispatch confirms the statement that the Porte has informed Gen. Ignatieff of its willingness to accept a six weeks' armistice if all the Powers shall guarantee the continuance of the armistice if peace is not completed within six weeks. In spite of Gen. Ignatieff's conciliatory tone, there is little hope that Russia will accept this condition. It is expected, however, that the Porte has not said its last word.

The Times Berlin correspondent says that there has not been much depression in Belgrade and throughout Servia since the war began. All ranks would welcome peace.

A Times special from Barcelona says the Republican conspiracy appears more important than at first supposed. Fifty persons have been arrested, including two ex-Ministers.

Leonard Aubiam, who murdered the officer who was extraditing him, has been captured at Lille.

A Reuter telegram from Constantinople says it is believed here that an understanding will be reached on an armistice. Gen. Ignatieff, Russian Minister, had another special interview with the Sultan on Sunday.

Advices from Tiflis say Turkish Colonel Gurol and wife, whose assassination was reported yesterday, were murdered by robbers.

Fighting continues around Alexinats and Deligrad.

RAGUSA, October 26.—The Montenegrins have cut Mouhitar Pasha's communications with Trebigje, and have invested Niesic. Great distress prevails throughout Montenegro, notwithstanding the recent military successes, on account of the necessity of maintaining a large number of refugees.

BUCHAREST, October 26.—The Roumanian Chambers are summoned in extraordinary session on the 2nd of November.

Special to New Orleans Bulletin.

A FAMILY MURDERED.

WOODVILLE, Miss., Oct. 26.—A Deputy Sheriff, who returned here to-day from Perrytown, twenty-two miles northeast of this place, reports that a Mr. Sturdivant, wife and three children were murdered in their beds and the house burned to conceal the horrible deed. Before his arrest two negroes who planned and executed this crime were captured, one hung and the other shot in attempting to escape. Two confederates are still at large, but can hardly escape arrest. Many colored citizens assisted in the capture, and were with great difficulty prevented from throwing the prisoners into the burning embers.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUREL SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contained, it will compare most favorably with any soap in the market.

Yours truly,
(Signed) CHAS. NOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas. Nohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,

Death of an Actress.

Another beautiful and beloved member of the theatrical profession has fallen asleep on the bosom of the Saviour, and will be seen no more upon the earth. Kate Caldwell Holland, the only daughter of George Holland, the comedian, died in this city on Monday evening, aged twenty-three years and eight months. The funeral services will be held on Thursday morning at ten o'clock in the Church of the Transfiguration, on East Twenty-ninth street, near Fifth avenue. The interment will be made in the Dramatic Fund plot. The world looked for death of Miss Holland to cast a gloom over the thoughts and feelings of the metropolitan company she had won the love and respect of her associates by the purity of her character and her devotion to the profession she had chosen. She was born in New Orleans, Louisiana, and named after the friend of her father, James Caldwell, who built the first St. Charles Theatre in that city. Mr. Caldwell after leaving the theatre constructed the gas works of New Orleans, and George Holland died December 20, 1870, and the interest awakened by the action of the "Little Church Around the Corner," will never be forgotten by the Christian people of New York. From that church Miss Holland will be buried. Her professional career was brief and praiseworthy. She made her first app arance at the Union Square Theatre 1871, as the maid in "Pron Frou." At the close of her third season at that theatre she took the part of the Little Mother in the play of the "Geneva Cross," for the benefit of the widow of the lamented Dan Bryant. Her rendition of the part attracted the attention of Mr. Augustin Daly, and she soon afterward joined the Fifth Avenue company. In the summer of 1875 she played with the Daly company in San Francisco, as maid in the "Big Bonanza," and made hits as Flora Penfield, in "Divorce," and Pert in "London Assurance." During Edwin Booth's last engagement at the Fifth Avenue Theatre Miss Holland enacted the part of Player Queen, in "Hamlet," and in "Divorce" doubled the characters of Mother Thames and Mary Standish. It was while playing those two characters at the Globe Theatre, Boston, supporting Miss Fanny Davenport, that the fair young actress became a victim to malarial fever. She fell ill on September 17, 1876, and on September 21 reached this city, where, after enduring with Christian fortitude the pangs of disease, she peacefully fell asleep. Loving hands have strewn bright flowers on her bier, and many sorrowing hearts will gather about it in the "Little Church Around the Corner."—N. Y. World.

Eggs in France.

In France, eggs pass through three examinations by government officers before offered for sale. They are first counted, then passed through rings, to be determined by their size, the relative value, and lastly are inspected for condition. The combined processes are a vast improvement over that in vogue in this country.

If the produce dealers of this city should appoint an inspector of eggs and place no consignments on the market without the inspector's stamp as to quality and condition, it would be a great thing for the dealers, the consumers, and honest, enterprising producers.

We notice that many commercial and other papers urge that eggs ought to be sold by weight, and all of them base their argument on the fact that eggs vary in size. At first thought most persons are disposed to favor the proposition to sell eggs by weight, but when the retail dealer undertakes the plan, he will meet with a difficulty that will soon cause him to abandon it. The only fair and just way to sell eggs is by size, quality and condition. The size can be determined by passing them through rings, as the French do, and the quality and condition can be determined by proper inspection. The size rings for grading the eggs should be uniform throughout the United States, so that the various numbers would have the same indication in every portion of the country. Under such a system our market quotations would be rendered valuable and precise, and would read something like this:

Eggs, fresh-laid, No. 1, per dozen	40
" " No. 2, "	35
" " No. 3, "	30

The reason why eggs can not be sold at retail by weight is that even pounds and fractions of pounds can only be gained by accident. Twelve eggs may not be sufficient to turn the scales at one and a half pounds, while the addition of another egg would make more than the weight required.

We have tried weighing eggs. The plan will not do, but the French system of measuring and grading is a good one and should be adopted on this coast.—Exchange.

Sambo pronounced his employer a "fuss rate farmer."

He made two crops in one year; he sells all his hay in the fall, and makes money once; he does in the spring he sells one sides of de cattle dat die for want ob de hay, and makes money twice."

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled—

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we denounce the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to be the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we there-fore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby pace in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

Aimee's Diamonds.

New York Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The naughty Aimee (the Philadelphians call her worse names than that, and say she deserves them, too) has recently rid herself of a source of trouble which is said to have been more of a burden to her than a half dozen fresh lovers. In 1871 she was persuaded by some Frenchmen to invest all her savings in diamonds, in the belief that they would appreciate in value and prove a lucky venture. She bought them to the value of $50,000, and then her trials commenced. Every where she was afraid of being robbed and became, so to speak, saturated with the idea that her servants and companions were continually conspiring to steal her diamonds. This idea became an absorbing passion day and night, and after awhile she added to it the fear that her life would be necessary to consummate the dreaded robbery. The diamonds were secured upon her person and carried about her everywhere. While performing here at the Lyceum she employed a policeman to watch her dressing room at night, for fear that while upon the stage she would be robbed. When she journeyed to France she left the diamonds in a bank-vault, but when she returned here brought them back. Then she confided them to the care of a gentleman who proved unworthy of the trust. He pawned a portion of them for a mere trifle, and Aimee was forced to redeem them. Now she has sent them to France again, and her auditors who miss her brilliant diamonds and read these lines will understand what has become of them. It is safe to say, however, that if Aimee continues to attract as many admirers behind the scenes as usual, she will soon have diamonds enough to satisfy her longing.

4. JOHN Y. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.

6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, JR., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL R. MCCLAUDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Mr. Hayes, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, is at the Centennial.

All the news from the interior counties shows that the action of the 32 is approved among most of the voters who are honest and thoughtful. We have constant information in this respect.

Buy no votes, and there will be five thousand majority within this District for Tilden, Bromberg and Reform. Most of those who oppose Mr. B. are weakening Mr. Tilden; but they don't seem to know it.

A financial crisis, and a very serious one, is threatened in Russia. Whether it results from the prospect of too much meddling in the eastern war or not is not stated. At all events, government and other stocks were without purchasers.

Mr. Carl Schurz is pleasing neither the Democratic nor the Republican party. He doesn't go far enough to suit either, and the result is likely that he may "drop between the two stools." As a partisan, he will after awhile learn that "truth does not lie in the middle"—that it is entirely one-sided.

They have it now in the speculations of the result of the election that the state of New York will be the battle ground of the contest. But in this there is a good deal of conjecture —for several states have been put down as certain, and some of them as doubtful. We think that some of the certain ones are doubtful, and some of the doubtful ones otherwise.

Among the politicians, the capital stock now is abuse of Mr. Bromberg. Before, he was a "marvellous proper man." Now he is berated—not because any it can be said of him, except that time and experience have taught him something. We shall be obliged to call some of our brother Democrats "Bourbons," if they keep on with their folly. Mr. Bromberg will be elected, and the men who are now abusing him will then fawn on him. Just is the nature of the whole race of politicians.

The Register is aghast because it is rumored that Senator Spencer would rather see Bromberg than Jones elected to Congress. Suppose Spencer had said Jones, instead of Bromberg. How then? Suppose Alexander, or Europe, or James Bragg, or any other colored man should say Jones; would they stop him at the polls, and thus oblige him to vote for B., or not vote at all?

This sort of humbug is too shallow a pretext for the purpose of deceiving the public.

Spencer pronounces for Bromberg! Terrible! indeed, dismal! Well, let its spare Spencer. He can find reputation by pronouncing for Jones—perhaps, get by it the promise of re-election to the United States Senate.

By this, their method of logic, it is intimated that Mr. Bromberg has sold himself to the Republicans; to Spencer; to Hayes and Wheeler, and all the rest of the bad fellows.

Well, it makes no difference to us, if Spencer vote right, and use what influence he has to correct a wrong.

Our contemporary seems to have an insane desire to destroy the respect which our people have for Mr. Bromberg—respect which was repeatedly expressed in the most gushing manner through his columns; and this, strange to say, was before Mr. Bromberg put his two feet on the St Louis platform.

But one may weary thoughtful men by noticing these subterfuges and trivialities. They betray a weakness that is pitiable. If the people can be deluded by such nonsense, why let them go to the polls, and vote at a dollar a head—or more, if it be proffered to them.

The Outlook.

Now within a few days we shall have a general election simultaneously within thirty-eight states. The news of the result will burden the telegraph wires; and, as is likely, the closer running in several states will require an official return in order to determine it. It is likely that all the southern states may be set down as certain for Tilden, except South Carolina and Louisiana. The former, in the last estimate that we have seen, is given to Hayes: the latter is claimed for Tilden. The estimate is a Democratic one. Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts are given to Hayes. We consider the last-named liable to some doubt, for it is not likely that Mr. Adams, who is, or has been, a Republican—would allow himself to head the opposition without some hope of success. It is possible, however, that he may be elected governor, while Hayes may carry the electoral vote.

Speculation on the subject, however, is not interesting, except to those who are making, or expect to make, bets.

What Fighting Joe Hooker wrote to Gov. Tilden is the following: "We require reform in politics, religion and morals, and I am convinced that we will receive them generously at your hands. The whole government of the nation has been corrupt, desperately corrupt, and the honor and glory of applying the antidote, I am convinced, will belong to you."

The death of Col. W. B. H. Howard is announced by the Camden Vindicator. It was caused by Bright's disease. Col. Howard dwelt several years in this city, and for a time was the editor, it we mistake not, of the Evening News. He was a conscientious and brainy man and, better than that, one of the kindest and most gentle of men.

Here is something statistical from the Picayune. We would like it to tell us how much meat a south or Ireland man eats.

It is said that a Spaniard eats 25 pounds of meat a year; a Swede 54; a Frenchman 73; an Englishman 205.

The recent war proclamation of the President, which was evidently intended for South Carolina, is considered unconstitutional by the best jurists of the country.

When a prisoner for life escapes from a Wisconsin prison ten years more are added to his sentence. That is after he shall have been captured.

The New York World is calling to the aid of Gov. Tilden a good deal of verve. Some of it in its way is very clever.

Ben. De Bar is playing Falstaff at the Brooklyn theatre. We have seen no critical notice of the performance.

SATURDAY,.....OCTOBER 28

Another Dash at the Color Line

Colored Republicans in Council

GRAVITATION TOWARDS CONSERVATISM

At the Republican rally for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg last Wednesday evening, at Turner Hall, Mr. Louis A. Avendorph was called to the chair and introduced as the first speaker,

COL. H. MAYER, ESQ.

After proceeding some time, Mr. Mayer said: Some of you, my colored friends, are surprised that we do not put up a straight and rotund republican for congress. There are 149 reasons way we do not do it. But I will only give one of them—we can't elect him!

Since the republican district convention endorsed the people's nomination of Fred'k G. Bromberg for congress, Colonel W. W. D. Turner has come into the field as a republican candidate for congress. Let us see what kind of a republican he is. In 1848, when the republicans were called on to vote for the state constitution created by the constitutional convention, which was controlled by republicans, he not only voted against that constitution, which enfranchised colored voters, but he run on a democratic ticket for representative to the state legislature. At the same time Mr. Bromberg was supported by the republicans for the office of state senator, to which he was elected.

In 1874, when the present constitution, created by a constitutional convention controlled by democrats, was to be voted on, he believed that it would disfranchise half the colored voters of the state. I went to Colonel Turner, who is a lawyer, and asked his opinion of the new constitution and he pronounced it the best he had ever seen, and declared that he should vote for it! Such is his fealty to the republican party, and his support of democratic measures.

The republican district convention wisely endorsed Mr. Bromberg, and that endorsement of a pronounced democrat by a republican convention has divided the enemy and broken down the color line. As the result of that endorsement a better feeling is existing here now than at any time since the war. [Cries of "That's so!"] You colored men, will vote for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg, and the white supporters of the latter will vote for Tilden, Hendricks and Bromberg. Now isn't that right? [Cries of "That's so!"] You can vote as you please; they have the right to vote as they please. The white Bromberg men will, on the day of election, send you in registered or elegant display of your vitality, and so in goes a Bromberg ticket, and in goes a Hayes and Wheeler vote also.

Mr. Mayer read an extract of a letter written to him a few days ago by United States Senator Spencer of Alabama, who says: "In my judgment, under all the circumstances, you have been for our friends to select Bromberg."

I want to impress it upon you that every vote for Turner is a half a vote for Jones. [Voices, "That's so!"—We know it!" The colored people are going to vote for Bromberg. I was at Whistler last night, where a large assemblage of colored voters has gathered, and when those who were in favor of Bromberg were asked to stand up, every man rose to his feet and the support of Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg was unanimous. Every where during this congressional fight will the colored voters are coming into line for Bromberg.

I have spoken the last ten nights in this county in advocacy of the election of Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg, and propose to speak every night till the 6th of November. Bromberg will be elected, but he would not make this race if he was not supported by the republicans, and I want the supporters of Jones to put that in their pipe and smoke it.

He concluded by proposing three cheers for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg, which were given with a will.

The next speaker introduced was

JUDGE GUSTAVUS HORTON.

He said he was not a public speaker, but having been invited here he came tonight to show by his presence his sympathy with this movement. He considered this the most important national campaign since 1860. The doctrine of the extremists of the democratic party of the south has been and is that no man is fit to hold an office unless he fought against the government. The south has hoped the south until there is a disintegration of the democratic party, and this extreme element is prostrated. The old secessionists have managed to manipulate all the legislation that has taken place under democratic administrations at the south, and that has caused all the trouble that exists.

He said the nomination of Mr. Bromberg, a democrat, was just the thing he would have advised had his opinion been asked by delegates to the congressional district convention. Mr. Bromberg has differed from me in politics, but he has always advocated the rights of all men. What we want is peace. It is to our interest to cultivate that sentiment. I want to see the south peaceful and prosperous. I want to see emigration come here. [Applause.] Many people of the north and west would be glad to come here, if they could come here as freemen, but they will not come here with a padlock on their mouths. I am glad to see, in this support of Mr. Bromberg, a democrat, by colored republicans, acting in harmony with white democrats, the dawn of peace and prosperity.

As I have said before, I am no public speaker, but it gives me pleasure to show by my presence that I fully endorse this movement to bring about a reconciliation between the white and colored people. I advise you all to vote for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg. I would not advise you to vote for Tilden. I urge you to give your votes to Bromberg, because he will protect your interests.

Let me in closing ask you to give three cheers for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg. Three rousing cheers were the response.

An abstract of the speeches of Henry J. Europe and James Bragg will be published tomorrow.

The German Democrats.

At a meeting of the German Democratic Tilden and Bromberg Reform Club, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the German Tilden and Hendricks Reform Club endorse the nomination for representative in congress from this district, made by the people of Mobile, and appeal to all their fellow citizens in the district to vote for the Hon. F. G. Bromberg for that office.

Resolved, That as true and tried democrats, we deny the regularity and claims to our support of the nomination made by the so-called district convention at Jackson. Having been wantonly deprived of our representation thereby by the illegal admission of fifteen self-elected delegates from this county, avowedly inimical to our rights, and clearly not entitled to seats in said convention, we deem it our duty to uphold true democratic principles in the declaration that as Democrats we owe no party allegiance to any nomination made by such arbitrary proceedings, and that we will support the Hon. F. G. Romberg for congress as the right man in the right place with the requisite integrity, ability and firmness to promote our local welfare and interests in the general government.

Resolved, That while we bear in grateful remembrance the patriotic course of the Hon. John Forsyth in the past, his multitudinous adherence to the true principles of the great democratic party; his valiant services rendered us in the dark days of that monster of prejudice and illiberality—the "American party," we are compelled to give expression to our regret at his second fall of the Mobile Daily Register from its high standard of political views, and his defense of the debasement of its columns to the abuse of all, whose conservatism is not an empty profession, but a well-defined principle, which refuses to be changed at every dictation of ring masters and professional office seekers.

River News.

The only departure yesterday was the Alabama River with a good freight and several passengers.

The Alabama River steamer Lulu D., Captain Owen Finnegan as master and Mr. P. J. Lyons as clerk, will leave this evening at five o'clock for Selma and Montgomery. Being a fine boat, and the Lulu D. will go through. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Mr. George F. Werborn, upholsterer, No. 143 and 145 Dauphin street, has just enlarged his premises by embracing the latter house, where there is an elegant display of rich and valuable parlor, bed room and library furniture, which will be sold at amazingly low prices.

Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels, of whom the press makes very favorable mention, are represented here now by Mr. Abe Leavitt, agent. They will perform at Odd Fellows' Hall on the 6th and 7th of November.

At Owen Farley's big grocery store, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street, there is a large supply of the famous oranges from Colonel Pleasant's plantation, which he is selling lower than the fruit stores offer them.

A fight took place in a barroom on Government street, in which one of the pugilists received an ugly gash on the side of the head. The parties were arrested and taken to the guard house.

The Grand Central Hotel, New York, "teaches the lesson of the times," by leading a reduction of rates. It offers the same accommodations as heretofore, at a reduction from $4 00 to $2 50 and $3 00 per day.

Messrs. Brisk & Jacobson are daily receiving additions to their stock of gents clothing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

It's the Best.

My wife says so, and your wife would say so too if she would try "Gillet's Cream Dry Hop Yeast,"

Go to Walter Crosbie's fancy and family grocery house, southeast corner of Dauphin and Jackson streets, and order today your week's supply. No drayage charges.

It is a pleasure to buy of Pincus, whose stock of clothing and furnishing goods is so large and varied that purchasers have no difficulty in getting suited to a suit.

Spear & Co., are selling pure lump Pittsburgh coal at $9 a ton and $4 50 a half ton. They are also agents for the Double-Quick Platform Cotton Press.

The reporter learns from the treasurer that the whole amount of city scrip outstanding is only about $27,500. It is a good time now to cremate it.

A first class hotel adds to the reputation of any city. Than the Battle House, under its present management, there is no better hotel in the south.

Low prices for superior goods tempt a great many people to buy clothing of Pincus, who sells astonishingly cheap.

Pincus has ready made clothing, of all tyles, sizes and fabrics, at low prices.

Grand Democratic Demonstration

ENDORSEMENT OF MR. BROMBERG

Vast Assemblage of the People

The grand mass meeting of the democratic supporters of Tilden, Hendricks, Bromberg and Reform at the theatre last night, was one of the largest and most enthusiastic political demonstrations ever known in Mobile.

George G. Duffee presided, supported by several vice presidents, whose names I cow: Vice Presidents—Hon Geo'k Stewart, Jno Read, Jr, Col T K Irwin, James McCaw, Col A J Igoersoll, C J Michaelcliffsky, E Cores, Captain Devaux, D P Baxter, T J Desaussure, James Flanagan, E B Gale, Daniel McNeill, Hon M Hoerl, H Hubner, W S Copley, Fred Graves, Wm M O'Connell, Wm Wilson, A M Quigley, Oliver Cantwell, Henry Kerns, Wm S Foote, Jos G Terry, A Burke, P A Scheuerman, Dominic Guimond, Wm Ward, Jno Sampson, Charles Boyce, Morris Murphy, A Koppersmith, H Krudop, Jas W Holmes, J Meakers, Sathiel Harvey, Jr Gurk, John Barbich, Dr C C Sherrard, Dr Rhett Goode, Dominick Kanzler, John Dautrich, John Lawrence Lavecchia, Jos Cely, James Bligh, Lucil Cartier, F J Cox, Wm Faulkner, M Hannon, Jos Lapsley, James Waring, A J Hamilton, Chas Abolt, John Smith, Frank Osborne, John Gointhwaite, Jos Seawell, Geo Hallett, Jno Hunter, H F Vose, Hon A Proskauer, Louis Stein, John Eggler, J N Schell, Jacob Magee, Captain John Grant, L Schwartz, Professor J P Stelle, W J Lenyard, J Brisk, Major Bob Beck, John Lyons.

Secretaries—Vincent Green, F A Stoutz.

Mr. Erwin Lenyard read the following letter from Hon. F. G. Bromberg and made an excellent speech:

MOBILE, Ala., October 19th, 1876.

GENTLEMEN: In February, 1873, the Mobile Register bore testimony as follows: "GEN AVON BROMBERG.—We have heard the praises of the Mobile Senator in the Alabama Legislature so often and so unanimously sounded by Democratic friends who have been at the seat of Government this winter, that we feel bound to give them a line in the columns of the Register. They run in this way: First, that he is unquestionably the ablest and boldest Senator on that floor; second, that Mobile could not have a truer, more unflinching and more faithful representative, and that, in perfect independence of every party question, he speaks and votes for the best interests of his constituents. 6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL E. MCCLUSKEY, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Mr. Hayes, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, is at the Centennial.

All the news from the interior counties shows that the action of the 32 is approved among most of the voters who are honest and thoughtful. We have constant information in this respect.

Buy no votes, and there will be five thousand majority within this District for Tilden, Bromberg and Reform. Most of those who oppose Mr. B. are weakening Mr. Tilden; but they don't seem to know it.

A financial crisis, and a very serious one, is threatened in Russia. Whether it results from the prospect of too much meddling in the eastern war or not is not stated. At all events, government and other stocks were without purchasers.

Mr. Carl Schurz is pleasing neither the Democratic nor the Republican party. He doesn't go far enough to suit either, and the result is likely that he may "drop between the two stools." As a partisan, he will after awhile learn that "truth does not lie in the middle"—that it is entirely one-sided.

They have it now in the speculations of the result of the election that the state of New York will be the battle ground of the contest. But in this there is a good deal of conjecture—for several states have been put down as certain, and some of them as doubtful. We think that some of the certain ones are doubtful, and some of the doubtful ones other wise.

Among the politicians, the capital stock now is abuse of Mr. Bromberg. Before, he was a "marvellous proper man." Now he is berated—not because any lit can be said of him, except that time and experience have taught him something. We shall be obliged to call some of our brother Democrats "Bourbons," if they keep on with their folly. Mr. Bromberg will be elected, and the men who are now abusing him will then fawn on him. Such is the nature of the whole tribe of politicians.

The Register is aghast because it is rumored that Senator Spencer would rather see Bromberg than Jones elected to Congress. Suppose Spencer had said Jones, instead of Bromberg. How then? Suppose Alexander, or Europe, or James Bragg, or any other colored man should say Jones; would they stop him at the polls, and thus oblige him to vote for B., or not vote at all?

This sort of humbug is too shallow a pretext for the purpose of deceiving the public.

Spencer pronounces for Bromberg? Terrible! indeed, dismal! Well, let us spare Spencer. He can find reputation by pronouncing for Jones—perhaps, get by it the promise of re-election to the United States Senate.

By this, their method of logic, it is intimated that Mr. Bromberg has sold himself to the Republicans; to Spencer; to Hayes and Wheeler, and all the rest of the bad fellows.

Well, it makes no difference to us, if Spencer vote right, and use what influence he has to correct a wrong.

Our contemporary seems to have an insane desire to destroy the respect in which our people have for Mr. Bromberg—for whom which was repeatedly expressed in the most gushing manner through his columns; and this, strange to say, was before Mr. Bromberg put his two feet on the St Louis platform.

But one may weary thoughtful men by noticing these subterfuges and trivialities. They betray a weakness that is pitiable. If the people can be deluded by such nonsense, why let them go to the polls, and vote at a dollar a head—or more, if it be proffered to them.

The Outlook.

Now within a few days we shall have a general election simultaneously within thirty-eight states. The news of the result will burden the telegraph wires; and, as is likely, the closer running in several states will require an official return in order to determine it. It is likely that all the southern states may be set down as certain for Tilden, except South Carolina and Louisiana. The former, in the last estimate that we have seen, is given to Hayes: the latter is claimed for Tilden. The estimate is a Democratic one. Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts are given to Hayes. We consider the last named liable to some doubt, for it is not likely that Mr. Adams—who is, or has been, a Republican—would allow himself to head the opposition without some hope of success. It is possible, however, that he may be elected governor, while Hayes may carry the electoral vote.

Speculation on the subject, however, is not interesting, except to those who are making, or expect to make, bets.

What Fighting Joe Hooker wrote to Gov. Tilden is the following: "We require reform in politics, religion and morals, and I am convinced that we will receive them generously at your hands. The whole government of the nation has been corrupt, desperately corrupt, and the honor and glory of applying the antidote, I am convinced, will belong to you."

The death of Col. W. B. H. Howard is announced by the Camden Vindicator. It was caused by Bright's disease. Col. Howard dwelt several years in this city, and for a time was the editor, it we mistake not, of the Evening News. He was a conscientious and brainy man and, better than that, one of the kindest and most gentle of men.

Here is something statistical from the Picayune. We would like it to tell us how much meat a south of Ireland man eats.

It is said that a Spaniard eats 25 pounds of meat a year; a Swede 54; a Frenchman 73; an Englishman 205.

The recent war proclamation of the President, which was evidently intended for South Carolina, is considered unconstitutional by the best jurists of the country.

When a prisoner for life escapes from a Wisconsin prison ten years more are added to his sentence. That is after he shall have been captured.

The New York World is calling to the aid of Gov. Tilden a good deal of terms. Some of it in its way is very clever.

Ben. De Bar is playing Falstaff at the Brooklyn theatre. We have seen no critical notice of the performance.

Grand Democratic Demonstration

ENDORSEMENT OF MR. BROMBERG

Vast Assemblage of the People

The grand mass meeting of the democratic supporters of Tilden, Hendricks, Bromberg and Reform at the theatre last night, was one of the largest and most enthusiastic political demonstrations ever known in Mobile.

George G. Duffee presided, supported by several vice presidents, whose names I saw:

Vice Presidents—Hon Geo N Stewart, Jno Reid, jr, Col T K Irwin, James McGaw, Col A J Igersoll, C J Michaelolfsky, E Carre, Captain Devaix, D P Baxter, T J Desmidt, James Flanagan, E B Gale, Daniel McNeil, Hon M Hurst, H Hunter, W S Copley, Fred Graves, Wm M O'Connell, Wm Wilson, A M Quigley, Oliver Cantwell, Henry Kerns, F W Walsh, Jno L Terry, A Burke, P A Schneerman, Dominic Guimond, Wm Ward, Hon S Tonle, John Barner, Morris Murphy, A Koppersmith, H Krudop, Jas W Holmes, Jas Mackey, Satterl Bervey, J Gouts, John Barbian, Dr C C Sherrain, Dr Routt Goode, Dominick Kuntz, John Dantzel, John Lawrence Lavretie, Jos Carly, James Bligh, Cecil Carter, F J Cox, Wm Faulkner, M Hannon, Jos Bayley, Jesse Wetzig, A J Hamilton, Chas Abair, John Smith, Frank Osborne, John Gountzwaite, Jos Seawell, Geo Hallett, Jno Hunter, H F Vose, Hon A Proskauer, Louis Stein, John Eggler, J W Schell, Jacob Magee, Captain John Grant, L Schwartz, Professor J P Stelle, W J Leonard, J Brisk, Major Bob Beck, John Lyons.

Secretaries—Vincent Gross, F A Stoutz.

Mr. Erwin Ledyard read the following letter from Hon. F. G. Bromberg, and made an excellent speech:

MOBILE, Ala., October 26th, 1876.

GENTLEMEN: In February, 1873, the Mobile Register bore testimony as follows: "SENATOR BROMBERG.—We have heard the praises of the Mobile Senator in the Alabama Legislature so often and so unanimously sounded by Democratic friends who have been at the seat of Government this winter, that we feel bound to give them a niche in the columns of the Register. They run in this way: First, that he is unquestionably the ablest and boldest member of the Democratic party that Mobile could not have a truer, more unflinching and more faithful representative, and that, in perfect independence of every party question, he speaks and votes for the best interests of his constituents. The evidence of this is, that he has the perfect confidence of the Mobile Democratic members of the House, and acts constantly in accord with them * * We have heard it remarked that if the Senate were composed of thirty-three such Republicans as Mr. Bromberg, it would go hard with the Democratic hold on to the State of Alabama." These words were penned by Hon. John Forsyth, who has controlled the Register for the time, was a stranger to my self in all but name. Unfortunately, at this time, circumstances over which I had no control or discretion in the discussion of public men and measures, he has been forced from his post by severe bodily affliction. In his absence, the journal, which the people regard as the synonym of fairness and honesty, has turned from his post by own conscientious character, has been made to misstate my present political attitude, in a way that has created a most friendship which I cherished, until his hands hung palsied by his side. For Col. Forsyth never belonged to those false friends who, while anxious to use that the people, as a mass are fools, and that in politics there is neither God nor principle. He would never have resulted the intelligence of our community, and particularly the white portion of it, by describing an endorsement of me by the Republican Convention of this District, as an endorsement by me of Republican doctrines or candidates, as he was done in the Register of the 15th and 15th inst.

As one of our own people, he would not have thus misrepresented my speech at the meeting in Court House ratifying the nomination of Tilden and Hendricks; or my utterance during the recent canvass in the state editors, in behalf of the State and State Democratic candidates; or my answer to the letter of Col. Jno. Hodgson, published in the Register of August 27th, wherein I explicitly stated that I stood with both feet upon the St. Louis platform, as construed by Gov. Tilden, without reservation or exception; my speech made at the great mass meeting in Mobile on the 29th September.

The people of Mobile know well that I have never been in private and in public, misrepresented the positions I have asserted in 1872 and 1874, when the Democratic and Conservative party of this Congressional District have unanimously chose me as its standard bearer; and they know that I have never, directly or indirectly, by word or act or speech, modified in the least degree any declaration made in my speech accepting the nomination of 1874, or in my letter to the District convention in October, 1874.

They know that I stand firmly, in 1876, by the conclusions reached by myself in 1872, to the effect that the Republican party is forcing the country into that path of centralization which is very slippery with the blood of the people; and that I shall resist its evil tendencies as stubbornly in the future as I have done in the past.

They know well that the endorsement of me by the recent Republican Convention, was a trick of the masses of our colored fellow citizens over their white leaders; that I was unconsulted by the colored people, in the only way in which they could do so effectively, where party lines are lines of color, with the clear understanding that I had no pledges or promises to make, except such as are involved in my public declarations, that I am a member of the Democratic Conservative party, through my advocacy of the election of Gov. Tilden, and my acceptance of the St. Louis platform.

They rejoice over the fact that our colored citizens have broken through the strict bonds of party imprisonment, and that, whilst reckless men in the south, as well as the North, and in both of the great national parties, are striving to kindle anew the sectional hatreds of the past, they, in noble contrast, proclaim to their fellow citizens that their past they are willing to vote for a political antagonist to whose honesty they feel they can safely entrust both their political rights and their material interests.

They are proud that Mobile sets a bright example to the entire Union, and contains those slanderers who assert that there is in the south a necessary antagonism between the races, or personal hatreds on account of party causes. They rejoice that the candidate whom the Democratic and Conservative party of Mobile have chosen should have been accepted by the colored people of the entire District as a pledge of reconciliation and future harmony.

Very truly, yours,
FREDK G. BROMBERG.

To Messrs. G. Thos. Cox, P. C. Delmon, Dr. Jerome Cochran, } Committee.

Resolutions offered by L. H. Faith, esq., were unanimously adopted, as follows:

Whereas, The utterances of several speakers at recent meetings, held nominally in the interest of Tilden and Reform, but really in the interest of the Jones congressional party; and whereas the editorials of the Mobile Register, since it was forced to veer round from its even intemperate support of Fred'k G. Bromberg, have both grossly misrepresented and maligned so much of the Democracy of Mobile county, as support the People's Democratic candidate for congress, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Democrats of Mobile, in mass meeting assembled, that all aspersions upon our democracy, and all statements that our action tends to break the solid front of the Democratic party in the vital contest now pending, are intended to deceive and are utterly false and without foundation;

Resolved, That in supporting the people's Democratic nominee for congress from this district, we are solely actuated by honest belief that he is the best man for the position; that his experience and past record in congress have proved him to be the most useful and most practical representative for the good of the county, of this district and of the state.

Resolved, That we see no more reason to regard Fred'k G. Bromberg an independent candidate, than Jas. T. Jones; the latter having been the choice of an assembly at which only five counties of this district were represented; the former having been spontaneously nominated by the county of Mobile, which casts one-half of the democratic votes and pays more than three fourths of the taxes of this district.

And finally, be it Resolved, That in our nomination and support of Fred'k G. Bromberg, we but carry out the unanimous behest of the democratic party of Mobile, and of the first congressional district, as expressed by unanimous action of the district convention of 1874 and 1876; and that in refusing to align the black vote in fresh race hostility by deciding to accept their votes within our party, we but follow the reiterated dicta, and the actual examples, of the central committee and of the executive committee of the democratic party, both of which have, by all and every means, endeavored to secure, conciliate, or otherwise use, the votes of the colored men of Mobile county.

Captain John Grant followed in an eloquent speech, and he was succeeded by A. Proskauer, who spoke tersely and vigorously.

The presiding officer thanked the assembled multitude for their presence, and Col. A. J. Igersoll made a characteristic speech.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—The New England Cotton Manufacturers Association held their semi-annual meeting yesterday. Several gentlemen from the South were elected members.

FREEDMAN'S BANK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Commissioners of the Freedman's Bank have sued James Pike, member of congress in 1872 from New Hampshire, for $5,000 borrowed from the bank.

Suits have been entered by the United States against Gen. O. O. Howard as a defaulter of funds entrusted to him in connection with the Freedman's Bureau and the Howard University. One of the suits is for $150,000 and the other for $30,000.

NATIONAL THANKSGIVING.

The president has issued a proclamation appointing November 30 as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

DISARMAMENT OF THE INDIANS.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 26.—The Pioneer Press has a special from Bismarck which says that Gen. Terry was still at Standing Rock last evening. He had succeeded in disarming all the Indians at the agency and possessing himself of their ponies. He believes the Indians had most of their arms, and they had a day's warning. Only about 200 stand were found, including shot guns and revolvers. Six hundred ponies were stirred and a large number are yet to be brought in. The Indians seem to take kindly to the move as they come to under stand it. Some were at first inclined to resist. Gen. Terry informed them the property would be sold and the proceeds invested in cattle and such other goods as would be useful to them. No one except Gen. Terry and those immediately connected with him has an idea whither his next movement will be to Cheyenne or to strike the hostiles.

REUNION.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 26.—At a large meeting of the Methodist Church, Bishops Foster, of Massachusetts, and Kavanagh, of Kentucky, and others delivered addresses, thanking God for reunion after 32 years of separation.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 27.—Total interments to-day 3, yellow fever 1. One of those buried was an infant that died elsewhere and was brought to the city for burial, and one negro. There were no deaths to-day from any cause. No fresh yel.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

NEW YORK, October 26.—Last night's political display was the most imposing ever witnessed in this city. Fully 60,000 men were in line. The discordant workingmen, regardless of local differences, were represented by their clubs. The demonstration commenced at half-past seven; and at one o'clock there is no ending Gov. Tilden was still in position in front of the Everett House reviewing the procession. There were hundreds of curious devices, representing traditions of the past and hopes for the future.

THE MURDERER.

CHICAGO, October 27.—Sullivan, who shot a man here sometime since for writing a letter charging his wife with having improper influence over a member of the Board of Education, of this city, was to-day admitted to bail in $8,000; the jury having failed to agree on a verdict. The Court vigorously defended himself in the assertions of Mr. Reed, and affirmed his belief that the prisoner was rather wronged than wronging, and that there was no murder in the case. Berry the jurymen who stood out for conviction, states that he was assailed by jurymen during their deliberations, in the vilest manner; that threats were made against his life if he should persist, and that he dared not go to sleep in the jury room. The sentiment over the case is on the increase in the city.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 79, minimum 57, a range of 22 degrees.

This popular place of amusement will present unusual attractions this evening, in songs, dances, dramatic and operatic sketches. The De Courcey sisters, May Hoadley, Chris. Mathews, Dick Roberts and other artists will delight the audience with their performances. It is the only place of amusement now open, and the low prices of admission tempt the multitudes to go there.

The city scrip.

An animated discussion on the question of burning the city scrip took place at the meeting of the common council last Thursday evening. The resolution of Alderman Rauna, authorizing the ways and means committee to negotiate for greenbacks to pay city employes, came up among the papers from the lower board, when Councilman Danner proposed an amendment that all the city scrip in the city treasury on the first of November be burned next day and requiring the city treasurer to destroy all the city scrip in his possession between the 15th and 20th of each month thereafter.

Councilman Anderson seconded the amendment, which met his hearty approval.

Councilman Perryman opposed this amendment and Councilman Danner advocated it. The latter showed that the city in taking scrip for city taxes got only 85 and 4 cents for every dollar due, and paid $1 10 for every dollar of articles purchased for the city—grocers and others adding ten per cent. to their bills because they are paid in city money. The loss to the city, he maintained, by the use of city scrip was $2,000 a month, at least—more than one full month's expenditures.

Councilman Perryman argued that the policy of burning was not an advantageous one. The pledge of this scrip for greenbacks to pay November interest on coupons. In the course of a month, he thought, there would be no city money in circulation. In January, the lessees must be paid and there being no city scrip in circulation then, house so payers will be compelled to pay in greenbacks. Banks will take city scrip as collateral rather than city bonds. He hoped the city would spread the necessity of creation of 8c scrip, which is so very convenient to the poor laborer.

Councilman Danner modified his amendment to provide for the burning of all the city scrip in the treasury on the first of December and thereafter all in the treasury on the 15th and 30th of each month.

Councilman Perryman said it was a serious matter to talk about burning the scrip and maintained that the city had no right to burn the scrip which is needed to take up the city bonds with, under the funding act on the first of January. The city has already taken up $75,000 of its bonds in lieu of $75,000 city scrip destroyed. There is forty odd thousand dollars in the treasury, $32,000 has been hypothecated for greenbacks to pay the November interest with, and the balance is in circulation.

At this point Councilman Danner again modified his amendment so as to provide that the first burning of city scrip shall take place on the first of January next.

Councilman Danner said as long as taxes remain uncollected, there would be embarrassment in the management of the city treasury. He said gentlemen talk about this city scrip as though it was money, when it is nothing but promissory notes; and asked what harm could arise from burning a promissory note after it was paid?

The amendment to Alderman Hauna's resolution proposed by Councilman Danner was adopted.

The resolution as amended was then adopted.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUREL SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, pertumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture some but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States

Directory. Most respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by said, total chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city. I have no hesitation in stating, that in fact of their old-established purity is fully established.

SATURDAY..... OCTOBER 28

Special Correspondence of the Picayune.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 20, 1876.

There were reports this morning that England would seize Constantinople should Russia cross the Turkish frontier, but the position assumed by the British Cabinet yesterday does not warrant any such conclusion. On the contrary, England has backed square out of the fight, and this is the opinion of our best resident foreign bankers to-day.

England, with a view of protecting her interests in the far East—that is, the commerce along her Oriental lines—may, and probably will send a strong fleet to the "Golden Horn," but as to any fighting on land, it is plainly evident such a thing, in the present aspect of affairs, is not thought of. And so Turkey will be left to be pulled apart by the Russian Bear.

The Greek merchants here say that Greece will side with Russia; that the feeling between the two powers is good, and that Russia is not too poor to assist Greece in her proposed loan, if assistance is needed. The belief, however, is that the Greeks will take the loan among themselves.

The feeling abroad to day is one of uncertainty and suspense. The funds are a trifle better in the public dispatches, but the private cables from the Continent to leading houses are not regarded as assuring for peace.

In London there is almost complete stagnation, and active or prolonged war would bankrupt hundreds of the commercial houses in that city. Indeed they would go by the board to-day if the banks, who are "carrying" the merchants, were to demand a settlement. Members of the British Cabinet are fully aware of the critical condition that the mercantile interests of London and Liverpool, (but particularly London,) are in, and there is no doubt but what the course of the Government has been shaped to a great extent with the tottering situation of her mercantile classes in view. This, too, explains why the commercial interests themselves have opposed armed interference in the threatened war.

Robbery of the Park Bank.

Shortly after the opening of the Park National Bank, near the corner of Broadway and Fulton street, yesterday morning, it was discovered that a robbery of $36,000 had been committed by one of the oldest and most trusted employes of the bank. On Saturday afternoon Thomas Ellis, the paying teller, locked up his cash and left the bank as usual. Yesterday morning he failed to appear. He had been in the service of the bank for many years, was implicitly trusted, and no suspicions were excited by his absence. When, however, his assistant went to the cash, a loss of $36,000 in $1,000 and $5000 bills was discovered, and shortly afterwards news came from his family in Brooklyn that he had failed to return home on Saturday night. A statement of the robbery and a description of the absconding teller was then prepared, and detectives put upon his track.

The remarkable feature in connection with this robbery is that while the amount stolen was large, more than twice that sum might as easily have been taken, the amount of cash on hand at the time being very much above the figure stolen. The officers of the bank are also at a loss to imagine the motive of the theft, for Ellis is said never to have been a man of extravagant habits, and was but recently promoted to the important trust of paying-teller. He entered the bank when but a boy of sixteen or seventeen, nearly twenty years ago, as messenger. After a few years he was promoted to the position of note-teller, and remained in that capacity for about ten years. There, it is said, if of a dishonest tendency, his temptations were great having charge in that position of large sums coming in from other banks. On the 26th of last month he was made paying-teller (at the same meeting of the board when the present cashier was appointed), and has during his few weeks of office discharged his duties with entire satisfaction. Ellis was married nearly thirteen years ago to a Miss Lodi, of this city. He has five children, and but resided at 209 Hewes street, Brooklyn, E. D., between Lee and Marcy avenues.

A reporter of The World last night called upon Mrs. Ellis at her home, 209 Hewes street, Brooklyn, E. D., and learned that Mr. Ellis had left the house as usual, on Saturday morning last, for his duties in the bank. She did not notice anything strange in his actions, as he appeared to be in his usual spirits. Since then she has heard nothing from him, and did not know of the defalcation until informed of it yesterday by a friend. She was utterly at a loss to assign any reason for her husband's act, and declared that it was not prompted by any pecuniary embarrassment, as Mr. Ellis's salary was more than sufficient to enable them to live comfortably. Mr. Charles W. Hubbell, chief bookkeeper of the bank, said that Mr Ellis's act had created the greatest surprise among the bank officials. Ellis, he said, was not at all extravagant, though liberal in the use of his money. Mr. Hubbell was unable to assign any reason whatever for the defalcation, and said that of all the employes in the bank Ellis was the last whose honesty he would have questioned.—N. Y. World.

A Rhode Island man in Texas was much overcome by the magnitude of that State, and thus gave expression to the emotion that convulsed him: "This is bullier than sleeping three in a bed, you bet!"

The Lee monument fund now amounts to $25,000.

The fruit crop in England this year is poor, and large shipments of apple are being made from New York.

Only one Republican vote was polled in the entire Twenty-ninth Georgia Senatorial district at the recent gubernatorial election.

New York has a water supply of 700,000,000 gallons of water daily, but wants 1,000,000,000, which would be about 1,000 gallons a day for each inhabitant. They may be hard water drinkers, but this is too much.

George Ripley and Charles A. Dana are said to have cleared over $80,000 each as their share of the profits on the old Appleton's Cyclopedia, and will probably receive as much more for editing the new edition.

The Centennial Exhibition is ordered to be closed on the 10th of November and goods may be removed on the 11th. For a week longer the grounds and buildings will be open at the usual rate of admission.

Reports from the New England manufacturing towns are full of cheering news as to the revival of trade. Old mills are being refitted and started again, and numbers are launching out in business.

They have a quick witted engineer on the Vermont division of the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad. While on a down grade in a bad place near St. Johnsbury, with an excursion train of 18 cars last week, he saw three cows on the track. Disconnecting the engine, he put on all steam, knocked the cows from the track, and quickly took on the train again and passengers didn't know what a danger they had escaped.

THE DEMOCRACY
OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate wholly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention is the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of the district for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result se7 7

[From the Mobile Register.]

The special attention of our Irish naturalized citizens, who constitute one third of the voters of Mobile, is called to the following compliment-ary notice of them from the negro H. J. Europe, at the HAYES, WHEELER AND BROMBERG meeting, Wednesday night, which was in the following words: As it is impossible for the leopard to change his spots, so it is impossible for a Republican to become a Democrat, or for a Democrat to become a Republican—in fact, as impossible as for an IRISHMAN to become a WHITE MAN! This is the kind of alliance predicted by that Royal street flag, where, of the white and black hands clasped over the bloody chasm, the black one is the upper one.

EDITOR TRIBUNE:—The above communication from the Register does me great injustice, whether intentionally or not, I am unable to say. But it is absolutely certain that I have never thought of such an expression. The sentiment expressed in the article mentioned, is entirely at variance with the spirit of the resolution offered by me in the district convention of the 10th instant, diametrically opposite to my habit of thinking, contrary to my manner of speaking, publicly or privately; not in conformity with my common sense, and is calculated to make me appear anxious to insult gentlemen for whom I have great esteem. Therefore, I beg of you space enough in your paper to set myself right.

The gentleman who misunderstood my remarks will find a synopsis of my speech in the Tribune, which will doubtless explain what I said about the Irish citizens.

H. J. EUROPE.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S MEETING.

The Tilden, Hendricks and Bromberg and Reform meeting at the theatre last Friday night was the largest assemblage that has been held in Mobile since the war. It had no flummery about it. It was the representative of a protest against a wrong which has sunk deeply into the hearts of our people.

In our report of it, which was necessarily brief, there was no mention of the speech of the president, Geo. Duff-e, esq. That was admirable. It comprised, within a nutshell, most that can be said on the subject: and it had, what is a great merit, a deep-seated earnestness, not only manner, but thought. It was, in fact, an eloquent speech, and was appreciated by the vast audience.

The meeting ought to have been held somewhere else, for, we suppose, there were not more than fifteen hundred auditors. That, if the theatre be packed, is about the measure of its capacity. There was a large number outside who couldn't get in, and very few who were within wanted to get out, and so the outsiders lost some of the stirring traitus that were uttered on the occasion.

Well, the next meeting ought to be held within the Public Square, for that, we suppose, is large enough for the purpose.

TERRORS BEFORE US.

There is another thing now thrown into the political muddle to destroy the public desire for the election of Gov. Tilden, and thus paralyzing them who support him. It is that Turner may be elected within this District and so the Democratic majority in the U. S. House of Representatives will be turned into a Republican majority!

This is splendid!

The Democratic majority in that House, as it is now, is about seventy six! The elections this year within five of the States have reduced that to sixty-seven—a diminution of nine.

Owing to what is called gerrymandering—you may find the word in "Webster's Unabridged," for all we know—in some of the five States the districts were so redistricted that it threw power from the one party into the hands of the other. The general vote was not affected much by this shameful stratagem. Thyresult was an addition of a few Republican members to Congress.

The danger is in this: that the States which are to elect will make an increase of thirty—two members, and thus the Republicans will have a majority of one! If this terrible catastrophe should come, let some rich Democrat buy the one, and put him on the other side. That, we suppose, is possible, unless there be more integrity in the coming House than there is in the outgoing one.

There is every probability that the Democratic majority in the House will be increased; but, in order to accomplish a dishonest purpose, there is an attempt made to alarm our people by telling them that the Democracy of the country is weak! The very persons who employ this untruth within this District do so because Mr. Turner is running for Congress, and because he may be the one. The persons who use this very ridiculous thing seem to think that their readers are ignorant enough to be deceived by it. This is reducing partisanship to a position which is scorned by every gentleman.

We can furnish some good advice. Given that Mr. Turner might, under certain circumstances, be elected—and there is as much chance of that as there is of our jumping over the Battle House—there is only one certain security left to the people of this district: That is to elect Mr. Bromberg. After that, the one won't go to Washington, and we shall have an honest, experienced gentleman there who stands on the Tilden platform.

We can see no way of averting the calamity so painfully and ingeniously invented by the Register, except this. The whole destiny of the country depends on Turner. Get him out or the way. It is likely that he is not up for "Cowes and a market," but if it were so, it is possible that humane and Christian persuasion might induce him to save the country from the terrors of a Republican House of Representatives.

It is positively delightful to know that next week we shall be rid of the turmoil of the presidential election, which De Tocqueville, in his famous book, "Democracy in America," call ed a periodical revolution. We don't quote his exact words, but the idea, and it is a very excellent one.

In countries like Mexico, a prominent good for-nothing fellow wants to get some cash. He gathers fellows as needy as himself, and a pronunciamiento is issued, and they run, with arms in their hands, to scare the town people, and demand a contribution—blood or conflagration. This is the idea. The poor devils "shell out," and away the pronunciamados go, leaving not a trace of honesty behind them.

This is an exaggerated illustration or our quadrennial revolution. But are there not some points of agreement?

We have a desire—as every quiet man has—to get rid of the disturbance, and for the reason that it very much resembles the Mexican pronunciamientos: that is some persons want something that they have no right to, and they go and get it without authority of law. We accomplish the same purpose by means of law—so-called and perverted from its purposes—but we get it anyhow, and the law is not responsible for it, nor are they who use it to make forced contributions on the people here or elsewhere.

Well, we can do better by electing honest men to offices, and confiding in the belief that they will make no forced contributions.

As far as we can understand, it is likely that Mr. Bromberg is man for this purpose.

Why can't men differ in political opition without the one frowning on the other? Doesn't the sun shine on all of us? and doesn't the rain fall on all of us? that is if we don't stay in our houses.

It is pitiable to see men scowl at each other because the one chooses to exercise a right which the other claims for himself.

We care nothing about what a man honestly believes; and we have no right to inquire whether he believes it honestly, or otherwise. That is his business—not ours.

The Montgomery State Journal is hopeful. It says that, with a general turn out, Alabama can be carried for Hayes by 10,000 majority. We don't think that it can be carried in that way; but it is estimable in a man to be hopeful. It is not improbable that this District will go for Bromberg by five thousand majority, but he is not Hayes.

The Register has fallen "a peg or two." It seems now to think that the great sin in Mr. Bromberg is that he has not "abided" by party rule. In other words, that he has not made fools of his friends, who are not yet ready to kneel at the feet of those who make party rules, without respect to those whom they are made to govern.

The news from the interior is very favorable to the position of the 32. Mr. Bromberg it is supposed, will carry this county by five thousand majority, and it is predicted that he will carry Marengo county by a majority—how large is not set down. That is Capt Jones's county.

Montgomery, says one of the papers, "is full and running over" with people visiting the Fair. 15,000 a day is considered the attendance at the grounds.

Gen. Hooke thinks that New York will give Tilden and Hendricks 50,000 majority.

Tilden's majority in the State of New York in 1874, was 22,726 majority over Dix.

Communicated.

Bromberg has burnt his ships behind him!—Mobile Register.

Queer words from such a source!

Better compare him to the Mobile pilot who goes out to the storm-rid den and wave-battered ship and guides her safely, with all on board, into port, when all join in praises and thanksgiving to him, whether they are secessionists, rebels, fire-eaters before breakfast men, bloodthirsty drinkers, black dagists, or any other "ists," the right hand of fellowship is extended and eagerly grasped. Did any one ask what kind of man he had been previous to their letting him come aboard to take charge of the ship, or when they treated him with such hearty cordiality?

Such is Mr. Bromberg's position. He did help to load the ship of state. He was most cordially endorsed and encouraged. "Bravo! bravo!" was in the mouths of all the democrats of Mobile county. He never swerved a hair, but has stood true to the point; so much so that in 1874 he was urged on, as his due and right, for another contest. Vile fraud defeated him. The same party encouraged, and the executive committee furnished more or less money to enable him to contest the election, which he did, believing in the truth and veracity of his backers. But he failed.

If the backers were true to him in 1872 and 74, that is in their own hearts, where are they today? If Mr. Bromberg was entitled to the place in 1874, receiving the full endorsement of the party, and failed by fraud to secure it, is not the place his by "right of conversion," or "right of prophecy?" If he has been a Radical and done all the improper things laid at his door, should not his repentance, when followed by good works, be as acceptable and enduring as that of any "blood drinker" or "black flagist," although they say "they accept the situation?" Are not all such stultifiers and dodgers? No convention should have been called, but Mr. Bromberg should have had accorded to him by a unanimous acclamation the candidacy for congressman.

It is not too late to right a great wrong. It is easy to be supposed that if Mr. Jones fully understood the matter he would readily withdraw, and leave Mr. Bromberg the people's candidate, to reap the reward of his merit and his just due. Many persons will vote for Mr. Bromberg entirely from consistency, who, otherwise, might vote for Mr. Jones; and in doing so they will do it with the high consciousness that they are righting a wrong—and are not Radicals or "demagogue-ied Democrats." Let the "stultifiers and dodgers" go on with their vituperation and vile denunciation, led by the princes and potentates of the county, but when the people, the working men, the poor men, rise in their might, then the others will slink into their dirty nests, covered with shame, confusion and treachery. Republican Turner Hall Meeting.

An abstract of the speeches, at the republican meeting at Turner Hall, of Lou. H. Mayer, esq., and Judge Horton, was published in the Tribune yesterday. The next speaker introduced was an unmistakable colored man,

MR. V. J. EUROPE.

He said the republicans here, especially the colored republicans, have made up their minds to vote for Hon. Fred'k G. Bromberg. I am not, he said, interested in this canvass so much for the election of our ticket as for some other reasons. Up to the time of the division in the democratic party, here the republicans had nothing to say, but since then with the support of Mr. Bromberg, a democrat, by colored republicans, a day of peace and prosperity is begining to dawn. At the first meeting for conciliation between republicans and Bromberg democrats, I held my breath in suspense last conciliation and harmony should be pronounced impracticable. It was for us to choose between Jones and Bromberg, the election of a republican being impossible; and then I determined to personate myself to use all the influence I possessed in the support of Mr. Bromberg. In this canvass I see, on other and subordinate issues are represented by mere partisan measures.

I have often thought what is to become of the millions of colored people in the southern States, who have been set apart by the democratic press as "a class." They declare this country—this sunny south—to be the "white man's country?" Who reared these beautiful edifices but colored men by their labor? Who distinguished themselves during the war by their fidelity to the white people to whom they were attached, but colored men, colored women and colored children! And after all this industry, all this fidelity, the democratic press maligns us by calling this the "white man's country?" Influential men of the south, while condemning this sentiment of proscription, have put forth no efforts to crush it.

We colored people have done almost everything to bring about conciliation and peace. But our efforts have been in vain until an overruling Providence—I believe there is One above Who rules—brought about this division among those who have stood in political hostility against our race. This split in the democratic party of this congressional district is a providential interference to produce harmony and conciliation. We colored people have no objection to the election of democrats because they are democrats, but because of the measures they would consummate. They select gentlemen for their war record, because they were secessionists and are haters of negroes. They selected at Jackson a candidate for congress because of his prejudices against us and his proscription of classes.

As to the supporters of Colonel Turner: One of them told me the other day he was satisfied that if the colored men voted for Mr. Bromberg, he would be elected. But he said he was opposed to foreigners holding office. [Voices—"Give us his name!"] There is no reason for concealing his name. The conversation was between us and no stranger. His name is Fremont Thrower. Jones is a native born citizen. Bromberg is descended from foreign parentage. The man who nominated Mr. Jones was the most extreme one than they could find, a radical democrat. The democratic supporters of the people's candidate carried this county for Bromberg, but their rights were trampled on and ignored by the Jackson convention. The colored men support Bromberg because they want to see the right maintained.

The question has often occurred to me, what is to become of the nigger?—what is to become of our people, our children, who are reared up as a class? The way is open now, by the support of Mr. Bromberg, to break down this color line and emancipate ourselves from the thraldom of race proscription. In the present contest in this district, the colored voters hold the balance of power and they will use it judiciously. Our votes are sought because they are needed. Under the old condition of things our rights were unsecure; but when we ally ourselves to the democratic supporters of Mr. Bromberg, such good results will ensue as cannot be obtained by the presence of even a hundred thousand federal troops. We want peace, and we cannot get that till the proscriptive party is swept out of power.

Mr. Jones is as sure to be defeated as that the sun will rise tomorrow. [Tumultuous applause.] That result being accomplished and Mr. Bromberg being elected, the white supporters of that gentleman cannot go back in the future, when our votes are sought by the politicians, we shall vote for oi against them, as we choose, and there is an end to proscription. As it is impossible for the leopard to change his spots, so it is impossible for us to become white men; but we can be placed in the same political condition as white men. That is: to make it the interest of the white men to have us vote, and then our rights are forever secure. It is no more impossible for us to be placed in the condition of white men, than it was for the Irishman, after the terrible Know Nothing proscription, to which he was once subjected, to establish the fact that he is as good as a native born citizen—or to use an expressive phrase which I do not originate, to establish the fact that "an Irishman is as good as a white man!" We can be placed in the same condition as naturalized citizens politically, not socially—for we do not claim or ask social equality. We can place ourselves in a position to have the different political parties desire our votes.

The Jones man would be glad to have our votes if he could get them. Indeed, it is said that on the night of his nomination by the Jackson convention, Mr. Jones declared that he could get a thousand colored votes in Marengo county! Is is true that the Jones men only ask us to vote for Jones indirectly, by voting for Turner; but we propose to vote for the Hon. Fred'k G. Bromberg directly. [Cries of "That's so!"] The result that we are aiming for—peace, harmony, conciliation, prosperity—can only be brought about by the election of Mr. Bromberg and that by an overwhelming majority. There is no reason why he should not receive the vote of every colored man in Mobile county.

Colonel W. W. D. Turner is running as a republican candidate for congress. But my personal friendship for him has been somewhat dampened the last few days. He pledged himself to abide by the regular republican convention, and yet he runs against the candidate endorsed by that convention, claiming that he does so as a republican. Colonel Turner keeps Mr. Jones behind the scenes, but a man with a thimble full of brains may see that the only object of Turner is to defeat Bromberg, who is endorsed by the republican party organization.

And now as to George Turner, another gentleman whom we all like very well. He is United States marshal, and I have heard that he opposes the election of Bromberg because he fears he might have some influence over the next republican administration and the appointment of a marshal; but does not fear Mr. Jones, whom he considers a democrat that would have no influence with the administration.

In the name of God, are we to barter away our rights, that George Turner may be United States marshal? [Cries of "No!" "No!"]

Other republicans that I have talked with are supporting Colonel Turner for congress for defeat Mr. Bromberg. We must cast our votes for Fred'k G. Bromberg, because his election through the instrumentality of our votes would be the dawn of a new era of peace, unity, good will and prosperity. Here we were born and here we must remain. This is our home, our country; our firesides and our children are here, and we intend, from this time out, to have peace in this county.

When the time comes for the next election another year—there will be no more proscription of colored men. No more candidates will declare from the stump that they were in the war and that they hate niggers. We are for peace; we are for prosperity; we want immigration, we want the channel of the harbor opened.

The speaker alluded to formations in the past of cinles of the white man's party, by working men, and expressed surprise that he did not see the result of the formation of these clubs that demanded the employment of white to the exclusion of colored men. He illustrated the practical working of the white man's party to be, first the discharge of the colored man, and the employment of the white man at an advanced rate of wages. Second, the discard of the employer with his white employe, who was not so humble or so tractable as the nigger. Third, the final re-employment of the colored man at a reduced rate of wages, from which reduction all laborers suffered.

He wound up by saying, take 6000 Bromberg majority and slap Jones on the head with it, and that will end the white man's party, and not race proscription. At the conclusion of his speech three cheers were given, at his suggestion, for Hayes, Wheeler, and Bromberg.

At the Mystic, good western beer and a magnificent lunch can be obtained.

FLOUR, FLOUR, FLOUR.—200 barrels and 200½ barrels Le Fleur, Eagleston Marble City, and Highland City, in store and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

The soap factory of A. & B. Moog, corner Walnut and Poe streets, was crowded last Friday night with Bromberg men, who awaited the arrival of the Fire Department Brass Band from the Bromberg meeting at the theatre. Speeches in advocacy of Mr. Bromberg were made, and after that the president of the club, Mr. C. V. Krutner, was serenaded and then the party dispersed.

We noticed yesterday at Farley's, the arrival of new soft shell almonds, butternuts, filberts, raisins, currants, citron, mace. Lovers of these articles will do well by calling on Farley, No. 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

Young Men's Prayer Meeting at St. Francis street Baptist church this evening at five o'clock.

SOAP AND STARCH.—100 boxes Colgate's Sterine, 100 boxes P. & G. olive and family, 20 gross of assorted toilet soaps, all kin's, for sale at panic prices. Give me a trial. Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

TELEGRAPH

TILDEN'S LETTER.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28.—The Commercial editorially says: The letter of Samuel J. Tilden is a confession on the face of the serious purpose of the Southern democrats to press their claims against the government for losses growing out of their own follies in attempting to break up the union by force of arms, and is substantial testimony to the effect upon Tilden's chances for the next presidency. Mr. Tilden would never have written such a letter had not the peril of defeat stared him in the face. The letter is for Northern consumption. It is not likely to penetrate far in the south, unless republican newspapers below the medium are its circulars there.

The Enquirer says the letter of Mr. Tilden, touching the rebel claims, is fearless and noble. If doubt remained as to the result of the Presidential contest, that letter has dissipated it. It says the republican party had no stand game upon that issue. They had dodged all discussion of the question of forced resumption on the first day of January, 1879; of the silver question, tariff question of reform—all sharply in the issues. They had confessed judgment by avoiding discussion, and risked the game upon rebel claims—a newly invented patent of the bloody shirt. Mr. Tilden by this letter has taken from beneath the republican party its last remaining prop in this canvass. It is now the Republican party that is to be feared in connection with rebel claims. The Republican party has paid their claims to the amount of more than $100,000,000, and it had never failed to pay such claims when thereby it strengthen itself in the south. Mr. Hayes has made no pledge that he will oppose the policy of the republican party and the party will not permit him to give such a pledge.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.

A REPUBLICAN BOOM.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Republican managers have printed a very ingenious forgery, purporting to be a circular of the National Democratic Executive Committee, addressed to the South, in which the Democrats are advised to carry their respective States by force or bloodshed. The idea is to execute such articles and expressions at the South as can be used at the North. Another scheme is to cause disputation to be sent North from many points in the South, the night before the election, falsely alleging that conflicts have occurred and that the negroes are being intimidated.

CHANGE OF ADDICTION.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Samuel A. Bennare, James Pickett and Sarah Brown, alias "Dutch Sal," were given a hearing on the charge of aiding and abetting in the abduction of Charles Brighton Rose. The parties were arrested in Harrisburg. The principal witness against them was Nelson Parker, a colored man. He identified Bennare hand writing and then letters were introduced. In these letters allusion is made to a new "jewel," the owner of which would be obliged to come down handsomely in order to receive it. Mosher and Doug las are spoken of as running a power wagon. The death of Mosher is referred to and the "jewel" is reported safe. The "jewel" alluded to is believed to represent the lost boy. Another letter dated Reading and addressed to Sarah Brown reads:

"Go home, burn and destroy every one of those clothes of the babe's. Rudolph is caught and may squeal on us."

Still another letter found in the Harrisburg house speaks of Westervelt's sentence. Parker was serving an imprisonment in the penitentiary here when the abduction took place. He knew Bennare long before that, and the latter had written him letters of comfort, promising to aid in getting him out. This is how he identified the letters found in the Harrisburg House. All the evidence was in the form of hints, dark intimations, etc., but nothing explicit was proven. The prisoners, however, were all committed for trial. The matter is being further investigated.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

READING, Pa., Oct. 28.—During a Democratic parade in this city the railing front of the portico of Brazier Hall gave way and precipitated about thirty persons, some of them children, to the sidewalk eighteen feet below. Twelve were severely injured, fractured limbs or internal injuries.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN.

NEWARK, N. J. Oct. 27.—The Women's National Christain Temperance Union is in session here. About 200 active women from Western and other States are present. Business meetings are held daily. The officers, committees and speakers being all women. Miss Willards' report for the year sets forth that there are organizations of Women's Christian Temperence Associations in twenty-three States. Appropriate resolutions have been adopted. Meetings to hear speeches are held nightly. Mrs. Wallace, of Indiana, was present and made a speech as did also Mrs. Hopper, colored of Philadelphia, Mr. Lathrop, of Michigan, and Mrs. Leavitt, of Cincinnati.

INSURANCE SUIT.

An insurance agent has brought suit against the United States Life Insurance Company in the Supreme Court of Kings county before Judge Gilbert, alleging in his complaint great and various irregularities, chiefly against John F. Dewitt and James Bowlt. They are charged, too, with conspiring to transfer the reserve funds of the company to other companies for their own advantage.

SHAW'S DR.

An easterly storm, accompanied at is beginning with a slight fall of snow, set in here this morning.

IN HIS HELMET.

Edward S. Stokes' sentence expired to day and he was released.

ARCTIC EXPLORATIONS.

LONDON, Oct 28.—The returned Arctic expedition, during the winter made rich collections in natural history. Scientific observations were made and excellent coal found where the Discovery wintered A fortnight of 50 degrees below Zero was encountered, and once the mercury reached 104 degrees below zero. Petersen, the interpreter, died forty days after the amputation of both his feet from frost bite. All the members of the expedition declare it an impossibly to make a closer reach than theirs to the North Pole—400 miles.

SELF WOUNDING.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A Times despatch from Belgrade confirms the statement that self wounding is again becoming frequent among the Servians.

WAR TAXED OFF.

The Times to day, in its financial article, says the feeling that war is staved off, at least for the winter, has become much more prevalent, and ruinous stock operations toward a rise.

Russia.

[New York Graphic]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—There is curious story afloat here in the circles which have access to diplomatic secrets that, the movement of Russia on Armenia and Southeastern Asiatic Turkey is somehow mixed up with George Eliot's story of "Daniel Deronda."

It will be remembered that Daniel Deronda's enemy, first suggested by the dying Jew, Mordecai, was the purchase of Palestine and the restoration of the Jews to their old home. It is said here that if war should break out it is the intention of Russia to march directly to Palestine with a double purpose: First, to outflank the Turkish dominions in Asia; and, second, to gain access to the Mediterranean and the harbors on the coast of Asia Minor. It is also asserted that, in case Russia should get possession of the Holy Land, it proposes to erect a Jewish nationality upon the payment by the rich Jews of the world of a sufficient sum to indemnity Russia for the cost of the war.

As the Jews are the great bankers of the world, and as it has long been the dream of the most impressible and aspiring among them to again occupy Judea, and as George Eliot and her husband are known to be intimate with leading Jewish families, it is believed that she was induced to put this Jewish scheme of Mordecai and Deronda into a novel so as to prepare the public for what was likely to take place.

Chas. Bradlaugh, when in this country, communicated to the Graphic and other papers the fact that secret societies were at work fomenting trouble in the East between Turkey and Russia, and if this latest rumor is true, it will account for the presence of the immense Russian army on the borders of Armenia, and points to the possibility of the reconstitution of the empire of David and Solomon under Russian auspices.

The War in Europe.

As to the probable influence of a general European war upon American commerce, a late article in the New York Herald will prove of interest to all our readers. It is in substance as follows: It says that the heaviest shipments of grain in American bottoms are being made now at San Francisco, direct for Liverpool. Grain shippers say that Russia has been preparing for this crisis for, nearly a year, and has its granaries full to bursting to guard against a blockade of its receiving ports. On the Atlantic sea-ports of the United States, the Swedish and Norwegian vessels consigned to masters or agents are firmly held for higher rates of freight, in anticipation of a brisk demand for neutral vessels in the event of a continental war. Shippers of petroleum, lard and tallow do not anticipate any abrupt change in prices or freights. If war shall be declared within two or three months, prices will not advance suddenly and hold firm. The first effect will be to advance the rate but a reaction will follow, caused by speculations covering their short interests. The telegram from the London Lloyds yesterday placing an extra war risk of five shillings per centum (or 100 lbs.) on British vessels loading between England, Australia and the East, gave a better tone to the transactions on the Maritime Exchange, and vessels' owners flying the Stars and Stripes felt confident of obtaining charters at increased rates. It was understood there that Russian and Italian vessels in other ports were not receiving offers of charters, and that the marine insurance companies were placing rates on them additional to the five shillings war risk announced by the London Lloyds.

One of the prominent officers of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, in conversation, yesterday, said that company had not increased its rates on American vessels to Europe, and probably would not. If the European problem should be left to settlement by the sword, and he felt that it could not be settled now by diplomacy, American bottoms would be in great demand, and the ships of the United States would be made carriers for the world. The belligerent powers would not dare to ship commercial freights in their own vessels, and the laws of the United States provide that after an American built ship has been transferred bonafide to a British owner that vessel can not be transferred again to the United States flag. He believed, he said, that a general war in Europe would be a godsend to America at this time, as it would place thousands of merchant ships in commission and give employment to the vast number of seamen now in our ports. At the Cotton Exchange business was light, operators evidently hesitating to make contracts for future delivery until after the announcement of the action of the British Parliament. Several of the prominent shippers said they did not believe the "rumors of war," and felt that the European difficulty would be settled by arbitration. In that event the Norwegian and Swedish vessels in port now refusing freights at market rates would be left out in the cold.

GOOD NEWS.—General Lawler closed the Alabama Bond Agency in New York on the 23d instant, after exchanging about $3,300,000. There have been about $1,000,000 exchanged here, making nearly two-thirds of Class A, which under the terms of the settlement is limited to $7,000,000. The remainder will come in gradually. The recent compilication in the A. & C. Railroad will not at all affect the settlement made between the State and bondholders, and we still think that the State is safely rid of that great source of trouble.—Mont Adv.

One of those strange coincidences that serve to imbue the minds of credulous people with a belief in spiritualism occurred in Hartford last week. A Dr. Langley, a medium, was shown a lock of hair from the head of a hospital patient who had the consumption, and he informed the parties who consulted him that nothing could save the consumptive that he would die in exactly four months and a half. Nothing was thought of the matter until last week when the patient died, and it was found that he died exactly on the day that Dr. Langley predicted, was never informed of the prediction, he could not been frightened into dying on that particular day. Dr. Langley was formerly a gambler and a faro bank dealer, and says he quit that vocation because the spirits said he would never win again.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mob i. e. Delegation of thirty-two voices, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that Justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention to be the nominee of to this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

Some persons in selecting a stove hastily purchase such a one as some friend has been using, instead of looking around for the stove that has the LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, for great progress is being made in this branch of manufacture, and the best stove of a few years ago is superseded by the more recent inventions.

The National Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT,

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS,
(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,
OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECTED AT LARGE:
JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES R. DOOLY, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:
1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTZCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WALDRELL, of Russell.
4. JOHN Y. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. Wm. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL R. MOSELEY, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

The registration lists of New Orleans show the names of 55,921—33,575 whites, and 22,346 colored.

The suicide mania is starting anew at the North. The New York World, of Wednesday, records six cases.

The president has published a proclamation recommending the 30th of Nov. as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Is this an electioneering dodge?

A large number of the business men of New Orleans publish a request that, on the day of election, the business houses of the city be closed up.

Saturday night the buildings on the New Orleans Fair Grounds were injured to the value of $50,000 by a fire. They were covered by full insurances. It is supposed that it was an incendiary operation.

There was an immense Tilden procession and meeting in New York city last Thursday. The wards reported 45,000. In addition there were 500 mounted men. It was supposed that there would be in addition 10,000 from the outside of the city.

Editor Tribune:—Tell us, for true, is Mr. J. T. Jones the Jackson meeting candidate, a brother of that lively Radical of the same name in Marengo? If so, is not that the reason why it was said Jones would poll more negro votes in the District than Bromberg?

Mr. Topper is receiving much attention in New York. Thursday night, in a "reception," he was surrounded by some of the most eminent literary and other gentlemen. Mr. Bryant, on the occasion, recited that sad and beautiful poem, "Thanatopsis."

We think that it would be well to cease all business next Tuesday and go every honest voter up to the polls. See that no vote is bought and paid for, "cash on the nail." The promises of pay, unless in writing, have no legal significancy and so in regard to verbal promises of money or offices hereafter. A great many green fellows may be allured by these promises. If they choose to go to bed with nothing in their pockets, let them go to bed. If any one has to pay or for sale let him pay it himself, by producing the money.

The United States Weather Bureau of Morrison's, New York, was 100 to 90 and 95 that Hayes will be elected, and 100 to 50 that Tilden will carry the state of New York.

A poor later than this (Friday) from the same place, was as follows, on the general result: Tilden 200; Hayes 160; on the state of New York, Tilden 100; Hayes 40. If betting be a sign, this shows that the Democrats are "creating their continuations."

It is said that the southern claims at Washington aggregate $2,503,622, 386. Whether this is true or false is not within our knowledge. There is no doubt that Mr. Tilden meant these claims—most of which are unquestionably fraudulent—when in his recent letter he condemned them. Most of these have been bought for little or nothing, and as a means of speculation. They have also, beyond doubt, been bought up by northern speculators. So the payment of them can give no hurt to us or the south—for we shall derive no benefit from their settlement, except what we shall have to pay in the form of taxation.

The cotton tax ought to be refunded to our people, for it was a forced contribution after the war was closed. These claims are just, as in their original form. If they have fallen into the hands of speculative knaves, why let them go. They were gambling transactions; and that is the best that can be said of them.

There are claims here in Mobile, which an honest creditor will accept and liquidate. They accrued after the war, when the federal government was in undisputed possession, and long after the men who gave their services and money to the government had been pardoned for their rebellious sins.

This kind of debt is not to be honestly put aside. It is not very large, aggregating the whole of the claims, but, whether large or not makes no difference in their validity. At Washington there seems to be a notion that any trumped-up claims are equal to the validity of honest ones. They "lump" them, and thus save trouble in the departments, and comprise the honest men as well as the rogues.

Gov. Tilden, in his letter in respect of the bad business, may only intend to reject the dishonest claims. This is to be applauded, but he has not made the distinction between the honest and dishonest ones entirely clear or satisfactory to our people.

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.

The Register seems to be greatly exercised because Mr. Bromberg is going to get the mass of the Republican vote; but we fail to see why the Register puts itself to so much trouble to show the Republicans that they ought not to vote for Mr. Bromberg. How would the Register have them to vote? Not for Mr. Jones; oh no! the Register would not have Mr. Jones contaminated by the support of colored voters. Does the Register prefer that they should vote for Mr. Turner? Is that the way the wind blows in the Register's editorial sanctum? We shrewdly suspect that this is the case. But why does the Register desire to lave the Republicans vote for Mr. Turner? Does the Register prefer that Mr. Turner should be elected rather than Mr. Bromberg? And if so upon what ground? Does the Register believe that Mr. Turner would make a better representative than Mr. Bromberg? Or is there some other reason at work?

No. The Register thinks that all the votes cast for Mr. Turner will help to elect Mr. Jones; and therefore it is that the Register is so generous toward the Republicans in the distribution of unsought advice. The Republicans, however, are not likely to heed advice coming from this patriotic source. They have learned to beware of the Greeks when they bring gifts. And as they do not desire to assist the Register to elect Mr. Jones, they are not likely to cast their votes in obedience to the Register's suggestions. It is for this reason that they will vote for Mr. Bromberg.

Why, then, is the Register so very anxious to elect Mr. Jones? Is it because Mr. Jones is the regular democratic nominee? The Register knows well that this claim is false and ill-fated—knows that Mr. Jones, instead of being the regular nominee, is, in fact, the very irregular nominee of the very revolutionary and very irregular rump of the Jackson convention. The Register also knows in its heart of hearts that Mr. Bromberg will represent the interests of this congressional district with a degree of ability and integrity that no other man in the district could hope to equal. Truly,

Forty-three are dark,
And for tricks that are vain,
The Heathen Chinee is peculiar.

We find in the last Cycle a facetious article, extracted from a paper that is published in Demopolis.

It is called, as we see stated, Demopolis News Journal"—news a non lucendo, we suppose.

Having never laid eyes on a copy of it, we can express no opinion in respect of its merits. Therefore its ignorance, or its wisdom, or its cupidity, may go for what they are worth in any market where similar newspaper commodities may be for sale.

The News Journal, as we learn from the Cycle, is published under the nose of Mr. Jones—a candidate within this District for Congress. He may own it. If not, it is likely that he pulls the strings which keep it a going.

This is only conjecture: We shall not assert it as a fact. It is, however, quite probable.

The paper may be as wise as Solomon was, or as wise as any of its readers; and that, we venture to assert, is not equal to the wisdom of the Greek.

It confesses some ignorance of the Tribune. That of course—for, otherwise, it might have been obliged to leave Mr. Jones's neighborhood, or have aspired to the elevation of the men who are standing fast for a right which the partisans desire to deprive Mobile of—not for Mr. B., as an individual, but for him as the representative of the prevailing sentiment of this county.

The Cycle must accept our compliments for the text on which this brief notice is based. Its modesty may reluctantly—perhaps, not at all—accept them. We know that it has a morbid aversion to self-laudation—if it blush on account of our revelation of this secret, we shall be pained.

The talk now is of party rule. That is valid, if the rule be an honest one; but we cent, with all security, tell the reader that the way to break up a nefarious party rule is to oppose it. This, to brief, is the only remedy that we can suggest for what is now troubling us in Mobile county. In this respect, we are doing first rate; and, if there be a continued deep seated earnestness in order to accomplish the purpose, we shall next year be permitted to go out in the streets and say that our souls are our own—or, rather, our votes.

Betting is not an argument. It is considered to be not entirely moral by the moral philosophers, but it has one virtue: It exhibits the sincerity of the betting parties in their belief. And we mention this, not to approve of betting, but only to say that the other day we saw a gentleman bet fifty dollars on the election of Mr. Bromberg. The best way to do is to not bet at all, but go to work, and, by the election of Mr. B. emancipate this city and county from a tyranny which it has submitted to for a good many years.

Our news item to the interest is that the sensible people are beginning to believe it were better to have in congress an experienced gentleman—who has given assurance of his fealty to his section and the Democratic principle—than an untried gentleman.

This seems to us to be rational. But, more than this—leaving the two gentlemen outside of the argument—our people of Mobile, if they have got any manhood, will redress the wrong by which Mr. Jones was made a candidate. The wrong was done by some of our own citizens. We must right it by our other Mobile citizens.

Yesterday was a fine day, popped down here in twelfths of the approach of autumn to winter.

This kind of weather is not a novelty in Mobile. The earliest frost that we have seen was that of the 6th of October, and that was for a day and then came the Indian summer. This is what we have now, with its pleasant temperature and its hazy atmosphere.

But the lack of moisture dries up all that we desire to grow. The gardens have been hurt—except those where the virtue of irrigation has been used. The trees themselves seem to be weary of putting up their inarticulate prayers for rain. The frogs, whose music is so grateful, are still: the locusts don't sing—nothing sings, except the charcoal man; and one might, without discomfort, pay him for not singing. The man, with his monkey, is not here. That is what the little children regret, and when their little souls are pleased, who is so churlish as to desire him to go away?

Happily, we have plenty of water: that is for culinary purposes—but for conflagrations there is not enough in the western part of the city to moisten the top of a roof.

The corporation debt of N. Y. city is $116,250,111.81, interest, $3,373,-323.40.

TUESDAY,.....OCTOBER 31

The sales of cotton yesterday in Mobile were 2500 bales.

Yesterday morning morning Mobile was enveloped in a dense fog.

The cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were the largest of any day this season, 6493 bales.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 76, minimum 54; a range of 22 degrees.

Mr. W. T. Ayers, the well-known soldier, has been receiving a fresh stock of goods from New York and Boston.

Spear & Co., are selling pure lump Pittsburg coal at $9 a ton and $4 50 a half ton. They are also agents for the Double-plaid Plantation Cotton Press.

Messrs. Brisk & Jacobson are daily receiving additions to their stock of goods clothing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

A flat car loaded with cotton was on fire at the Mobile and Ohio Railroad depot Sunday morning. Some of the cotton was burned and then the fire was extinguished by the firemen.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 212 sacks corn and 65 barrels of potatoes were received. By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad, 153 barrels apples and 155 barrels potatoes were received yesterday.

We are glad to see that our popular grocery merchant, Gwen Farley, has secured Col. Pleasant's the agency for his fine oranges and eggs which he will sell within the reach of all. Call and see him for lovers of fruit.

Cross Yonat to the Front.

You have won the battle and the position is yours. In every conflict you have been successful, "rising above all others."

The schooner Lottie Beard, from Salem Massachusetts, arrived at this port yesterday, brought the officers and crew of the German brigantine Anort, Captain Busch, from Milk river, Jamaica, for Queenstown which was wrecked by a hurricane when three days out, off the south coast of Cuba and abandoned.

Card From W. W. D. Turner

MOBILE, Ala., October 30, 1876.

To the Republicans of the 1st Congressional District:

I have heard that reports have been, or will be sent out to the effect that I have withdrawn from the contest for congress in this district. Having had a short time in which to make my canvass, it has been impossible for me to address all of the voters of the district as I would like to have done. I hope, therefore, I will be pardoned for taking this method of saying that my reports that I have withdrawn, no matter by whom made, are malicious and wilfully false. I am in earnest, and mean to run through at all hazards. I am determined to see how many true and honest republicans there are in this district. I rely upon honest and true republicans to vote for me, as against my two democratic opponents, Messrs. Jones and Bromberg.

Between those two gentlemen, politically, I have no choice; if I am not elected I do not care whether Jones beats Bromberg or Bromberg beats Jones. I have also learned that a certain so-called republican has now in his possession some Tilden and Hendricks tickets with my name upon them for courtesies. If any such are circulated, I wish now in advance to denounce them as frauds and forgeries—and the man or men who knowingly circulates them, as low-lived scoundrels. That bribery, forgery, fraud and scandalous lying will be resorted to to beat me, I have no doubt—and that, too, by men claiming to be republicans—but I charge upon them that they have sold out to the democracy, and are trying to deceive and humbug honest and well meaning republicans into a support of Mr. Bromberg. Well knowing that he is a democrat, I will run the race through, and if any circulars are sent out in my name saying that I have withdrawn, they will be forgeries.

Respectfully,
W. W. D. TURNER.

Among the arrivals at the Battle House are General R. W. Pettus of Selma, J. Monroe Haskell of Baltimore, D. C. Corbin and wife of Chicago, M. McGraw and wife of New Orleans, and B. B. Bingay and wife from New York. Three bridal parties have enjoyed the sweets of the honeymoon within the last few days at the Battle House. Some of those guests from abroad have come here to winter in Mobile.

It is a pleasure to note the fact that from early morn to dowy eve, sales men at the store of Pincus are busily engaged in waiting on customers. That comes from selling at one price and for small profits.

The city court, Judge Semmes, met yesterday morning and adjourned till this morning, when misdemeanor cases will be fixed for trial.

DENVER, Oct, 29.—The canvass of the votes gives Republican majority for Supreme Judge 148, for Congress 1038. The Legislature stands: Senate Republicans 19, Democrats 7: House Republicans 32, Democrats 17. The Legislature will canvass the vote for State officers.

INCREASE IN IMMIGRATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Immigration 182,067 against 144,833 last year and 240,-810 in 1874.

THOMAS'S CONCERT SEASON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Regular season of symphony concerts announced by Theodore Thomas last night at Steinway Hall. The programme was honorable—consisting Beethoven's eighth symphony and dramatic symphony, by Hector Berlioz, entitled "Romeo and Juliet."

The latter was given for the first time in this country with orchestral movements, choruses and solo parts entire. It lasted two hours, made a deep impression, great was received with merited gratification by the audience, which filled every part of the hall.

FIRE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

GREAT BEND, Oct. 30.—The car machine and carpenter shops of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company were burned to day.

YELLOW FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 29.—Total interments to day nine, of which five were from yellow fever, two of the deaths from the fever were refugees who returned to the city last week. Associations are highly hopeful for return to health.

EXPOSITION PROJECTED.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—An organization is being perfected by which facilities will be afforded to exhibitors, both foreign and American, to continue goods on exhibition in the main building of the Centennial Grounds after the close of the Centennial Exhibition. That building has been purchased from the Centennial Board of the Rudenwelder for the purpose of creating a permanent exhibition. Exhibits will comprise the following classes:

Mining, Manufactures, Education and Science, Art Machinery, Agriculture and Horticulture. The following officers of the United States Centennial Commission have consented to receive applications for space: Henry Pettis, chief of bureau of inspection, Main Building; John Talbert, chief of bureau of machinery, Machinery Hall; Barnet Landreth, chief of bureau of agriculture, Agricultural Hall; Charles H. Miller, chief of bureau of horticulture, Horticultural Hall.

A PREMATURE DEFENSE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A cable dispatch from Paris announces the Marquis of Talleyrand sent the following letter to the editor of the Figaro in relation to charges of M. DuSommerard against Americans in connection with the Centennial Exposition:

Sir—I have read with profound astonishment the letter of M. DuSommerard to his friend in Vienna. I was attached to the commission sent to the Philadelphia Exposition, and I must say that in that capacity, as well as a Frenchman, I received the most delicate attentions at the hands of the American people. I believe that all the commissioners will say the same.

The accusation that the American purposely set fire to packing cases of the French department is so monstrous that I cannot allow it to pass without a flat contradiction. I was in America when that accident occurred, and no people, I regretted it more than the Americans.

There was no ill. I will answer for it, and if the fire had been the work of an incendiary the whole country would have proclaimed its indignation. M. DuSommerard should have drawn his information from a less partial source before accusing a people with an act so vile. Once more my duty as a member of the French Commission compels me to protest against the imputations cast upon the American people by M. DuSommerard. I except, Mr. Editor, the assurance of my distinguished consideration.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A narrative of the Arctic Expedition is published. It relates that after the first encountering of ice the expedition was detained several days in Port Payer. It started thence on August 8, but before reaching the shore of Grinnell Land, the vessels were caught in the ice.

After this their progress northward was an incessant struggle through channels openings made in the ice by wind and current, the channel frequently closing behind them. The Discovery entered 16 ½ well sheltered and constantly closing behind them. The Discovery entered 16 ½ well sheltered and constantly closing behind them. BY

R. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

Execution of Wesley Greenlea.

From the Meridian Mercury:

Yesterday morning, Wesley Green, Mr. ARGO was hanging near the city by sentence of court, for the murder of Pres. Harris another negro. It was a case of murder most foul. Harris being waylaid and shot down without any warning or showing for his life, and his dead body left where it fell. "Murder will out," sometimes and it did in this case, and yesterday the law took the forfeited life of a murderer in sight of a vast concourse of people, chiefly negroes, but many whites, including women and children. Sheriff Henderson, in his own proper person executed the writ by hanging the condemned. "It is well it were done quickly," seems to have been his motto. At sharp 10, the prisoner was brought from the cell and out into the prison court and then out of the gate into the open air, accompanied by clergymen of his own color. The march was taken up to the gallows, fifty yards off, a song of triumph (it seemed) being sung during the short journey. Arrived there, Sheriff Henderson proceed with a steady hand immediately the despatch of the business before him, assisted by his deputy, H. S. King. In five minutes, it is estimated, from the time the condemned emerged from the jail yard, he was dangling from the rope's end. The services had been said in jail—the last way, we think—and it was only to mount the scaffold, which the culprit did with a firm and confident step. The procession halted at the foot of the scaffold, he looked up at the instrument of death a moment and told the sheriff to proceed. The sheriff gave brief time, all he wanted to say his last words. He said he was prepared for death and all was well. He called one of the attending ministers by name and enjoined upon him to preach his funeral sermon. The warrant of death was read—a formality that might be omitted—the rope was fixed, the cap adjusted, and while he was yet speaking of his confidence in the future, the drop fell and he ceased speaking for ever. During the brief scene there was much excitement among his race, and when the drop fell suddenly a loud wail was heard. It was all over in the morning hour, even before some who were bent on seeing the sight, had arrived upon the ground. The crowd slowly turned away and dispersed, and, it is hoped, a lesson has been taught that will restrain and stay the hand of the murderer.

Italian Pauperism.

Manchester Guardian.—We gather from the Italian newspapers that the kingdom of Italy is just now passing through a crisis very similar to the phenomenon of pauperism which in the reign of Elizabeth led to the creation of workhouses in England. The immediate effect of the confiscation or appropriation of conventual and ecclesiastical property by the State has been to increase the number of paupers enormously, as happened also in England in bluff King Hal's time. The religious orders distributed much of their income, if not wisely, at least liberally in alms so that, if no Italian beggar was nursed in the lap of luxury, at all events not one was ever known to die of hunger. Now that the religious orders have been suppressed even the secular clergy have tightened their purse-strings. Alms have gone out of fashion among them; and it may be said of them, as Sydney Smith said of the curates of his time, that they are the first and purest paupers of their parishes.

Connecticut farmers are felicitating themselves on having saved thousands of dollars by the $2,800 appropriation to the State Agricultural Experimental Station, through its exposures of fraudulent fertilizers. In one case, the station proved by analysis that a much puffed fertilizer, which had been sold extensively as high as $75 a ton, was worth only $8.

The desire for engagements in New York dramatic companies is strong. Mr. McVicker advertised for actors and actresses for the Lyceum company, and now he says in a second advertisement: "The numerous applicants (over 3000 in number) who have not received replies to their letters are hereby notified that their services can not at this time be made available."

Richmond (Va.) State: Five coaches filled with United States troops, passed through here for South Carolina. One of the coaches was principally occupied by ladies and children, families of the officers. At the depot, one of the soldiers standing on the platform drew his canteen with an air of impudence, and said, offered to Uncle Sammy Tilden. Hayes men stand no chance." There were more like him in the cars. This was received with cheering.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

Have in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

Hon. F. G. Bromberg,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, or six votes, to whom no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we denounce the Districts Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if the demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result. oct 1

BY

J. BALENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

Execution of Wesley Greenlea.

From the Meridian Mercury:

Yesterday morning, Wesley Green Mangum was hung near the city by sentence of court, for the murder of Pres. Harris another negro. It was a case of murder most foul. Harris being waylaid and shot down without any warning or showing for his life, and his dead body left where it fell. "Murder will out," sometimes and it did in this case, and yesterday the law took the forfeited life of a murderer in sight of a vast concourse of people, chiefly negroes, but many whites, including women and children. Sheriff Henderson, in his own proper person executed the writ by hanging the condemned. "If is well it is to be done quickly," seems to have been his motto. At sharp 10, the prisoner was brought from the cell and out into the prison court and then out of the gate into the open air, accompanied by clergymen of his own color. The march was taken up to the gallows, fifty yards off, a song of triumph (it seemed) being sung during the short journey. Arrived there, Sheriff Henderson proceeded with a steady hand immediately the despatch of the business before him, assisted by his deputy, H. S. King. In five minutes, it is estimated, from the time the condemned emerged from the jail yard, he was dangling from the rope's end. The executioners had been said in jail-yer way, we think—and it was mount the scaffold, which the ined did with a firm and confident step. The procession halted at the foot of the scaffold, he looked up at the instrument of death a moment and told the sheriff to proceed. The latter gave brief time, all he wanted to say his last words. He said he was prepared for death and all was well. He called one of the attending ministers by name, and enjoined upon him to preach his funeral sermon. The warrant of death was read—a formality that might be omitted—the rope was fixed, the cap adjusted, and while he was yet speaking of his confidence in the future, the drop fell and he ceased speaking forever. During the brief scene there was much excitement among the negroes, when the drop fell suddenly a loud wail was heard. It was all over in the morning hour, even before some who were bent on seeing the sight, had arrived upon the ground. The crowd slowly turned away and dispersed, and, it is hoped, a lesson has been taught that will restrain and stay the hand of the murderer.

Italian Pauperism.

Manchester Guardian.—We gather from the Italian newspapers that the kingdom of Italy is just now passing through a crisis very similar to the phenomenon of pauperism which in the reign of Elizabeth led to the creation of workhouses in England. The immediate effect of the confiscation or appropriation of conventual and ecclesiastical property by the State has been to increase the number of paupers enormously, as happened also in England in bluff King Hal's time. The religious orders distributed much of their income, not wisely, at least liberally in alms so that, if no Italian beggar was starved in the lap of luxury, at all events not one was ever known to die of hunger. Now that the religious orders have been suppressed even the secular clergy have tightened their purse-strings. Alms have gone out of fashion among them; and it may be said of them, as Sydney Smith said of the curates of his time, that they are the first and purest paupers of their parishes.

Connecticut farmers are felicitating themselves on having saved thousands of dollars by the $2,300 appropriation to the State Agricultural Experimental Station, through its exposures of fraudulent fertilizers. In one case, the station proved by analysis that a much puffed fertilizer, which had been sold extensively as high as $55 a ton, was worth only $4.

The desire for engagements in New York dramatic companies is strong. Mr. McVicker advertised for actors and actresses for the Lyceum company, and now he says in a second advertisement: "The numerous applicants (over 2000 in number) who have not received replies to their letters are hereby notified that their services can not at this time be made available."

Richmond (Va.) State: Five coaches filled with United States troops, passed through here for South Carolina. One of the coaches was principally occupied by ladies and children, families of the officers. At the depot, one of the soldiers standing on the platform drew his canteen with an air of impudence, and said, "Here's to Uncle Sammy Tilden. Hayes men stand no chance." There were more like him in the cars. This was received with cheering.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional Districts of Alabama, the name of the HON. P. G. RICHMOND,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole mob in a majority of thirty-two votes, is an outrage, to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the Interior Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representative men from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that Justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention to be the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we deem his self-assumption of party loyalty due to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby pass in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. P. G. Richmond, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Richmond's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if, by command of another convention is enforced, by the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Richmond's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result. oct7

The National Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT,
SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS,
(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)
FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,
OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECTORS AT LARGE:
JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:
1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WALDRAM, of Russell.
4. JOHN Y. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. WM. R. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, jr., of Sumter.
7. WILLIAM McDONALD, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

It seems, as far as we can gather it from the papers, that Tilden and Hendricks, like Mr. Bromberg within this district, are gathering strength every day.

The default of Ellis, the recent paying teller of the National Park Bank, New York, is set down as about $80,000. It is not certain that this is all of it.

A late census has been taken of Savannah; and is shows 7538 whites, and 11,614 colored. This shows how much the population has been depleted by the yellow fever.

The news from the interior continues to be favorable for the election of Mr. Bromberg. It is believed that he will carry Marengo county. It is also reported that Mr. Tilden's votes will be increased by the means of Mr. Bromberg's election. That, we think, is likely.

The cyclone which passed over the Central America in the early part of October, was extremely destructive. In the Nicaragua town of Managua, some four hundred houses were blown down by it. The place was flooded and many lives were lost. $2,000,000 will hardly cover the damage that was done, and all the other towns in the track of the storm suffered in a like degree. It is estimated that it destroyed $3,000,000 of the coffee crop. Vessels suffered generally. It is said that so severe a storm has never been experienced in that section.

The main meeting of those that were held on Wednesday night for Tilden, Hendricks and Jones, was that at the corner of Canal and Broad streets. Alittle after 10 o'clock, when we saw it, it was not large, but it was conducted, as we learn, with general decorum and quietness. Perhaps nearly a moiety of it was composed of Bromberg men and some of them, with much impropriety, made their opinions known. That was wrong, for it was a Jones meeting, and what the Bromberg men require for themselves must be scrupulously given to the Jones men. But the less question seems now to become the greater. Gen. Sibley attending our meetings, would suppose that the country's whole life depends on whether Mr. J. or Mr. B. shall go to congress.

This is a fault, for one may say with security that both are patriotic gentlemen. Mr. B. has one great advantage. He understands, by means of experience, what Washington is. He has learned it and will not have to begin at the bottom —as Mr. Jones will—to work up to the top. It takes a man a couple of years—that is, if he be not a knave —to manage the "ropes" in that headquarters of adventurers from all sections of the country, and, probably, the rest of the civilized world.

This, however, is getting away from the Broad street meeting. Dr. Gaines presided at it. Everfy person loves him. The chief speaker of the occasion was Hon. Peter Hamilton. In a manly strain or thought, he gave incontestable reasons why Tilden should be voted for. He committed a grave fault: in not declaring that the salvation of these disunited United States depends on the election of Mr. Jones. Our information is derived from a report in the Register.

After this, Colonel Langdon took the matter in hand; and he scared his hearers almost into spasms by drawing a terrible picture of—what do you suppose? Why, the election of Tarnen, and by this destroying the Democratic majority within the United States House of Representatives!

This is so foolish that every one must believe that it is beneath any kind of stump oratory. But the Register the other day gave him the cleve and neither of them believed a solitary word of it. Here is an extract of his speech taken from the report:

Mr. Bromberg was not the choice of the Jackson Convention. The thirty-two ascertained this and straightway withdrew and returned to Mobile to secure by the irregular, informal and undemocratic method of a mass meeting, what they failed to accomplish in a legitimate convention of the district, to-wit: the nomination of their caudidate for Congress.

The thirty-two never thought or talked of Mr. Bromberg as their nominee by that convention. This editor was there, and not one of the 32 was in any way committed to Mr. Bromberg. His name was rarely spoken of by them. They withdrew because what they assumed to be their rights were treated with some degree of contempt; and in resenting this they found Mr. Bromberg was the best instrument for their purpose; and so they nominated him here in Mobile; and they will have no reason to regret it after the expiration of next week—for we shall have a first-rate Congressman and also a first-rate Tilden man.

The grodomontade of Col. Langdon would be ridiculous, it it did not do, what it was calculated to do: that is excite prejudices which can have no effect, except among the most ignorant of his hearers.

Col. L's democracy, of which party he seems to have assumed the guardianship, is like the toga virilis of the ancient Roman youth. It hangs on him ungracefully. He has not worn it long enough to be entirely easy in it.

It is recorded by Cicero that when two soothsayers met in a street of Rome, they laughed at each other—each, we suppose, in "his sleeve." When a Turner man meets a Jones man, both laugh, but neither betrays it to the public. There was only one conspicuous soothsayer at the Broad street meeting. We mean a professional "soothsayer," which, in Rome was a technical name for a person who got his living by deceiving the people. There were a hundred soothsayers in the Broad street crowd, who laughed. The one was not enough for the hundred, but they laughed, and that is a sign of good humor. No one was hurt, except the professional soothsayer. The others laughed because they thought it was funny, and, it was, if one may accept the Register's report of the meeting as sooth.

Col. Langdon put this "gammon" on his auditors. They took it in a kindly mood, as they would take the antics of a clown within a circus ring.

A small quantity of fun won't hurt, that is if every man keep his temper and endeavor to find diversion wherever it presents itself.

We have no intention of affronting Col. Langdon, but every Bromberg man, who is as good a Democrat as he, must be chagrined by his speech and feel a strong disposition to resent it at the polls. That is the only proper way of resenting an insult of the kind—for Mr. Bromberg is the representative of his supporters, and any abuse that may be given to him falls on the shoulders of those who stand for him.

This kind of intemperate and false speech can only annoy. It is not likely to make the speaker or Mr. Jones many votes within the county of Mobile. The reporter of the Register, however, may have misrepresented it. That Col. L. should hold him responsible for.

BARBECUE AT BEAVER MEADOW—We learn from a gentleman who was present that the Tilden and Hendricks Club of Beaver Meadow gave a grand Democratic barbecue at that place on Saturday, the 28th inst. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present—the largest meeting at Beaver Meadow for many years back. Elegant and able speeches were made by Messrs. W. J. Ledyard, E. M. Hudson, H. H. Hunt and W. G. Clarke. Many able arguments were advanced in favor of the election of Tilden and Hendricks, but our Congressional question was ignored altogether. Their came of an understanding previously entered into by the members of the Club, who stand pretty equally divided with reference to Congressman.

The dinner that followed the speaking is said to have been the best barbecue dinner of the season: greatly abundant, well prepared, well-arrayed and well managed in every particular.

They of the interior have had wholesome rains. In Clarke county (Miss.) they put out some threatening fires in the forest. There have also been welcome rains in Alabama. Here in Mobile we and the wells and cisterns are fast getting to the bottom of their capacity.

The corner stone of a homeopathic hospital was laid in N. Y. city last week. Among the speakers of the occasion was Wm. Cullen Bryant.

The total amount of money paid out in government pensions during the last fiscal year was $28,351,500.

The Supreme Court of Kentucky has returned an opinion that the State Lottery is a legal institution.

Gillett's Cream Dry Hop Yeast
Prevents and cures dyspepsia, and thousands are made happy by its use. Try it and you will use it.

A Mobile built milk wagon, one of the prettiest out, from the establishment of H. Schumacher & Co., of Dauphin street, was on the streets yesterday.

By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad 25 half barrels and 100 quarter barrels of beer were received by the Mobile Ice Company, and 105 barrels potatoes.

Messrs. Brisk & Jacobson are daily receiving additions to their stock of goats clothing and furnishing goods, which they offer at low prices. Give them a call.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, jr.

Among the buildings that have been recently erected in Mobile are three cosy little cottages on Charleston street, between Dearborn and Warren, owned by Owen Farley.

The estate on Government street, embracing a residence and twenty acres of land under cultivation, may be leased on application to John Kern, No. 27 Government street.

We learn, from a private source that a little boy was badly bitten by a dog at the corner of Franklin and Charleston streets Monday evening.

Now, at the good time for a make arrangements at the Battle House. excellent.

Lawyers are [illegible] ishing the walls of the Hitchcock proof that covers the square bounded by Royal, Palmetto, Water and Charleston streets, and teams are carrying away the bricks, slate, lumber and debris.

In Justice Roulston's court, there was a triangular case of assault and battery in which a fireman, a shoe maker, a father and adaughter were mainly mixed. A fine, peace bonds and an appeal was the final result.

The young men whose visits were not acceptable the other night, got indignant and to relieve their pent-up anger invested a few dimes in tickets of the Mobile Charitable Association and drew a prize. They are now going west.

The Mobile Varieties is conducted this season with more than the usual decorum. The new stars that glitter there are Clara May and Minnie Clifton. The troupe enhances comic songs, ballads, character sketches, clog and jig dances.

The tallest married pair in the United States, Col. Bud Bates, of Kentucky, and his wife, have just started on a tour through the South, for the purpose of exhibiting themselves. The Colonel is seven feet eleven inches high and weighs about five hundred pounds, and Mrs. Bates is eight feet and half an inch high and weighs four hundred pounds.

The Wheelerville Vendetta.

Thomas Fincher and Wm. Thompson, for assault with intent to kill Simon Wheeler, were arrested and brought before Justice McCormick yesterday morning. They gave bonds, each in the sum of $150, to appear for examination next Friday. The assault occurred on Spring Hill Avenue, near Wheelerville the day after Fincher had left Wheeler and others brought before United States Commissioner Osborne under the civil rights law. The alleged assailants of Wheeler were Thomas Fincher, Wm. Thompson and Stephen Thomas, and warrants were issued several days ago for the arrest of the three.

Stephen Thomas, the third of the party, was shot yesterday morning about daylight at Wheelerville, and dangerously wounded. The contents of a shot gun were lodged in his back. Tom Fincher was shot at about the same time with a double-barrel shot gun but escaped with only a slight graze of the shoulder.

William Allen and Alf Broadus were arrested yesterday morning and brought before Justice McCormick charged with the shooting of Thomas Fincher, and sent to jail without bail, to await the result of the injuries of Thomas.

TILDEN'S ELECTION CERTAIN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The advices from all quarters continue to be of the most encouraging character.

The Democrats are buoyant and exultant, regarding Tilden's election as virtually assured.

The department clerks are in a state of consternation and despair.

The impression is general among the officials that the Republicans will be defeated.

The use of the army in South Carolina, and the protest coming up against the thieves from prominent citizens and officials, is having a strong effect upon Northern opinion, especially with business men.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, Sr. JOHN & CO., Star and Garland Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the results of my analysis, I can truthfully state that it is free from foreign matter; that in it the constituents necessary to constitute the Soap compounce most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soad made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 78, minimum 54, a range of 26 degrees.

There were 116 deaths in New Orleans last week, not including 14 that were stillborn.

City Court.

In this court, yesterday, Judge Semmes on the bench, prisoners indicted for criminal offences were arraigned, and then the court adjourned for the criminal term. The next term of the civil branch of this court will meet a week from next Monday.

Board of Aldermen.

At the meeting of the board of aldermen last evening, President Muldon in the chair, sixteen other members were present, and a quorum.

Report of city assessor, collection of $1b5 25 since last report. Referred to ways and means.

Papers from the common council were acted on in concurrence.

Alderman Hanna's resolution authorising the ways and means committee to negotiate for legal courrency to pay city employes, amended by the common council to provide for the burning of city scrip in the treasury on the first of January, and between the 15th and 20th of each month afterwards, came up.

Alderman Atkinson moved to non-concur in the amendment.

Alderman Muldon offered an amendment providing that the city scrip (instead of being burned) should be turned over to the funding commissioners in exchange for bonds of the city, and be by them destroyed.

Alderman Cahill moved to amend the amendment by adhering to the former action of the board adopting Alderman Hanna's resolution.

This amendment was adopted yeas 11, nays 6.

Members voting yea were: Andrews, Atkinson, Chamberlain, Cahill, Gates, Muldon, O'Connell, Smith A. H., Smith D. E., Voss, Walsh.

Voting nay: President Muldoo, Bligh, Bruce, Crait, Highell, Turner.

In unfinished business, the majority report of the street committee recommending the planking of streets leading to the cotton presses and depots in the north part of the city at an expense of $2500 came up.

Alderman O'Connell moved that the minority report be substituted. On this motion the yeas and nays were demanded. Result—yeas 14, nays 3, and so the minority report was adopted.

The yeas were: President Muldon, Atkinson, Andrews, Bligh, Bruce, Cahill, Chamberlain, Craft, Muldon, Highell, O'Connell Smith D. E., Voss, Walsh.

Nays: Gates, Smith A. H., Turner.

The board at nine o'clock adjourned.

Mr Bromberg—Democratic Endorsement.

The Selma Argus of March 12, 1875, had a highly complimentary notice of the gentlemen whom it said unpleasant things about more recently. According to this authority, Mr. Bromberg was in 1875 fairly entitled to the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant." The article referred to follows:

Mr. Bromberg, representative from the first district in the forty-third congress distinguished himself by vigilance, attention to his duties, fidelity to his constituents, and unrelenting opposition to plunder schemes and partisan legislation. His constituents, many of whom, on account of his political antecedents, supported him reluctantly, are pleased with his work and proud of his record. He is fairly entitled to the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

It is submitted that what the Argus said then cannot be controverted by a recent article abusing Mr. Bromberg spied into the Cycle of last Sunday, with out the grossest and most inexcusable inconsistency.

In 1875, the Argus declared that Mr. Bromberg "distinguished himself by his vigilance, attention to his duties, fidelity to his constituents, and unrelenting opposition to plunder schemes and partisan legislation."

Female Minstrels.

Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels will give two performances in Mobile, on the evening of the 6th and 7th November, at Odd Fellows Hall. The Washington Chronicle, mentioning their performances at Ford's Opera House, says: "It was spirited and amusing. A great variety of talent was displayed, commencing with the wonderful feats of the daring Zazetta. Miss Kate Allyne's songs are of a very popular character, and Kitty and Ella, in their musical performance, are quite attractive. "The Coming Man" is a laughable piece of Ethiopian humor, and the Mabretta is extremely clever in her living pictures.

"Ixion," a play that has been successfully performed in all the large cities in the Union, was produced last night, Miss Jessie Schrader assuming the role of the Thessalian price. Miss Mabel Santley made a capital Mercury, and one could almost believe that the winged god stood before him in person when he gazed at her. Emily Vaughan as Jupiter, Miss Blanche Sefton as Venus, Kittie Allyne as a dear little Cupid, Juliette Nault as the private secretary of Jupiter, and Hattie Forrest as Juno, the queen of the gods, could not be surpassed.

The scenery was splendid, and the general effect grand. Indeed one almost is led to believe he has got among the denizens of another world when looking at the performance.

The troupe of Parisian dancers introduced by Mlle Delacour are what their name implies, sensational dancers. Altogether the whole performance is one of the most varied and attractive ever put on the boards in this city."

Important Opinions.

The following important opinions on several large insurance cases were delivered by the Supreme Court last week:

New York Life Insurance Company vs. Wm. C. Statham and Par melia, et al., formerly Statham; appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States, for the southern district of Mississippi.

The New York Life Insurance Company, plaintiff in error, vs. Charlotte Semms, in error to Circuit Court of the United States for the southern district of Mississippi.

The Manhattan Life Insurance Company, plaintiff in error, vs. R. S. Buck, executor of Charles L. Buck, deceased, in error to the Circuit Court of the United States, for the southern district of Mississippi.

The points decided are as follows:

A policy of life insurance stipulating for the payment of an annual premium by the assured, with a condition to be void nonpayment, is not an insurance from year to year, like a common fire policy, but the premiums constitute an annuity, the whole of which is the consideration for the entire assurance for life, and the consideration is a condition subsequent, making voidon the policy by its non-performance; but the time of payment in such policies material and of the essence of the contract, and the failue to pay involves an absolute forfeiture, which can not be relieved against in equity. If the failure to pay the annual premium be caused by the intervention of war between the territories in which the insurance company and the assured reside, which makes it unlawful for them to hold insurance, the policy is nevertheless forfeited, if the company insists on the condition; but in such case the assured is entitled to the equitable value of the policy arising from premium actually paid. This equitable value is the difference between the cost of a new policy and the present value of the premium yet to paid on the forfeited policy when the forfeiture occurred.

The doctrine of the revival of contract, suspended during the war is one based on considerations of equity and justice, and cannot be invoked to revive a contract which it would be unjust or inequitable to revive, as where time is of the essence of the contract or the parties can not be made equity. The average rate of mortality is the fundamental oasis of assurance, and this is subverted by giving to the assured the option to revive their policies or not, after they have been suspended by a war. Since none but the sick and dying would apply, it would be unjust to compel a revival against the company.

Mr. Justice Bradley delivered the opinion of the court.

The insured parties lived in Mississippi, and were prevented from paying their premiums in consequence of the war.

DISSENTING OPINIONS.

The above opinion was concurred in by Justices Swayne, Miller, Davis, Field and Bradley. The other four members of the Court dissented.

Mr. Chief Justice Waite, dissenting said:

"I agree with the majority of the court in the opinion that the decree and judgment in these cases should be reversed beand that the failure to pay the annual premiums at they matured, put an end to the policies, notwithstanding the default, was occasioned by the war, but I do not think that a default, even under such circumstances, raises an implied promise by the company to pay the assured what his policy was equitably worth at the time. I therefore dissent from that part of the judgment just announced which remands the cause for trial upon such promise."

The Birds and Light-Houses.

Jacksonville (Fla.) Union: The brightness of the lamps in the light-houses of our coasts frequently produces great destruction among the birds. As they fly along the beach in the gloom of evening, or seek the shelter of the land when the ocean breeze blows too strong for their comfort or pleasure, they are dazzled by the brilliancy of the lights in the towers, and frequently fly blindly against the glass of the building, crushing and breaking their bones, and often killing them instantly. On Wednesday evening vast numbers flew against the tower at Maryport and were killed, or so badly bruised that they crawled away to die. It is said one of the light-house keepers swept off in the morning six hundred dead birds from the top of the towers and that many others were scattered on the ground at its foot.

A New England paper says:

Ducks are the most notable victims. These heavy birds are noted for the velocity of their flight. The keeper found it impossible to protect the lantern from the shattering shock of their onset, and had to appeal to the Government Lighthouse Board to erect an iron network around the light. Even this fails to prevent mischief, for the ducks strike the iron netting with such force as to break through it and break the heavy outer plate-glass of the lantern. It is not improbable that the destruction of birds by this cause is tenfold greater than any one who has not made the subject an especial study has ever suspected. At each one of the forty or fifty more prominent lights along the Atlantic coast of the United States the number of birds thus slaughtered must amount to nearly 2,000 annually—or say 100,000 a year. It all shows at least (what was already understood by those who have giving attention to the subject) that the flight of our migratiug birds is accom plished in the night.

Judge and jury have been worrying over a dog case in Memphis, Tenn., Nothing could have been simpler than the issue of fact. A negro stole a Newfoundland dog; but the law in regard to property in dogs always has been peat finding out. The prisoner's counsel argued, that under the common law, dog-stealing was not a crime or an indictable offence, and that no statute exists in Tennessee making dog-stealing a punishable offence, such as larceny. Judge Adams held that the stealing of a dog was not a larceny or indictable offence, and that tie demurrer of the defendant to the indictment on this ground was good. The attorney general then raised the point that the collar on the dog was personal property, and that the defendant could be held to answer for theft, but the adroit attorney on the other side retorted that the negro took the dog, and that it was the dog, and not the negro, that was responsible for the collar. The prisoner was finally discharged. Now, the old question come up, if a dog is not property, is the dog tax constitutional —New York Tribune.

The "glorious uncertainty of the law" is strikingly illustrated in the judgments entered by the Supreme Court of Pittsburg, one day lately. Opinions on twenty-three cases were deli vered by the court, and judgment of the court below was reversed in nineteen cases out of the twenty-three.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

Hon. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, exhibiting from that Convention the whole Mob le d legation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because is is only in this way that jussice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to submit the nominee of th Jackson Convention to the election, and we there Democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligation of party loyalty to give him our support at the pole in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this disstrict for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if Jackson Convention is withdrawn or conceded, our demand for another convention to be called, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

The following important opinions on several large insurance cases were delivered by the Supreme Court last week:

New York Life Insurance Company vs. Wm. C. Statham and Parmelia, et al., formerly Statham; appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States, for the southern district of Mississippi.

The prisoner's counsel argued, that under the common law, dog-stealing was not a crime or an indictable offence, and that no statute exists in Tennessee making dog-stealing a punishable offence, such as larceny. Judge Adams held that the stealing of a dog was not a larceny or indictable offence, and that the demurrer of the defendant to the indictment on this ground was good. The attorney general then raised the point that the collar on the dog was personal property, and that the defendant could be held to answer for theft, but the adroit attorney on the other side retorted that the negro took the dog, and that it was the dog, and not the negro, that was responsible for the collar. The prisoner was finally discharged. Now, the old question come up, if a dog is not property, is the dog tax constitutional—New York Tribune.

The "glorious uncertainty of the law" is strikingly illustrated in the judgments entered by the Supreme Court of Pittsburg, one day lately. Opinions on twenty-three cases were delivered by the court, and judgment of the court below was reversed in nineteen cases out of the twenty-three.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of this District, and that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nominations made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that Justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention to be the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we therefore feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if Jackson Convention is superseded, or our demand for another convention be granted, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result sat7 tf

The Daily Tribune.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1

Denounced From The Pulpit.

A national church occurred in Rev. Stephen Church's A. M. Haven, Conn., last Saturday, which is attended by the members of the Winchester family, whose large works for the manufacture of arms are located in that city. The company has an extensive contract for supplying the Turkish army with repeating rifles, which are now rapidly manufactured at Winchester's establishment. Church, several members of the family being in attendance at the services, the officiating minister took for his subject the war [illegible] in the East. Reciting the stories touching the barbarous treatment of the Bulgarian Christians by the Turks, the preacher denounced the Turkish people, and gave [illegible] opinion that all Christians should unite in behalf of their persecuted brethren in their struggle for religious and political liberty. Then he referred to the fact of the Turkish contract with the Winchester Manufactory, and said that "keeping a house prostitution was a respectable occupation compared to furnishing arms which would be used for the massacre of Christians."

Those of the Winchester family who were present were, naturally, greatly outraged by this direct attack [illegible] from the pulpit, and [illegible] much feeling in New Haven on the subject.—N. Y. World.

FOR PRESIDENT,
SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA

FOR CONGRESS,
(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)
FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,
OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET:

ELECT-AT LARGE:
JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:
1. SYDNEY T. HEFLIN, of Choctaw.
2. JAMES T. HOLTZCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WAGDELL, of Russell.
4. JOHN Y. KILPATRICK, of Wilcox.
5. W. M. BOTHERSHOUSE, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL R. McCADDLES, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Four Catholic priests have died of yellow fever in Savannah.

The communication of "Spectator," criticising an article in yesterday's Register came too late for publication this morning. It will not spoil by a day's delay.

The Demopolis correspondence between Mr. Bromberg and Mr. Jones is interesting, and if we had the space would take pleasure in printing it. It amounts to nothing more than that a few notes passed between two much-talked of gentlemen. It is likely that the former thought that his foes were trying to lead him into a snare, and, like a sensible person, he refused to be led into it.

But the excuse of illness given by Mr. B., as advised by his physician, is sufficient. No gentleman will presume to go behind that. At best, however, the thing has no value. It is a "tempest in a teapot"—a ridiculus mus.

HOW THEY DO IT.

Every one is now confident of the election of the persons whom he supports.

It is always so on the eve of great elections. One of our papers says it is informed that Mr. Turner is offering to bet that he will get more votes than Mr. Bromberg. By this method the contest will lie between Jones and Turner—and Turner is, therefore, the coming man—for if he beat Bromberg, he will be sure to beat Jones.

These assertions are so ridiculous that they defeat the end for which they are devised. They proceed on the assumption that a majority of the voters are fools. Perhaps that is not a wrong conclusion.

We have some knowledge of this matter, and believe that Turner is put into the business to elect Jones. He has not the shadow of a hope of election. He may, however, find it to be to his pecuniary interest to try to defeat Mr. Bromberg.

This kind of gambling is now common among the honest men who think it proper go out and buy up votes.

This nefarious game will not win, as far as this county is concerned; no matter how the citizens of the interior counties may cast their votes. The true men—who expect no office—intend to clean out our Augean stable. If they fail to attempt to accomplish that, they had better go out and black their faces. They have the power by their votes to do it.

HOW IT IS HERE.

The whole question of politics within this district lies between Mr. Jones and Mr. Bromberg—although Mr. Turner may be introduced as a small factor. We mean by this that it is useless to make speeches or write arguments in behalf of Mr. Tilden. All the white people, and some of the colored people, made up their minds long ago on the subject. The white men and also the colored men who intend to vote for Hayes are not to be converted by any arguments. They also made up their minds long ago.

Every sensible man knows this; and thus it is plain that all the meetings held here are intended for the support of Mr. Jones or Mr. Bromberg.

There may come in another factor; i. e. money. It is not necessary to inform our readers that this has some potency in legitimate or illegitimate commerce; or in the buying and selling of votes, or for any other purpose.

There are few, if any, politicians "Independents," or indifferent persons within the state. This is an element that is not worth considering.

So, really, there is no material to be worked up by speeches or elaborately written Tilden arguments. The whole contest here is between Jones and Bromberg—Turner a side issue. The declaration that the running of Bromberg will injure Tilden is not warranted by any facts. Indeed, as we have repeatedly said, we have no doubt that it will strengthen him, not only in the election, but subsequently in the House of Representatives.

About this time, as the cheap almanacs say, look out for frauds in bogus tickets, and otherwise. The men who make them are entirely unscrupulous—no matter what side they are on: and it the responsibility of devising these nefarious schemes could be traced to individuals, we should declare that they are not worthy of trust anywhere—whether in mercantile, legal or mechanical business. Let us have an honest polling—put every proper vote in and rigorously keep all the fraudulent ones out of the polls.

It is reported that the plague has shown itself in Europe. It is said to have been first observed among the Turkish troops in Servia.

The death of George Lawrence is announced. It occurred at Edinburg. He was the author of several works of fiction—the cleverest of them being "Guy Livingstone"—one that will please all persons of taste and judgment.

The men who make what, in printing parlance, are called "outs," are doing a large business. They have exhausted the market for the pictures of the opposing general candidates, and are now flooding the country with roosters. Half of them will not be used. Which side they will crow on will be known in a week or two.

Yesterday was like a May day. The little birds have been deceived by the late mildness—"etherial mildness," as Thomson says—and they were pluming their wings and fitting about, as though they thought that winter is over. Out our way at the west it was a delight to watch them—charming little creatures that never think of the past, or anticipate what is in the future. The present is all to them. In that they have much advantage over us humans, who think of the past, are apprehensive of the future, and do not enjoy the present.

PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURATION.

The fourth of March, 1877, (says the Montgomery Advertiser) comes on Sunday, and the President-elect, whether it be Gov. Tilden or Gov. Hayes, will not be inaugurated until the following day, and for the twenty-four hours between the expiration of President Grant's term and the inauguration of the President-elect the acting Vice President, Senator T. W. Ferry, of Michigan, will be the President of the United States. There have been three occurrences of the fourth of March in Presidential inauguration year falling on Sunday—1793, 1821 and 1849. Every seventh Presidential term the fourth of March, on which the term should commence, falls upon Sunday. Unless there should be a change in the duration of the term, the coincidence will not again occur until the year 1905.

Here are men running about the streets as it mad, and telling us, or intimating to us, that the world will come to an end if Mr. Bromberg should, next week, be elected to congress! This is what, in effect, they are doing: and some persons of better judgment are deceived by it.

As we said some time ago, notwithstanding the predictions and protections of the unwise, the country "still lives," and no men at the head of it can destroy it. They may distress and make our people unhappy, but they cannot destroy the substantial elements of the fundamental basis of the constitution. If they could do this, why "chaos would come again."

The country, beyond all doubt, has been badly governed. It has been as if the people had accepted journeymen statesmen, who had not learned their trade, and whose whole business was to cheat their employers.

We can get rid of this by the election of Tilden. That, we think, is passing beyond the region of doubt; and then for us of this District and of Mobile, what would complete the victory so much as the election of Mr. Bromberg? We should be sure of two honest and wise men, and if all the other congressional districts of all the states were to do likewise, why then would come in a millenium with few rogues in office.

Recently some of the people of Ireland had an address prepared for presentation to the President. He refused to receive it, except through the hands of the British Minister. Perhaps this was right, in national comity. But it turns out that the address was put away in one of the rooms of the White House, and that it has mysteriously disappeared. No one can find it.

A good many state craft Gordian knots have been cut by a similar process.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The clergy of Charleston—including those of all denominations—and a number of the most influential merchants and others, have published an address to the "People of the United States," in which all the slanders that so common against the state are succinctly and very positively denied. Here is the concluding part of it:

We may also affirm some things which are true.

It is true that there is in the State a most active, earnest and excited canvass to overthrow corrupt rule and re-establish honest State Government. This is a legitimate and lawful object, which should command the sympathy and support of every lover of his country. It is not treason to defeat Chamberlain, nor is it insurrection to elect Hampton. It is true that while the white rifle clubs are ordered by the Governor and the President to disband and disperse, the colored militia of the State are allowed to remain in organization and in possession of their arms, and to attend political meetings in military order with rifles and other arms. The object of this discrimination is as obvious as is the comparatively defenseless condition in which it places the white population. We simply ask what would the people of New York or Massachusetts think or do upon a like application of the bayonet policy to them under such circumstances?

Fellow countrymen; We have sought to place before you briefly and in true colors the condition of South Carolina, the wrongs of her people, their patient forbearance and their new-born hopes. Not long ago Governor Chamberlain, in a transport of trustful and genuine enthusiams, proclaimed to the people of the country the startling fact that the civilization of the puritan and the cavalier, of the roundhead and hugenot is in peril in South Carolina. He spoke these words under the influence of his better angel, for truer words he never spoke, and they are as true now as then. The peril is greater now than then, for when the worst and most degraded elements of society enter into or control a government, is there not much reason to apprehend some catastrophe which we hardly dare to contemplate?"

The Wheelerville Vendetta.

Moses Brookins and ——Maples, knowing that there was a warrant out for their arrest for complicity in the shooting of Thomas and Pincher, surrendered themselves yesterday morning to the sheriff and by that officer they were turned over to Justice McCormick, who committed them to jail without bail, to answer the result of Thomas' wounds.

All Saints' Day.

Yesterday our Catholic churches were attended by large numbers to do homage to the day which is observed like Sunday and services were held in the morning and evening. Today the Catholic church commemorates the souls of the departed, or "All Souls' Day." This is a beautiful custom. It is good to believe that we are still in communion with the souls of those of our friends who have departed'. At Father Insand's at the early service large numbers were congregated within the walls of St. Joseph's church. Father Insand has been unwell for some time. From his appearance yesterday morning it may be judged that he has a new lease of life. There was a happy smile on the faces of his congregation at seeing their beloved pastor in so much better health.

Writing of Father Insand, the rattle of the gold watch for his church and school will be place tomorrow evening at seven o'clock. He begs all holders of tickets to be present at the hall over his school house on that evening. There are no more tickets left; and with him we only wish that each ticket might get the watch, as they will not. Our readers can rest satisfied they will at least have his earnest wishes for their success in this life and happiness in the next.

City Scrip Again.

The amendment proposed by Alderman Moldon in the lower board of the city council on last Tuesday evening, to the resolution of Alderman Hanna as amended in the common council provided for turning over to the city fun ling commissioners all the city scrip in the city treasury on the first day of January next to be by these commissioners destroyed, the same thing to be done between the 15th and 20th of each month. The amendment was adopted, and the resolution, thus divested of amendments, goes back again to the common council.

MAY effort will be made, as a future meeting the board of aldermen, to procure the issue of sage of the method of burning the city paper contemplated by Alderman Muldon's amendment.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad 107 bales hay and 219 sacks corn were brought in.

Ten hall barrels and 180 quarter barrels of beer were received yesterday by Morris and Montgomery Railroad for Martin Horst, and 1 car coal and 30 barrels apples.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

MINCE MEAT, MINCE MEAT.—Just received and for sale low, mince meat in barrels, buckets and 5 pound tin cans, by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

Coroner Harwell was called yesterday to hold an inquest as to the cause of the death of a white man found on the railroad track at or near Mauvilla with his head crushed in.

By the Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 30 barrels apples, 15 barrels onions, 3 cars corn, 1 car bran, 204 sacks corns, 8 crates cabbages and 80 barrels potatoes were received.

The Mobile Soiree Club will give their first practice at Turner Hall next Tuesday evening. With a little more proficiency they will rank among the first dancing clubs of the city.

A pedler's wagon was found early yesterday morning between Payne's road and William's turpentine distillery, with its contents scattered and a dead horse that had evidently been shot, near it.

River News.

The Sam J. Tilden, Captain Jordan as master and Mr. De Bruhl as clerk will back out this evening at five o'clock for Demopolis. All freight must be on board.

The Tilden arrived yesterday with 104 bales of cotton.

And Now Comes Gillet.

Justice Loomis.

George Johnson had Henry King, Gus Glarner and Jno. Thomas arrested for assault and battery. The accused were discharged for insufficiency of evidence. The same party had Henry Pinkard arrested for assault with a knife. Bond for appearance in city court, $100.

The reputation of the Battle House, under its new management, for superiority of accommodations and excellence of the table, together with the fact, which is universally known, that Mobile is the most pleasant city in the south, already attracts winter visitors from the west.

Cotton Exchange Officers.

At the annual election for officers of the Mobile Cotton Exchange, held in the rooms of the Exchange yesterday from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., the following officers were elected to serve the ensuing year: Colonel A. S. Gillespie, president; Colonel A. J. Ingersoll, vice president; Mr. L. C. Dorgan, treasurer; Messrs. J. P. Billups, Adolph Proskauer, Julius Weber and F. E. Stollenwerck, directors.

Planters' Exchange.

This now candidate for popular favor, under the management of an old favorite in Mobile, Mr. Mike Jordan, will open today at eleven o'clock with a grand free lunch, to which Bromberg and Jones democrats and the white republicans who support Turner are all invited. The bar is stocked with first class wines and liquors and the freshest and best cigars. Southeast corner of Water and St. Louis streets, where Mr. Jordan will welcome his friends, and where also Frank McNellis will extend the right hand of fellowship to his special friends and the public generally.

That amiable gentleman, known by his fellow members of the Alabama State Artillery as Corporal Isaac R. Young, and known to business men here as one of the firm of Young Brothers, gas fitters, returned last week from a sensational trip to the Centennial Exposition and other points. He looks the picture of a healthy and happy man, as he was well received at the north, notwithstanding he traveled with a section of artillery wherever he went, that waarship or entertainment displayed. The young man, during his absence acquired useful knowledge of what is necessary in his business, and purchased all the improvements in the line of goods used by his firm.

TELEGRAPH

JEWELRY ROBBERY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The following is a partial list of the jewelry stolen from the establishment of Stein Bros: 156 gold and silver watches; 80 sets of diamond ear-rings; one diamond set, consisting of necklace, ear-rings, brooch, bracelets and finger rings, five solitaire diamond studs, 3 diamond collar buttons, and about 100 gold ard diamond rings, the whole amounting to over $25,000. There is no clue to the thieves, but it is suspected that the burglary was committed by the same gang who, four weeks ago, robbed the jewelry store of Horton, on Fulton street.

ST. KES.

Edward S Stokes, who was released from State prison on Saturday, says that he intends to proceed to work at once in the business of laying asphalt pavements. He will also work earnestly to break up the system in Auburn prison which, he says, those in control make a point of in treating prisoners who refuse to come down with the sugar.

LIGHTNING IN INDIANA

GREENCASTLE, Nov. 1.—Lightning struck the Episcopal Church Sunday morning at daylight. The fluid followed the telegraph wire into the University building, melting and disabling the instruments, and followed the private wire into the residence of Mrs. Rachel Durham east of the town, setting fire to it. The flames were extinguished without damage.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The Printer's Union have reduced rates one dollar per week on all work.

TRIAL OF PRIZE FIGHTERS.

SALEM, N. J., Nov. 1.—The trial of James Weeden, Sam. Collyer, Johnny Clarke, Spring Dick and Fiddler Neary for the murder of Phillip Kister commenced here yesterday. The court-house was densely packed with persons anxious to hear the evidence. The first witness was Dr. A. L. Walford, assistant coroner at Philadelphia, who had held the post mortem examination of the body of the dead prizefighter. Dr. Walford described the nature of the wounds on the deceased, and gave his opinion that death was caused by external violence. The only other witness examined then was the father of Kister, who testified to the fact of his son having left his house on the morning of the fight, and being brought back dead the next night.

The prisoners are all being tried together on an indictment for murder.

HEAVY ROBBERY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Two, fancy store of Abraham Beathoff, on Broadway, was robbed Sunday night of $3000 worth of goods.

SIOUX INDIANS BREAKING.

A Fort Laramie dispatch says: Over 100 Sioux Indians have enlisted under Gen. Crook, and will go with his expedition. Capt. Eagan has returned from his scout; he found a trail, but no Indians.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

United States District-Attorney Bliss called upon Mr. Jarvis, clerk of Common Pleas yesterday, saying he had undoubted proof of numerous frauds in taking out naturalization papers, and asked permission to have the records for the whole year examined. This was refused, but the clerk offered to give every facility for examining into any particular case where fraud was suspected and C. J. Bliss was told his proper course, if he needed all the records, would be to apply for a mandamus.

SALE OF THE CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The Exhibition buildings belonging to the Board of Finance are to be sold Tuesday, Nov. 30, at 11 o'clock a. m. The list comprises the Main building and Carriage annex; Agricultural Hall, with Wigon and Pomological annexes; Art annex; Photographers Exhibition building, Shoe and Leather building, guard and station houses, and various other small buildings.

The poultry Exhibition was to-day placed in perfect order, all the entries having been received. Every coop care fully labelled and a full catalogue of the exhibits ready for distribution. Fully 5000 birds are now on exhibition, besides over 1500 pigeons of various breeds. The display includes every known breed, from the most diminutive bantam of only 14 ounces, to the largest Brahma, of 14 pounds.

NO RECEPTION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The President has di-continued the reception of Centennial pilgrims.

A FIGHT WITH SITTING BULL.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 1.—The Pioneer Press has a special from Bismarck which says: General Miles had a successful, but fight after an unsuccessful council with Sitting Bull on the 21st and 22d, on Cedar Creek, killing a number of Indians and wounding many; his own loss being two wounded. He chased the Indians about 60 miles, when they divided, one portion going toward the agency, and Sitting Bull toward Fort Peck, Gen. Miles following. Gen. Hazen has gone to Fort Peck, with four companies of infantry and rations for Gen. Miles' command.

SUBSIDENCE.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 1.—During the yellow fever epidemic in 1873, Geo. Lambeth, a messenger of the Southern Express Company, on the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad, stole a package containing some few thousand dollars and fled. The greater portion was in drafts and only secured about five hundred dollars in money. Since then detectives have been hunting him down, and to day he walked into the express office here, surrendered himself, and was committed for trial. He had been hiding in Virginia and Colorado, but detectives gave him no rest and he returned to stand his trial.

A PANIC OF THE CHINE S,

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—A false alarm of fire created a panic in the Chinese Theatre on Jackson street last night. The building was crowded. In the rush to escape by the audience to escape by the single means of exit, a number of persons were thrown down and trampled upon. The police dragged out the bodies of twenty dead persons and about twenty wounded. Chinese refused to render any assistance, and the actors continued the performance until they were stopped by the police.

SAVANNAH INTERMENTS.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 31.—Total number of interments to-day, three—all from yellow fever. Weather very warm.

SUICIDE.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 1.—John A. Lee, a native of Indianapolis, but for many years a resident of Augusta, committed suicide at the Central hotel yesterday morning, by shooting himself in the head. Mental depression was the cause.

WINTER TRAVEL FOR FLORIDA.

Winter travel has set in for Florida. Passengers by Augusta and Tennessee are not quarantined on arrival in Florida.

STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The New York Republican Convention have nominated a straight Republican ticket, with John A Dix, for Mayor. (Gen Dix has accepted the nomination.

EXTRAORDINARY RISE.

The town of Orleans, Orange county, Indiana, is flooded by an extraordinary rain. The water rose as high as the window tops. The damage is probably $100,000.

TURKEY.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Post says it has reason to be love that yesterday, Prince Gortschakoff, in consequence of new Russian instruction, important peaceful telegrams were received from the principals concerned in the negotiations. It hopes, notwithstanding appearances, that General Ignatieff has not reverted to the original for a bare six weeks' armistice, which would only snatch the fruits of victory from Turkey and enable the Russians and Servians to enter upon a winter campaign. If conditions possible of acceptance are offered, we may feel certain the Porte will accept them. A few hours will now suffice to decide means The above is prominently printed in the Post.

A B-rlin despatch to the same paper says: "A gloomy feeling prevails here, a thought yet is asserted in diplomatic circles that the Porte has already submitted unconditionally to Ignatieff's demands."

The Times has the following despatch dated Paris, October 31st, midnight; "It is announced this evening that, before the expiration of forty-eight hours, the conclusion of armistice will be officially notified.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Lucknow Board of Trade manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the results of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in the manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, and I deem Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, consisting from that Convention in whose Mobile of Deputies of thirty-two voters, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate entirely the nomination made by it.

3. That we denounce the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention in not seating that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention as the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we there from feel under no obligations of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result.

Some newspaper critics are objecting to the shortness of Mr. Tupper's legs. He begs to assure them, in all seriousness, that he doesn't write poetry with his legs.—Brooklyn Argus.

We are on the eve of a great political convulsion. Next week will end it. After that we shall have some repose; but until its termination the streets and the newspapers will be filled with what concerns it.

The friends of Mr. Jones want no Republican votes—white or colored. They want Mr. Turner to get them.

The friends of Mr. Bromberg are not so fastidious. We suppose that they will be pleased to have any honest vote for their candidate. At least this is our opinion.

Miss Adelaide Neilson—her marital name is Lee—is now performing in Strakosch's company, in Philadelphia. She is engaged for one hundred performances, for each of which she is to receive $500. This is said to be twice as much as she is worth; but that depends on the audience that she may draw. In Mobile, it is likely, she would not be worth one fifth of the price.

CALCULATIONS.

It is still asserted that the U. S. House of Representatives is in doubt as far as its relative party strength is concerned. It has been "figured out" that, at best, there will be only six or seven Democratic majority. This is giving all sorts of chances to the Republicans and none to the Democratic party. The object of the story is to whip in recalcitrant Democrats.

Here in this district, it is intended to scare credulous people into a belief that Turner will be elected. He has a little more chance than we have, because it is possible that he may get a few hundred votes. They may help to elect Jones, but they can't elect Turner.

At the last election (1876) within the counties which comprise this District, the whole vote was 16,730. Dem. majority 6869.

In 1874 the whole vote was 24,355. Dem. majority 1481.

In the former year there was a nondescript running for governor (Woodruff) against Gov. Houston. He had no strength, at best, and the full vote of neither party was polled. In the tables for this year there are no votes given either to Washington or Choctaw. In 1874 there were 63 for the Republicans in the former county, and 986 in the latter. Not one vote is now credited to them in those counties. In 1874 there were in Choctaw 1421 Democratic, and 986 Republican votes. Not one is placed to either in the deceptive estimates that are used to mislead the public.

In 1874 there was unquestionably much cheating on both sides. In the election for governor this year, there was none, perhaps; for there was not much to stimulate it.

Let see now what are the chances of Mr. Bromberg's election. We base it on the return of 1874, and for the purpose take an estimate of the Register. Thus:

For Jas. Taylor Jones,	9,772
For F. G. Bromberg,	9,015
For W. W. D. Turner,	5,769
Total,	24,556

This gives a plurality of 757 to Mr. Jones, and, of course, elects him; but look at the great contribution to Turner. That the compiler of the table would not bet on at 99 per cent. odds.

Let us construct a table. Thus:

For Jas. Taylor Jones,	9,772
For W. W. D. Turner,	2,000
For F. G. Bromberg	12,784

That is a Bromberg majority over both of 1,012, and a plurality exceeding 3,000.

We don't think that the whole return of the coming election will reach that of 1874. On the other hand it is possible that it may exceed it.

But all calculations or the kind are not worth a straw. They are made up with a predetermination to get at certain conclusions; and yet there are some persons who say "figures never lie." That is true enough; but it is also true that they may be made the instruments of lying—suggestive of a lie.

Taking the Register's figures, we cipher it out that Mr. Bromberg will certainly be elected, and that is enough. If our cis-a ris were wise, it would drop the arithmetical fingers, and rely on its rhetoric. When it deals with figures, it proves too much, as it has done in this case.

These matters are generally guess work, and guessing for the purpose of deception. We have seen many estimates of what the general result will be. The Republican papers prove that it is impossible for Tilden to be elected. The Democratic papers prove that it is impossible for Hayes to be elected. What is a man to do between these two sides? He may be like an ass between two stacks of hay. The brute starved before it came to a conclusion.

We trust that there are not many asses within this District. Let all of them take to either stack and not be starving between them.

But passing beyond this imperfect metaphor, we have not the least doubt that Mr. Bromberg will be elected. He ought to and will carry from this county from three to five thousand majority. That will be more than enough.

The bete noir, Mr. Turner, scares no one who has sense enough to think for himself.

RUMORS.

One of the city papers says that Mr. Turner is "entitled to the respect and votes of the Radical party." It allows Mr. Bromberg, of course, and prefers Turner to him, and for reasons given in another city paper, namely, that if he doesn't get all the Republican votes, he will not be elected, and Mr. Jones may be. This is the argument reduced to a small compass. The Jones men seem to prefer Turner as against Bromberg.

"Bromberg" is to also declared, "has been endorsed by the radical party, for which, it is said, he or his friends paid $1500."

That is cheap. Only $1500! Who was bought? How far would that sum go in distribution among so many? The miracle of the loaves and fishes ought to pale itself before this miraculous method of buying up a great big party. It wouldn't give the purchased voters more than about ten cents apiece. That is cheap enough. It is an insult to it to say that it sold itself so cheaply.

It is also said about the streets that Mr. Turner got $1000 for the use of his name; but a day or two afterwards, not being satisfied with that, he demanded more, when he was told that he would get more after he beats Mr. Bromberg.

The one story is about as good as the other—perhaps better.

Here is another extract from one of our local contemporaries:

"Democrats! Freemen! You noble sons who have stood up in the dark and days of our humiliation, when Bromberg was one of your persecutors, can you vote for him? We think not."

Men and brethren! You who died to save the country, and now live to save it again. The destroying beast is Bromberg. He is ready to gobble it up—ready to deprive all us or on households—take every child from the guardianship of its doting parents—prepared to water the milk which we get from the patient, although bellowing, cow. Even the char coal man he may interfere with. Entre nous, we wish he would deal with the fellow. Can't we make that one of the planks of a party platform?

Hey diddle, diddle—
The cat's in the fiddle,
The cow jumped over the moon:
The little dogs laughed to see this sport,
And the dish ran off with the spoon.

THE REGISTER'S LAST SOMERSAULT.

Editor Tribune.—The Register has flopped again. It has sheathed its dagger of lath, turned the peaceful lining of its political Joseph's Coat outside and coos for "harmony" as gently as any sucking dove. It has stopped its abuse of Mr. Bromberg and its false witness against his supporters, to sing a siren song as it sits on the shore of defeat and combs its shining hair with the pocket comb of future aspiration. Meanwhile Ulysses won't listen worth a cent.

The Register does not deal in epigram; and if its labored and flabby article of yesterday morning had any point, that point was in its tail, thus: With mules towards none, with charity for all—and that after the election is over the leaders of each faction should come together harmoniously and reunite the ranks of the party, in order that we may keep untarnished the jewel of peace, liberty and law which the election of Mr. Tilden and the triumph of the National and State Democracy will give us.

Now, Mr. Editor, what does this mean?

I translate it into plain English which the working man and the earn less man may read and take in. It means, "We are getting shaky about Jones's election. For God's sake let us make an early move to save and divide the city and county offices in the future!"

It means: Come back crying broth er! I cannot whip you in, but I pray you to come back and be led by your nose once more, as in the good old days!

Now, Mr. Editor, the Register need not have taken two columns of flabby wash and bald misstatement to give this "spider to the fly" little invitation whence it sprang. How it was cooked need not be told here. The editor of the Register tells caucus secrets and violates party confidence. We will not imitate him.

The body of yesterday's article (if a tail be a body) is that Mr. Bromberg was not nominated by the Democracy of Mobile to be elected, but only to be made a handle of by the State Executive committee.

Ye Gods! Why reference of the question to the state Ex. Committee was never dreamed of, even by Colonel Hodgson, until long after he and the Register had ratified Mr. Bromberg's nomination as de facto and de jure. The question of such reference was an after-thought of Col. Hodgson's when he began to weaken on his record at Jackson.

Now one word or truth as caviare to the Register. That paper knows (and acted upon the knowledge, to recommend a solid Bromberg Delegation to be sent to Jackson) that at the primaries Mr. Bromberg's name was the only one at the head of the ward tickets; and that the men elected by those tickets to the Mobile county convention were as much pledged to him (Bromberg) by the people's power or authority as will be their electors for Tilden and Hendricks. The Register has begun to tell caucus secrets (the falsity or truth of which we will not stop here to argue) so let it proceed and tell us what was solemnly agreed upon by the caucus at Jackson, in which caucus both Mr. Jones and Mr. Wolf were present, and in which it was agreed that the latter gentleman should be the chairman of that convention. Let the Register tell the people of the first district how that faith was kept. Such matters have ever been considered confidential. This article does not propose to divulge them, but, as the Register has begun the work, let it continue the Chapters, and tell the people the whole history.

SPECTATOR.

MOBILE, Nov. 2, 1876.

Mr. Editor: The article in the Register of this morning headed, "Calculation of Chances", starts off by showing the necessity of having a Democratic Representative in Congress, and calls upon all Democrats to vote for Mr. Jones, as being the strongest man, after warning them of the danger of Turner's being elected. To support this assertion, Pr publishes an estimate of the probable vote, based upon the election of 1874, it being admitted on all sides that the election of 1876 is on safe basis for calculation. The following is the Register's table of chances:

For J. T. Jones,	9,772
For F. G. Bromberg,	9,015
For W. W. D. Turner,	5,769
Total,	24,556

This only gives Jones a plurality of 757 votes—and when the mode of making up this table is examined, as appears by the editorial itself and is seen to be by "giving Bromberg he f ot the whites of Mobile and half of the negroes of all the district," the table can hardly be very assuring to the supporters of Mr. Jones.

Here is another table of chances made upon a basis a little below the vote of 1874, giving Bromberg only half of the white vote of Mobile and basing Turner's vote upon authentic information, increasing it, however, nearly one half above such information:

For J. T. Jones,	9,772
For F. G. Bromberg,	12,784
For W. W. D. Turner,	2,000

That is a Bromberg majority over both of 1,012, and a plurality exceeding 3,000.

We don't think that the whole return of the coming election will reach that of 1874. On the other hand it is possible that it may exceed it.

But all calculations or the kind are not worth a straw. They are made up with a predetermination to get at certain conclusions; and yet there are some persons who say "figures never lie." That is true enough; but it is also true that they may be made the instruments of lying—suggestive of a lie.

The Daily Cribune.

FRIDAY,.....NOVEMBER 3

I want to be an angel
Among the heavenly throng,
Where they have the best of bread
Made with Cream Dry Hop Yeast

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 50 barrels apples were received and by Mobile and Montgomery Railroad 40 barrels apples.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 50 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

MINCE MEAT, MINCE MEAT.—Just receiv ed and for sale low, mince meat in barrels, buckets and 5 pound tin cans, by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

A Montgomery paper understands there are seventy candidates for clerk of the Alabama senate, and three hundred for secretary of the senate, which will shortly convene.

The tide of winter travel is setting toward Florida, a telegram stated a day or two ago. That tide is now turning to Mobile and will be very swift when winter visitors learn our climatic advantages and that the Battle House is the best hotel in the south.

Stephen Thomas, one of the Wheelerville vendetta, who was shot at that place a few mornings ago, and for the shooting of whom four men are now in jail without bail, has been brought to the city hospital. His condition is precarious and he is very low.

It is understood that the delay in the legislature of the city pay rolls is owing to the determination of the ways and means committee to negotiate a loan, so that disbursements may be made in greenbacks, if possible. This result will be hailed with delight perhaps within two or three days.

A colored individual stole a bucket of lard from a Royal street grocery yesterday afternoon, ran off with it and was hotly pursued but not captured. A policeman grasped the fellow, who got off with the loss of a fragment of his shirt which the officer will deliver to him on proof of property.

Last Wednesday night about ten o'clock an attempt was made to set fire to an unoccupied house on Lawrence street, between St. Louis and St. Michael. A piece of lightwood was set fire to in the kitchen but luckily it did not burn. A colored boy about twelve years old was seen to run from the premises and was captured.

The large receipts by Owen Farley, at the mammoth grocery house 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, Government street, of the various kinds of apple-butter, mince meat, fruits, soft shell almonds and other nuts, raisins, spices, etc., reminds one that the days of Christmas are approaching, and that supplies for that period can be ordered now from Farley.

Colonel Harwell's visit to Manvills last Wednesday to view the body of a woman found dead on the railroad track, resulted in the belief that his death was not caused by violence. The contusions on his head and face were evidently produced by a fall while the man was walking along the track. Nothing was ascertained as to the name of the deceased, who appeared to be a Scotchman and a sailor. His scars were noticed, he had heavy black whiskers, was about forty-five years old and six feet high. He wore a green baize shirt, blue jean pants and a sailor's belt around his waist. Coroner Harwell had the body interred in the grave yard at Manvills.

River News.

The steamer Peerless, from Selma, arrived yesterday morning with 630 bales of cotton, 60 sacks cotton seed, 1 bales sewer, sundry small articles and several passengers.

The Sam. J. Tilden will leave this evening for Demopolis and proposes to take freight or charge as many other boats. The Tilden being a light draft freight boat, can go through without detention. For other particulars apply on board or to Spaulding & Co., agents.

The Peerless, Captain Tom Frank on the roof and Mr. Andy Welch in the office, will back out for Selma and intermediate points this evening at five o'clock. Spaulding & Co., agents.

The Lulu D., from Montgomery, will be in today.

The New Orleans Republican of Thursday says:

"Yesterday during the day between ten and fifteen thousand persons visited the different cemeteries as the Metairie ridge for the purpose of decorating the graves of deceased relatives and friends with wreaths, flowers and other ornaments. A large number of the graves were simply decorated with natural flowers. The cars leading to the ridge were crowded from early morning until late at night. Mr. Wintz, the president of the City railroad, provided ample accommodation for all that desired to visit the different cemeteries, as he had seventeen cars running by mules and thirty run by four dummies making forty-seven cars in all on the line. The thirty cars pulled by the dummies made ten round trips in all, three drawn by mules made an average of five trips during the day per car; the total trips made by the forty-seven cars amounting to about 638 in all. The railroad company must have taken in between $600 and $2000, which is very good for one day's driving."

The Hadley-Bryerly Vendetta

Important Trials in Baldwin County

The trial of the action of the state of Alabama vs the Hadleys and others for one of the Bryerly murders in the northern, part of Baldwin county some fifteen months ago, was commenced in the circuit court at its session in Baldwin county, Judge Tomlin on the bench, on Friday of last week and was given to the jury last Tuesday, who rendered a verdict Wednesday night of guilty of murder in the second degree as to James M. Hadley and Dink Hadley, finding the other defendants, Pitcher, Stewart and Isaac Hadley not guilty. The jury sentenced the convicted Hadleys each to ten years imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

The case just tried was for the killing of Green B. Bryerly, father. The cases yet to be tried are against the same defendants for the killing of the sons of Green B. Bryer and will perhaps come up at the next term of the same court.

It will be remembered by the readers of the Tribune that an old feud between the Hadley and Bryerly families culminated in a bloody affair, and the immediate cause of which was a dispute about cattle of very little value, and the result was that three of the Bryerlys were killed and several of the Hadleys were wounded.

This was a remarkable state trial, owing to the general interest felt by that portion of the public who knew the parties, and the eminence of the counsel engaged in it, Judge Elliot and Major T. H. Price representing the state, and Judge McKinstry and Hon. D. C. Anderson representing the defendants.

There was a young man in the reportorial corps at the city council meeting last evening, and one who had something to brag of also. If the members had called for beers there would have been a resay reserve. No lambs were there to lie down with the lyons of the board.

At the time for the meeting of the common council last evening, President Quigley in the chair, only Councilmen Danner and Lyons were present besides, and an adjournment till next Thursday evening was the result.

Two months pay is due policemen and other city employes and officers; and it will be joyful if they get their money in greenbacks within a few days.

The rainfall yesterday morning in Mobile was 42-hundredths of an inch, in Montgomery 5 one-hundreds and in New Orleans 2 one-hundredths.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 75, minimum 69, a range of 6 degrees.

TELEGRAPH

DEATH.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 2.—Ex Lt. Gov. Morris Tyler died suddenly, at his residence in this city, Tuesday morning, of heart disease, aged 70 years. He held the office of Lt. Governor under Marshall Jewell. He was senior partner in the wholesale boot and shoe firm of Morris Tyler & Co.

SEVERE STORM.

TORONTO, ONT., Nov. 2.—A severe lightning storm visited various parts of western Ontario yesterday. A number of barns and a large quantity of grain are reported destroyed. Several persons were injured, but none fatally.

NEW PAPERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The record of newspapers for October shows eight dailies started and six suspended.

LOST AT SEA.

The brig Nellie Ware from Minatitlan reports that on Oct. 22d in latitude 28 degs. 43 min., longitude 77 degs. 33 min., she saw the di-masted schooner Katie P. Lund from Brunswick, Ga., for St. Iargo. She had lost her deck load and was water-logged. One of the captain's children was drowned in the cabin and another washed overboard with the captain's wife. The child was lost, but the wife was saved. All on board were brought to this port.

SUPERINTENDENT.

Col. James Moore was yesterday formally installed as the superintendent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

LABOR RIOTS.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 2.—A private telegram from Grenada, Mississippi reports a destructive fire there Tuesday night. Sixteen business houses on the west side of the square and west side of Green street were burned, including Snyder's bank, postoffice, and Geo. Lake's grocery store. No further particulars received.

RAILROAD STRIKE.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—Three days ago the general manager of the Cairo and St. Louis railroad notified the engineers and firemen that their wages would be reduced on and after November 1. Yesterday the men left their engines without notice and endeavored to prevent new men taking their places. One or two trains were stopped, but by no-morrow evening arrangements will be completed by which all trains will be fully manned and the business of the road run smoothly again.

FOR CHINA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—The Pacific Man steamer Alaska sailed yesterday for Hong Kong via Yokoma, taking over 600,000 dollars in silver coin and bullion.

POLITICAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A market reaction is apparent, even among Republican office-holders, against the bayonet policy.

New York publishes reports of pools sold from all leading cities of the Union, and in all Tilden was largely the favorite. The odds were in his favor here to night and last night, and there is disposition among Republicans to bet very largely.

Odds are given by Democrats on New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana.

SUITS AGAINST E. WARD.

The suits against Gen. O. O. Howard, Commissioner of refugees, freedmen and abandoned lands, and trustee and lawful custodian of their regular or retained bounty. The first of $150,000, which is alleged that Gen. Howard has failed to account for, and the second, for the sum of $20,000, which the complaint states is the balance, and interest due for premium and interest on U. S. bonds belonging to the Government, and appropriated for the use of the Freedmau's Bureau which has not been paid over by Gen. Howard nor expended for the use of the Bureau, etc.

ESCAPE OF TWEED.

NEW YORK, November 2.—A rumor has reached this city that the U. S. steamer Franklin was hailed and boarded on Monday night last by two steam launches, off the Hole-in-the-Wall, in the Bermudas; the launches displayed the private signals of the United States service, and when the Franklin was boarded it was discovered that the boarders were armed to teeth. Tweed and Hunt, who were on deck, were found to have disappeared, and launches made off under cover of the darkness, and were out of sight when the prisoners' escape was discovered. The rumor causes the wildest excitement in this city.

COLLISION.

LISBON, November 2—The United States frigate Vandalia collided with the Norwegian bark Atlantic and above her bows and towed her to this port. The Vandalia is uninjured.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Stan dard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, Queen City."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United tates Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours.

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the result of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. P. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

FRIDAY.....NOVEMBER 3

The humanitarians of London have come to the conclusion that the Italian juvenile beggar nuisance is sustained solely by the well-meaning alms-giving of the kind hearted. In a late report of the Italian Ambassador, reference is made to an Italian boy who some years ago went to England with a performing dog. Having gained a few pounds he began business as an importer of children, and in a few years amassed £20,000.

The Georgia papers state that John Adams, colored, was elected to the Legislature from Dee county by a large majority, but a few days afterwards, the County Surveyor, in the course of his rounds, found out that the Hon. Jones lived exactly seventeen feet out of the line, and hence could not take his seat from Lee county.

Poets who have been tormented by the mad desire or finding a rhyme to "multitude," will be delighted to learn that in the village of Cromer, on the Norfolk coast of England, there is a family which rejoices in the name of "Bullitude."—N. Y. World.

They needn't have gone so far to find a rhyme. There is plenty of words to the purpose; for example, desuetude, longitude, habitude, &c., ad infinitum.

Some years ago there was much skill used to find a rhyme for silver. We found it in Mobile in a proper name, or an humble citizen named Dilver. But proper nouns don't count in this very important business.

The small pox is epidemic at Milwaukee.

They are talking of 45,000 Tilden majority in Virginia.

A few days ago 500 Mennonites arrived at New York in one vessel. They intend to settle in the West.

The State Fair at Montgomery is reported as having been a "grand success." The best prizes that were put up for pigeon shooting, it is stated, were won by strangers.

Plenty of pea nuts. It is estimated that the pea-nut crop of Tennessee this year will be near 350,000 bushels —100,000 more than last year's crop. It is said also to be of excellent quality.

Last Wednesday between 30 and 40 colored persons left New York for Liberia. They were from South Carolina, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. It is said that 10,000 have supplied for passage to the same place.

According to the telegraph news, the decrease in the national debt last month was $3,358,139. The coin in the treasury amounted to $76,000,000. It may be said that on the eve of a presidential election, the government always tries to "put its best foot foremost."

On the 30th ult. the Emperor on the opening of the German Parliament delivered an address, in which he said his government would not move in the Turkish business unless it be apparent that the peace of Europe will be menaced by it. This is considerable security for all the western powers, but can give very little comfort to the people the Turks are trying to reduce to submission.

THE LATEST "GAMMON."

The "bloody shirt" shift seems to be worn out at the North. But they have got a substitute for it: namely, that the election of Tilden will be equivalent to the assumption of all the bogus claims that the south has presented, or intends to present, to the government. Within them is not included the Confederate money—so-called. We are surprised at this moderation. That addition would have swelled the amount to three, ten or fifty thousand millions. No one can tell how much. A million is probably in Mobile at this moment; perhaps a hundred millions. Much of it has been lost. What the rats and mice haven't eaten, was given to the children, on account of its splendid pictures.

Well, the "money" did its work pretty well, considering that it had no redeemer and never expected to have one. It is a sad memento, but no one has reason to be ashamed of it.

Mr. Tilden has scotched this claims serpent, though it is just as lively as it ever was—but it will ultimately die—and be buried next Tuesday.

THE BATTLE HOUSE.

This house made a large reputation when it was managed by Chamberlain & Darling. They also held Point Clear, and there they acquired reputation. Mr. Darling is now one of the proprietors of the famous Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York—which stands there, in fact, at the head of the hotels in the great city. Mr. Chamberlain is dead. He was an excellent gentleman, not of lusty health, but of a very kindly nature. Darling is, or was, strong physically, and one of the most kindly and courteous persons that we have ever known. He is a Yankee by birth, but some of our poor "rebels" can tell of his generosity to them when they were in the great city, without food or friends.

Subsequently, the Battle House fell into the hands of other people who were inexperienced, but thought that they could "keep a hotel," as is the opinion of most men who harker for it and have never tried it. The result was dismal failures.

Now, after all these various experiments, the establishment has come under the control of Messrs. Rivers & Masson, of the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans. That is as good a place for a hotel man to graduate as any that we know of. These gentlemen have their diplomas, and if there be any doubt in respect of their capacity, let the sceptical dine with them. There is no disorder there. The servants are watchful in their desire to please, and they know how to distinguish between themselves and the guests. The tables are covered with what is delightful—that is, good ware and nice cloths; and as for the viands, why the cooks would fight a man who should object to the way in which they are brought on the tables, and we should applaud them for doing so.

There are other things about the concern which are very attractive, but of these we have now no time to make mention.

MUCH EXCITEMENT.

There was much excitement on the streets yesterday evening, because a good many horses were going to Whistler. They made a very imposing appearance. Two or three hundred mounted men, on fine horses, are a very agreeable sight. There were also plenty of good music on the occasion, and some transparencies. We trust that none of the steeds were stubborn, and threw their riders.

The Jones men cannot afford to lose a vote in this county, but a horse might be made a proxy for the lost rider. Nero, you know, made one of his horses a Senator or Rome.

Some Bromberg men also went up to Whistler. They are too poor to hire horses, and, accordingly, they took the cars—perhaps some of the wretched creatures went by what the vulgar call footback. Well, that is good exercise, and they will have by it an appetite for breakfast this morning. The return of the pilgrims was so late last night that we were unable to get an account of their devotions in this morning's paper. We shall give some account of them to-morrow.

One of our Mobile papers is getting frantic about the electoral and raves enough of nonsense to satisfy any reasonable person. Keep quiet, old fellow! The world will not come to an end if Jones be elected to stay at home. We believe that the heavens wouldn't fall even if Turner were elected. So be rational, and don't get excited.

GRAND PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION

TILDEN, HENDRICKS, BROMBERG,

SATURDAY, NOV. 4, 1876.

Cor. HAMILTON and GOVERNMENT

THE HONORABLE

F. G. BROMBERG

WILL ADDRESS THE MEETING.

Our Demopolis letter is interesting. It was written by a gentleman whose statements are not made at random.

The Opelika Observer says: "Every man should secure at least one color ed vote." Down here the Jones men seem not to want the colored votes; although it is likely that they will accept them, on the sly.

THE END APPROACHING.

All persons seem to felicitate themselves—including the women—that our national struggle will end with the setting of Tuesday's sun.

Our quadrennial revolutions, or attempts at revolutions, are one of the greatest detects of our system of government; and much of the evil of them might be removed if tradition did not stand in the way.

The first thing would be to double the term of the presidential tenure, and, as in the case of our sheriffs, prohibit a successive re-election to the office.

Next, get rid of the cumbrous machinery of electoral colleges, and give the office to the direct vote of the people.

Now a man may run as often as he pleases for the presidency—barring the tradition which was inaugurated by the example of Washington, Grant would have broken down this barrier, if he had not been afraid to risk it. After awhile some man will risk it, and, perhaps, succeed. Then the power may in him be perpetual. A constitutional amendment could save us from this danger: that is, if there be any permanent virtue in a constitution. We don't think that there is; but it stands as a fational and legal obstacle. It has that virtue.

Well, we shall elect Tilden and Bromberg. After that we shall have leisure to think about it.

At all events, we shall not have long to wait. So much the better

Correspondence Tribune.

MARENGO Co., Nov. 2, 1876.

Mr. Editor.—As all sorts of rumors are circulated to frighten off votes from Mr. Bromberg in Mobile, I desire to say that he will divide the colored vote in Marengo with W. W D. Turner. I think it likely that Bromberg will carry the county, as Ben Thomas and Frank Threat, leading Republicans, are warmly in favor of him and are actively canvassing. The truth is, that the Republicans here not only know nothing of W. W. D. Turner, but do not regard him as having the ghost of a chance for election, and will, consequently, vote for Bromberg in preference to Jones. If Mobile stands up to Bromberg he will most certainly be elected by a handsome majority. From what I have heard, Bromberg will certainly get a large vote in Clarke county. And he richly deserves it by his fidelity and ability in Congress.

All the fuss in the Register about the Republicans uniting upon Turner on the day of election is mere gammon. The contest is between Bromberg and Jones, and the Republicans well know the fact and will vote for Bromberg. If Mobile polls a good vote for Bromberg, his election is just as sure as that "sparks fly upward." The Republicans believe Bromberg to be conservative, just and upright and for this reason will vote for him in preference to Jas. T. Jones.

W. W. D. Turner is not enough in the race to serve the form of a bugbear, and the colored men will not throw away their votes upon him.

A REPUBLICAN.

The Daily Tribune.

SATURDAY, ... NOVEMBER 4

The north wind was rather chilly yesterday and fires were comfortable.

By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad 260 bonze candles, 100 barrels apples and 20 barrels potatoes were received.

Royal street is not finished yet. The numerous improvements going on from Government to St. Louis street attest the truth of this statement.

Martha Keating was before the mayor's court yesterday morning on the charge of habitual drunkenness and was fined $50 or 20 days in the county jail.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 3 cars of corn, 114 sacks corn, 326 sacks bay, 50 barrels potatoes, 72 barrels rosin, 15 barrels apples, 1 lot bulk cabbages, 200 staves, and 13 bundles hoop poles were received.

The Young Brothers, corner Dauphin and St. Emanuel, have just received the excellent candlestick, which carries a very large candle that is raised as fast as it burns by a spiral spring. It sells like hot cakes.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

MINCE MEAT, MINCE MEAT.—Just received and for sale low, mince meat in barrels, buckets and 5 pound tin cans, by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

Justice McCormick.

The cases of William Thompson and Thomas Fincher, charged with assault with intent to kill Simeon Wheeler, were disposed of by this justice yesterday. The defendants waived examination and were held in $300 each to appear before the city court, and required to give a peace bond of $600 each.

The business stir at Owen Farley's on Government street shows that as far as he is concerned, the times are not dull. He has an immense and varied stock of groceries—everything, in short, that is required in the trade. To this he has already added a large supply of apples and oranges; and, what is better, he sells good goods at the lowest possible living prices.

Has been sent to the Tribune the pretty business card of Carter, Rice & Co., wholesale paper, cardboard and envelope warehouse, Boston. The peculiarity of this card is that it bears neatly engraved pictures of Tilden and Hendricks and Hayes and Wheeler, and gives the popular and electoral votes for president from 1836 to 1872. The Mr. Rice of this firm is no other than Hon. Alexander H. Rice, governor of Massachusetts.

The Mobile Fire Department Insurance Company, of which Colonel John Meginnis is president, has just issued a valuable circular giving a diagram of the several fire districts and a list of the fire alarm telegraph stations. They have also had a few million cards for gratuitous distribution, on the reverse side of which is a list of the states, the number of electoral votes to which each is entitled and columns to classify them as democratic or republican.

Gold Mines in Alabama.

The wealth of Alabama in the minerals of coal and iron is admitted to be immense, the coal beds being properly developed and only awaiting cheap transportation to the sea to make them of much greater value. The iron ore is so superior in quality that shipments of Alabama iron have been made not only to northern states but to England.

Walking down Dauphin street a few evenings ago, the reporter of the Tribune overheard the conversation of a lady to a gentleman with whom she was walking about the gold mines of Alabama. She said a gentleman (whose name she mentioned) possessed the gold mines of Talladega county the richest he ever saw—"and," she added, "you know he has had large experience in mining in California."

River News.

The W. S. Holt, from Demopolis, arrived yesterday morning with 430 bales of cotton, a light trip of sundries and several passengers. Captain Whiteside reports 8½ feet of water from Demopolis down.

The jaunty little steamer Lulu D.—Captain Owen Finnegan on the roof and P. J. Lyons in the office, will leave this evening at five o'clock for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whiteside master and Mr. Virgil. H. Powers clerk, will back out at five o'clock this evening for Demopolis. W. Johnson, North Front street, agent.

The fine ship D. L. Tally, of Frank Stone's Grange Line, will leave this evening at five o'clock, with Captain Frank Stone in command and Mr. Jesse Bethea in the office, for Bladon Springs and Demopolis. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Lula D., from Selma, arrived with 777 bales cotton, a fair trip of sundries and several passengers.

The steamer Peerless, with Captain Tom Frank on the roof and Mr. Andy Welch in the office, will back out at five o'clock this evening for Selma. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Hugo Stenzel will open the Court House Exchange, opposite Southern Markets, with a grand free lunch this evening.

TELEGRAPH

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 3.—In the Supreme Court yesterday Merchant H. Weeden, convicted of the murder of Catherine E. J. Weaver, in a house of ill fame last April, was sentenced to state prison for life.

HELL GATE WATER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—At a meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday morning Captain Shaw of the special committee on the question of the depth of water at Hallett's Point, reported that the committee had held a consultation with Gen. Newton and has ascertained that the debris of the explosion was being rapidly cleared away. Mr. Geo. W. Blunt reported that another explosion had occurred at Diamond reef, and that Gen. Newton would soon have 24 feet of water over that reef. Mr. Vos Brant suggested that the charge of Hell Gate passage which had always been oppressive would be relieved by the action of the Legislature and recommended that the Chamber should call some action at a proper time for the purpose of a measure which would remove the toll on shipping passing through Hell Gate. This report was adopted.

LIBERIAN EMIGRANTS.

The bark Jasper left here for Liberia, carrying 60 or 40 freedmen collected from Columbia, S. C., Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, was propose taking up their home there. Among the passengers was Bishop Gilbert Haven, Rev. Daniel A. Day, and wife—of Lutheran church, and Hon. Mr. Fuller, of Liberia. Bishop Haven goes to Liberia to preside at the January Conference, in Monrovia, and will, if possible, make an inspecting tour of the African coast. Two thousand freedmen have applied for passage to Liberia.

A DASTARDLY DEED.

ROND OUT, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The entire front of the residence of August Soppiss in this city was blown out yesterday morning at 3 o'clock by a charge of powder which was placed as a window by some malicious person. The building was shattered and the furniture damaged. Mr. Soppiss, his wife and three daughters were sleeping in the upper part of the house were uninjured. Mr. Soppiss was the complainant against a house of illfame and suspicious posts in this direction. The motive of the act seems to have been revenge with the intention to destroy the entire family. The inmates of the house of ill-fame have been arrested, but the proprietor named Keyser is away from home.

CHICAGO POLITICS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The registration in this city is unusually large. It is thought that Chief of Police Hickey will be removed from his position, and that Ernest, of Washington, chief of the secret service will be appointed to the office. Hickey is a Democrat, and the local administration is Republican.

COLORADO LEGISLATURE.

DENVER, Nov. 2.—Nobody—Wooster Anthony was elected Speaker of the House and W. W. Webster, President pro tem. of the Senate. The Governor will be inaugurated to-day.

TILDEN'S SPEECH.

NEW YORK, November 3.—The Democratic procession ended at a quarter past one this morning. Just before its close, Gov. Tilden, in response to loud calls, spoke as follows:

"Fellow-citizens: This grand demonstration is a harbinger of success, if you do your duty on Tuesday next as nobly as you have done it to-night. Let us by one means peace, reconciliation and fraternity among all our people of every class and race; it means national credits founded on a solid basis of the united people; a frugal administration, and an honest and just government. It will bring a reduction of one-half of one per cent. in the interest on the bonded National indebtness below the lowest rate at which any loan has been negotiated, which in a period of thirty-eight years would save to the people three hundred and fifty million dollars of the seven hundred millions dollars proposed to be issued at 6½ per cent; it would mean giving fair play to the healing influences of nature in the restoration of our business and industries, to the prosperity of which and administration has impaired and for the time destroyed."

A JUST VERDICT.

The jury in the case of Capt. Grindle of the bark St. Mark, for cruelty to his sailors, rendered a verdict of "guilty." Three of the seamen died from ill treatment.

PRIZE FIGHTERS CONVICTED.

The counsel for the prize-fighters convicted of manslaughter at Salem, N. J., moved for a new trial. The motion was refused and the the convicts will be sentenced to-day.

INSURRECTION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—W. Corcoran, member of the Congressional Democratic Committee, has advices from the mining districts in Pennsylvania indicating defections among the miners from the Republican party, amounting in some sections to a stampede. Philadelphia must contribute more than 15,000 majority to save the State to the Republicans. There are no notable changes in other States in the North. The States that have Democratic State Governments will cast their votes for Mr. Tilden. Wisconsin may give her electoral vote to the Democrats, while California may with an equal possibility go with the Republicans. The personal following of Mr. Hendricks secures Indiana beyond a doubt. The feeling here, where the comfortable living of three-fourths of the people depends upon Tuesday's work resembles the prescut party in power, is despondent.

THE COTTON MARKET.

LONDON, November 3.—The Liverpool Post of to-day says: Yesterday was the most excited day the cotton market has experienced for years, and the enormous sale has thrown business altogether out of gear.

Yarns—Prices are raised all around. There are large offers at about last week's, but they are mostly declined, so little business results. The exports of yarns are more active and have shown in most cases a larger advance.

The business in cloth is at a stand still, but upon not following the upward movement eagerly and sellers dare not go on, even at the recent fullest quotations without further instructions from their principals.

The Liverpool Courier says that for some days the Turko-Servian armistice, now announced, has been confidently expected, and the Manchester market for goods and yarns, as well as on the cotton market, has been perceptibly regaining in tone. Only upon one occasion—upon the eve of the American civil war—have the sales reached such a figure as announced yesterday, and at Manchester, with advancing prices, business was active and transactions large.

TURKEY.

LONDON, November 3.—The Post publishes an official form, the following paragraph: "Turkey having accepted the armistice we understand that Russia has taken immediate steps to press forward negotiations for the arrangement of all pending questions on the basis of the English proposals."

The Post also states that an official investigation shows that only 3,100 persons were killed by the Turks in Bulgaria.

On the return of the Bromberg delegation from the Whistler meeting last night, the band accompanying them serenaded the Tribune and the Glee Club gave one of their Bromberg and Reform songs.

SATURDAY.....NOVEMBER 4

The Pope received the Spanish pilgrims at St. Peter's on the 16th. He was addressed in the name of the pilgrims by the Archbishop of Granada, who conveyed the homage and devotion of entire Spain. The Pope replied in a scarcely audible harangue, and was carried in his chair through a dense and enthusiastic crowd back to his apartment. He was observed to look rather fatigued.

An ingenious traveler has suggested an easy method of protecting Milan from a besieging army in the event of a European war. His plan is to gather America's gifted children of song, at present in the city, plant them upon the entrenchments, and, at a given signal, to let their voices simultaneously loose upon the investing host.—Brooklyn Argus.

An old Chicago puffer, who read something about how to smoke bees the other day, decided to try it, and commenced by crushing a dormant one between his fingers, as he would a piece of kinnikinnick before putting it in the pipe. We might give the result of the man's experiment in his own language, but it is getting too near Sunday.—[Journal.

In connection with the recent insult to the Spanish Ambassador to Italy by the committee appointed to superintend the reception to the Spanish Pilgrims at the Vatican, the Spanish Government has issued an order prohibiting the return to Spain of the prelates who while in Rome failed to call upon the Ambassador. The order especially mentions the Archbishop of Grenada.

Reader, let us move to San Bernardo Valley, California. Here is a poor man's breakfast in that Arcadia: Tea, sweetened with pure white, strained honey, thick cream and bread, milk, eggs, Hubbard squash, ham, pomegranate, black Hamburg grapes, Flamme de Tokay grapes, green figs, and peaches. Cost of breakfast for man and wife, 15 cents

Patents obtained in the United States and all foreign countries. Advice free; charges low as those of other responsible agencies. Correspondence is solicited in the English and foreign languages, with Inventors, Attorneys at Law and other Solicitors, especially with those who have had their rejected cases in the hands of other attorneys. No charge is made unless we are successful.

Inventors. If you want a Patent, send us a model or sketch and a full description of your invention. We shall make an examination at the Patent Office, and if we think it patentable, will send you papers and advice, and prosecute your case. Our fee will be, in ordinary cases, $25.

ADVICE FREE as to patentability of inventions, and all matters relating to Patents, Trade-Marks, Patent Law and Infringements.

The Liquefaction of St. Januarius's Blood.

The correspondent of an English Roman Catholic paper at Naples says of the late miraculous liquefaction of the blood of St. Januarius:

Yet cannot imagine the cries and the almost shrieks and screams of the people that were going on all this time. And when the priest held it up and cried out, "E duro"—"It is hard"—there was such a cry of "San Genuaro, nostro protettiore, nostro padrone! fate ci il miracolo," and they began to weep and wail on all sides in the true Neapolitan style. The religuary is an old-fashioned silver one, of an oval shape, surmounted by a silver cross about four inches long, by which the priest holds it. Thick glass is let into the sides, so that you see the interior plainly when held up to the light; and to show you more clearly the bottles inside a priest holds a small lighted taper behind, by aid of which you see two small "ampullæ," or cruets, the large one containing about an ounce and a half of some obscure, congealed substance of a brownish tint, not unlike to that of clotted blood when it has been exposed a long time to the air. It is quite hard, for the priest reverses the religuary, and not the slightest motion is visible in the dark matter which fills about two-thirds of the phial. Both bottles appeared to be hermetically sealed. The priest laid the religuary down on the altar. He had taken it all round, had shown it to the many kneeling figures, when the one more lowered it and put it before my eyes. I was not certain, but it seemed to me that as he held the religuary upside down the straight line which was formed across the bottle was breaking on one side, and that the substance commenced to move slowly. I am sure my excited face and the paleness I felt coming over me must have shown the Canon what had happened. Yes, there it was, slowly moving down on one side of the bottle, a few reddish brown drops. He held it aloft to the people and cried, "E spaghato," "It is liquefied." I cannot express to you the strange feeling which crept over me when the Canon again showed me the religuary and slowly turned it around. I saw the blood flowing inside the larger phial as freely as water.

John Chinaman.

Individually John Chinaman is a clean human; collectively, he is a beast. Ah Stue, the cook, keeps his coppers and pans clean and bright, washes his hands in going from dish to dish, is orderly, fresh in appearance, and ever arrayed in spotless white and blue. Follow him home, and you will find this cleanly unit becomes one of a herd of animals living in a state of squalor and filth, at which even a Digger Indian would shudder. Fifteen Chinamen will live sleep and cook in a hovel or cellar twelve feet square, having only a door as a means of admitting light and air. Clouds of rancid smoke issue continually from the common chimney, window and door, through which John and his fellows may dimly be seen preparing, smoking, working and sleeping, for when Coo Lee has nothing to do, he generally crawls into his hole to sleep or smoke. The large companies boarding houses are no better. Every story is reflowed, and made into two, and often three the standard height of a room being a trifle over or under five feet. Clean at first, the building soon becomes grimy, and then becomes black, and then dirt encroached from garret to cellar. Once occupied by Chinese, a building must always remain a pest-hole or be torn down. Under the sidewalks, under staircases, in cramped banks, and on rickety platforms John lives and it is reported thrives. It is only to the adventurous and strong-stomached that a tar picture of Chinese life is presented in all its foulness. When a fire burns out a hole, and lays open a section of this vile quarter, then it is that groups of the curious gather round and try to believe that they live within a block of these rookeries and slums, where there is no difference between the blackness of the charred beams and that of the sleeping holes. Of course there are cleanly exceptions—the restaurants, and some few of the rich merchant's stores, for instance, but there is noger of darkening the picture overmuch; and Commatown, lying in the heart of San Francisco, is a miracle of human uncleanliness, and a wounder of filth. San Franciscans have much cause to be thankful for the long season of purging trade winds.—Thomas J. Vivian in Scribner.

Edward S. Stokes, the slayer of James Fisk, Jr., after nearly six years of imprisonment, last Saturday morning at 8 o'clock was satisfied that at length he was a free man. Six years of fighting against the law has made a young man gray-haired, but his pluck never failed him, and when some one suggested, a few days ago, the possibility that a personal and violent attack might be made upon him by the gang from Eighth avenue, New York City, Stokes said: "I do not, I shall not invite trouble, but I shall defend myself, and I am not unprepared." He added that he knew what it meant to offend the law, and that he should never provoke a quarrel. Since stokes has been in prison he has paid in lawyers' fees and other expenses nearly $300,000. He says openly that had he been willing to pay $2,500 for the privilege, he would not have been drafted from Sing Sing prison to Auburn. While in Sing Sing, Stokes regularly feed the officials, and lived, in the language of his fellow convicts, "like a bird." He has no hesitation in saying now that any one with money or political influence can do about as he pleases in either Sing Sing or Auburn prison —[N. Y. Sun.

ROBBED.—On yesterday a planter from Rankin county came to Jackson with eleven bales of cotton which he disposed of for about five hundred dollars. Then got drunk in a saloon in South Jackson, and when found by his friends who had been searching for him, was found with a pocket of his pants cut open and nary nickle in his possession. He was placed in his wagon, the horses heads turned for home, and away he went to—reflect.—Jackson (Miss) Times

An Irish Soldier's Devotion.

From the Richmond Whig.]

Saturday morning quite early Mr. Taylor, clerk at the Treasurer's office at the Capitol, saw a middle-aged and bronze-faced Irishman coming into the square with a bag over his shoulder. Such a sight was not uncommon; but Mr. Taylor, in watching him further, noticed that he was making for the statue of Stonewall Jackson, and when he reached it he dashed his bag aside, wiped his face and fell on his knees in front of the bronze image of the great General and was soon evidently engaged in prayer. The sight of a man engaged in prayer so completely upset Mr. Taylor that he sent Policeman Drinkard over there to interrogate The praying Irishman got up from his knees, and in answer to a question he said: "He was my old General, and I thought as I was passing I would stop and offer a prayer for him."

The dog Rob, a wonderful fighter, was cut short in his successful career in St. Louis. He won $1,000 for his owner by killing another dog in a terrific contest, but soon died of poison that had been rubbed on his opponents skin.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled at Jackson, excluding from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of representatives fresh from the people, so that a fair nomination may be had; and we make this demand because it is only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within the ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of th Jackson Convention is the nominee of th Democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligation of party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position as long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result.

MUCH TRUTH,

The New York Journal of Commerce has an article in respect of Congressional candidates which suits this District exactly. It is too long for us to publish, but the essential part of it, which is as follows, will be interesting to every man who has at heart the welfare of this city and the whole District: that is if one desire to have experience, and not inexperience, to represent us in that school at Washington, where cranks lies at the bottom of legislation, and even honest and wise men have to learn how it is done by patient observation. The green man there is helpless—no matter what his large-ness may be—and is of no use. He learns, but the time that is required for his learning may cost his constituents more than it is worth.

"So far as the Congressional nominations have been made, (says the Journal of Commerce) there is an evident disposition to return the members who have done long and faithful service. This is as it should be. It takes time for a man of more than ordinary ability to learn the parliamentary ways, and more time still to acquire the confidence and respect of his associates in the House. The district which sends a new man to Congress, save in rare exceptions, loses the benefit of his influence for the greater part of one term. Therefore, unless a member has shown himself incompetent and neglectful of his duties, he ought to be sent twice to Congress in order to have a fair chance to do himself and his constituents justice. If he has proved himself in all respects a good man, he should by all means be kept in his place in critical times like these, although there may seem to be some advantage in changing him."

When changes become necessary in the representation of this district, it would be desirable to bring to work more of the business element. A lack of this, in its due proportion, has been the sing Wane of Congress. Had the business public the voice at Washington to which it is entitled, who doubts that there would be far less blundering in tariff, in Federal revenue, and all financial and commercial legislation! To go no farther than this immediate neighborhood, how many of our business men who have advised Congress for a short time and ought to be re-elected to it, we would mention Mr. Hewitt of New York and Mr. Chittenden of Kings county. If we had more clear-headed and faithful men like these in Congress to speak for the claims of commerce and finance, a great many mistakes now committed at the expense of those interests would be avoided.

TWO DAYS MORE.

At this point of the political game, it is too late for dialectics. Men act now under the influence of opinions that have been made up. We allude to those persons who don't sell their votes.

There is a part of the business that has not been sufficiently dwelt on and elucidated on the stump or in the papers. It is this:

There is now a struggle to change the administration at Washington.

The change is desirable for two reasons: first, because there is no general confidence in some of the reasons why capital is now lying in bank and other vaults doing nothing. Secondly, because it is the belief among men of thought that the election of Mr. Hayes will simply be a change of persons. Around him, of necessity—unless he be a man of more resolute nature than we credit him with—will be the same men or influences that are ruling the country now. He must be controlled by them, or, refusing to be, must break his party all to pieces.

In this we have no intention of intimating anything which can be implied to mean that we do not believe that Hayes is an intelligent and honorable gentlemen. But our condition requires more than intelligence and honesty. It requires a man of nerve—nerve sufficient to break down a party, rather than allow himself to be made its servant.

We are inclined to think that Tilden has some of the qualities of Jackson, who controlled his party, and was not controlled by it.

This is what is now needed in a President. At all events, we want a change—for the Republican party has had power too long. It begins to suppose that it has a right to it, and, if continued much longer in power, will claim a right to it.

Change is the political condition of this country, as indeed it is of all countries that are not entirely governed by the passions, or prejudices or cupidity of the hour. The Queen rules. The Czar rules. And under laws which are not subjected to the temporary influence of annual elections, controlled by knaves, or be-ught as one buys merchandise on Water street—annually tempting exumpmen to corrupt the people who have votes that may be bought.

But this aside, we believe that the election of Tilden will accomplish what now we most much restore confidence, and thus inspire new enterprises, and give employment to men who need work, and in this way add wealth to each community, and, as a resultant, reduce the enormous taxation which is eating up people's houses, making poverty poorer, and by the universal distress, driving to vicious courses men who, otherwise, would be noted as dutiful citizens.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING

One finds pretty sharp fellows running about the streets disposed to bet on Jones. The unfortunate is that they have nothing to put up for security. These men are the drummers who go about with much cheer, in order to tempt good citizens to turn around. That is they seem to think that every voter has no purpose in this miserable world except to be on the strong side, and these paid drummers will swear that Turner or Jones is the strong man.

These fellows are playing the game too low down. As the card players say, they expose their hand. They want Jones or Turner, but fear Bromberg, and that is all that there is in it.

ERRATUM.

In our notice of the Whistler exhibicade, we were made to intimate that there were between two and three hundred horses. The revise made it between one and two hundred. The compositor is a Jones man and made us tell a lie. The exact number was one hundred and thirty one horses and one jackass. We intend no allusion to the rider of the latter named critter.

Money refunded.

If a fair trial does not convince you that "Gillett's Cream Dry Hop Yeast" is superior to all others.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

One of the Jones papers insists that Tuesday's race is between Jones and Turner. That paper has told the story so often that it seems to believe it. You understand the philosophical fact: that a man accustomed not to tell the truth is finally unable to tell whether what he says is true or of the imagination. The best way to escape this moral demoralization is not to be untruthful.

Mrs. Opie wrote a clever book in illustration of that are called "white lies." They were fashionable lies; and really only a manifestation of a desire to please those whom they were told to. We think that this will illustrate what some people consider moral obliquity in the case. How? Why the cases men want to please the Turner men, and the Jones papers think that the best way to do that is to say that Jones will be elected, and so Turner beat him.

If they be earnest in this, why don't they train their guns on the cohorts of Turner, instead of firing their poor missiles at Bromberg? He, they say, is hors de combat. Why, then, waste their ammunition on him, when Turner is the great monster that stands in the way of Jones?

The fact is, they know that there is no possible chance of the election of Turner; but they are using him—as we won't say have bought him—as an instrument to beat Bromberg; and, in fact, many of them would rather see him elected than Bromberg.

Of the fives in London during the past five years, four fifths of them attacked property that was not insured.

In the French insane statistics for 1875 it is shown that 152 men became lunatics from love and only 37 women.

Under Which King, Bezonian?

Mr. EDITOR:—Can you inform an old democrat on which side the Register is at this time? I know that after the Jackson Convention the Register called it a meeting of "interlopers," and that before the convention of Mobile county the other recommended a solid Bromberg delegation. But of late I thought the Register went over to Jones and abused every body who would not support him, sotto voce.

Now I cannot understand where the Register is. Is it supporting Bromberg or is it red hot for Turner? I cannot tell.

In Friday's Register I read:

"Remember the cause and place honesty in its proper place and let every one attend the Bromberg meeting at Whistler tonight."

And again:

"Don't be uneasy about the old Red Warrior style of parade but accept the Democratic style and go to the great Bromberg meeting at Whistler in a quiet way by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

This is very strong for Bromberg. But in yesterday's Register I read in the "editorial columns?"

"Prominent on the stand was Col. Turner's brother, United States Marshal George Turner, who is Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee."

Col. Turner was received with great cheering and held the attention of his hearers in a speech of an hour's length, in which he defended the cause of the Republican party and of himself as the only Republican candidate for Congress in this District."

"The Republican meeting last night at Odd Fellows' Hall was quite an ovation for Col. W. W. D. Turner, their candidate for Congress. The large hall was well filled, and we noticed upon the stand and in the audience many of the leading negroes of the city and county. Rev. Sandy Jones (colored) presided. He made an address which would have done credit to a majority of public speakers."

Now, Mr. Editor, this is such a change that I cannot understand whether the Register is for Turner or for Bromberg. It used to call W. W. D. Turner a "bog-larded nurbarian," and speak of the negroes as "niggers." Only a little while back the Register called George Turner all sorts of names, and refused to admit he was marshal under a "straw bond." But now the negroes smell sweet. Once it used to speak of "Radicals," now they are "Republicans," and the Turners are "colonels," and have all their titles given at length.

Please tell us which side the Register is on? I cannot make up my mind whether it is supporting Turner or Bromberg.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 66, 68, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

MESS MEAT, MESS MEAT—Just received and for sale low, since most in barrels, buckets and 5 pound tin cans, by Owen Farley, 66, 68, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

The habeas corpus cases before Judge Semmes, of the city court, the parties being the four Wheeler life men committed to jail without bail by Justice McCormick for the shooting of Fincher and Thomas, was continued till tomorrow at ten o'clock, in order to take the deposition of Thomas.

Foote's Bank.

A suit has been instituted in the chancery court against the stockholders of the Deposit Savings' Association, otherwise known as Foote's Bank, to enforce the payment of notes issued by that association upon the ground that the institution was not a legal bona fide under the act of incorporation, and that the stockholders are liable for its debts in proportion to the amount of their stock. It is charged that the bank commenced its operations before one-half of its capital stock had been actually paid in gold and silver, and that the capital stock of $100,000 had not actually been paid in.

The Female Minstrels.

Tomorrow evening, Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels will give their initial performance at Odd Fellows' Hall. The Washington Ex-Confederate Band will furnish the music. Judging from the rehearsal we attended last evening to witness Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels, and judging from the frequent remarks of applause the specimens were well pleased. Missie Jessie Whitaker and Kate Sandley are great favorites, as also Harry Phillips and James Reach. One wishing to spend a pleasant evening should visit Ford's."

River News.

Business along the levee was lively yesterday. The departures were the flag ship B. L. Tally, Captain Frank Stone, for Duplassville, with a heavy freight; the W. S. Holt, Captain Whitesides, for Demopolis, with a full freight and several passengers; the Lulu D. Captain Owen Flanagan for Selma and Montgomery, with a splendid freight and all the passengers she could accommodate, and the Lizzie Bell, Captain Frank for Selma, with a fair freight a good list of passengers.

The R. E. Lee will be in tomorrow morning ready to receive freight for the Alabama river, to go out tomorrow evening, Captain Frank Johnson on the roof and Mr. Dick Eanes in the office, and the Lee will be all right. Spanking & Co. agents.

The elegant steamer Mary, Captain John Quill, will be in tomorrow evening, and will receive freight Tuesday for Selma and Montgomery.

Retains its Moisture.

Bread made with "Gillett's Cream Dry Hop Yeast" retains its moisture twice as long as other bread.

Hatton, the furnishing goods dealer, with whom it is a pleasure to trade, because he sells so cheap, makes an announcement this morning, which interests the readers of the Tribune.

Pincus, the clothing dealer, whose name is familiar as a household word, had his whole corps of salesmen engaged yesterday in attending to the wants of customers.

Happy is he who buys his Sunday suit of Pincus for he not only gets a handsome outfit, but he "buys a bargain."

P. C. Candidus has removed his drug store. See advertisement.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 69, minimum 47, a range of 22 degrees.

M. Simon & Brother have removed to 35 Dauphin street, just opposite their former location, where they will be glad to see their old friends and customers. But Pincus pleases in showing a large assortment of clothing and furnishing goods, both for men and boys, at reduced prices.

In these times of political excitement, men will forget that they ought to have bought some needed article of wearing apparel. But Pincus, always thoughtful, keeps his doors ajar this morning to provide for just such contingencies.

GRAND POLITICAL DEMONSTRATION

Bromberg Democrats in Council

THE MEETING OF THE CAMPAIGN

The grandest political demonstration of the campaign was held at the corner of Government and Hamilton streets last night, where the democratic supporters of Tilden and Hendricks, Bromberg and Reform assembled in vast multitudes.

The speakers' stand was decorated with the flags of all nations, symbolical of the support of Hon. F. G. Bromberg by men of all nationalities who are entitled to vote in this district.

The assemblage was called to order by Captain Geo. Thomas Cox, who announced the following list of officers:

George D. Bufkin, president.

P. C. Conley, Geo. S. Stewart, A. J. Ingersoll, Jno. Wylie, Dr. Rhette Goode, Dr. C. C. Sherland, P. E. Davidson, Moses Waring, Cecil Fleming, Wm. Kennedy, Wm. Wilson, A. Koppermith, Jas. McAleer, R. B. Gale, Daniel McNeil, Oliver Caldwell and Rob Beck, vice presidents.

H. L. Gaskill and F. A. Stoutz, secretaries.

On assuming the chair, Mr. Bufkin made a terse, vigorous and sensible speech, during which he said it was fully and finally settled that colored men were entitled to a vote; and he asked, are you not all satisfied with this? The response was hearty and general—in the affirmative. He urged that these votes should be sought, just as business men would seek trade; and declared it is a bright day for the south that the colored voters have broken the solid ranks in which they have marched to the polls.

Erwin Ledyard made an eloquent speech, in which he alluded at length to the flags of all nations unfolded there and the unanimity with which men of all nationalities support Mr. Bromberg for congress.

Hon. Fred'k G. Bromberg was introduced, and made a logical and convincing speech, which was applauded to the echo.

Major A. Pruhomme was invited to address the multitudes assembled there, and made one of his characteristic speeches, which was calm, dispassionate, practical and sensible.

It was the largest political demonstration that ever has been known in Mobile, and in numbers was at least three times as great as the Jones meeting but night in front of the court house, where there were nearly as many transparencies as people, an effort being made to compensate in glitter for the lack of numbers.

The effect of the Bromberg mass meeting was heightened by the fallen firemen, attached to which were fire works, under the direction of Professor Lood, and the captivating music of the Bromberg and Reform Band.

Bromberg Reciting at Whistler.

The Tilden and Bromberg mass meeting at Whistler last Friday evening was called to order by Mr. L. Schwartz, who announced the following list of officers:

President—Jacob Ziegler.

Vice presidents—Dr. McCarty, P. J. Collins, Chas. Vetter, J. Kocher, C. Hoskgel Eagle, Dr. Nettles, B. Furlong, C. Ackford, G. Taylor, A. McArthur, E. Vetter, S. McCarty, T. O'Rourke, L. Mantz, J. Miller, A. Schuppe, M. Cluer, P. J. Feeney, F. Feidman, S. Lasky, F. Sartorius, Riggles, M. Clifton, M. Campbell, vice presidents.

D. Ryan and G. Rimaney secretaries.

The meeting was an event for that locality. A large delegation from Mobile, accompanied by the Fire Department Brass Band, were welcomed at the depot with the wildest enthusiasm and escorted with torches and music to Odd Fellows' Hall, by far the largest in the place. Every seat in the hall was occupied, and there was but little vacant standing room.

Addresses were delivered by Captain Geo. Thomas Cox, R. P. Pleasant, esq., Dr. Cochran and Colonel J. M. Williams. The speakers were frequently applauded and their speeches evidently made a good impression on their hearers. The enthusiasm was irrepressible and almost unbounded.

The Tilden and Bromberg Glee Club of Mobile added materially to the interest of the occasion. At the close of the meeting a Tilden and Bromberg Reform Club was organized.

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT.

The Bromberg meeting last night was immense. The meeting at the court house "paled its ineffectual fires" beside it. Four to one: that was the estimate made of the difference. Well, we suppose that the polling next Tuesday will show about this equivalent. Four Bromberg men to one Jones man, and not a Tilden man omitted.

We are getting along handsomely in this honest business.

After the national thanksgiving, comes Christmas. Owen Farley, of the mammoth grocery house 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street, is preparing for both seasons. For thanksgiving puddings he has the richest raisins, for thanksgiving pies the nicest mince meat in packages of from five to two hundred pounds. For all days of the approaching festivities he has apple butter, quince butter, peach butter, oranges, apples, almonds, pecans and nuts of variots kinds, imported and domestic. Everything fresh from plantation poultry, for the soon coming egg nog. All the staple and fancy groceries and the choicest wines and purest liquors.

Attention is called to the advertisement of accountant in our columns today.

There will be a republican rally at the Mobile Theatre tomorrow evening, when Hon. S. F. Rice and Colonel M. D. Wickersham will advocate the election of Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg.

TELEGRAPH

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—The papers publish an address to the Republican voters of the State. The document is brief, but sharp, wise and to the point, and it projects that the voice of Massachusetts will be no uncertain one on Tuesday next.

FOR OR THE LOSERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Tuesday night the several poll-rooms were crowded to overflowing by thousands anxious to learn something about the election, and a large sum of money was invested during the evening on the results at Morrissey's. On the general result Tilden sold for $500, Hayes $375. On the result by the State of New York, Tilden $1,000, Hayes $400. $500 even was bet twice on twenty thousand majority for Tilden. With fifteen thousand majority $600 was bet once against $500. That Tilden will have 5,000 majority in New Jersey $500 even. At Johnson's and the Turf Exchange the odds vary a little on the general result. Tilden, $100; Hayes, $85. On the result in the state of New York—Tilden, $100; Hayes, $40. On the result in Indiana—Tilden, $100; Hayes, $45. On the result in New Jersey—Tilden, with seven thousand majority, $200 even. Tilden with twenty thousand majority in New York, $100 to $60.

In Philadelphia, the odds on Tilden are steady at $100 to $80 on the general result; $100 to $35 and $10 on the result in the State of New York; and $100 to $50 and $55 on the result in the State of New Jersey.

EPIDEMIC OF DIPTHERIA.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Malignant diphtheria prevails in Pine Bush, in this county. David Mitchell has lost four children, ranging from five to twelve years old within the last four days and R. E. Terry buried two on Monday last. There are a number of other cases in the village, and great anxiety prevails.

A CONVICT KILLED.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Wm. Payne, of a gang of 50 convicts, lopped through a car window and was killed.

SENTENCED.

SALEM, N. J., Nov. 4.—Wesdin, Goodwin and Collyer, found guilty of manslaughter by adding to the killing of the prize-fighter Walker, were sen enced to six years' imprisonment each in the Trenton Penitentiary. The remaining two prisoners, Clark and Neary, were sentenced to an imprisonment of two years.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—Notice of contest has been entered in Judge Cox against Judge Harmon, counsel pleas Judge Taylor against Wallace, sheriff, and Kerkoreth against Bernard, county clerk, charging frauds in the late election in this city. The contestants were all Republican candidates at the October election, and were defeated by small majorities.

A DE-PRADO SHOT DEAD.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 4.—W. B. Stewart, a desperado and citizen of the Indian nation, who murdered a man named Henry was arrested near Gatesville, Texas, on Tuesday by a deputy Federal Marshall; he attempted to escape and was shot dead.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune]

TILDEN'S CHANCES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4, 12:15 A. M.—Every day strengthens the general belief that Tilden will be elected. New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana are all close, and as likely to go Democratic as Republican; and now even Pennsylvania is regarded as doubtful by good practically conceded. The news received from North Carolina, Florida and Wisconsin is that those States may be relied on for Tilden. South Carolina and New Hampshire, Nevada and California are all close, and as likely to go Democratic as Republican; and now even Pennsylvania is regarded as doubtful by good judges. The Republican party there is much demoralized, and business men are disgusted with Grant's Southern policy.

There hardly seems room for a rational doubt that Tilden will be elected, and the odds in the New York polls are now $100 to $75 in his favor.

THE ARMISTICE.

LONDON, November 4.—The official announcement No. Two month's armistice from November 1st, hostilities to cease immediately, both armies retaining the positions occupied upon receiving the notice. It is understood that there are no other conditions attached.

Montenegro accepts the armistice on the same terms as Servia. It is stated that the Austrian Ambassador at St. Petersburg has been ordered to go to Livadia, and it is rumored that the Turkish Grand Vizier will go there also on a confidential mission.

A dispatch from Belgrade to the Times confirms the statement that the armistice, as accepted by the Porte, is unconditional.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 4.—The Foreign Ambassadors met at the residence of Sir Henry Elliot, the British Arabia sador, yesterday, to settle upon the method of determining a demarcation line between the belligerent armies.

FRANCE.

PARIS, November 4.—After debate on the bill for the association of the prosecutions against the Communists, which bill Dufaure opposed and Gambetta supported, the Chamber, by an overwhelming majority, voted to proceed with the discussion of the clauses of the bill. The issue is supposed to involve the resignation of the Cabinet.

WHITEHEADS.

Fifty cent admissions to the Centennial Exhibition continue to Nov ember 18th.

Judge Lochrane, acting as Supreme Court Commissioner, at New York, has granted an order extending the term of Henry Ward Beecher to answer the amended complaint of Francis D. Moulton, twenty days.

Nine cars and a locomotive were precipitated through a bridge a distance of thirty feet, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, ten miles east of Monroeville, West Virginia, yesterday morning. The engineer, named Hamilton, was killed and an unknown man on the caboose was seriously injured.

The interments at Savannah 14, where of 7 were from yellow fever; five of the burials were colored. The weather very warm. Henry E. Backus, formerly of the firm of A. H. Wade & Co., is dead.

SUNDAY.....NOVEMBER 5

IN A NUTSHELL.

Editor Tribune:—The chief stumbling block in the way of the opponents of Mr. Bromberg, is that colored men mean to vote for him, and that he was "endorsed" by the Republicans, yet the Register of —— inst. boastfully proclaimed the fact, that Mr. Jones would receive a large colored vote in Marengo. As Mr. Bromberg is a Democrat, there is no more harm in his being voted for by colored men than there is in Mr. Jones being voted for by colored men. The thing is as broad as it is long, and that is the whole of it, cant and hypocrisy to the contrary notwithstanding. Neither Mr. Bromberg nor Mr. Jones is the regular nominee of the Democracy so that every Democrat is at liberty to vote as he may see proper, giving, of course, the preference to ability and experience. Here Mr. Bromberg outranks Mr. Jones by long odds, inasmuch as Mr. Jones was never in a legislative body and is totally inexperienced and raw. This fact is notorious and indisputable, and should have great weight with intelligent and patriotic Democrats, who sincerely desire reform. The first step towards reform is to select for public office the best qualified and most experienced men; and this rule requires the election of Mr. Bromberg over Mr. Jones.

The superior experience of Mr. Bromberg will undoubtedly render him the more useful member of congress; enabling him to effect more to the improvement of the harbor of Mobile. Enlightened self-interest then should lead Mobile to give him a heavy vote.

To show how much downright cant and sheer hypocrisy there is in the outcry about Mr. Bromberg's being voted for by colored men, I clip the following extract from the New Orleans Democrat of 28th ult:

The Democrats nominated several colored men for offices in Iberville, and now the Iberville Republican is bowling at what it calls "Democratic inconsistency."

In Louisiana, Democrats nominate and vote for negroes without losing caste; in Alabama, Bromberg is sought to be defeated because negroes intend voting for him. The Selma Times is appealing lustily to the negroes to vote for Gen. Shelly, and recently told them if Gen. Shelly was elected, it would be by negro votes, and that he would protect their rights.

Is Democracy two-faced and forked tongued? Is it a chameleon? I hope it is not. If Mr. Bromberg gets a fair vote in Mobile, he will be triumphantly elected, and the people will have an able, honest and experienced representative on the floor of congress. COUNTRYMAN.

THE DEMOCRACY

OF MOBILE COUNTY

place in nomination for Congress from the First Congressional District of Alabama, the name of the

HON. F. G. BROMBERG,

subject to the action of a Democratic Convention of this District.

Resolved, By the people of Mobile in mass meeting assembled:

1. That the recent action of the Convention assembled, at Jacksonville, excluding, from that Convention the whole Mobile delegation of thirty-two votes, is an outrage to which no free people can consent to submit, and against which we enter our most solemn protest.

2. That we denounce the said Jackson Convention as an illegal and arbitrary body, and in no way representing the Democratic party of the First Congressional District; that we refuse to be bound in any way by its action, and we repudiate utterly the nomination made by it.

3. That we demand of the District Executive Committee, and of the Democratic party of the District, that the arbitrary and illegal action of the Jackson Convention be set aside; that a new convention be called composed of delegates from the people, so that a fair, honest nation may be had; and we make this demand because we only in this way that justice can be done and harmony restored within our ranks of the party.

4. That we refuse to admit the nominee of the Jackson Convention as the nominee of the Democratic party of the district, and we there fore feel under no obligations or party loyalty to give him our support at the polls in the approaching election.

5. That inasmuch as there is no nominee of the Democratic party in the field, we hereby place in nomination, for member of Congress from this District, the Hon. F. G. Bromberg, of Mobile.

6. That we are resolved to keep Mr. Bromberg's name before the people of this district for this position so long as the nominee of the Jackson Convention is kept in the field; but if our demand for another convention is conceded, or that the will of the people can be fairly expressed, we hold Mr. Bromberg's name subject to the action of such convention, and pledge ourselves to abide by the result

The National Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT:

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,

OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT:

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,

OF INDIANA,

FOR CONGRESS,

(FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT)

FREDERICK G. BROMBERG,

OF MOBILE.

THE ELECTORAL TICKET

ELECT-AT LARGE:

JOHN T. MORGAN, of Dallas.
JAMES L. PUGH, of Barbour.

DISTRICT ELECTORS:

1. SYDNEY T. PRINCE, of Chester.
2. JAMES T. HOLTZCLAW, of Montgomery.
3. JAMES F. WOODWARD, of Russell.
4. JOHN Y. KILLEBREW, of Wilcox.
5. WM. H. NORTHINGTON, of Autauga.
6. WILLIAM G. LITTLE, Jr., of Sumter.
7. SAMUEL R. McSPADDEN, of Cherokee.
8. HENRY C. JONES, of Lauderdale.

Seventy-five cents a bushel is the quoted price of peanuts in Montgomery.

The contributions for the relief of Savannah foot up nearly $90,000. Most of it was gathered at the North.

The last news from the interior counties assures us that everything is working admirably for Bromberg. Do your duty in Mobile and you can count on his election as surely as that the sun will rise tomorrow.

There is a very rational probability that Tilden and Hendricks will be elected by to-day's vote. It is not certain; and our people seem to have forgotten the value of it in pursuit of Bromberg, Jones or Turner. We shall to-day elect Bromberg. Thirty-eight states have the Tilden business in charge.

DON'T BELIEVE THEM.

There will be many schemes to day to deceive the people. A lie now well-contrived has only a few hours to live. Those who invent it will have no care for it to morrow, if it work out its purpose to day.

Believe nothing to-day, whether it be told by Bromberg, Jones or Turner men.

Go and vote: and kill off cliques or approve them. Kill 'em. That is what is needed here in Mobile county. Kill them, or, like men who are willing to submit to the lash, approve them. You can take either side. No man, we trust, will trouble you in voting any way you please.

YELLOW FEVER.

From the 1st Sept. to Oct. 28, there were 1197 deaths in Savannah, of which 837 were from yellow fever. Of the whole number 419 were children and 329 colored. There was a special census of the city taken on the 20th ult. It showed a total population of 18,967—11,938 of which were colored. A communication in the News says:

SOMETHING FOR REFLECTION TO-DAY.

Mobile county, it is stated, pays about one-sixth of the taxes of the whole state. How many more times than the rest of the counties of the Congressional District, we dagnot know; but, at a moderate estimate, it may be about twenty to one. Mobile had a representation at Jackson of 32: the other counties had a representation of 33. This shows that Mobile, which pays so much of the taxes, lacked only one vote to be a majority within the District. This deserves some consideration from our friends of the interior.

Mr. Jones lives and has his interests at the extreme upper end of the District. That is no shame to him: but it is one of the potent reasons why we of Mobile should have a representative in Congress. He knows nothing of Mobile except what information he has picked up by going through it. He knows little or nothing of the commercial relations which the city has to all the counties of the district, and to a great many others that are not comprised within it. He has no, or little, knowledge, of what we need here, and what, under proper and wise solicitation, it may get from Congressional action.

Without experience, and with no national prestige, it is quite likely that he would be a mere cipher at Washington—a figure-head there without influence, waiting a couple of years to see what ought to be done, and then coming home, without doing anything.

In this one mean nothing dis-pectful to Mr. Jones, for every person who knows him says that he is a trustworthy gentleman.

Mobile requires something more than this. It has a full moral right to the representation of the district. A proper representative will not only this city, but, by his influence, help every man within the District.

It is especially important that our citizens should think of this. If they believe that a mere party organization with purposes that no man can find out, is superior to the welfare of this city, let them go up to the polls like men and vote for Jones. They have the right to do it, and no man has a right to blame them for anything except their folly.

We do not intend to eulogize Mr. Bromberg. His work lies before us. He has been a true man to all our interests, and by his skill, and expe rience, and influence, can be of inestimable service—not to us alone, but to every taxpayer within the District.

What his reputation is at the North—which we must placate to be prosperous—will be found in a brief extract from the New York Herald, that may be found in another part of to-day's paper.

WHAT THE HERALD SAYS.

The New York Herald of Thurs day has an article on independent voting, in which are enumerated the candidates for congress who ought to be elected "To begin with Alabama," it says, "we hope for the election of Mr. F. G. Bromberg, who is the independent democratic candidate in the first district. He served with credit in the last Congress, and showed himself there a friend of sound currency, of civil service, reform and all good legislation. * * * We advise the independent voter to disregard entire ly the bonds of party in voting for Congressmen, and cast his vote and influence for the finest man. The next congress will have work to do which will require unusual intelligence, knowledge of public interests and unselfish devotion to the general good."

CLOSE UP!

Close up your shops to day for a few hours. Let every man be at the polls and keep his eyes and his ears open. Scrutinize the right of doubtful voters: keep their ballots out of the boxes; and afterwards see that the boxes are not manipulated. It is known that in the past boxes were fraudulently dealt with. Fight, rather than submit to a repetition of the fraud.

LOOK OUT.

Look out for false words to-day. In the shape of little proclamations, issued every hour or two, you will be told that Bromberg is nowhere in the interior—that Turner is every where—but that Jones will be elected. This is what may be called lying, if that were not a very coarse word—but lying in a political canvass, which, among the leaders of parties is generally considered as leaning to virtue's side. "The end," these people think, "justifies the means," which end is to get control of all the offices. Don't to-day be deceived by any mendacious bulletins.

Our information from the interior countries is that, while Mr. Bromberg within them will run behind Jones, he will get in all of them a handsome vote. We know enough to think that he may carry Marengo county over either of the other candidates. There is some apprehension that as Turner, as it is said, was put up, so he may also come down, and try to turn what few followers he has over to Jones; but we believe that more than a moiety of them will vote for Mr. Bromberg.

This county of Mobile is fixed in the purpose of a vast majority of its voters. Two-thirds of the white men are in favor of Mr. Bromberg. Turner may get one or two hundreds of the colored citizens, and all the rest of the honest ones will vote for Mr. Bromberg.

A gentleman who has watched the whole canvass with cool and intelligent carefulness left his record here last Saturday night. It is written on our wall: 4357 majority in Mobile county for Bromberg! Perhaps it will reach 5000.

How our colored fellow citizens can vote for any candidate, except Mr. Bromberg is one of those things that are inexplicable, except on the presumption of ignorance or bribery.

Apropos of this, is the following brief extract from the Capital (news paper) at Washington:

"Suits have at last been brought against General O. O. Howard as a defaulter to the Freedman's Bureau and Howard University. One claims $30,000 the other $150,000. Nothing but legal investigation can reach the bottom of this affair. Congressional investigations have been tried, with no other success than the dismissal of General Howard to new pastures."

Mr. Bromberg exposed the rascality of Howard. If it had not been for him, not one dollar would been saved from that cheating machine called the "Freedman's Bank." Something may be got from the debris of the rascality, and that will be done by the WOODS and intelligent investigation set on foot by Mr. Bromberg.

That bank, we think, was under the auspices, if not the supervision, of the government; and we believe that the taxpayers would be willing that the government should make good the losses of the industrious persons who entrusted it with their hard-earned savings. We know that the depositors believed and were made to believe that the government was the trustee for it.

To bring it home, our pressman—an industrous and worthy man—had thirty dollars in the Mobile branch of the swindling concern. He says that he would like to have the dollars in his pocket. That is rational. Perhaps Mr. Bromberg, by the instrumentality of Congress, can get them for him.

LOOK OUT!

Look out for protocols to-day. They will be issued, and declare that if Bromberg be elected the country, if not the whole universe, will fall into what may be called cataclysm. That is a bad thing, as all of you know. It means that we shall be without persons to tell us when we shall vote for, when offices are to be filled. That is exactly what it means.

MAKE IT FIVE.

Over four thousand is the estimated majority for Bromberg within this county.

Why not make it five? The boys can do it, if they try.

It is expected that Mr. Turner will get one or two hundred votes—a few more, or a few less.

LOOK OUT!

Jones has considerable strength in this district. There is no doubt of that. The Picksniffs intimate that Turner may beat Jones: and, of course, they reduce the canvass to the Jones, and Turner. The schemers, who manage Turner and Jones, are entirely ignorant of the great power that lies here in Mobile in opposition to both of them. That power will show itself to-day, unless there be more rascality in the polling than we think is possible. The Bromberg men ought to understand this. Let them keep their eyes open. There may be some rascality afoot.

Some of the desirable things for to-day's uses, are, first, that there shall be no cheating. Secondly it there be, that the rogues be marched to the guard house: thirdly, let there be the most rigorous scrutiny in the case of doubtful votes. We trust that there will be no occasion for scandal in respect of the fairness of the election: fourthly, it is all-essential that there shall be good-humor on the occasion, no matter what the counting at the polls may show. The man who provokes a row is not a good citizen, for, as Shakespeare says, as well as we can recollect the words, force is the worst argument that a man can use, and it ought to be the last.

This business rises much above the level of party schemes or cupidities. It may demonstrate whether men, politically, are fit for self-government. We doubt it; but one of Mobile may exhibit an exception in respect of this doubt.

And, lastly, believe no canards that, it is likely, will be flying about, in order to deceive the geese who have a right to vote. The goose voter may be shot, and not the man who contrives the canard.

We give this advice after a prayerful consideration of the subject; and before midnight, if our advice be taken, we shall find over 4000 majority for Bromberg in the ballot boxes—perhaps 5000. That will be more than enough to send him to congress. Turner is not in the business at all—notwithstanding the very ludicrous estimates of our vis a-vis the Register.

Especially, looks out for the cards. They may be flying from Spring Hill to the river front.

There were eight deaths in Montgomery last week, of which seven were colored.

Just received from Colonel Picasani's orange orchard, 25 barrels of stately choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

The New Orleans Republican of Sunday says:

"Some members of the Mobile fire department visited this city to make a close examination of the Babcock fire extinguishing machines, with a view to adopting them in their department."

The Female Minstrels.

The entertainment by Madame Rentz's Minstrels, at Odd Fellows' Hall last night attracted more people than could obtain seats there. The familiar musical burlesque of Ixion was pleasingly rendered, and all the olio performances were warmly applauded. Second and last entertainment this evening.

The musical burlesque of "Fra Diavolo" tonight cannot fail to fill the house, as it is an excellent performance when well rendered.

Habeas Corpus.

Before Judge Semmes, of the city court yesterday, on a writ of habeas corpus were brought Alfred Broadus, William Allen and Joseph Maples, committed to jail without bail by Justice McCormick for complicity in the shooting for Fincher and Thomas at Wheelerville. The three first named were admitted to bail in the sum of $700 each and the latter in the sum of $950. Thomas has so much improved that he is considered out of danger and Fincher was subdued.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

TELEGRAPH

Revenge for Bromberg.

The following private dispatch was received in this city last evening:

DEMOPOLIS, November 6.

I have just arrived from Jefferson beat. There was a large meeting there, and the last of the canvass in Marengo, All right for Hayes, Wheeler and Bromberg. Bromberg will get three thousand votes within the county.

THE FIGURES OF FOOLS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The pools sold on the coming election this evening at Morrissey's pool room were as follows: On the general result, Tilden $1000, Hayes $750; on a majority of 20,000 for Tilden in the State of New York, Tilden $1000, Hayes $200; on the vote in the State of New York, Tilden $1000, Hayes $350.

New York, Nov. 5.—The following pools were sold last night: On the general result, Tilden $500, $400, $250; Hayes $100, $300, $200; on the State of New York, Tilden $500, $250; Hayes $75, $100.

TILDEN ELOQUENT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—After the Democratic torchlight procession at Brooklyn last night Gov. Tilden was entertained at a hotel by his political friends and made a brief speech. He said: This contest is the greatest, the most interesting, the most solemn, the most momentous that has happened since the revolution.

The question is whether we shall have a united, harmonious Government and country, representing the people of all politics, sections and races; whether we shall join our friends and carry forward the great principles to which we have been engaged in domestic broils. Can New York and Brooklyn be prosperous under the operation of a policy that destroys one half of the country? Can they bear that? I have been told that if I should happened to be elected that I should have great trouble with the South. There may be difficulties in bringing back people to the administration which they desire, but I do not apprehend there will be any difficulty with the South. I believe that, with unanimous accord, we can carry on the Government on the basis established by the results of the war.

Under any there was a great cry about the rebel claims. I understand that Parson Brownlow was circulating my letter to get votes for the Republican cause. I am very happy to have him do that. That letter was supposed to be a lack of courage and boldness. I did not suppose that it was an act either of courage or boldness to make a declaration in which both North and South agree. I am sure that the spirit has now become universal in the South to share in the common duties of citizenship. I believe that if the election turns in favor of the Democratic ticket, it will produce a political millennium. Our citizens will begin to hear the rays of sun that the war has made in their business. Our people can turn from ruin, from discord, to prosperity. We are not prosperous.

How can we be prosperous when we have done nothing but contend against one another for twenty years; when our public representatives have been legislating as a class against a class; have imposed a burdensome taxation; have been guilty of a carnival of public plunder, and erecting a class of office-holders against the people. In the Old World the governing classes have been able, with the help of the army to maintain an ascendency over the people. In our country we did not think this possible. It did not address itself to the understanding of American citizens. It is now that we find the case is different, that the government class have made it possible in the ordinary division of parties to make it a difficult contest against the mass of the people. I feel perhaps more than any one else how difficult it is for a private man to maintain a contest against the Government, the contest of the people against their unworthy servants.

I do not doubt the issues of that contest, and when the result shall be declared I believe that it will be a subject of congratulation not only among us but in the large number of those who will vote with us, because the Government has to be saved not only from the wrong-doers but from the weak men who go with the wrong-doers who have to be saved in spite of themselves, and cannot be depended upon to maintain the right.

I have felt lately since I have seen the names of various men signed to the calls of our antagonists, that I have entertained a notion of human weakness greater than I have ever entertained before. Knowing what they have said to me and my friends, I see these men have to be saved by the power of the common people from their own weakness.

The Governor then returned thanks for the compliment tendered him and withdrew.

The Daily Tribune.

TUESDAY.....NOVEMBER 7

A merchantile agency in Toronto professed to make, through its system of espionage, a correct statement of the status of a retail dealer. The presumed knowledge was sold to a wholesale dealer, who sold to the retailer on the purchased hypothesis that he would receive the money for his goods. The retailer absconded, and the wholesaler recovered $524 at law from the mercantile agency, and a higher court has affirmed the judgment.

The compositor who made Mr. Tupper "indigest" instead of "independent" has since explained that he took it for granted all poets were poor. But he should have remembered that Mr. Tupper was not a poet. —Chicago Tribune.

The territories of Russia in Turkestan cover 490,000 English square miles, or a space as large as the American Empire, Germany, and Belgium combined. But the population is only 2,500,000, or less than that of Switzerland.

The other day a man was hung at Tanna Fort, near Bombay, for a horrible murder, and made rather a notable observation in Gujerati. Stand fog under the drop, he whispered to the executioner, "in one minute what a lot I shall know!"

A traveler in the East once saw a man who had once lost his legs by leprosy, mounted on the shoulders of one who had lost his arms by the same disease—the first mentioned sowing grain, while the latter did the locomotion.

Twenty-nine thousand dollars have been received from a Virginia City (Nev.,) gambling saloon in the way of license. The money is collected monthly and gambling is not restricted at all.

Patents obtained in the United States Canada and Europe; terms as low as those of any other reliable house. Correspondence is solicited in the English and foreign languages, with Inventors, Attorneys at Law and other solicitors, especially with those who have had their cases REJECTED in the hands of other attorneys. In rejected cases our fees are reasonable, and no charge is made unless we are successful. If you want a Patent, send us a model or sketch, and a full description of your invention. We will make an examination at the Patent Office, and if we think it patentable, will send you papers and advice, and prosecute your case. Our fee will be, in ordinary cases, $25.

How They Make Pins.

A snappish, voracious little dwarf of a machine pulls in the wire, bites it off by inches incessantly, one hundred and forty bites a minute, and just as it seizes each bite a saucy little hammer with a concave face hits the end of the wire three taps and "upsets" it to a head while he grips it in a countersunk hole between his teeth and lays it sidewise in a groove where levers and springs, playing like lightning, point the pins, and whence they are dropped into a box. The pins are then polished, and two very intelligent machines reject every crooked pin. Another automaton inserts half a dozen lengths, and a perfect genius of a machine hangs all pins by the heads and transfers them to slips of paper and by one movement sticks them all through two corrugated ridges in the paper, when the work is finished. The pin machine is one of the nearest approaches to the dexterity of the human hand that has been invented. It is about the size of a sewing machine, which it closely resembles.

A Queer Way to Harden Butter

An English butter maker of large experience, who is now on a visit to this country for the purpose of looking over our cheese and butter dairies, gives us the following information concerning a method in practice among the best butter makers in England for rendering butter firm and solid during hot weather: Carbonate of soda and alum are used for the purpose, made into powder. Put twenty pounds of the butter one teaspoonful of carbonate of soda and one teaspoonful of powdered alum are mingled together at the time of churning and put into the cream. The effect of this powder is to make the butter more firm and solid, and to give it a clean, sweet flavor. It does not enter into the butter, but its action is upon the cream; and it passes off with the buttermilk. The impurities of the powder should not be mingled together until required to be used, or at the time the cream is in the churn ready for churning.

Every Day Religion.

We must come back to our point, which is, not to urge all of you to give yourselves up to mission work or to serve God more and more in connection with your daily calling; have heard that a woman who has mission makes a poor wife and a mother; this is very possible, and the same time very lamentable; at the mission I would urge is not this sort. Dirty rooms slatternly ness, and children with unwashed faces are swift witnesses against the sacrity of those who keep others' wards and neglect their own. I am no faith in that woman who is of grease and glory abroad, and no soap and water at home. the buttons be on the shirts, let children's socks be mended, let roast mutton be done to a turn, he house be as neat as a new pin, d the home be as happy as home be. Serve God by doing common actions in a heavenly spirit, and not by daily calling ugly leaves crashes and crevices of time these up with holy service.—Spurgeon.

George Ripley and Charles A. Dana said to have cleared over $80,000 their share of the profits on the old pleton's Cyclopœdia, and will probably receive as much more for ling the new editions.

Jennie Lind has presented 40,000 crowns to the Stockholm Academy of the Liberal Arts to aid poor students.

The Baltimore Bulletin says that "when Gen. Burnside is at home in Rhode Island, the shadow of his side whiskers trespasses upon Massachusetts and Connecticut."

Mrs. Phebe A. Hanaford, Universalist minister in Jersey City, recently performed the marriage ceremony at her daughter's wedding. This is perhaps the first instance in the world in which a lady has been married by her own mother.

What Rats are Good For.

Of what use is the rat to man? Well, not very much that we know of; yet a few items may be mentioned. Probably we must not attach much importance to the alleged prophetic powers of the rat—that it be gnawa person's clothes, that person will speedily die; that if he suddenly quits a house, the house will very shortly be burned down; that if he deserts a ship, the ship is in a sinking state. A mill at Peebels was suddenly deserted by a whole colony of rats about twenty years ago; two hours afterward the mill was burned down. But it must be confessed that the logic is very weak which proves, from these facts, the possession of any prophetic power by Mr. Rat. We have evidence that he has sometimes been made useful as an R. E. for A. James, in his military dictionary, says: "Rats are sometimes used in military operations, particularly in enterprises for the purpose or setting fire to gunpowder. On these occasions a lighted match is tied to the tail of the animal. Marshal Vauban recommends, therefore, that the walls of powder magazines should be made very thick, and the passage for light and air so narrow as not to admit rats. We do do not know whether a cruel sport can be called a useful employment of rats; but an account is given of a strange proceeding at Rome. A large number of rats were dipped in spirits of turpentine, set on fire, and made to rush down an open flight of steps near the Vatican; they reached the bottom as masses of charred flesh, amid the shouts of the populace. Rats are worth three shillings a dozen, to furnish a supply to those brutal exhibitions in which rat killing terriers show their power. Rats are also caught for the value of their skins. There is a firm at Paris which buys the skin for this purpose: The fur is dressed into a very good substitute for beaver; while the pelt or membrane is dressed into leather so fine, elastic and close as to be used for the thumbs of the best gloves. If one believes that rats are not used for human food, he must change his opinion. In Paris, the chiffoniers or bone grabbers eat them. Gypsies eat such rats as are caught in stacks and barns, and are less strong in flavor and odor than those that feed omnivorously. In China, split rats are bought as a delicacy. An English surgeon of some note had them cooked for his own eating. In a manner war, where the rats made havoc with the biscuit, the sailors had a regular battle, and brought down numbers of them; Jack made a rat pie, baked it, and liked it. At the siege at Malta, the French garrison, when famished, offered as much as a dollar a head for rats, or two dollars if barn-fed. During the siege of Paris, in the late Franco-German war many tasted it before.

The death of Cardinal Antonelli, which occurred at Rome last Monday, removes one of the most astute statesmen of Europe.

Two Californians, who four years ago planted 1000 acres in walnuts and almonds, will net over $250,000 from this year's crop.—Exchange.

The Meridian Mercury has the following note:

There are five car loads of compressed cotton on the M. & O. Railroad side track to go direct to Liverpool through Mobile by way of New Orleans.

Well, there is something in this to provoke reflection. It is not an agreeable fact, but the refusing to see it will not lessen its value.

The merchants are the persons to come to conclusions in respect of it.

Every paper now seems to be praising the New York World—not because it has got a new suit of clothing, or reduced its price. These are things that may be got without much merit. We praise it not on account of its politics—although that is something—but because it seems to us to be an honest paper—full of all sorts of good qualities, but especially honest. This is an uncommon and a most estimable merit in a great paper like the World.

EXCERPTS.

Here are some excerpts which a wise young lady of Mobile sends us:

Be discreet and sparing of your words.

Awkwardness is a great misfortune, but it is not an unpardonable fault.

To deserve the reputation of moving in good society something more is requisite than the avoidance of blunt rudeness.

Strictly keep to your engagements.

Punctuality is the essence of politeness.

One is often judged by appearances, and seldom incorrectly.

A neat exterior, equally free from extravagance and poverty, always proclaims a right-minded person.

There never was any party, or faction, whatsoever, in which the most ignorant were not the most violent! for a bee is not a busier animal than a blockhead.—Pope.

The wheel of fortune turns incessantly round, and who can say within himself, I shall to-day be uppermost?

A clerical lecturer the other evening informed his auditors that the colour of the negro is the blind which nature has drawn over his face to keep out the heat from the system.

If your lips
Would keep from slips,
Five things observe with care—
Of whom you speak,
To whom you speak,
And how, and when, and where.

IT IS OVER.

What is over? Why, the election. We are glad of that, for we shall have peace, and, we hope, no prejudice left as a residuum of the heated contest.

It is worthy of mention that in Mobile there has been much kindly feeling in all the canvass. Jones men and Bromberg men have taken their "glasses," and, as is the manner of gentlemen, left each to have his own opinion.

This shows that we have men among us.

Sam Brown gave Jim Smith a black eye. In short, he knocked him down. These two young chaps were engaged in politics. Each loved the other, but they "fell out," as men will, and they fought, and afterwards we saw the two fools shaking hands, and saying, the one to the other, that there was no ill-feeling, and so they "combined," and went out and fell each into the ranks of his own procession.

The one was angry because the other was not a Bromberg man. It was the Jones man who got a black eye.

All this amounts to nothing more than that men will differ and fight for it, if, as each of them may think, it becomes necessary. It is not necessary at all.

You choose to declare that the sun sets in the east. I declare that it sets in the west. You say that the moon is made of green cheese, and that there is a man in it. Neither may be a believer in what the other says.

AFTERWARDS.

Yesterday was a splendid day for the purpose of saving the country; and we suppose that it has been saved. The sun, no doubt, has risen this morning as usual. Mobile stands exactly where it did the day before. If Mr. Bromberg be elected, it may, after awhile, present a better appearance. What we have said of him in respect of his value to this county and the whole District, whether he be defeated or not, we repeat. There has been no insincerity in these columns on the subject.

The welfare of Mobile, which we have stood up to for a good many years, was the inspiring motive for desiring the election of Mr. Bromberg, for it did not require much mental astuteness to see that he would be the most influential man at Washington of those who were in the field for the office.

And the prosperity of Mobile is, in some measure, the prosperity not only of the counties of this District, but of the whole state, and the prosperity of the state at large may be increased or marred by our representative in Congress—our representative from this District.

The election is over, and we are glad of it. Among the Bromberg men there was no unfriendly feeling. They thought that they had a duty to perform—prompted by self-respect. What they have accomplished, in pursuit of this laudable purpose, we shall know before any man goes to church next Sunday.

Yesterday was a splendid day for voting. It was too cool for most persons to get warm, and at this writing we have heard of no one being warm. It is, however, at at this writing, not midnight.

Yesterday it was industriously rumored about the streets that General Sherman was in New Orleans with ten thousand troops. Gen. Sherman is in New York or was last Friday. The ten thousand men in buckram—that is those of them that are not dealing with the Indians. Little Phil. Sheridan may be in Louisiana with a few squads of soldiers.

River News.

The Mary brought in 881 bales of cotton, 200 bundles iron ties, a short list of sundries and several passengers.

The Mary, owing to the suspension of business among shippers yesterday, deferred her departure for Selma and Montgomery till this evening at five o'clock. Captain John Quill goes out as master and Mr. Jimmy Quill as clerk. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The new steamer Mary Boyd, Captain Woodie Stone master and A. H. Usery clerk, will start on her initial trip this evening at five o'clock for Tuscaloosa and Northport Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Montgomery Journal says Captain Beebee, who left Mobile a few days ago with his new boat, which is to ply between Washington Landing and Wetumpka in the general freight and wood business, thinks he can deliver first class wood at the wharf in Montgomery at nearly fifty per cent. less than is now paid.

Fast Mail Trains.

The Washington Star says it is the impression among prominent post-office officials that the commission provided for by congress to investigate the subject of railway mail transportation will take strong grounds, in their forthcoming report, in favor of the re-establishment of fast mail trains, and will support their recommendation by the best evidence of their necessity. The business men of this country, especially those of the south and west, urge their re-establishment, and it is quite possible that congress will renew the service. This can not be done until the claim for increased compensation is considered, when every facility is promised by the railroad companies.

Black Walnut Timber.

Black walnut timber, one of the products of Alabama, has become so firmly established as a desirable material for furniture and cabinet work, that it is not probable that its present high value will be lessened, more especially as the visible supply is becoming rapidly exhausted. Two years ago, black walnut timber was bought "on the stump," that is standing in the woods, at two dollars a thousand feet. It is now saleable at $30 to $35 a thousand, and for burls of beautifully veined or stocked timber, much more is paid. A tree, 24 inches in diameter, three feet from the ground, and with a stem 60 feet high, will make a thousand feet, and should therefore be worth $30 to $35 as it stands. As it is a rapid grower, there is unquestionably a good profit in planting this timber at the current prices.

American Literature.

The current British Quarterly Review in an article on "American Centennial," has the following civil paragraph:

"But a few words can be said here on American literature. No one will ask now, "Who reads an American book?" Bather may it be asked, "Who does not?" American has given no supremely great genius to the world. Her people have been engaged in taming the wild and shaggy continent, and so literature, But America has nearly, if not quite, kept pace with England in literary production In poetry there are the names of Bryant Emerson, Lowell, Longfellow, and other lesser celebrities; in fiction Hawthorne stands in the foremost rank of literary artists; in history, Bancroft, Prescott and Motley form a trio of whom any nation might be proud, in science, Asa Gray, Dana, Draper and others are men of deserved eminence; while in language and philology Marsh and Whitney shed a lustre on American scholarship. Then we have the rich native humor of the Biglow Papers, the rare and subtle thoughts of Emerson's "Essays," and the genial laughter and tender pathos of the "Autocrat." American has had many students of philosophy, especially of the transcendental school of Germany, but she has as yet produced no philosophers, excepting the great New England theologian, Jonathan Edwards.

Grand Triumph of the People

Vindication of their Candidate

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY FOR BROMBERG

The election in Mobile yesterday was one of the most quiet, orderly and peaceable that we ever held, and a full vote was cast, every facility having been extended to enfranchise those desired to deposit their ballots.

The grand result in the various wards of the city, and precincts of the county, as far as returns have been received, is as follows:

	Bromberg	Jones	Turner
1st ward—	446	230	13
2nd ward—	91	65	9
3rd ward—	121	67	10
4th ward—	339	174	14
5th ward—
6th ward—	954	194	87
7th ward—	1038	191	59
8th ward—	880	468	13
Whistler—maj.	59
Napoleonville—	82	81
Ulcamia—	56	43	4

It will be seen by the foregoing figures that Bromberg has carried every ward in the city, together with Whistler and Napoleonville, the latter having been regarded as one of the strongholds of Jones. Also Clemuts.

The majority for Houston last August in the city of Mobile was 423. Bromberg's majority now is 2820. Bromberg gets in the city 4204 votes, Jones 1384, Turner 164. Bromberg's majority in Mobile, not including the 5th ward 2820.

Presidential election.

At the hour of going to press, no definite returns had been received as to the result in any of the states. By four or five o'clock in the morning, it was believed, sufficient returns will be received to indicate the general result.

A private dispatch to Colonel A. J. Ingersoll from Chicago, received here at 3:50 p. m. yesterday, says Indiana (with 15 electoral vote) has gone democratic sure, Ohio (with 22 electoral votes) probably republican. Another dispatch from New York to the same gentleman, received here at 4:40 p. m., says "Tilden is the favorite both in city and state."

A dispatch was received at a late hour last evening to the purport that Wisconsin (with 10 electoral votes) had gone democratic.

Dr. W. H. Ross Jr., has just arrived from the quarantine station, after an absence of six months, and can be found at his office corner of Conti and St. Emanuel streets.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 64, minimum 45, a range of 16 degrees.

TELEGRAPH

A VEHICLE COLLISION.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—A collision of vehicles occurred in Lonsdale Sunday evening, by which Mrs. Mary Keogh was killed, and Miss Mary Ann Moran injured fatally.

HEAVY BURGLARY.

New York, Nov. 6.—The store of E. O. Eibraman & Co., 62 Worth street, was entered and robbed of silks, value of $9,000, between Saturday night and Sunday morning. No clue.

FOUND DEAD.

New York, Nov. 7.—The body of Philip Ottmar, a wealthy butcher, who has been missing for some time, was found in East Jersey yesterday.

BARRACKS BURNED.

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Madison Barracks at Sackett's harbor was partially destroyed by fire. The fire broke out in the officers' quarters, and was confined to them. The fire department of this city was called on for assistance, and responded, but owing to the inability to procure railroad transportation did not go. General Ayres' quarters was saved, badly damaged. The quartermaster's and commissary stores were destroyed and a large amount of property lost, estimated at $50,000. No insurance. Cause of fire unknown.

FLAX FACTORY BURNED.

Cincinnati, Nov. 7.—Boyce's flax factory, at Muncie, Ind., was burned Saturday night. Loss $25,000.

DEAD.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—E. J. Peck, for merly president of the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railroad, died yesterday.

CLOSED.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 6.—The Produce's and Manufacturer's Bank closed its doors yesterday. There has been a run during the week. The assets are considered ample.

BURNED.

Little Rock, Nov. 7.—The Heingle House, a German boarding house, at the north end of Rock street, was destroyed by fire. Patrick Shea and John Cooney perished in the flames.

SUPREME COURT.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Miss Belva A. Lockwood made application to practice before the Supreme Court. In making the motion to admit her, Mr. O. O. Biddle said Miss Lockwood had practiced at the bar of the District Court more than three years, and was therefore within the rule of the court in this respect.

Chief Justice Waite said he had been instructed to announce the following decision:

By the uniform practice of the court from its organization to the present time, and by the fair construction of its rules none but men are admitted to practice before it as attorneys and counselors. This is in accordance with a memorable usage in England and the law and practice of all the States, until within a recent period, and the court does not feel called upon to make a change until such a change is required by statute or a more extended practice in the highest courts of the States. Wherenpon Miss Lock wood and her friend withdrew.

The case of the United States vs. Farrary et als., from East Tennessee, reversed.

The Home Insurance Company vs. the City Council of Augusta, Ga.—Error to the Supreme Court of Georgia.—In this case the court sustains a tax of $2500 imposed by the City Council of Augusta on all fire, marine and accidental insurance companies located or doing business within the limits of the city; there being no discrimination in the law against non-resident companies, and the authority therefor being found in the police power of the State. The decision was unanimous.

YELLOW FEVER.

Savannah, Nov. 6.—Total interments to day 9, of which 6 were from yellow fever. Adolph Gemm, of the firm of Gemm & Lotter, died to day.

The Boston Methodist ministers have voted, forty to eight, "that we hereby disapprove of the policy of holding camp-meeting on the Sabbath."

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mobile, July 31st, 1876.

Messrs. Alexander, Sr. John & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Luxury Soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Colophyle's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture some best pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

CHAS. ROEB,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

Mobile, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soad made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.

WEDNESDAY....NOVEMBER 8

From an official statement prepared for the Postmaster General it appears that the operations of the free delivery system for the year ending June 30, 1876, were as follows: Number of offices, 87; number of letter-carriers, 2,260; number of letters and postal cards delivered, 288,418,705; number of newspapers delivered, 80,575,040; number of letters and postal cards collected, 234,230,582; number of newspapers collected, 28,453,086; number of pieces handled per carrier, 278,638. Total cost of service, $1, 963,186; average cost per piece, in mills, 3.15; amount of postage received on local matter, $2,965,562; excess of local postage over total cost of service, $84,375. These figures show that the service is now somewhat more than self-sustaining, and, by comparison with statistics for the previous year, it appears that the revenue from local postage has increased between 6 and 7 per cent., while the increase in cost of service has not increased more than 5 per cent.

Celia Logan denies that New York women are much given to opium, but asserts that arsenic eating for improvement of complexion, is a common practice. She says: "A few years ago cosmetics containing bismuth were in general use but were found to yellow the skin until it became tawny and created sores and pimples. The family doctor prescribed arsenical blood purifiers. The patient was told to stop useing these when the eyelids became puffy and she felt bloated; but it was pleasant to taste, it rounded out the form and beautified the complexion. Therefore the doses were increased instead of diminished; and so prevalent now is arsenic eating that any one able to recognize the look it gives can pick out its victims."

Japanese custom house officials tried to open a case of dynamite with a hammer and chisel. The Coroner is looking for them now. He wants to hold an inquest on something, and can find nothing but a hole in the ground where the case stood.

Mock Hanging.

We hear of two mock hangings since the drop fell with Wesley Greenlea. The first performance was by some little negro boys, who had all the formalities—a trial, conviction, sentence and execution. There was a little gallows, with a drop and all that, so complete as to make almost a sure enough hanging. The condemned mounted the scaffold and, a plow line adjusted about the neck, he repeated the words of Greenlea "Farewell, friends, meet me in Heaven!" and down he dropped about two feet, and was struggling in air, when a negro woman happened to see the situation and went quickly and cut him down. A doctor was sent for, and his case for two or three days was considered dangerous.

Some white boys since that played hanging one day, with nearly the same success. In their case the rope broke, but left its mark around the boys neck in a plinful contusion.

This hanging business seems to be catching. If the grand juries and petit juries catch it as bad as the boys, somebody's going to get hurt besides Wesley Greenlea.—Meridian Mercury.

A Shower of Flesh.

Charlotte Observer, 31st ult.]

A gentleman writing from Gastonia, North Carolina, under date of the 30th, gives an account of a truly wonderful occurrence. He states that a shower of flesh—genuine, unmistakable flesh—fell in sight of Gastonia, in Gaston county, on the farm of Mr. James M. Hanna. The circumstances, so far as they can be gathered from the letter alluded to, and from the statement of Mr. G. W. Chalk, of this city, who visited the spot and heard the statements of those who witnessed the phenomenon are as follows: On Saturday afternoon, about three o'clock, while Mr. James H. Hanna and some of his little grandchildren were picking cotton in a field near his house, they were astonished at the sight of small pieces of flesh falling all around them. The shower continued for some time, and when it ceased it was discovered that the flesh was scattered over an area of about a half acre of ground. The pieces varied from a half ounce to an ounce in weight. In the words of our correspondent, "the ground was not covered but the flesh fell like light hail." In appearance it is described as resembling beef, part of it being filled with small pieces of bone, but in no piece were bones or fatty matter found. When it fell it had the appearance and odor of fresh meat, but the pieces sent us for inspection are almost entirely odorless and resemble dried beef.

It may be added that the weather was perfectly calm at the time of the shower, and that there has been no storm and no heavy wind in that section in several weeks.

The occurrence created much excitement in the neighborhood, and our informant says that many persons visited the field and obtained pieces of the strange flesh. Several physicians in the neighborhood secured portions of it with a view of examination, but thus far the results of their investigation have not been reported.

The specimen in our possession is about three-quarters of an inch in length and less than an inch in width. We will gladly place it in the hands of any one who wishes to investigate the matter, and attempt to explain this mystery of mysteries.

There are now 120 Chinese students in the colleges of New England.

Singular Antipathies.

Lamotte-Levayer could not endure the sound of any instrument, and yet he experienced the most exquisite pleasure in the noise of thunder. Cæsar could not hear the crowing of a cock without shuddering. The Lord Chancellor Bacon fell into a swoon whenever there was an eclipse of the moon. Mary de Medicis could not endure the sight of a rose, not even in painting, although she was fond of every other kind of flowers. The Duke of d'Epernon fainted at the sight of a leveret. Marshal d'Albert was taken ill at a public dinner on seeing the attendants serve up a young wild boar or a sucking pig. Henry III, could not remain alone in a room where there was a cat. Ladislaus, king of Poland, was uneasy and fled at the sight of apples. Scaliger shuddered in every limb on beholding water-cresses. Erasmus could not smell fish without being thrown into a fever. An Engishman once expired from the impression that was made upon him by the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. Cardinal Henry de Cardouna fell into a syncope from the smell of roses. Tycho Brahe sank down from weakness on meeting a hare or fox. Cardon could not bear eggs; the poet Ariosto, barley; the ch of Crassus, bread; Cæsar of Lesealins, the sound of cymbals. The cause of these antipathies is sometimes found in the first sensation of infancy. A lady who was a great admirer of paintings and engravings swooned when she met with pictures in a book. The reasons of it she thus explained: While she was very young her father one day received her turning over the books of his library to seek for pictures in them. He abruptly took them from her and told her in a severe tone of voice that there were in the books devils which would strangle her if she dared to touch them. These foolish menaces, which are but too common with parents, always produce injurious effects which can not afterward be destroyed.—Baltimore Bulletin.

The Ex-Empress Charlotte.

The Lunet gives a pathetic little history in a late number. Maximilian, Emperor of Mexico, closed his brief reign in the courtyard of Queretaro, where he was shot by the command of the late President Juarez, and ever since his widow, the ex-Empress Charlotte, has been a prey to acute melancholia—the proxysms of which, however, were at first followed by intervals of partial return to reason. In these she was allowed to amuse herself—if amusement be the word for an occupation which armed upon the deepest tragedy—in writing the experiences of her husband and herself in their four months' sojourn in Mexico. This she has long abandoned, and in a chateau of Lacken, where she is under strict medical surveillance, she has relapsed into confirmed dementia, which her physicians have given up all hope of curing. As in similar cases, she recurs to the predilections of childhood, one of which was a passion for flowers, and Ophelia like, she spends most of her time over them, feeding as they do her once lively by now diseased imagination. Their attraction for her was touchingly manifested on the other day. Eluding the watch of her attendants, she had fled from the castle, but when overtaken, it was found impossible to induce her to return, except by the use of means which would certainly have prove harmful. One of her physicians bethought himself of her morbid affection for flowers, and by strewing them from time to time before her, she was gradually turned on her way back to the chateau, where a closer surveillance has since been placed over her.

It is understood that after Tupper's intimation that Walt Whitman was a plagiarist he received the following note from the indignant American: "Great snakes! Incomprehensible prevarication of the proverbial gush slinger! Let the pine trees howl! What d'ye mean by kin' about me? Yea, sound thy barbaric yawp and I'll out-yawp thee! Highlow jack and-the-game! Git! Swash afar eastward again across the wide salt slope! Upon my auricular I mount. I gnash my teeth and the lime flies! Dolor-out of lacteal imbecilities, I send thee! Avaunt?"—Cincinnati Enq.

119 deaths in New Orleans last week—34 under five years of age—11 stillborn—10 from all kinds of fever —17 from consumption.

It is said by the N. O. Republican that at dark on Monday night "there was not a pistol to be bought in town." Who bought them all before? It is probable that both parties were armed; and then there was a security for keeping the peace.

Some of the Northern papers prior to the recent elections called on God. He had better be omitted from all elections, for really pious men do nothing more than vote. They leave the rest of the business to the wicked.

The papers now coming to us are filled with politics. This will be so for a week, and after that every man will have time to consult the figures, and know what he has lost or gained by betting. On the one side it is a sad business, on the other joyful. One can escape the dilemma by not betting at all.

There were much noise and general fuss around the telegraph office last night. A despatch, it seems, came from Mr. Jones, from Demopolis, stating that in Marengo county he had some 1800 hundred majority. The result was the noise and fuss. If this be true there is a chance of his election, if the four counties still to be heard from give him similar majorities. Nothing yet is certain.

As far as heard from, there were no riots or violences of any kind in the elections of Tuesday. That is of any importance in Mobile every thing went along as pacificatory as a camp meeting. No election or the past showed any thing like it in this respect. All over the country there seems to have been a similar condition—although we have not in this respect heard enough to mention it as a fact.

COTTON AND CARS BURNED.—The Meridian Mercury says: "On Sunday afternoon a serious conflagration of cars occurred three miles west of Meridian, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, to a down cotton train. There were four platform cars loaded with cotton in the rear end of the train, and a spark from the tank engine at the creek fell upon and ignited the cotton. After going three miles, at a good speed, it was fanned into a flame and burnt so rapidly that a brakeman caught in it had to jump for life. The four car loads—160 bales—were entirely consumed. The road was repaired in time for the mail trains at night."

Why not? One of the earliest ministers to this country from France brought with him an experienced French cook, and when the former returned home the latter personage remained in Washington, where he became eminent as a caterer for the public. And this man had a daughter. About the same period in our fashionable history an English minister brought with him a very capable servant, and when that minister departed he established his young friend in the grocery business. Anon he saw and fell in love with the cook's daughter aforesaid, and they were married, and that cook's daughter is to-day one of the successful leaders of fashionable life in the metropolis, living in style, dressing in purple, and driving a superb carriage.—Capital.

During the past few years there has been quite an emigration of Jews to the Holy Land, the majority of them from Russia. The Hebrew population of Jerusalem is probably double what it was ten years ago, and, instead of being confined to one quarter, they are now scattered through the city, and, always ready to rent every house that is advertised to be let.

The will of a deceased Israelite was recorded in the Surrogate's office in Brooklyn not three months ago, in which the following appears: "I item, I do order and direct that there be given to my body, upon its decease, decent and Christian burial." The Jewish Messenger asks whether "the lawyer who drew the will was sarcastic, or the Israelite who signed it stupid."

THE ELECTIONS.

Turner sold himself for no purpose except to beat Bromberg. At this writing it is not certain that he earned his wages.

But let bygones be bygones. We are starting anew in the race of government life. Let us look forward and not back wards.

One of the chief objections to Mr. B. was that he was voted for by negroes. If Louisiana be carried for Tilden it will be by means of the colored voters.

If South Carolina be carried for Tilden, it will be by the potency of the colored voters of that much harassed state. Gen. Hampton did not refuse their aid, and what so admirable a gentleman did, would not shame any gentleman.

But in war, love and politics every scheme is considered justifiable; and here in Mobile we had many schemes, but they betrayed themselves. Instead of serving the purpose for which they were contrived, they only provoked greater resolution on the part of those who, it was thought, would be deceived by them.

All the white men are not fools; and colored men are beginning to learn what is good for their welfare.

One might run on this way to the magnitude of a volume; but just at present the best are not comfortable or patient. They do find consolation in the general belief that Tilden and Hendricks are elected. Perhaps that is better than Bromberg, or Jones, or Turner. Let them take the good with the bad—for in the world no man who expects every thing is wise.

THE ELECTIONS.

At this time nothing is absolutely certain in respect of the elections, but a man can hardly go wrong in the belief that Tilden will be the next President.

There need be no hurry in finding the fact. It is now too late to accomplish anything by bravado. Within a day or so we shall be able to find reliable news.

The result within this Congressional District is what most bothers the citizens. That is in doubt. The other, we think, has passed beyond the region of doubt.

If Bromberg be not elected, at all events, he has scared Jones. At this writing, it is not certain, and, at best, neither candidate will be elected by a large majority.

Mobile has done its work in first-rate style. That, under any result, will be a great consolation to the citizens who worked hard and honestly for Mr. Bromberg.

VITALITY OF SEEDS.

For the Mobile Tribune.

After resting for a year or so, I observe the press is again sending round the stated fact that seeds found in the Egyptian Pyramids, perhaps in the keeping of a mummy, have vegetated and yielded fruit of its kind. This, too, after being inurned two, three or more thousand years. I do not doubt the fact of the germination of the seeds in question. Phenomena, apparently equally anomalous, have been frequently observed in this country, without, however, exciting any particular remark.

Pine forests have been destroyed, for the purpose of cultivation or for timber for economic uses. After a few years the fields were abandoned to nature and the denuded land left to waste. Immediately in such cases, different species of the oak, dog-wood, hickory, &c., have succeeded the pine growth. How comes this? Whence the derivation of the seed?

Forests of other kinds of trees have presented the same anomaly—followed by the pine. It is a notable fact, here in Alabama, that after "deadening" the cane and burning every combustible on heavy cane-brakes, other flora, some without indigenous types, have sprung up thickly all over the grounds. Several years ago, a gentleman of Sumter county, sank a well 35 or 40 feet deep in a smooth, hard beaten yard near the dwelling. The following summer he pointed out to the writer quite a variety of weeds and grasses growing on the earth heap drawn from the very bottom of the well. Not a particle of vegetation had grown in the yard for many a year previously. Had it been otherwise, the new growth did not come from the surface.

To account for this we must look to the three eras, as geologists of the present day claim, of the Tertiary formation. This great change in the physical condition of the earth brought with it alluvium, detritus and the materials of the great drift, during the dawn, the middle and the end of the Tertiary epochs.

The study of the southern prairies, especially those of Alabama, will, I think, serve in some measure to confirm these views. This peculiar formation offers to the beholder, or once did, a wide-spread and varied landscape of surpassing floral beauty. In early days the prairies were passed by and wholly unappreciated by land buyers on account of the entire absence of running water. By and by it was found that by boring Artesian wells from 100 or 200 to 1000 feet in depth, an abundant supply of pure, wholesome water could be obtained. In consequence, old Alabamians will remember some forty years or more ago the wild rush and furor of our people in entering and locating "floats" on these lands.

But the industry of the husbandman soon replaced the beautiful and unique flora with broad, smiling fields of cotton, corn, the cereals, &c. A new, and in some respects, different growth of plants obtruded themselves into places thus left vacant.

In regard to these prairies, they were evidently at a remote geological period, the bottom of an estuary or of the sea. I think the latter; for the markings through the whole area show—that is, where not overlaid with the tertiary formation—that they have long remained as we now find them, except so far as alterations caused by assimilation of the lime with other matter. This mixing, aided by rains and atmospheric influences, has brought these lands to their present richness and fertility.

I have more to say about mineral lands and peculiar sections of our state. But I must stop for the present.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the travelling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Lynchburg, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time and only route between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, and is the most direct and quickest line to any other route in or can make.

The management, in announcing to the public this

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for speed and dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequently missing connections, but are making a shorter time than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important points, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and despatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railroad travel.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality to Palace sleeping cars on almost all trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge. Restaurants, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at suitable intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections:

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, with their traveling single or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

TELEGRAPH

CARDINAL ANTONELLI.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—A Rome special says the Pope was greatly affected by the suddenness of Cardinal Antonelli's prostration. Later he was, by direction of the Pope, carried to an adjoining apartment. The Pope sent one of his own physicians, but upon arrival of the doctor all hope was declared gone. Sacred rites were then partaken of by the dying Cardinal, and the Pope returned for a short time to another part of the palace.

His Holiness however again visited the sufferer before going to his bed and remained by his side for some time administering comfort and consolation, and upon leaving, as the hour was late, and His Holiness almost ill himself, he gave the dying man the benediction in articulo mortis.

REQUESTED TO RESIGN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—A committee of twelve citizens presented a petition of 9000 business men in Chicago, asking Judge McAllister to resign on account of his connect in the Sanitran-Hanford murder trial.

After the chairman had made his address, presenting the petition, the Judge remarked: "I have it with the clerk; it is a matter to go on the files; I have nothing to say," and dismissed the matter. It is not expected he will comply.

RAILROAD COLLISION.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 8.—At 5 o'clock on Sunday morning a collision occurred on the New Orleans, Chicago and St. Louis R.-Road, West's Station, Miss., between the Northern mail and a freight train. Both engines were demolished. No lives lost.

DEAD.

Capt. Thos. Dixon, a well known sporting man, who commanded the Petrel Guards of New Orleans during the war died here yesterday of Bright's disease of kidneys.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 7.—Dr. Burdak Harris, a prominent physician, and John H. Gardner, formerly of the firm of John H. Gardner & Co., ship brokers, died today.

Total interments to-day six, of which one was from yellow fever.

MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 29.—Congress having passed laws regarding the press and extraordinary powers of President the House of Deputies constituted itself an electoral college, and declared the vote of Porfirio Diaz Delijada by a majority of 131 against 45.

TILDEN ELECTED.

NEW YORK, November 8.—The Herald says tweut one States cast a majority for Tilden and Hendricks in numbers and sixteen for the Republicans. One State (Colorado) having previously cast its vote for the latter. Thus Governor Tilden will be our next President, and Thos. A. Hendricks our next Vice President. They have received 209 electoral vote against 160 cast for Governor Hayes and Wm. A. Wheeler—a clear majority of 49, and 24 more than were necessary for an election. There is very little chance of lessening these figures and none of changing the result. Our next House of Representatives will have a Democratic majority of at least 25. The State of New York was carried by the Democracy by probably 35,000, and the entire city Democratic ticket is elected by majorities ranging downward from 12,000.

Among the States looked on as doubtful yesterday Indiana, Connecticut, New Jersey, and probably Wisconsin were carried for the Democracy. South Carolina is in doubt, the voting being very close and victory claimed by both sides. The negro vote was evidently divided between the two parties in the Southern States.

TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, November 8.—In Tennessee Porter, Democrat, Governor, elected by 30,000 to 50,000. Memphis Congressional District in doubt, the Democratic candidate probably elected by a small majority. Cullom, Democrat, runs Thorne, Republican, close in the Second District, but the latter is probably elected. Democratic Congressmen in eight other districts all re-elected. It is probable the Republicans will gain a few members of the Legislature. In East Tennessee Tilden's majority is as much or more than Porter's.

KENTUCKY.

Kentucky goes for Tilden by probably 60,000 to 70,000.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

WILMINGTON, November 8.—Waddell is elected. The State is Democratic.

RICHMOND, Va., November 8.—Twelve counties in North Carolina give 6,500 Democratic majority. The Democrats claim 10,000 majority, and seven out of eight Congressmen.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, November 8.—The official count in the city of Charleston gives Hampton fifteen majority. The News and Courier's estimate and returns, covering the whole State, exclusive of Charleston county, give Hampton over 10,000 majority. That paper does not think it possible that Charleston county can give more than 5,000 Republican majority, and it considers the State safe for Hampton, and also for Tilden, who it believes, will not fall behind Hampton more than 1000 votes at the outside estimate.

FLORIDA.

LAKE CITY, November 8.—Finley (Democrat) is elected to Congress by 600 majority. Columbia county gives a Democratic majority of 125—a Democratic gain of 240; Duval county gives a Republican majority of 600—gain of 330. Partial returns from other portions of the State show Democratic gains, with a prospect of the Democrats carrying the State.

WISCONSIN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—E. W. Keyes, chairman of the Republican State Committee claims Wisconsin by from 9,000 to 4000 majority; also, the election of Casswell, Republican, in the Second Congressional District, over Orton. Two hundred and sixty-two towns and wards give Hayes 19,31 majority—a net Democratic gain of 770. Strong Republican counties are to be heard from.

MICHIGAN.

DETROIT, November 8.—In 212 towns the Democrats gain 7,792.

In 278 towns the Democrats gain 9,038.

INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 8.—At 250 points, covering 27 per cent. of the October vote, the Democrats gain 753. The same ratio gives Tilden 7,861 in the State.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, November 8.—Hamilton county gives Tilden 696 majority. The vote in the county, for Cooper 37; Prohibitionist 1.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Republican gains—Butler county 440, Blair 80, Warren 493. Democratic gain—Fayette 173, Monroe 270, Pike 340, Wyoming 85, Wayne 519.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Returns from 7 counties and 22 precincts in others show a majority for Hayes of 9,367—Republican gain, 4,727. The State will go at least 15,000 Republican majority. Every precinct shows Republican gains.

MISSOURI.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8.—Pooling, for Governor, running behind Tilden.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—It is likely the Republicans elect all four members of Congress. Twelve of the 49 precincts of this city give Hayes 4 majority. There is nothing from the interior, nor from Oregon or Nevada. The Democrats are jubilant over the returns from the East.

UNBELIEVERS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The New York Times and the Washington Chronicle, only of the reliable papers, question Tilden's election this morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed," from the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is in to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that in fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

There was a white frost in Mobile county yesterday morning, and ice at Citronelle.

THURSDAY.....NOVEMBER 9

A Philadelphia dispatch states that the total receipts at the Centennial exhibition have been $3,279,483 25. The Commission expects to clear $1,500,000 at least, and a dividend among stock holders is talked of. The stipulation attached to the Government's appropriation of $1,500,000 was that the money should be refunded before a dividend was declared. The government will therefore share in the entire net gain.

Messrs. Henry Disston & Sons exhibit at the Centennial the largest circular saw ever made, 100 inches in diameter with 50 teeth; a 4-m circular saw 60 inches in diameter; a 60-inch circular saw, with inserted teeth of the chisel pattern; specimens of homogeneous steel for flanging, and some handsome flanges made therefrom; steel ingots, hammered and unhammered, from 8 to 300 lbs weight.

Little Johnny had peculiar views as to original sin. One day he was about to be punished for some misdemeanor, when he pleaded: "It wasn't me, mamma dear—it was the bad man." "Well, Johnny, I'm going to whip the bad man out of you." Ah yes; but that'll hurt me a precious lot more than it will the bad man!"

Some Eastern fellow says: "When the Rhode Island militia paraded the other day you might hear the officers thunder forth their commands: "Guide right; steady, men; don't push any one over into Connecticut!"

The demand for American whisk-ies in Europe is reported on the increase, and no wonder. The great powers have been doing considerable treating of late.—[New York Commercial Advertiser.

Awful Accident.

Last evening about 4 o'clock, while the young men were firing the cannon for Mr. Thos. L. Halbert, of Boyd & Halbert, and Mr. Syd. Robertson, of the county, were swabbing the piece for another discharge, when, it appears, the rent was neglected; a cartridge must have been inserted too soon; the piece was still hot from the preceding discharge, and it went off, the ramrod instantly killing Mr. Robertson, and tearing off the right arm of Mr. Halbert. They were picked up several feet from the gun. Mr. Robertson hardly knew what killed him, falling dead without a groan or an intelligible remark. His face was horribly burned and cut. Mr. Halbert, poor fellow, besides losing his arm, is cut in the breast, his shoulder perhaps is broken, and he suffers untold agony.

We have no time now to say more than that the sympathy of the entire community go out to the relatives of the unfortunate dead, and to the suffering living. Mr. Halbert's case is critical, but we hope for the best. He is a universal favorite.

P. S.—At 7½ o'clock last night, the Doctor reported him doing well.—Columbus (Miss.) Independent.

That Infernal Machine.

New York, Oct. 28.—Train Master Gardner to-day exhibited the intricate little machine which caused such havoc and alarm on a Pennsylvania railroad train yesterday. The machine was composed of the of a small clock, about 6x6 inches, and a pistol. The lower part of the clock had been sawed off on the top of the clock. The pistol loaded with a cartridge and powder, was fastened to the woodwork by a screw. A small piece of wood about an inch and a half long and a quarter of an inch and in width had been loosely screwed on top of the clock so that the end reached over the figure 13 on the dial while the other end of the wood was placed against the trigger of the pistol. When the hour hand had reached 12 o'clock it would push back the wood, and the cap would be p e sed upon the cartridge. This was placed in a pasteboard box about 15x5 inches covered up and placed in an ordinary Saratoga trunk, which was filled with straw, shavings and bottles of glycerine or dynamite. Fortunately the trunk containing the infernal machine was shoved into a corner and not thrown into the baggage car, and was placed in the top tier of trunks. The train, being from the Centennial was crowded with trunks. When the train had reached Matuchin the explosion occurred, and the shock threw the bag-gage-master, John Silpach, and the others who were in the baggage car, to the floor, and the explosion having shattered the trunk, the flames set fire to the other trunks. The train was stopped and the flames extinguished, but all that could be found of the contents of the trunk was the pistol with its cartridge, and wooden trigger. No remnant of the trunk large enough to be preserved could be picked up, and the train moved on to Jersey City, where the machine was turned over to the depot master. The railroad authorities have no clue as to the originators of the machine or what the purpose was. An investigation, however, has been ordered and it is expected that a reward will be offered. One of the suppositions as to the purpose of the machine advanced by the railroad men this morning, was that it was for robbery and plunder. They say that if the Sartoga had been placed on the lower tier of trunks it would have blown the others open, and the makers of the contrivance could, in the confusion, plunder the trunks. If such was the purpose the mission of the villains failed, as nothing was stolen, and the damage will not exceed $400.

Cardinal Antonelli.

Rome, Nov. 6.—Cardinal Giacomo Antonelli is dead. Cardinal Constantine Patriz is dying. Cardinal Antonelli, whose death is announced in above dispatch, was born at Sonino, Italy, April 2, 1806. He was educated for the Church and at early age displayed marked ability. After entering into orders, he filled in succession several civil orders. In 1845 he was appointed minister of finance. He also held several other important posts under the late Pope Gregory V. In 1847 he was raised to the dignity of Cardinal Deacon by Pope Pius IX, under the title of St. Gatha. In 1848 he was Prime Minister, and after the assassination of Kassi, counselled the flight of the Holy Father to Sacla, where he negotiated his return under French protection on April 12, 1850. In 1835 an attempt was made to assassinate him. In 1867 he was made Curator ad interim of the University of Rome. In 1868 he succeeded Cardinal Ugalino as Dean of the Cardinals. He protested against the withdrawal of the French in 1870 against Victor Emanuel's success, and against every progressive measure. The Ecumenical Council was planned and carried out by him, and it has been held responsible for the enunciation of the dogma of Papal infallibility. At the time of his death he was Secretary of State to the Pope, President of the Council of Ministers, and Prefect of the Sacred Apostolic Palatia. He was virtually a Prime Minister to the Pope, controlling all formal and official transactions, and influencing all matters relating to the diplomatic endorsers of the Papal Court. With the rest of the world he was one of most gifted statesmen of Europe.

GIRLS WHO SOLD THEIR HAIR TO GET HOME.—Two belles of this city lately came home from Philadelphia shorn of their wealth of raven tresses. After they had taken in all the points at the big show and had made many acquaintances, before they made many friends, they had spent all their money, and, what was worse, had lost their return excusion tickets. They had no friends in Philadelphia and no time to write to Reading. They therefore resolved to make a raise. So they skipped away into a barber shop and struck a bargain for their black hair. The shaver offered $3 75 each for what they had. In a short time they were nicely shorn, and thus they were able to get back to their native land.—[Reading (Pa.) Eagle.

SNAKE MONEY.—In the lower end of this county recently, Mrs. Hymon Horim waft to her milk house to get milk and butter for the morning meal, and as she opened the door a large snake lay coiled before her. She called to her husband to come and kill the snake, which ran under the rocks, and in searching after his snakeship, deep in the ground they found an earthen jar, which, upon being brought to light and opened, was found to contain $400,90—$127 in gold, the rest in silver.—Nelson (Mich.) Record.

A fearful rain storm took place in Southern Indiana last Saturday. The rain was a perfect flood of water, not pouring down, as usual, in drops, but in a perfect sheet. The ground resembled a lake, the water having poured in upon the town until half the place was flooded. The water rose as high as the window tops, and as yet has fallen but little. In addition to the destruction of household goods, barns, stables, &c., large lots of cattle, horses and hogs were drowned. Damage $100,000.

There are 143 cargoes of wheat afloat from California and twelve from Oregon on their way to Europe with seventy-four vessels awaiting cargoes in San Francisco Bay.

The Earl of Albemarle furnishes a description of the Queen at England when a bright, pretty girl, seven years old, she day after day watering the plants under the palace window, watched her: "It was amusing to see how impartially she divided the contents of the watering-pot between the flowers and her own little feet. Her simple but becoming dress contrasted favorably with the corpulent apparel now worn by the little damsels of the rising generation—a large straw hat and an suit of white cotton, a colored sash was the only ornament she wore."

Gen. Butler is elected to Congress in Massachusetts.

At the close of a concert, says a New York paper, while a young gentleman was struggling with his hat, cane, overcoat, opera glass and his young lady's fan, all of which he was trying to retain on his lap, a suspicious-looking black bottle from the overcoat pocket fell on to the floor with a loud thud. "There," he exclaimed to his companion, "I shall lose my cough medicine." There was presence of mind for you.

Last year this country paid foreign countries fifty millions of dollars for woolen goods and eleven millions of dollars for manufactured goods. When we (says one of the sheep men) have in the country twenty million more sheep than we have now, we shall only produce the wool we use; and yet there is no country on earth where sheep can be raised more profitably than in the United States. But we are coming every year nearer to supplying our own markets with the wool they demand. In 1875 the wool clip of the country was nearly 200,000,000 pounds, while in 1865 it was only 65,000,000 pounds. There are no states wherein wool may be produced at the smallest cost equal to Alabama and Mississippi.

THE ELECTIONS.

The states that may be set down as certain for Tilden and Hendricks are as follows:

Alabama, electoral votes	10
Arkansas,	"	6
Connecticut,	"	5
Delaware,	"	3
Georgia,	"	11
Indiana,	"	15
Kansas,	"	6
Kentucky,	"	12
Maryland,	"	8
Michigan,	"	11
Mississipi,	"	8
Missouri,	"	15
New Jersey,	"	9
New York,	"	35
North Carolina,	"	10
Oregon,	"	3
Tennessee	"	12
Texas,	"	8
Virginia,	"	11
Necessary to a choice		185

In this list we have not included South Carolina, with seven votes; Florida, with four; Louisiana, with eight, and West Virginia with five—making a total of twenty-four votes. These, put to the total above, will give Tilden two hundred and twenty-two electoral votes.

There has, apparently, been a considerable increase of Democratic Congressmen—how many is not now known, but there is enough to more than compensate for the defeated candidates in the October elections. We trust that this information will be consolatory to those misguided persons who thought—or rather seemed to think—that Turner would be elected in this District, and in him would be the balance of power in the House of Representatives. No one, however, believed the gammon. It was not sound enough.

THE DEBRIS.

We see by one of the city papers that the Jackson convention is still lively. Let the poor thing be buried. It had no validity and no honest life but it is now cad, and, as a "demunition dead body," let it be interred, or cremated. The paper we allude to wrestles with the dead body. What is the use of that? It can neither impart a new truth, nor remove an old lie.

Having been of the 32, we have pride in what that 32 did, but would not now engage in polemics, even if what is told us in the political papers of the town were entirely false.

Let the two papers quarrel. We shall look on—caring nothing as to how they may dispose of the dead carcase.

But there is something beside this in this district business. Granted that Jones is elected—and that at this present writing it is not certain, although probable—what then? Why he didn't get the vote of Mobile, which ought to have been respected enough by the interior counties to have acquiesced in its desires for a Congressman, as are exhibited in the great vote which Mr. Bromberg received.

We have no intention to say that Jones would not be a trusty man in any position in which he may be placed, but we assert it "without fear of successful contradiction," even from the Cycle, or the Register, that Bromberg would be the more influential and experienced man for our uses in Congress. If beaten in this district, he has been beaten by voters—We speak of those of the interior counties—who cared more for a contemptible party triumph, than respect for the welfare of this district, or of Mobile.

This, briefly, is a fact, and it seems to be not respectable in those men who were moved by nothing but a desire for a party triumph—a triumph of a clique which might have taken Turner—if pressed in the affair—in preference to Jones or Bromberg.

Well, all this is nothing now. We care nothing about it. We did our best, and without pay, for the success of what we considered of vast importance to this city. If we failed in the accomplishment of it—and it is not yet certain that we have—why there is nothing to do, but to submit.

But, after all, Mobile did its duty No man need be ashamed of that, and we trust that the good results of it will be seen in the future. If we can't govern the district, we can govern this city and county. This is something.

It is said that the best American steel is superior to the best English steel; but we have enough of it that is bad.

A vessel of 650 tons was the o-her day launched at Alexandria, Virginia. This is the first vessel of her size launched from a ship yard in that city, or from any point on the Potomac, for thirty-four years.

A gentleman in England sued a railway company a few weeks ago for about a dollar, the amount paid for a cab which he was obliged to take in order to reach home, the expense being necessary on account of a train being behind time. Judgment was given in his favor.

Some people are still in doubt as to the election within this congressional district. All the counties have not rendered in their reports. Many of the polling places in some of them are not connected with civilization by telegraph poles.

There are rumors of frauds in Marengo county. We know nothing about th m, although they do seem to have an appearance which may be convincing to those persons who give attention to this kind of concerns.

There is a certain centennial clock on exhibition at Philadelphia, which the inventor says will have to be wound but once in a hundred years; giving the most accurate time, telling the month of the year, the day of the month, the day of the week, the hour of the day and minute of the hour. If anybody should buy one of these clocks and it should stop after running 80 years or so, and meanwhile the inventor should die, how is that swindled person going to get redress?

At a Cabinet meeting in the beginning of the Administration, soon after the election, Secretary of the Navy) Robeson had caused to be a New Jersey lawyer, and before he had learned much about ships, the story goes that in the office of the Executive Mansion, where the Cabinet meetings are held, a map carpet had been laid. This carpet had irregular, waywiness running through it parallel with each other. The meeting had scarcely begun when the illustrious chief of the Navy Department suddenly complained of being ill, and began to manifest signs of disembowelling himself. Delano, who was sitting next to him, asked him what the matter was. Robeson answered, as well as he could, "that he felt a little sick; the carpet looked so much like waves."—Chicago Tribune.

ALARMING.

Under our telegraph head will be found much to alarm those good citizens who have bets on the general election.

We publish this news for no purpose, except to alarm people who will bet. We desire to put them on what, in Methodist parlance, is called the "anxious seat." Let them sit there awhile.

If any man want our opinion we shall give it! Here it is: there has been much betting on the elections all over the country. The telegraph, which has not the least bit of conscience, is now the instrument—not its fault—of what is called "hedging." That is, that a man seeing that he is likely to lose on the one side, goes over to the other side, and there tries to make himself even.

This is virtuous—it there be virtue in betting.

If we were of the betting tribe, we should have no hesitation in advertising the price of a suit of clothing on the election of Tilden and Hendricks.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES presented by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route can make.

The management, in announcing to the public that

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequent missing connections, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important stations, and by making up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby causing passengers greater comfort and despatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway travelling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality; Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge, of attentive, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals,

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connection!

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, who find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO and RICHMOND.

FRIDAY,..... NOVEMBER 10

The May St. Louis Tragedy.

The New Orleans Republican of yesterday contains the subjoined report of an affair which has already been mentioned: "A train boy named Ferguson, running on the route between this city and Mobile, was shot and killed yesterday morning at Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, by young Walter Chandler, son of Judge Chandler of Bay St. Louis. It appears that the shot which killed Ferguson was fired by a pistol in the hands of Mr. P. K. Myers, editor of the Handsboro' Democrat. A political difference had sprung up between Mr. Myers and Judge Chandler. Mr. Myers in his paper had said some severe things of the judge, and Judge Chandler, in equally severe language, had replied on the stump. The belief is that young Chandler had made his father's cause his own, and deliberately attempted to murder Mr. Myers, with the terrible result of killing an innocent boy. The train stops at Bay St. Louis for breakfast, and the young assassin must have expected to meet Myers on the cars, for he was armed with a shot-gun, and went through the train searching for his man before he encountered him on the platform. It is presumed the law will take its course in this case; but the tragedy was inexcusable and terrible, to have happened even in Mississippi, the land of shotguns."

The Presidential Election.

In the absence of decisive returns indicating the election of either Tilden or Hayes, we subjoin the following from the New Orleans papers of yesterday:

Special to the New Orleans Picayune]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—From present indications the election will turn on votes of Florida and Louisiana, and if Mr. Tilden gets either State he is certainly elected. There is great excitement out in this city. The Republicans here claim Louisiana, but are evidently relying upon the read ings of the Returning Board to them out enough of the Democratic parishes to give the state to Hay-.

The opinion of the best informed Democrats here is that such an outrage upon popular rights should not be endured by the people of Louisiana.

The New Orleans Republican extra of Wednesday says:

"The Republicans have made no loud boasts of the result of the election, preferring to await figures and facts. Higher figures than we have, it is proper to say, however, that private information from New York and Indiana is of such a character as to give it judicious strong hopes of carrying one or both of those States. It is a significant fact that since early hour this morning no figures whatever have been received from the State of New York by the Associated Press, and one that leads to corroborate private information regarding that State.

Meantime the evening papers afford ground for reasonable belief of the election of Hayes and Wheeler."

The Republican of yesterday morning has another article on the situation:

"Intelligence received late in the night confirmed the intelligence contained in the city of last evening. There is no longer doubt of Hayes having carried enough States to elect him with the possible exception of Florida, and private advices give this State to him by a handsome majority.

But what is of more moment, New York State is said to be weakening very much and it is possible yet that the interior of the State may overcome the frauds of Tammany Hall in New York and Brooklyn. It will be observed that the Associated Press gives us no dispatches from the metropolis this morning.

Indiana also shows signs of weakening. Cover it over as they will, the press agents can not disguise the fact that a great deal of uneasiness is felt at the way the returns are coming in.

From the interior of this State there comes no intelligence to weaken our faith in the triumphant election of the Republican State ticket by the majority named, or in the success of Messrs. Darrall, Smith and Leonard for congress.

The defeat of Nicholls in his own parish is significant of the fate he will receive at the hands of pople when the full result is known."

We reprodnce the above, so that the readers of the Tribune may be fully informed. The New Orleans Bulletin of yesterday, says of Louisiania:

"If we comprehend the plan of the Republican leaders at this early stage of game, it is to effect the Democratic city majority of 8,000 with the 10,000 Republican majority of the eleven parishes above named, and then to proceed upon the assumption that the heavy negro districts of Carroll, Tensas, Jefferson, Pointe Coupee, Plaquemine, &c., will more than counterbalance the strong white districts of Richland, Union, Jackson, Winn, Caldwell &c., leaving close votes like Rapides, Natchitoches and Lafourche to neutralize each other."

Walks Around town.

The legislature of Alabama meets next Monday.

The political atmosphere was a little hayesy yesterday.

If Tilden is elected, a new broom will sweep the custom house.

Pay as you go, whether for groceries, provisions, dry goods or clothing.

The Mary Boyd will go out next Wednesday for points on the Bigbee river.

The Battle House is beginning to fill up. About a hundred guests are there.

The queen of the song, Miss Clara May, at the Mobile Varieties this evening.

In her specialities, Miss Jennie Wallace at the Mobile Varieties, has no superior.

If city scrip is retired, it will cost a little more to pay city taxes than it has done.

At the Mobile Theatre on the 28th instant Joe Murphy will give his initial performance.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 80, minimum 36, a range of 15 degrees.

The reconstruction of Royal street never will be completed, according to present appearances.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 1 car load of corn and 15 barrels of potatoes were received.

That hardy tree, the Japan plum, has blossomed freely and there is a promise of a large fruit yield.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday 20 barrels apples and 100 barrels flour were received.

Conti street was quiet yesterday. The justices had no cases for trial that amounted to a "row of pins."

There is much improvement all over the town, new buildings being erected and old ones repaired and beautified.

Montgomery people have been seriously ill lately, from eating tainted oysters. Live in Mobile and have them fresh.

The dogs of Mobile, especially the cure that bark as pedestrians are going to their homes, late at night, are a nuisance.

The weather yesterday was magnificent, a little cool in the morning and evening, but just right for comfort during the day.

Cotton is coming in this week more rapidly than any week this season. A pretty large amount goes through to New Orleans on the 4:50 train.

The fine store on the burned buildings on St. Francis, between Royal and St. Joseph, a new brick structure is being erected.

It is not wise to quarrel about politics. But people will get excited when expressing their opinions about men, measures and principles.

"As the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen," is a cold adage. But the days are shortening now and fires are comfortable.

Mobile has greater natural advantages than any other city, in the south. A fertile soil, delightful climate and unexceptionably good health.

By irrigation and fertilization Mobile could produce cabbages all the year round, instead of importing them from the west four or five months.

From the immense quantities of cabbage plants that are growing now in and around Mobile it is estimated that cabbage shipments will be large next spring.

Northern and western visitors who winter in Mobile are delighted with the climate. It is better than that of Florida, and the city is nearer to the great commercial centres.

Carrollton, Pickens county, a dispatch received here says, gave 231 votes for Tilden and none for Wheeler. Fairfield, in the same county, gave a unanimous vote for Tilden.

A session of the city court, Judge Semmes on the bench, was held yesterday. A few unimportant miscellaneous cases were tried, and then the court adjourned till this morning.

The visitors to the Centennial Exhibition have not yet all returned to Mobile. Those who have returned are loud in their praises of the magnificence of what they saw there.

The Battle House, under its new proprietorship and reduced rates, is a desirable place for permanent boarders, single gentlemen, or families who want to avoid the perplexities of housekeeping.

The topics of conversation on the streets yesterday were as to the result of the presidential election and the congressional selection in this district. The paramount question was, is Bromberg elected?

The election of Tilden will put all the ins out and a few of the outs in. Sixteen years' possession of the government has given members of the republican party soft places, which others will scramble for.

Open air flowers in the winter are a rarity to northern people, and those who visit Mobile feast their eyes with some of the most beautiful flowers that bloom here in the winter and pronounce them magnificent.

A dog law will be asked for from the next legislature of Alabama. Farmers of South Alabama who raise large numbers of sheep, find it almost impossible to realize any profit because of the numbers killed by worthless dogs. Every Mobile member will vote for a dog law.

The Montgomery Journal understands that the South and North Railroad Company of Alabama, which has recently purchased the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad, will after the 1st of February next, run a through line from Louisville or Mobile as one road. The whole line is practically under one management.

TELEGRAPH

TILDEN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—An Express extra says it sees no reason to change the fact that a majority of the electoral votes are for Tilden and Hendricks. This it says, is the voice of the people, and nothing can change it but enormous frauds of returning boards, as in Louisiana in 1874.

ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Nov 8—Illinois shows in forty counties a Democratic gain of 39,000. The State is sure Democratic.

(Signed) DAN'L CALLEN,

Secretary Democratic State Committee.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—The only additional Congressional news is that Upton (R p.) has carried the Thirteenth District, making the fourth Republican gain in the State. Sparks (Dem) has carried the Sixteenth District by a good majority.

There is no reasonable foundation for the claim that the Democrats have carried Illinois. Careful comparison of returns received with the highest Democratic vote cast in 1872 indicates 20,000 Republican majority.

The complexion of Illinois' delegation to Congress is exactly the reverse of the present. Two of the gains have been made in "Egypt," the Democratic stronghold, and the Republicans have gained some members of the Legislature also from that section, which would be an impossibility if the Democrats carried the State. Of the aggregate vote registered, which shows an enormous increase over 1872. The Democrats, however, got a greater per cent, than the Republicans, in the ratio apparently of about six p. to forty.

WISCONSIN.

MILWAUKEE, November 8.—Nothing but the ofiicial returns can settle Wisconsin, both sides claiming the State by about 1,000 majority.

NEVADA.

CARSON, Nev., November 7.—Indications are that the State has gone Democratic by 1,000 majority.

FLORIDA.

SAVANNAH, Ga., November 9—2 A. M.—Communication is cut off from Mobile and West Florida, the railroad, and telegraph lines having been injured by the lightning. Many persons were injured by the lightning, a large numbers being on the train.

LAKE CITY, Fla., November 9'—1.30 P. M.—A steamboat is expected at Palatka this afternoon, bringing returns from the upper St. John's river counties. Both parties still claim the State, and nothing positively known as to the result in Florida.

1:45 P. M.—Twenty-one counties in Florida give 1,711 Republican majority, 18 counties not heard from, but estimates, based on the election of 1874, give a Democratic majority of 1,936; which will make the State Democratic by 225 majority.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, November 9.—Nineteen counties, all official except four; give a Democratic majority of 23,613. Eleven counties, by townsworthy reports and some official, give a Republican majority of 14,159. The only two remaining counties are Charleston and Colleton, where, before the election, the Republicans claimed respectively 6,500 majority.

It is result is confirmed the anticipations are that Hampton's net majority will be 2,954. The city is in a condition of feverish excitement to-day.

MISSOURI.

ST. LOUIS, November 9.—Complete returns from the third Congressional District give it to Metcalf (Republican) by 31 majority. The Democrats claim the 6th District for Glover by 700 majority. Tuis district was previously reported as probably for Haves (Republican.)

The Republicans carry their county ticket in this county except for Probate Judge, Public Administrator and Assistant Prose cuting Attorney.

Emil Thomas leads his ticket for Sheriff by 3,500 majority over ex Mayor Brown and the remainder of Republican candidates have an average majority of 1'000.

DAKOTA TERRITORY.

YANKTON, D. T., November 9.—Election returns from the interior come in slowly, but indicate larger Republican majorities than ever given before.

Yankton county gives a total vote of 1,407, giving Kidder (Republican), for delegate over Pinnks, a majority County of 107. All the Republican County ticket is elected except one. Outside counties gives Kidder large majorities, which will probably reach 3,000.

THE ENGLISH PRESS.

LONDON, November 8.—The Pall Mall Gazette of this afternoon, commenting upon the Presidential election in the United States, says: "We think it is a gross ca e calumny to assert that Mr. Tilden, so distinctively a representative of business men in the Eastern States, will extend any favor to the crude projects of inflationists or to the unintelligent dishonesty of repudiationists."

The Liverpool Post says the announcement of Mr. Tilden's election is well received in commercial circles.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUREL SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed," from the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours, (Signed) URIAH, MOHR.

Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture,

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their stand made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that he fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

There was no meeting of the common council last evening.

When the Grand Junction Railroad is completed, Mobile will become a grand coal depot.

Now that all the street railroads have reduced their fare to five cents, three times as many people ride as formerly.

The lumber trade is reviving. There was a clearance yesterday for Jamaica of a vessel laden with lumber and shingles.

Hot Lunches.

Atkinson commences today, giving those celebrated soups and other good things.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

If the management of the Mobile Theater should reduce their admission fee very materially and provide first class entertainments, the patronage would be largely increased and receipts augmented.

If Mobile cannot establish factories to give employment to the people, let a delegation of public spirited citizens be sent to the west to enumerate the advantages of this city for a winter residence, and that will bring money here.

River News.

The W. S. Holt went out last evening with a good freight, for Demopolis and other points on the Bigbee.

The Clarissa will be at her landing this morning to receive freight for Selma and intermediate points, to go out this evening, with Captain Tom Frank on the roof and Mr. Andy Welch in the office. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Lulu D., will be in to-day sometime, to go out tomorrow evening.

The Sam. J. Tilden is due from the Bigbee.

City Court.

On the opening of this court yesterday morning,

Jno. R. Tompkins, Esq., county solicitor, arose and addressed the court as follows:

May it please the court: In taking the oath of office, and before entering upon the discharge of the duties of solicitor of the sixth judical circuit, I respectfully ask the indulgence of your honor to beat public testimony to the faithful official service of my immediate predecessor, Col. Thos. N. Macartney, ex-county solicitor, whose office has, by the provisions of the constitution, been abolished in the one to which I have had the honor of having been elected; but beyond and above this, to submit a motion having for its object the setting apart of a day in the court calendar, to be made sacred on the records of this court, to the memory of his beloved brother by the ties of nature —more by those of association in an honored profession—the lamented M. E. Macartney.

In submitting this motion, I feel free to say that I but reflect the sentiment of the bench as well as the bar, for all who knew M. E. Macartney loved and honored him. I therefore move that your honor appoint a committee of three to prepare and report, at a day to be indicated by the court, resolutions expressive of the sense of the bench and bar of Mobile—a tribute to the noble life and a memorial of the sad and untimely death of our deceased brother—one who, as lawyer, citizen, and friend, filled the full measure of an exalted manhood, and one, to whose successor, may it please your honor, I address myself to official duty with persons misgivings and with doubt.

Indulge me further to add that your honor's familiarity with the ordinary routine of a lawyer's study and practice will sustain me in the assertion that the duties of an attorney for the state may be said to be so special in their character that, while all may qualify themselves to defend, but few, unless called to the official trust to prosecute. With a consciousness of my deficiences in this respect, I beg your honor to indulge my short-comings—to aid me no less by your learned counsel than with your characteristic patience, until I may have had time to acquire that familiarity with the routine of my office so essential to the proper discharge of its important and responsible duties, and which we attain alone in the court-room. I can do no more than pledge my personal honor with my official oath to make up in fidelity to the cause of the state, whatever I may be wanting in those higher attainments which characterized the honored life of my distinguished and lamented predecessor.

Asking your honor to dispose of the motion herein submitted, I will then be ready to proceed with the calendar of the day.

Under the resolution embraced in Mr. Tompkins' address, Judge Semmes appointed a committee, composed of Hamin Taylor, Geo. N. Stewart and Jno. R. Tompkins, to report resolutions on the first Monday of December next, when court will only meet for that purpose. After this two cases were tried—the state vs. Joe Long and Adam Brown, both of whom were convicted of assault and battery, and sentenced to pay a fine and six and four months' imprisonment, respectively.

Sitting Bull Beaten.

ST. PAUL, Minn., November 4.—The Pioneer Press's special, dated camp in the field on the Yellowstone, October 27, via Bismarck, D. T., November 4, says: "General Miles, commanding the troops on the Yellowstone, after fighting, defeating and pursuing Sitting Bull and the confederated tribes under him, this day accepted the surrender of 400 lodges of Cheyenne Agency Indians, these tribes surrender ing five of their principal chiefs as hostages as a guarantee of their faithful compliance with the terms of the surrender. These bands are to go at once to the agency, where, upon their arrival, they will submit to the requirements of the Government. The Indians held as hostages left this evening for St. Paul, under the charge of strong guards."

A Paris correspondent of the New Century for Women writes: "In the French system of female education, the boarding school does not occupy the position to which it has risen in America. They allow too much liberty, too many opportunities to evade surveillance, to please a people among whom it is popularly said that it a young girl is once seen to cross a street alone, no man will marry her. Hence in the higher and the upper middle classes girls are either sent to convents or taught by governesses at home."

A good example of what "Jersey justice" means is found in the case of the Elwood murderers. The crime was committed in August; the murderers were not apprehended till the following month, and on Friday they were hanged.

In Los Angelos, Cal., last week, a man sold seven thousand young orange trees at forty five cents apiece to be paid for when Hayes and Wheeler are elected.

Rights of Railroad Passengers.

A decision has just been made in Philadelphia reaffirming the principle that a railroad company is compelled to give a passenger a seat without extra cost to him in the Pullman car if all the other seats in the cars of the train are occupied. The suit was brought in the Common Pleas by W. Barnet Le Van against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and it has been decided by a verdict for the plaintiff. This was a suit for damages for forcible ejection from one of the cars of the company on a stormy night at a point many miles from any human habitation, whereby the plaintiff was compelled to walk a great distance at the risk of his life in search of a place to rest and be secure from the inclemency of the weather. The passenger had paid his fare to Philadelphia, exhibited his ticket to the conductor, and insisted that, as there were no unoccupied seats in the cars belonging exclusively to the company, he would occupy one in the Pullman palace car, in which there were a number of vacant places. Instead of providing the accommodations justly demanded the conductor selected a lonely point on the road and there ejected the passenger, causing him to undergo considerable hardship, trouble and privation, and hence this action for damages was brought. After a lapse of six years the jury now awards to Mr. Le. Van damages amounting to $8500.

The Spendthrifts of New York City.

How much misery there may be in the mansions of the rich is something that can never be known, but every now and then an item appears which reveals instances of depravity which defy belief. One of these is found in the experiences of a wealthy hotel proprietor, who has a son upon whom he has lavished money profusely for his education and culture. All efforts to start him in business enterprises have been failures. Thousands of dollars have been wasted thus, and the young man at twenty-four is a wreck and ruin. Although enjoying a steady income through his father's liberality, he has squandered his reputation by borrowing money from all his own acquaintances as well as his father's. The latter has been compelled to warn his friends not to loan any money to his son. At the end of a recent debauch this reckless spendthrift went to one of proprietors of a prominent hotel, and obtained $35 upon a forged check drawn in his father's name. As soon as the forgery was discovered, the case was put in the hands of the police, and threatened serious consequences, whereupon the father came to the rescue and redeemed the check. An offer has been made the young man of a free cabin passage around the world in a California-bound clipper ship, but he declines to accept it.

It was George D. Prentice, I believe, who described one of Henry Clay's sons (for a political offence) as "the degenerate son of a noble sire." The city, and probably this country as well, is full of such instances, with the difference that the sins of the latter sons are great and criminal. As a general rule these are the sons of the wealthy men, who are usually called self made men because they have had very limited culture, and earned their own fortunes by their own indomitable energy, genius and perseverance. The reason why these men rarely have sons worthy of being named as their successors is found in this that the elements of self-reliance and independence which made the fathers the men they are, are lacking in the sons. The parent naturally desire to give their boy's the benefits of an education they failed to receive themselves, and thus, at the very outset of their careers, the foundation of self dependence is lacking. Innumerable examples might be cited of this. There are a hundred young rascals in this city wasting their father's substance in riotous living whose lives are simply worthless. They are worse than drones—they are the embodiment of wickedness. One of the billiard sharps of the city is the son of wealthy parents. He is devoted to billiards and wine. The gamblers find a harvest among these fellows, and it is rare indeed that the young men of twenty-one to thirty, whose fathers are wealthy are worthy of progenitors.—Chicago Tribune.

SOMETHING.

There is a superfluous man in Cincinnati called Murat Halstead—or something like that—who recently delivered a speech in which he declared, or intimated, that if the south should vote for Tilden, it would be cast out of the count of the electoral votes for the Presidency. This folly was perpetrated before the election; and we can hardly see what good—in a party sense—it could accomplish, unless on the presumption that his hearers and followers had determined that the Southern States are not a legitimate part of the country, and that they ought to have no voice in controlling then wn destiny within it.

The man—although of some conspicuosity—is no doubt a knave: and the fact that audiences listened to him without reproof, shows that there was "bad blood" within them.

The said similar follies of bad men at the north, who are in position, or expect to get into it, are not to be taken as the disposition of the mass of the people—for it would exhibit a most degrading lack of those qualities which fit men for self government; and it would be, moreover, a sure presage of a revolutionary reaction which would plunge the north into a civil convulsion, that would make us of the south spectators, nothing joining in it, but watching the result.

But it is idle to speculate on what seems to us to be impossible.

That there has been a vast amount of cheating in the voting, we have no doubt. This first district of Alabama would demonstrate it, if one could find a method for the discovery of it.

A man brought to suit for congress had his pictures running for the office, without hope of being elected, and beating, by this process, the man whom we of this city desired.

This is bad, and is evidence that not one man in ten ought to have a right to the privilege of suffrage.

The Rev. Dr. McGuffoy, who has just gone to Australia from this country, is enlightening that region with recitals of the shortcomings of American clergymen. The doctor is especially aggrieved by remembrance of Dr. Hall's church. "I solemnly," he says, "that the magnificence of the temple in which Dr. Hall ministers, its gorgeous exterior, its massive steeple, its elaborate windows, its luxurious pews, its richly carpeted and upholstered stairs and seats, and skylight, its polished wood and its unique everything, costing $2 000, 000, ought to be condemned as a sinful waste, and a practical notice to poor that there the gospel and the ordinances of Christ are intended for the rich."

IN DOUBT.

Yesterday we fixed it up that Tilden was elected. The news of yesterday throws some doubt on it. The reader can find what was last said on the subject in the despatches to b found elsewhere.

Hayes and Tilden are now "fresh flag in the balance." Some stat , which were certain to be for them soon now to be in doubt.

The voting within almost all the states has been close, and it is likely that we shall have to wait for an official count before we shall have authority to collect our bets.

The Centennial was to be closed yesterday, and General Grant and the members of his cabinet were to be present to see it well done.

A CONUNDRUM.

One of the city papers writes what it evidently considers a conundrum. Thus: "Will somebody please inform me now what good Mr. Bromberg's extraordinary accomplished ?"

No Jones man can answer this. It was intended for the solicitor of a Bromberg Democrat. Keep of that stripe we shall give a brief answer.

First, it has emancipated our republicans from the pernicious influence of rings, which have ruled this city with insolence. That is some thing.

Secondly, it has brought our colored people to reflect as to their duties as suffragans.

Thirdly, it has proved that the Register is Pat Hamilton—that it has been jumping from the one side to the other—that its working editor had two sides to his coat and turned it one out when the other didn't suit his purpose, or, perhaps—we give the thing the credit of a doubt —when his masters ordered him to turn the outside within.

Immediately preceding the election our confrere became timid. It took no part in the business. It never said Bromberg once; but now, thinking that it is on the strong side, it gives to us poor people, poor conundrums!

The matter had come back before the election; and then there was a lull in the storm of bad logic and some vituperation. Now the danger, it thinks, is past, and so it asks questions which may presently provoke more answers than are in this brief article.

HAYES'S LATEST OPINION.

The following special despatch is published in the New Orleans Picayune. It is interesting:

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—The following interview with Gov. Hayes was published here this afternoon. In reply to a question by a correspondent, he said:

"I think we are defeated in spite of the recent good news. I am of opinion I lost the Democratic vote carried the country and elected Tilden, as it now seems necessary for the Republicans to carry all the States now set down as doubtful to secure even a majority of one. I don't think encouraging dispatches ought to be given to the public now, because it might mislead our political friends to bet on the election and lose money. I do heartily depreciate such despatches."

After pleasantly rallying his friends, and urging them not to be despondent, he said: "I do not think it right to give over this matter. I don't care for myself, and the party, yes, and the country, too, can stand a blue I do care for the poor colored man in the South. I do not fear that business will be greatly disturbed by Mr. Tilden's election. Trade governs itself. Capitalists may just as present say, we would lend money, but it will be only a nine days' wonder, which will wear out as soon as they recover from the chagrin of a defeat. Business will, I think, go on as usual. I do not think parties responsible for financial depression. We say the troubles they have had a Germany and America. If any part of the country suffers or remunisat a stand, it will be the South. Under the new regime, Northern men can't live there, and all will leave, and immigration into those States will cease; but, as I said before, I do pity the poor negroes of the South. The result will be that the Southern people will probably treat the constitutional amendments as nullities, and then the colored man's fate will be worse than when he was in slavery with a humane master to look after his interests. That is the only reason I regret that the news is as it is."

The latter part of this shows that Mr. Hayes is imbued with those prejudices that had a large influence at the North. If he believe what is stated above, it is no wonder that the great mass of the more ignorant part of the people believed it. Recollect that it was not spoken before the election, but after it; and so may be supposed to be the cool opinion of a very conspicuous man, after he was assured of his defeat, and had no interest in telling an untruth.

Well, it proves to us that Mr Hayes is ignorant of Southern sentiment, and that, if he had been elected, he would have been a second president—filled up with all the aversions which, for the welfare of the country, we have been trying to divest ourselves of.

It were idle to waste any paper in reply to the latter part of the extract. It betrays so much ignorance of our condition and disposition, that even a Northern man of small intelligence may be able to keep himself above its influence.

One of the party appeals to the gaping fellows of the North who swallowed them, was that a united South would demand the payment not only of all the unjust "southern claims"—which, by the way, are held in the North,—but also of the cost of the negroes, whom the result of the war enfranchised.

The foolish people were also scared because it was said, even, that the Confederate money would be held up a just claim against the government, if Mr. Tilden should be elected.

This was bad enough for the North; but now comes in a cumulative evil: northern men can't live here: immigration will cease: the constitutional amendments will be treated as nullities, and the fate of the poor negro will be worse than it was when he was a slave.

Recollect that all this folly wasex pressed after, and not before, the election. If having been done before, we could pardon it, as an electioneering device; but to have it done afterwards shows a settled opinion in a man who was the candidate of a great party for the presidency; and so we can pardon the ignorant for believing what the chief of the party expressed, it not believed.

We think that it is a good thing for the country if the head man should not be elected to the presidency.

The Battle Ground of Freedom

LOUISIANA OUTRAGES TO BE FORBIDDEN

The Returning Board Threatened

The New Orleans Republican of yesterday says:

"A dispatch received last evening announced that Congressman Hewitt, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, with Representatives Bouk and Watterson, of Kentucky, and Clymer, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Bayard, of Delaware, left Louisville on a special train last night for this city. The local Democracy have been counseled to adopt no rash measures toward capturing the State until the arrival of these gentlemen."

The Picayune of the same date says:

"Gov. Kellogg received, last evening, a despatch from citizens of his native county in Illinois, the effect that if the attempted to defraud the people of this State out of the election, there were a thousand men in Illinois who would come down here and—well, interview him. Verily, a prophet hath no honor in his own country."

The sanguined private despatches are published in the Picayune of yesterday:

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 9, 1030 P. M.—R. H. Marr: Telegram received and read. Democratic headquarters answer: "Fear not your Returning Board." The popular heart by a quarter of a million majority is with you. S. NEAL,

C. A. ELLIOTT.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 9, 9:30 P. M.—Col. L. W. Patton: Democrats of Indiana will fight Kellogg and his party if they cheat us on the count. We shall have fair play or blood. G. W. SHANKINS, Editor Courier.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 P. M.—J. B. Lafitte: Excitement intense. Republicans here do not desire the election at Hayes if carried by fraud in Louisiana. S. B. FRENCH.

River News.

The Peerless, arrived from Selma, with 591 bales of cotton, 1 bale fodder, 4 sacks peas, 1 saddle, 1 bale feathers, 1 basket mixed baggage freight and several passengers. Mr. Andy Welch, the clerk, reports three and a half feet of water in the Alabama river and falling slowly.

The D. L. Tally, from Wright's Landing, with 170 bales of cotton, 1 bundle hides, a short list of casualties and a few passengers, arrived yesterday morning.

The Peerless went out last evening for Selma and Montgomery, with a fair freight and a few passengers.

The steamer D. L. Tally, the flag ship of the Grange Line, will leave this evening at five o'clock for Demopolis, with Captain Frank Stone on the hurricane deck and Jesse Bethea in the office. Spalding & Co agents.

The handsome steamer Lulu D., Capt. Owen Finnegan on deck and Mr. J. J. Lyons in the office will back out this evening at five o'clock for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The R. L. Lee from the Alabama river, will probably be in today, and will go out Monday.

Louisiana.

While the democrats claim Louisiana by a decided majority, the New Orleans Republican claims that the state has given a republican majority, that three republican congressmen are elected, and that a majority of the legislature is republican, the house of representatives having a republican majority of five. The whole nation awaits the result of the election in Louisiana with unexampled anxiety.

The Mobile Varieties.

That popular place of entertainment now numbers among its performers the sparkling and vivacious queen of song, Miss Clara May, the charming vocalist Miss Jessie Wallace, the famous jig and clog dancer, Chris Mathews, who is also good in character delineations, and Dick Roberts, a Mobile boy of peculiar talent, who is at home in every line of variety performances. A new and talented performer will make his first appearance there next week. A brilliant programme tonight.

Oranges for shipment.

Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street, has just received from Colonel Plessois' plantation 50,000 oranges treshly picked, which he will sell at the lowest prices, either at retail or for shipment to other points. They will be carefully packed in barrels, and thus shipped will make an acceptable present to the people residing at the north.

South Carolina.

The New Orleans Republican of Friday says: "Last night Governor Kellogg received a despatch from Governor Chamberlain, dated at Columbus at 8:45 P. M., stating that South Carolina has gone Republican."

Go to Crosbie, southeast corner of Dauphin and Jackson, and order a week's supply of groceries. No charge for drayage.

Every dollar of products of the soil is so much added to the general wealth.

There was not only frost but thin ice in and around Mobile Thursday night.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday 2 cars of coal and 1 deer were received.

As soon as there is a rain it will be prudent to set out strawberry plants in Mobile and vicinity.

The retail dry goods dealers are just now, at this transition season of the year, doing a very fair business.

Ten barrels apples, 14 sacks potatoes and 1 car of corn were received by Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday.

Cultivation of small industries in Mobile will afford employment to the people and bring prosperity to the city.

It is an established fact that the profits on buying and selling goods adds nothing to the general wealth of a community.

The new stable of the Conception street or Bay Shore Railroad Company on Wilkinson street greatly beautifies that section of the city.

In consequence of the illness of Solicitor Tompkins, the city court did no business yesterday, except to meet and adjourn till Monday.

There was a heavy frost Thursday night, which was nothing strange considering that the time of the year has come for cold weather.

Goods for the holidays may be sampled and purchased at Owen Farley's mammoth grocery house, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

Nothing is more beneficial to health than a reasonable sum of undercothing. Pisces has a full stock of the nicest goods at the lowest prices.

The country trade of our wholesale dealers has been very brisk this season, but the whole population of Mobile does not share in the profits of this business.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad were received yesterday 125 barrels and 1 sacks of potatoes, 7 hogsheads sugar, 21 barrels, molasses and 330 bundles iron ties.

The interest manifested in the President ial election has given result attracts large numbers of people on the street corners and in front of the newspaper and telegraph offices.

A model grocery store is that of Walter Crosbie, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson streets, where the stock is large, carefully selected and prices just a fraction above wholesale rates.

If you want a nice, warm, fashionable overcoat, go to Pizzini, northeast corner Royal and Dauphin street, who will fit you to that indispensable garment at any price you may choose.

A street railroad superintendent, in conversation lately, made the remark that if the fare on the Government street railroad had been reduced five years ago, there would not be a single vacant seat.

A coroner's inquest was held Thursday night on the body of Sylvanus LeCroix, a native of Spain, near the corner of Madison and Royal street. The deceased, about 45 years old, was found dead in bed. No indications of violence.

Ferguson, the newsboy on the New Orleans and Mobile train who was accidentally shot and killed at Bay St. Louis by Judge Chandler's son who went gunning for blayers of the Democratic Democrat, was making his first trip on the road.

The national thanksgiving, on the 30th of November, will be observed by many Mobile people of northern birth or descent. There will no, however, be such a slaughter of turkies for that occasion as in a New England city of the same population.

Two enterprising Californians, who, four years ago, planted a thousand acres in walnuts and raisins, will next year $250,000 from this year's crop. These examples might be profitably imitated in a small way in Mobile by planting productive fruit trees.

The 4th of March during inauguration year has fallen on Sunday in 1821 and 1849, and will in 1877, 1905, 1917, 1945, 1973, 2001, 2029, 2057, 2085, 2125, 2153, 2181 and 2221 That is rather farther off than the present residents of Mobile need to look.

One of the liveliest places in the city, when it is "dull as a bee hardle" elsewhere, is the Battle House billiard room. The excellence of the wines and liquors at the bar adjoining attracts many gentlemen, whose connoisseurs in beverages, mixed or plain.

Oranges, apples, almonds and other nuts mince meat in large and small packages, apple, peach and quince butter, vegetables, preserves and fancy and family groceries of the choicest wines and purest liquors, at the popular grocery house of Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street. Orders promptly filled by a retinue of attentive salesmen. Drayage free.

Mobile as well as bigger cities, abounds in rumors, some of them very absurd. There was a rumor here yesterday of a riot in New York, growing out of the reported attempts of the United States supervisors of election to take possession of the ballot boxes in that city, where the majority for Tilden is stated to be 53,000 and the democratic majority for mayor and other municipal officers on the same ticket 4 only from 13,000 down.

TELEGRAPH.

RESULT IN DOUBT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The Commercial Advertiser says the Republicans, at their head-quarters in the Fifth Avenue hotel, are still confident that Hayes has carried Florida, which is all that is required to secure Hayes' election. The dispatches were received from various points in Florida this morning confirming the claim made that the Republicans had carried the State. The Democrats are quite as confident that Tilden has carried the state. North Carolina is still in doubt, although claimed by Tilden. Senator Mitchell telegraphs from Oregon that the State is sure for Hayes. The result will not be satisfactorily settled until North Carolina and Florida are officially heard from. A dispatch was received in this city at noon to-day from Gov. Swarns of Florida, announcing that the State has given 2,000 majority for Hayes. Secretary Cumnier received dispatches from Brannen and Pacific States which leave no doubt in his mind of the election of Hayes. Sheriff Jones of Jacksonville, Florida, telegraphs that the State is undoubtedly Republican. Mr. Mosier, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, sends a telegram from Tallahassee, claiming the State for Republicans by 2,000. Secretary Cumnier answers all inquiries stating that the election of Governor Hayes is considered beyond doubt. Senators Boreas and Sargent of California have telegraphed that the state is Republican by a large majority. Senator Jones of Nevada says that that state elects their Republican ticket.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—A dispatch from Virginia City this morning says Nevada will give 1,000 Republican majority. Scattering returns from the State also indicate that result. Returns are coming in very slowly. In California returns thus far received give Hayes 5, 400 majority, which additional returns are not likely to vary. For Congress Davis and Page, Republicans, are certain ly elected in the Southern District, and Republican gains are reported in the Fourth District. The contest is very close and indecisive; both parties claim the election of their respective candidates for Congress. A dispatch from Dutch Flat says: Dr. Dunn can now safely claim 200 majority for Hayes by Placer county. Sutter county will give Hayes 500. The Republican State Central Committee claim the State by from 1,000 to 1,200.

THE CUTTS CASE.

AUGUSTA Nov. 9.—The Augusta Cotton Exchange has reports for October as to the prospects and condition of the crop based upon thirty-four reports from nineteen counts s, the average date of replies being the 30th of October. The weather since the 1st of October is generally reported favorable for opening and picking. The crop will mature more favorable than last year for gathering crop. Slight frosts from the 24 to 5th of October. Killing frosts from the 16 to the 18th, since caused some injury on low and bottom lands to late cotton, but owing to the advanced condition of crops the damages is immaterial. S venty five per cent. of the crop is reported already gathered, and expect the picking will be completed between the 15th and 30th of November. There is unusual divergence of opinion as to the probable yield, estimates varying from 20 per cent under to 20 per cent over last year. A majority of the correspondents report the yield about equal to that of last year. The damage by frost is insignificant. September storms washed a small percentage of the yield and injured a quantity as to grade. There being a good deal of sandy and discolored cotton staple of all superior, the crop matured is being gathered and marketed with a rapidity seldom, if ever, equalled. It is the opinion of the committee on crops that this section is harvesting more cotton than last year by from 10 to 15 per cent.

THE CENTENNIAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—An immense crowd of citizens of Philadelphia principally visited the Exhibition grounds yesterday. Great election excitement was manifested, telegrams from Florida upon the presidential issue were read from the telegraph offices on the grounds to boisterous crowds. A Miss Ealing, of this city, fell dead with heart disease while passing through the main hall. A grand programme of closing exercises to-morrow has been arranged, including salutes, music, etc. The new national air, "Salute to the Flag," by Herbert A. Prentice, the well known Washington correspondent, form part of the exercises.

THE FRANKLIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The bark Norma in latitude 42 ° 2 minutes, longitude 26° 2 minutes, passed a large mass of war heading east, apparently in distress of close by. The war ship was heading west, apparently in distress, as it was dark. The Norma could not make out her name or nationality.

TO BE MARRIED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Mr. Morrill is the only cabinet officer here. Cardinal McCloskey will visit this city on the 22d inst., to unite in marriage his niece Miss Teresa Mallet of this city and Hon. John Kelly of New York. The ceremony will take place at St. Matthew's church.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 9 —There was but one interment to day. Yellow fever was the cause.

FIRE.

CORSICANA, TEX., Nov. 9.—A wooden block, embracing thirteen stores, burned here last night. Two-thirds of the stocks were saved in a damaged condition. Loss about $28,000. Only five were insured, and their loss $15,000, will be nearly covered. The buildings were old and almost valueless. Bricks are being hauled for a new block to replace that destroyed.

FLORIDA.

LAKE CITY, November 10—10:30 A. M. —Five counties referred to yesterday reached Palatka from the upper St. John river at 11 o'clock last night, with re-returns showing increased Democratic majorities. It is conceded by those best informed in Florida will give 40 to 50 majority in county of at least 1,700 votes.

NEW YORK, Nov. mber 10.—T e following re ports are in the Herald office: A private despatch just received at Democratic headquarters say: hat Florida has gone Democratic.

NEW YORK, November 10.—2 P. M.—The Western Union Telegraph Co., bulletins the following:

Lake City, Fla., November 10.—1:30 P. M. Partial returns from Madison county, Fla., from reliable sources, give a Democratic majority of 318, a Democratic gain of 166.

A Western Union bulletin, dated Lake City, November 9, midnight says the Jacksonville Press will issue a paper to-morrow giving Florida a Democratic majority of 1,638, prepared by experienced men and based on reliable returns and carefully compiled estimates.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 10—United States troops have been ordered from South Carolina to Florida. Two companies, stationed at Aiken, leave this afternoon for Tallahassee.

SOUTH CAROLINA

NEW YORK, November 10.—The Associated Press has revised the following from sources other than its regular agents at Charleston, November 10.—This county gives the Republicans 6,214 majority. Nearly all the counties heard from office ously or unofficially give Hampton, Democrat, for Governor, 12,213 majority. The Democratic Presidential ticket is carried on the same as the first ticket passed, and it is now believed that Tilden will not fall more than 400 to 500 behind Hampton. It does not appear possible for the Republicans to overcome the figure above given from the counties not officially heard from.

Press Opinions.

NEW YORK, November 10—The Times and Tribune still claim Hayes' election; the Herald is in doubt, and the World and the Sun claim the Democracy.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.]

DEM-CRAT-ROPEFUL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10, 12-2) A. M.—All day yesterday and to day the officeholders and negroes have been buoyed up by the hope of electing Hayes by one electoral vote, to be secured by fraud. The news, this evening gives them very little hope, and they are now thoroughly cowed and dispirited. The meditated villainy of your Republican Returning Board will be unavailing except to bring down upon themselves the punishment they deserve.

The vile conspiracy to set aside the popular verdict is crushed, and the Democracy are in the highest spirits.

TURBULENCE.

The negroes here have been very turbulent and insolent for several days, and a riot has been apprehended.

OHIO WATCHING.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9, 8:30 P. M.—Dispatches here are claiming Ohio has gone Democratic. Twenty-seven counties officially reported show, it is said, no Democratic gains of 5000 over the vote of 1875, when Hayes had 5544 majority.

Cuyahoga county gives 2300 Democratic gain. Even much less ratio of gains in other fifty counties would give the State to the Democrats.

THE CENTENNIAL.

John G. Thompson, Chairman of the State Central Committee, is confident Tilden has carried the state of Ohio, returns being conceded Republican, have been neglected in the excitement over general re-ult.

SOUTH CAROLINA IN DOUBT.

A special to the Gazette claims North Carolina for the Republicans. This claim is based on the ground that the western counties, not yet heard from, are strongly Republican and will overcome the Democratic majority of the eastern counties, as in 1872 for Governor.

OREGON REPUBLICAN.

A telegram from Lafayette Lane, Democratic candidate for Congress in Oregon, to J. M. Lesh, says: "Are beaten and the State is Republican by a small majority."

OHIO REPUBLICAN.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 10, 1:30 A. M.—Republicans were alarmed yesterday by the report that Ohio had gone Democratic. In their anxiety about the general result they forgot all about Ohio. The State will be close but no hopes of the Democrats carrying it.

Semi-official returns from fifty-six counties, thirty Democratic and twenty-six Republican, shows not Democratic gains over October of 1188; the Democrats gained in thirty-five counties and the Republicans in only twenty-one. There are thirty two counties to hear from, and if the Democratic gain in these as in others, Hayes's majority in Ohio will fall far below 5000, and he will suffer a crushing defeat in his own State.

SOUND ? NEW ORLEANS.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 10, 1:30 A. M.—It is now assured that a majority of the entire Democrats, East, and West, leave for New Orleans to-morrow, to endeavor to prevent by their presence and force the fraudulent Returning Board from counting the State for Hayes.

LOUISIANA.

Louisiana Discussed.

The New Orleans Bulletin, a conservative journal, hostile to the Republicans, alluding to the political outrages now are on their way to that city, says with sarcasm:

"The serene composure with which they look on on 72 and 74 does not appear to be abundant just now. The question being one of getting Mr. Tilden and his followers into the office of the nation and not that of the rights and liberties of this insignificant State, Messrs. Thurman, Watterson and Hewitt are developing a vast amount of solicitude and sympathy. We trust everybody will be appropriately grateful. Mr. Watterson is the distinguished editor of the Courier Journal who, in 1874, derided and sneered at the heroes of September 14th, because they did not resist the United States troops—called them imbeciles and cowards—and ridiculed their claims to popular respect. Senator Thurman is the illustrious Democrat who, when Madam Burke, Zacharie and Leon Dupre, skirmishing through to Count Strud, stanked with choice strawberry and lemon trees, &c., &c. Pipes for gas throughout the house. All in splendid order.

Policy of the Republicans.

The New Orleans Republican, with the political sentiments of which the Tribune has no sympathy, is regarded as good republican authority and an exponent of the policy of the republican party, in the final determination of the presidential contest. The conclusion or a carefully written article on "What May Happen" is as follows:

"We will not argue the question who he the president of the Senate is restricted to the ministerial duty of opening the electoral certificates in the presence of both bodies of Congress, and that all these votes shall then be counted, or whether this or floor will consider duplicate or informal certificates and prepare—as the Clerk of the House of Representatives does—the electoral roll to be counted. It will be proper to proceed a step further and suppose that the President of the Senate shall determine on this prima facie inspection to enroll or exclude votes according to his own discretion. We may pass over the formal mode of deciding the election, whether by the vote of this House of Representatives, or the next, the succession of a President chosen by the Senate, or a resistance by one or the other party to whatever mode of settlement may be adopted. There may, we will not conceal from our readers, be great danger lest the party discontented may resort to extreme measures for reinstating their construction of their own rights. The consequence to the country will be of the gravest possible character, to the South especially so, for causes too obvious to need recital here.

Suffice it to say that everything remains it proper to maintain the order and obedience to law which have distinguished the conduct of the campaign. Louisiana may be the pivot of the election; but should the consequences of national conflict be as serious as they might possibly be, Louisiana could exercise very little influence on the ultimate decision. While, therefore, confident of a Republican success, and fervently hopeful that the nation may be spared a second conflict for the life of the Union, we hope our fellow-citizens will regard this issue in its true aspect, and will not violate the peace of the land by any act which may visit upon an impoverished and distracted people a repetition of sorrows which humanity and patriotism alike deprecate."

A Mate's Wages.

—Some months ago the American ship Carondelet, Stetson master, sailed from this port with cotton for Liverpool. On the outward passage Robert Craze, first mate, had considerable difficulty on board, and the captain felt compelled to send him before the mast. On arriving at Liverpool an affort was made to get rid of Craze, but the American consul, when appealed to decided that Craze must be retained in the position indicated for him on the ship's papers. The vessel arrived here lately, but the master flatly refused to pay Craze's wages in full. The mate thereupon caused Captain Stetson's arrest, and sent him before United States Commissioner Southworth. That official decided that the mate's demand for wages must be complied with.—N. O. Republican.

Business on the Levee.

—Yesterday and the day before business on the levee from one end to the other was unusually brisk. Steamboats are bringing in new cotton, sugar, molasses and rice. Steamboats from the far off cities bring in great loads of Western produce, all of which find ready sale. Merchants on Magazine, Tchoupitoulas and like streets turn an almost deaf ear to political news, because they have profitable orders from their customers in the country. Nearly all the wholesale houses are working a full force all day and a portion of the night.—N. O. Republican.

Dvideds are declared in November on about $14,000,000 of banking capital at New York. The announcements of six banks, with nine and a half millions have been made. The City bank keeps up its five per cent. quarterly, the Pacific its three per cent. quarterly. The American Exchange, with its $5,000,000 capital which dropped from 4 cent. semi annual to 3½ keeps there this time. The Union, £1,500,000, and the Mechanics' and Traders', drop from five per cent. semi-annual by to four.

Apples are so abundant in some portions of the West that they are used to stock. Not far from Cincinnati this desirable fruit only commands fifty cents per barrel.

The Napoleon French Flag.

Pall Mall Gazett.—The Figaro reminds us the French army has no flags, and that on the 24 of June, 1815, the War Minister issued an order that the standards then in use were to be handed over to the artillery. In change, small flags without any inscriptions were served out provisionally. The provisional flags, which have now been in use for five years, only cost 25 francs apiece while the silk standards, with their ornaments, cost 200 francs. It is not, perhaps, a question of expenditure which hinders the War Office from replacing the eagle. The fleurs de-lys are out of the question; so is the Gallic cock, which has been monopolized by the Orleans family: the lady in Phrygian cap who symbolizes the republic, and who is playfully called Marianne, is only in favor with Radicals; and the moderate republic has neither symbol nor song. Taken alone, the tri color belongs to the revolution, the empire, and the younger branch of the Bourbons. Perhaps it would be prudent, until the Conservative republic is more firmly established, to leave the top of the flagstaff in its present nude condition.

BOOTH'S THEATRE.—Some weeks ago it was announced that Mr. Edwin Booth had notified Messrs. Jarret & Palmer, the managers of Booth's Theatre, to discontinue the use of his name in connection with that house. It was claimed that the use of Booth's name led people to believe that he was still connected with the theatre, and thereby injured him in his profession. Messrs. Jarret & Palmer having failed to comply with Mr. Booth's request, it is understood that legal proceedings will be begun to compel them to do so. If forced to change the name of their house, Messrs Jarrett & Palmer will probably christen it Lincoln Theatre.—N. Y. World.

The health of this city has never been better than it is now.

Yesterday morning and the morning before some persons said that there was a little ice.

There is a little bit of learning now that can be acquired by the smallest capacity. It is, shut the door. This will make things comfortable, although it may hurt Mr. Danner.

Tweed hasn't got back to New York. There was some apprehension that the United States ship Franklin, which had the precious freight on board, was in some sort of distress—perhaps lost. It carried Jonah. The ship's company ought to have thrown him overboard. He can swim—has all[illegible] enough. He may float into Mobile Bay.

London is getting into a Nichol 600 way of pavement. We of Mobile know what that is. The Strand has granite for its street floor. This is to be the[illegible] and $30,000 of wood substituted for it. Send some commissioners here to look at Royal street. It is, however, probable that the wood of the Strand will be put down in a different form.

Last Thursday night the Attorney General of the state was serenaded at Montgomery, and while returning his thanks for it, a man named Allen Hood (a negro) threw a brickbat at him, which struck him on the face. It was not a dangerous wound, but enough to prevent him from continuing his speech. Hood was arrested, and it is to be hoped that he will be placed where there are no brickbats.

THE DEBRIS.

In one of the city papers yesterday there was an article, which is inordinately arrogant—presumptuous and in the worst possible taste, even without its insolence. It related to the District election. Here are some of its gems. It calls the men who voted for Mr. Bromberg, the "misguided Democratic allies" of the Republicans; calls it a "sneak and mischievous movement." We give a longer extract. Taus:

"When the leader of the Bromberg delegation returned from the Jacksonville Convention, embittered by failure in what they seem to have looked forward to as the easy task of excluding their fellow-citizens from representation in the body, and burdened with the obligation of defending their own unjustifiable withdrawal from it, the only possible resource was that of getting up and keeping up a sensation and so agitating the waters that nothing could be seen clearly."

There is much more of the same sort, intimating that the 32 were a set of fools, who had no purpose, except to elect an honest, a wise and an experienced gentleman to congress. It is hardly necessary to say that the extract suggests an untruth. There was no committee of looking, of jollier or better-natured set of delegates nevercome out of a convention, although it was managed against the wishes of a majority of the people who made them delegates.

This tirade of abuse is based on the assumption that minorities have more right than their votes, as against majorities, give them.

Why the very action of the so-called Jackson Convention ignored lists. If a man in a minority had got up there among those politic worms and claimed this right, he would have been hooted out of the house.

Minorities have nothing, but voice in our meetings. Tell the members of the primaries about this, and they would laugh if the minorities should obtain the right. To our conventions, anywhere in the whole country this and the members of them would laugh. Why the very presidential election of last week was only the election by majorities, or, locally, pluralities. If there were a recognized power in the minority vote, we should have a terrible time—for then, it is possible that neither Tilden nor Hayes would be elected. We should have to fall back on nowhere.

This minority idea, which is a favorite by those whom it may be useful to, had its origin in the heads of speculative political philosophers. Mr. Calhoun had much theory in regard to it. He threw it into his works—by specious, or otherwise—and our Mobile paper has disbed it out. Theoretically, there is nothing nicer; it has never been any thing but the dream of abstractionists—such as is our Mobile gentleman. Why should that person bother his head by this kind of nonsense?

MR. TURNER.

We publish a communication this morning from W. W. D. Turner, esq. The reader can put his own estimate on it. We have expressed nothing more than what is generally believed by all parties in the case. We have no proof—nothing but inference, founded on a general belief. The evidence is only circumstantial. Let it go for what it is worth. We shall not deny what the gentleman so positively says.

We knew that he had no prospect and, no hope of success. We are sure that he threw himself into the business without expecting to win. We know that he defeated a candidate who was respected and voted for by the most respectable members of the Republican party. That party is considerably demoralized as far as unity is concerned; and as Mr. Turner is on the best, influential and intelligent side of it, it may be that he was incited by a wicked disposition to gratify his vyersions. This, of course, is mere hypothesis.

But he has the merit of having defeated a candidate whom the mass of our people desired, and is better fitted, by experience and otherwise, to represent this District in Congress. What he gained by it is not for us to say, except, what seems to be obvious, the gratification of some unworthy spitefulness.

But we drop the subject, for we have no desire to impute bad motives to any man, but think that every citizen should hold in mind the events which—either honest or dishonest—lost us a member of Congress who could so well serve us of the city and the whole District. This ought not to be forgotten.

EXPOSITIONS AND OTHER THINGS.

These gentlemen who left Mobile to visit the Centennial have some back dazed. Nothing in the past, they think, was so null of all greatness. Our old friend, Mr. Burns, who has seen a good deal of the world, went to Philadelphia, and he has rapturously come home—positively declaring that there has never been anything like it; and, moreover, that there can't be anything like it. It is sui generis.

The French people are getting ready to make an exposition in 1878. The government will help it. Look out for that—for the French, when they go into a purpose, they "go it" with energy and a pride of race, and such tastes that no other people can well compete with.

It is not the taste, however, that is all-essential. That is pleasant enough to the spectators, but these expeditions are intended mainly to exhibit the substantial things of states. A little piece of iron or coal, represented in them, may have more influence on industries and human happiness than the diamonds, laces, feathers and flummery that may be got in all parts of Europe.

For, after all, the average mind will not look at it except in this way: the man who makes something useful is a benefactor—that is, a maker of proof, as the word means. The iron and the coal are twins of the chief factors in drawing the people together, and making them its substantial element of what is profitable to individuals and to states.

Of these elements we have within Alabama enough to compete with all the other states, or with other countries.

This is here apparent to every expert who has given his attention to the subject.

And yet here in Mobile, the only sea outlet; and it has invested and invites—nothing at all to live on except cotton, and much of that is passing through to New Orleans, leaving not a cent to us. Some people think that the harbor is the cause of this. That is not true. The cause lies chiefly in those who have no permanent interest within the city.

MOBILE, November 10, 1876.

Editor Tribune: The election is over and for one I am disposed to "let bygones be bygones." But you have done me a gross injustice in your paper of yesterday in which you intimate that I was paid by the Jones men to be a candidate.

I write this to say that there is no word of truth in that charge. I made my race upon principle and had a right to hope to be elected. That my being a candidate may have resulted in the election of Capt. Jones I am not disposed to deny; and I accept whatever responsibility attaches to me for it.

If I had not been a candidate either Jones or Bromberg would certainly have been elected. They both being Democrats, it mattered not to me which one should be elected. The Democrats being divided between them, I had a right to expect that the Republicans would vote for me.

I have yet to learn where, when and how the republican party became under obligations to support Mr. Bromberg. I did not feel under any such obligations, and for that reason felt free to do as I have; nor do I regret any act or speech made in the canvass. Had I wanted to elect Capt. Jones I had as much right to take the stump for him as other republicans had for Mr. Bromberg. In conclusion, permit me to say I think it rather "cheeky" for Bromberg Democrats to find fault with me. I told them all the time that I would not stand by and see my party sold out to them without protesting against it. But even if the charge made against me was true, I would have no apology to make for it, for I did not betray my party, unless it can be shown that it is under obligations to Mr. Bromberg which I do not think even you will assert to have been the case.

Respectfully,
W. W. D. TURNER.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 30 miles shorter than the route via Atlanta, and the only line passing through, or connecting with, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, that will insure quicker time than any other route or car make.

Its management, in saw-meeting to the public wants

IS UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME between the South and the East, big leave to say that, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the safety of property, or missing connections, but having a much shorter line than any of other route, they have, by running

EXTRA FAST TRAINS,

stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East fully one-third, thereby saving to the traveling, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrifice, safety in the least degree.

Passengers, as now, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the mountain scenery of the Piedmont region, and the variegated scenery continued to the Atlantic seaboard, by reason of its connection to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality. Palace sleeping cars, with elegant day coaches, elevator or rocking-chair cars without extra charge, some of the most convenient and attentive conductors and employees, thus insuring safety and comfort.

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at the most desirable stopping places, and ample time afforded for meals.

QUICK TRANSIT. FEW CHANGES. SURE CONNECTIONS

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial pleasure travel will be learned over this route in less time and with less effort and comfort than by any other, while their traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

DIFFICULT RESULT.

The Herald still considers the result doubtful. Democrats and Republicans continue equally confident in asserting the triumph of their party.

HATES.

The members of the National Committee expressed entire confidence that Hayes had been elected.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

At the Democratic headquarters in the Everett House, the Secretary of the National Committee said that the dispatches received to-day confirmed the claims of victory for Tilden. R. Barnwell Rhett, of South Carolina, telegraphed to the committee this morning that over and above a liberal estimate for Republican frauds, the Democratic electoral ticket and Hampton were elected by from 1,200 to 2,000 majority.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 10.—The News and Courier has just received official advices from the best of the counties indirectly reported unofficially, making Hampton's majority for Governor 1,434. Tilden's majority may fall 200 or 300 behind Hampton's, but it is certainly over 1,000. The Republicans here do not dispute the correctness of these returns, but say the State canvassers will throw out several of the counties giving large Democratic majorities, and that this will give the State to Hayes and Chamberlain. The Democrats do not seem to heed this threat, but are firing salutes and other wise celebrating their victory.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

WASHINGTON, November 10.—Gen. Sherman, last night, received telegrams from the Secretary of War, who is in Philadelphia, to order Gen. Ruger to send as many companies of troops to Tallahassee, Fla., as could be spared, and to go himself in person. Gen. Ruger answered that he had ordered nine companies, would order five more, and would go in person as ordered.

Gen. Sherman, to-day, received the following dispatch from the President.

"Philadelphia, November, 10.—General W. T. Sherman, Washington: Instruct Gen'l Augur in Louisiana and General Ruger in Florida to be vigilant with the forces at their command, to preserve peace and good order, and to see that the proper and legal Boards of Canvassers are unmolested in the performance of their duties. Should there be any grounds for a suspicion of a fraudulent count on either side, it should be reported and denounced at once. No man worthy of the office of President should be willing to hold it if counted in or placed there by fraud. Either party can afford to be disappointed in the result. The country cannot afford to have the result tainted by the suspicion of illegal or false returns.

"U. S. GRANT."

"Philadelphia, November 10.—General Sherman: Send all the troops to Gen. Augur he may deem necessary to secure entire quiet, and a peaceable count of the ballots actually cast. They may be taken from South Carolina, unless there is reason to suspect an outbreak there. The presence of citizens from other States, I understand, is requested in Louisiana, to see that the Board of Canvassers make a fair count of the vote actually cast. It is to be hoped that representative and fair men of both parties will go.

"U. S. GRANT."

WISCONSIN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9, Midnight.—The Republicans will have 18 majority in the Assembly and eleven in the Senate. The majority for Hayes in the state will exceed 5,000.

OREGON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—Full returns from 20 counties in Oregon show a Republican majority of 1,222. There remain but three more counties to be heard from, two of which will offset each other, and the third will give 50 Republican majority.

GOING TO LOUISIANA.

NEW YORK, November 10.—The following dispatch has been sent to Governors Ingersoll, Hubbard, Robinson, Bodie, Corbin, Palmer, McCreery, Carroll and others; also Senators Thurman, Bayard, Randolph, McDonald, Kernan, and other Senators and leading public men in Northern States, Republican and Democratic. The acceptance warrants a full representation at New Orleans: "The citizens at New Orleans urgently request that a delegation of prominent gentlemen come there at once to counsel peace and a fair and honest return. You are earnestly requested to be one of ten or fifteen gentlemen, all widely known, to meet at the Louisville Galt House, Saturday evening proceeding direct to South; or, if more convenient, meeting at the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, Monday morning. Your prompt acceptance by telegraph is requested. This emergency appeals to your patriotism

"ABRAHAM S. HEWITT, Chairman."

PHILADELPHIA, November 10.—In accordance with the request of Governor Kellogg, of Louisiana, that prominent men should go from the North to inspect the counting of the votes in that State, the President has invited the following gentlemen to proceed to New Orleans for such purpose: Hon. W. D. Kelley, of Pennsylvania; Gen. J. A. Garfield, of Ohio; Hon. J. A. Kasson, of Iowa; John Schoonmaker, of Pennsylvania; Gen. J. A. Logan, of Illinois. It is understood that most of these gentlemen have accepted and will reach New Orleans within a few days.

PHILADELPHIA, November 10.—It is stated on good authority that the President has also requested the following gentlemen to visit the South, in order to secure a fair count of the Presidential vote, in addition to those already named: Thomas Bayard, Esq., of Pennsylvania, and Hon. Harry L. Stebbins, of New York. Judge Kellogg has already left for the South.

LITTLE ROCK, November 10.—The report that Senator Beck, Henry Watterson and others have gone to New Orleans, is premature, for Watterson has not left this city, and in answer to enquiries, said that if the parties mentioned should go to New Orleans, they would go in the interest of peace and order, proposing to use their influence as far as possible over the excited masses now excited in that city. They could do no more, in any event, than to personally inform themselves. Mr. Watterson expressed the opinion that it would be eminently proper for Gov. Hayes and Gov. Tilden jointly and by agreement, to send parties of friends to New Orleans, headed respectively by Charles Francis Adams and Wm. M. Evarts, and composed of conservative men who have the confidence of the country. He thought such an arrangement would be able to ensure a fair count of the vote and satisfy the whole people a meeting a most dangerous issue and perhaps an outburst of violence.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 10.—Leading republicans concede the state to the democrats by the returns, but say they will throw out enough democratic counties to reverse the result.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10.—Gen. Wikoff, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, furnishes the following information: The sixty-nine counties of Ohio heard from up to noon to-day, show a republican loss of 162 on Barnes' majority at the October election. The indications are that Hayes' majority will be about 6,000.

AN ALABAMIAN HURT.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Mr. Taylor, Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Alabama, who is visiting at East Albany, while riding with his wife yesterday was thrown from his carriage and severely injured. Mrs. Taylor was also injured.

OPERA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Mlle Emo Roscan made her first appearance as Mdme Longy, in conjunction with the Gates Opera company, at the Arch Street theatre, and created enthusiastic admiration of her elegant appearance and musical culture.

GRANT'S ORDER EXPLAINED.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—A special to the Times says:

Grant's orders will be favorably received all the north as an earnest of his intention to compel a fair count and not as a specious show of fairness intended to conceal fraud. Drexel, a New York banker, understands the inspiration of Grant's order to be safety of business interests. Grant says the country has nothing to expect from party, but everything from business men, and to prevent anarchy he will sustain a fair count at the expense of the republican party.

EXCITEMENT IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—10:20 P. M.—The excitement here for days past has been unparalleled. The villainy of the Radical plan to set aside the vote of Louisiana is well understood here. The developments of public opinion at the North yesterday and to-day make it perfectly clear that if any attempt is made to change the vote of Louisiana by fraud, there will be such an uprising as has not been witnessed Since the firing on Sumter. This manifestation of public sentiment has been so decided that the New York Tribune and Herald of to-day both come out strongly in favor of an honest count of the votes. The Herald warns Kellogg and Chamberlain that any attempt to change the result by fraud will be punished.

FLORIDA FOR TILDEN.

Senator Conover, of Florida, has telegraphed the Republican National Committee at New York that Florida has gone for Tilden.

HAYES HOPEFUL.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 11, 12:30 A. M.—Special to the Enquirer from Columbus says: Captain Lee, Governor Hayes' private secretary, answers all dispatches for information by saying, "Hayes is elected beyond doubt."

HOUSE DEMOCRATIC.

The Enquirer has an estimate on the next house, which makes it democratic by 21 majority—democrats 157, republicans 135. It claims that the senate will stand 26 democrats to 40 republicans.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—All conservatives say Tilden has been fairly elected, but desperate manipulation and fraud are being practiced to cheat him of victory.

The World gives the Louisiana Returning Board a hint in this wise:

"Let it be understood that the United States will not accept a president at the hands of men who have been pronounced usurpers by all Republicans and Democrats who were ever appointed to investigate Louisiana affairs."

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., Stag Hound Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I am certified that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours.

THE VOTE OF MOBILE COUNTY.

The vote of Mobile county on Tuesday has was officially counted yesterday, as follows:

FOR CONGRESS.

Frederick G Bromberg	6287
James T Jones	3659
W W D Turner	205

FOR PRESIDENT AI ELECTORS.

John T Morgan	5838
James L Pugh	5838
Sidney T Price	5838
James T Holtzclaw	5830
James E Waldrop	5830
John Y Kilpatrick	5830
William H Northington	5830
William G Little, jr	5830
Samuel K McSpadden	5830
Henry C Jones	5368
Lewis E Parsons	4272
Benjamin F Saffold,	4272
Gustavus Horgan	4272
Robert W Healy	4272
John R Ard	4272
Alexander H Curtis	4272
Samuel S Booth	4272
Asa B Hays	4272
Henry C Sanford	4272
Joseph B Bates	4272

The majority for Bromberg was 2,586. The majority for the Tilden electors was 1,958, except for Henry C Jones, whom two voters probably scratched under the supposition that he was the same Jones who was running for congress.

For the election of president of the United States 185 electoral votes are necessary. Tilden certainly has 184 of these votes, and it remains to be seen whether he will be "counted out" on the three southern states—South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana—now easily claimed by both parties.

FLORIDA FOR TILDEN.

Senator Conover, of Florida, has telegraphed the Republican National Committee at New York that Florida has gone for Tilden.

R. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B LYONS

At Rockingham, Virginia, there is a family of five persons who weigh respectively 315, 294, 232, 230 and 210 pounds.

A party of young dined sumptuously at a restaurant, and each one insisted upon paying the bill. To decide the matter it was proposed to blindfold the waiter, and the first caught should pay the bill. He hasn't caught any of them yet.—[Exchange.

The Chicago Times presents figures to show that 50 per cent. of the Western product is packed in that city, and says her packing capacity is equal to 50,000 hogs per day, adding: "Chicago expects to pack 2,000,000 hogs this winter. If she doesn't it will be because the raw material is not in the market, or the demand will not warrant the supply. It is simply a question of hogs and want."

Sophocles's tragedy of "Antigone" was recently produced at the Theatre Royal, in Dublin, with Mendelssohn's music, and the gallery gods were so well pleased that, according to their custom, they demanded a sight of the author. "Bring out Sapherclaze," they yelled. The manager explained that Sophocles had been dead 2,000 years or more, and couldn't well come. Then a gamin shouted, "Then chuck us out his mummy."

Williaham, near Ipswich, is the champion stronghold of illiteracy in England. No one can be found to occupy the office of churchwarden, surveyor, or overseer, who can read or write. The overseer who attended the petty sessions with the jury lists is so illiterate that he is obliged to obtain the help of the local postman to fill up the notices. There has been no service in the church, which is very dilapidated, every window being broken, for more than two years.

Spurgeon does not believe in ill-ventilated churches. One day he was preaching in a country chapel where the air was so foul that he asked whether every gentleman who happened to be near a window would have the kindness to smash one or two panes of glass. There was a grand smashing of panes and the delightful accession of fresh air. It is but right to add that Mr. Spurgeon paid the bill for the damage done to the windows.

A CASE of considerable interest to business men has just been decided by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts relative to a note made for $500 and altered by Pond, the forger, with chemicals, to represent $2,000. It was placed in bank and protested, after the forgery had been discovered, the indorser refusing to pay it. The decision was in effect that as the note was made for $500, and accepted and indorsed for that amount, the marker or indorser could only be held for the original, and not for the forged amount.

A MOST SHOCKING MURDER.—Mr. Isaac Moore, who resided a few miles from Uniontown, was murdered last Saturday night, when returning from Uniontown. He was riding in a buggy, with a servant by his side —upon reaching his plantation gate, which had been standing open for some days, it was found closed and when the negro got out to open the gate Mr. Moore was fired upon and instantly killed. The horses ran off, and running the buggy against a stump, Mr. Moore's body fell out. Upon reaching the spot, the negro found that Mr. Moore had been killed and gave the alarm, when he too was fired upon and very badly, it not fatally wounded. The foul crime was perpetrated by negroes, some of them in Mr. Moore's employ, and was undoubtedly committed for the purpose of robbery, as some of the pockets of the deceased were found rifled. Six negroes known to have been implicated in this shocking affair have been arrested, and the authorities are in search of others. Speedy punishment should be meted out to these wretches, and that to the fullest extent of the law.

The deceased was raised in this vicinity,—(the son of Mr. Wm. D. Moore)—and enjoyed in a high degree, public confidence and respect.—Greensboro (Ala.) Beacon.

Northern Suspense.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—The large crowds on the streets are no wiser to-day than yesterday. There were large crowds in the vicinity of the bulletin boards at the newspaper offices to-day manifesting great anxiety over the result of the election. They were less boisterous, however, both sides apparently too long doubtful as to the general result. There is an evident determination to believe nothing but the official count.

The Stock Board was affected to-day to considerable extent by the unsettled condition of the country, securities being considerably depressed. Dispatches received either one way or the other would cause a slight firmness, but in a few minutes the illusion would be dispelled and a fluctuation would again control the market.

There is still an undercurrent of intense feeling in this city over the election and its possible issue, although the outward evidence of excitement is abating and a feeling of hope is uppermost in the minds of all classes of citizens. Both political parties appear to be suspicious of fraud, and trustworthy advices from disputed States are anxiously awaited. Telegrams to the Republican headquarters here still claim Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana, and the leaders seem to have confidence in the ultimate result, while dispatches from Democratic sources are equally as positive of Tilden having carried those States. The people have evidently begun to realize that partisan dispatches are unreliable, tending only to keep up the excitement and anxiety, and are making up their minds to await the official returns from the doubtful States. Business in the city is perceptibly depressed in consequence of the continued suspense, and everything is at a stand still awaiting the final issue. All other news is at a discount; even the Turko Servian war is forgotten, and the reported arrival of Tweed at the Island of St. Thomas, en route here, causes no excitement. Bulletins are constantly placed outside the newspaper offices announcing the latest advices, and any assertion in favor of either political candidate is almost immediately contradicted by a denial of its truth or a dispatch of a directly opposite character, placed on the bulletin of some opposing organ.

The pool rooms this morning are betting more favorable to Hayes than yesterday.

President Grant's order to Gen. Sherman, directing troops to be sent to Louisiana to protect the ballot boxes is very generally commended by conservative men of both parties and the proposition for a representation of Democrats and Republicans to witness the canvassing of votes in Louisiana meets with universal favor This, it is believed will insure a peaceful settlement of the dispute and convince the country of a fair counting of the returns, no matter in whose favor the contest may be decided.

The Graphic calls attention to a probable political dilemma. "Hayes seems," it says, "to have 185 votes, and Tilden 184. By the laws of human mortality, one of this whole number will die before the counting of the votes on December 5th, and if two Hayes men die, the Democratic electors could make Tilden President. Besides, each elector acts for himself; votes as he pleases, and by bribery, the electors could choose any other man for President." It believes the time has arrived for the abolition of the Electoral College, as soon as the constitution can be amended to that effect.

P. S. An extra was published yesterday morning with some telegraph returns which claim S. Carolina, Florida, and Louisiana: but there is nothing in them quite satisfactory. The claim has been made before, and although we are approaching the time when we ought to expect to get the facts, it is not yet we can say that we have got them.

If the report of the Louisiana returns be true why are two committees on their way to see the votes counted! They are going thither, we suppose to recount them. If not, their presence will be superfluous.

Taking it altogether, we cant see clearly through the muddle.

The singer Tamburini, is dead, at Nice.

The Alabama legislature will begin its session to-day.

Apples at the West are a drug. Near Cincinnati fifty cents a barrel is what is asked for them.

The Alabama Medical College of this city commences its winter course of lectures to-night, with an address. The public are invited to attend.

Those splendid pompanoes at Smith & Dumas's docs yesterday made people's mouths water. It is not often that one sees larger or nicer ones.

The yellow fever has still a few victims in Savannah. The cases, as is usual at the closing of an epidemic season, are the development of the germs of the disease contracted when it was warmer.

Mr. McKinley has resigned the office of Superintendent of Education. The reason is that he has been elected to the Legislature. He was a most excellent Superintendent. For his unexpired term of office, Mr. L. P. Box has been appointed by the Governor.

New York city, like New Orleans, is afflicted with a great drought. It is mentioned that statistics show that it has no precedent for half a century. October is considered there the driest month of the year. It has been so in Mobile, but there has been an abundance of the dust for all ordinary and lavatory purposes. What we lack is a suspect of conflagrations.

Savannah is derelict in regard to the interest on her bonds. The reason is thus given in the New York Times:

"When the yellow fever set in violently all who could flee the city fled as hastily as possible. Those fugitives were, also, the persons who were able to afford to pay their city taxes, and the marshal whose business it is to collect the city revenues, when he proceeded to perform his duties this fall, found no tax payers with the unanimous to levy upon. The interest now due on Savannah bonds will therefore not be paid, for the all-sufficient reason that there is no money to pay it with."

THE TWO CANDIDATES.

Mr. Tilden was born at New Lebanon (N. Y.) in 1814. He went to Yale College, but left it on account of his health, and graduated at the University of New York. He studied law, but always had a leaning towards politics.

Mr. Hendricks was born in Ohio in 1819, and graduated at Hanover College in 1841. He studied law in Pennsylvania. In 1848 he became a member of the Indiana Legislature. In 1855 he was elected to Congress in the 7th District of that State. In 1868 he was elected to the United States Senate, and in 1872 was chosen Governor. For four years he was Commissioner of the Land Office.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor of Russia delivered a speech at Moscow last Friday, in behalf of the Christians, so-called, whom Turkey—if the accounts be true—are treating with great barbarity. It was very firm, and decisive, and incisive. We suspect that it will stir up the Christian feeling of the powers of Middle and Western Europe.

It is a matter of practice that the Czar, the head of the Greek Church, in the event of such a change being accomplished, it will create almost universal confidence and business will, as a natural result, revive. But I yet believe that we are in want of a president who will induce the greatest possible circulation of greenbacks."

Tweed is all safe. The U. S. frigate Franklin, with him on board, was at the island of St. Thomas sailing, and was to leave on the 8th inst.

C. J. Atkinson, assistant postmaster of Montgomery, is missing, or was lost Saturday. He went on a visit to Wilcox county two weeks ago and has not been heard of "since. There are no official charges against him. He had on his person some valuables, and it is supposed that he was killed for the purpose of robbery.

RETURNS, &C.

The returns from Florida come in slowly. There is no telegraph communication with some of the remote counties.

The Tilden majority in Indiana is 5424.

South Carolina has given a Tilden majority of 1434. It is said that the official count is not likely to change this total.

The Montgomery Journal has a whole page of pictures in glorification of Hayes's election. It not only claims Louisiana, but also South Carolina and Florida, and puts N. Carolina among the doubtful states. If this were true, it would be well for the Tilden men to pay their bets.

THE PRESIDENCY.

The Montgomery Journal (Republican) has a whole page of great guns in which much elation is expressed for the election of Hayes and Wheeler; may going farther and thinking, or seeming to think, that its party will have a majority of one—that is the one that the Register was terrified by—in the House of Representatives.

This is an error, suggested by the Republican jubilation over the possible result of the presidential election.

At present appearances, it is not certain how the result will be, as far as the Presidency is concerned. South Carolina is not absolutely certain, nor is Florida, and what rascality may be used in Louisiana it is not now possible to predict. Honestly counted, we believe all three states have gone for Tilden.

It is idle for people to be running about the streets puzzling their heads in this respect. They can have no influence either in the counting or the manipulating of the votes.

The election has been a close one, even in the state of New York. In the state of Indiana, it has been also close. Fifty thousand dollars gas from the latter, in the hands of skilful political agents, might have changed the result.

Votes now seem to be a thing like potatoes—for sale, and no man seems to think that it is not proper to buy them—buy them as potatoes are bought in an open market.

This fact shows the precise value of the privilege of suffrage.

It was not so before. Then men cherished those patriotic sentiments which would contest them in the submission to wrong, rather than accomplish what they thought was right by fraud.

As it is now, it is not a matter of law, or of gospel. It is reduced to the level of a game at faro. To win in every thing, to lose is only to be laughed at by the winner.

This is a proper estimate to be put on the right of suffrage as it is now used, or, rather, misused. It is, in fact, almost a sacred thing. The thing can now be bought at the smallest price.

P. S. An extra was published yesterday morning, with some telegraph returns which claim S. Carolina, Florida, and Louisiana; but there is nothing in them quite satisfactory. The claim has been made in fire, and although we are approaching the time when we ought to expect to get the facts, it is not yet certain that we have got them.

If the report of the Louisiana returns be true, why are two committees on their way to see the votes counted? They are going thither, we suppose, to recount them. If not, their presence will be superfluous.

Taking it altogether, we can't see clearly through the muddle.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

In addition to the UNEXCELLED FAST TIME between the South and the East, we beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in camp-ground, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed, thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the ability of freight to moving promptly, but having a much shorter line to run over than other routes, they have, by stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without sacrificing the safety of the goods. Thereby connecting passengers going to comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Freight, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the mildness of the climate the purity of the air, and the unsurpassed scenery contribute to both to relieve the tediousness so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality, Pullman sleeping cars on all night trains, and the accommodating day coaches attentive conductors and employees, their aim being to render the

COMFORT ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of resting-houses will be found at the principal stations along the line, and ample time allowed for meals.

QUICK TRANSIT. FEW CHANGES. SAFE CONNECTIONS

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, who thier traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

Walks Around Town.

The weather moderated considerably Sunday and yesterday.

The Mobile county members of the Alabama legislature have gone to Montgomery.

Sam Bard telegraphs to the Register that Florida has gone democratic by 1,000 majority, beyond a doubt.

The time for deliberation has passed and the day for action has come. Do something but do nothing desperate.

Among the sadly neglected lots in Magnolia cemetery are that of the typographical union and the Heptasophs.

Barking dogs seldom bite and so the clouds that threatened rain yesterday were followed by a gilded sunshine.

The United States courts will meet in this city in December. The United States district court met at Montgomery yesterday.

The frosts of last week were so severe half a dozen miles out of Mobile that potato vines were cut down and other vegetation killed.

The Meridian Mercury is satisfied that the report of a bloody affair in Kemper, copied into the Tribune from that paper, is without foundation.

There was another fire early Sunday morning on the premises of Mr. Barry, the hackman, on Scott near Augusta street. Loss about $150.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday, 148 logs, 2 cars of coal, 1 car of horses, 1 car of oil and 10 half barrels and 180 quarter bbls beer for Martin Hoerd.

The New Orleans Bulletin announces that it will suspend publication from and after last Sunday. Mobile has so few papers that a suspension of either one of them is hardly probable.

The evening will be the time for the regular weekly meeting of the board of aldermen. It will be necessary to elect another president pro tem.

Mess troops passed through Mobile yesterday for New Orleans. Not to lose "the hang of the thing," some of the soldiers got up a free fight among themselves at the depot while waiting for the train.

The foreign intelligence published in the Boston Post November 9, 1831, although four days later, gives an account of the occupation of Warsaw two months before, and its latest date is Liverpool, September 20.

By the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was received yesterday, 190 sacks corn, 3 cars corn, 250 barrels and 150 half barrels flour, 1 car cattle, 1 car cotton seed, 46 barrels apples, 20 barrels potatoes and 61 bales hay.

A colored man, who was shot four times at one of the voting precincts in this county on election day, was brought into Mobile yesterday and taken to the city hospital. He voted under embarrassing difficulties if he voted at all.

A New York letter to the New Orleans Picayune, says that foremost in the speculations for Tilden's cabinet is the name of August Belmont for secretary of the treasury. It is not thought that a cabinet officer will be selected from Mobile.

The Alabama legislature, at its present session, should amend the city charter of Mobile, so as to provide for monthly, instead of weekly, meetings of the board of aldermen and common council. One session a month will do all the legislation of this city.

The proprietors of the Tribune contemplate the publication of an eight page Sunday paper, the first number of which will be issued on the 26th instant, and after that time the city will be thoroughly canvassed for subscribers to the Sunday edition only.

The political excitement is subsiding. Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina are claimed by both parties, and each party is certain that it has carried each of these states. The vote has not been officially counted in either of these three states. Until then no reliance can be placed on the claims of interested partisans.

Almost every winter visitor from the north, while in Mobile, goes out to the national cemetery. Captain Richardson, the superintendent, has done everything possible to beautify that resting place of the federal dead, and he is courteous to all visitors to that cemetery, from whatever section of the country they may come.

In a corner lot of the Magnolia Cemetery, directly opposite the northeast corner of the National Cemetery, a tea plant is growing, and is now profuse in blossoms, which are pretty to look at. This demonstrates that the tea plant can be successfully cultivated here. As long ago as 1857, the agricultural bureau at Washington distributed tea plants throughout that section of the south which was geographically included in the tea belt.

The Boston Post of last Thursday, November 9, is fly allusive to its past career, and says: "The Daily Morning Post, published at 19 Water street by Charles G. Greene, its founder and editor, first visited the breakfast tables of Boston and the counting rooms of Boston on this day forty-five years ago." The reporter of the Tribune once owned the hand power press on which the Post was first printed, when it was a sixteen column paper. It required one man to turn the wheel and another to lay on and take off the sheet.

TELEGRAPH.

SUSTAINING GRANT.

New York, Nov. 12.—Gov. Rice, of Massachusetts, has just sent the following from this city to President Grant at Washington: "The entire Republican and Independent press of Massachusetts heartily sustain you in sending troops to the disputed States to preserve the public peace, and the people will as loyally abide by the result of the election when honestly determined."

ALEXANDER H. RICE.

OPINIONS REFFER.

The comments of the journals are unchanged in tone to-day. The Sun and World persist in the election of Tilden, and claim for him 203 votes against 166 for Hayes. The Times regards the election of Hayes as settled and certain and the Herald is anxiously awaiting the result, and gives some details of Northern men going South to buy up Returning Boards.

TILDEN'S POPULAR MAJORITY.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The returns of the popular vote show that Tilden has a majority of 270,000. It is claimed that if Hayes should be elected by one electoral vote he would be the only President who ever went into office as a minority President.

Buchanan and Lincoln had a plurality but not a majority over all other candidates, while Tilden has a popular majority of over a quarter of a million over Hayes and Cooper.

GRANT'S AMBITION.

Secretary Fish and Secretary Cameron were with the President in Philadelphia when his orders were issued for troops for Florida and Louisiana, and respecting the presence of troops at the inaugural of Porter as Governor of Louisiana. It is known that the President took the reins in his own hands, and it is believed his ambition is to steer the country safely through the present danger, and to see to it that the man right fully chosen shall be President. It is significant that these orders went directly from the commander-in-chief to the General of the Army.

THE CENTENNIAL.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—The amount of valuable collections, in nature and art, acquired by the Government of the United States recently, in presentations of exhibits for foreign exhibitors and commissioners at the exhibition, is represented to be most gratifying.

Nearly every Government represented at the grounds has given something, while many have given all, and others the greater portion of their specimens in certain specialties.

In the departments of natural history, mineralogy and geology especially, the presentations have been exceptionally large.

The splendid collection of minerals from Russia is among the most recent of these. All these collections have been taken charge of by the Smithsonian Institution, and will be removed to the National Museum at Washington.

EXCITEMENT INCREASING.

Indianapolis, Nov. 11.—The excitement is increasing, and the feeling among the crowds in the streets is not so good-natured as heretofore. The Democrats are a firing cannon and parading in large numbers to-night. Hon. Geo. W. Julian left to-night for New Orleans.

FOR NEW ORLEANS.

Memphis, Nov. 12.—J. M. Keating editor of the Appeal, and W. H. Carroll prominent Democrats, left this evening for New Orleans, to present at the count for Florida.

Atlanta, Nov. 12.—Ex-Gov. Joseph E. Brown left to-night for Florida, having been requested to go there by Mr. Hewitt.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Columbia, Nov. 12.—The Board of State Canvassers met to-morrow to count the vote. Senator Gordon arrived to-day on a special train and will be present during the session of the Board of Canvassers. A number of Northern Senators are expected to arrive to-morrow.

The Democrats are still confident that the State has gone for Tilden and Hampton.

Some Republicans admit that Hampton is elected, but are confident the Republicans have carried the State for the Hayes electoral ticket. They assert that the State Board of Canvassers will throw out enough votes to elect Chamberlain and the Republican electoral ticket.

The following are the members of the board: Henry E. Hyne, (col.) Secretary of State; Thos. C. Dunn, Comptroller; Gen. Wm. Stone, Attorney General; F. L. Cardoza, (col.) State Treasurer; H. W. Parris, (col.) Adjutant and Inspector General; M. J. Hirsch, chairman Committee on Privileges and Election of House of Representatives. All the members of the Board of Canvassers are Republicans.

Everything appears to be quiet. There is no excitement to-day, but all are anxiously awaiting the meeting of the Board of Canvassers. Numbers of prominent citizens from all parts of the State are present.

SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Nov. 12.—Total interments to-day six, of which three were from yellow fever.

ANTONELLI'S SUCCESSOR.

Rome, Nov. 12.—Cardinal Simeoni recently Papal Nuncio at Madrid, has been appointed to succeed Cardinal Antonelli as Secretary of State to the Pope.

SPAIN.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The matter of the extradition of Wm. M. Tweed came up in the Cortes yesterday. The Minister for Foreign Affairs, in replying to a question said the Spanish Government had authorized the extradition of Tweed as a return for the courtesy displayed by the Government of the United States in similar cases.

STILL IN DOUBT.

New York, November 13.—The Herald still gives Hayes 166 electoral votes and Tilden 184, with 19 doubtful. It says, referring to the doubtful States. As far as additional detailed returns go, they point, as before, to a Democratic success.

REPUBLICAN CLAIMS.

The Times says the dispatches from Florida, Louisiana and South Carolina confirm the previous reports that they have all been carried by the Republicans.

BUTLER WANTED.

The Herald's New Orleans special of the 12th says: United States Marshal Pitkin telegraphed Gen. Butler to-night soliciting his presence here, and thinks he will come.

MILITARY.

The Times' Washington dispatch says Sherman had a long interview with the President Sunday night in reference to the movement of troops. Gen. Sheridan left Chicago Sunday night under orders to take command at New Orleans, and make such disposition of the troops as will secure the public peace in any emergency.

GRANT'S ACTION.

The Times' dispatch quotes Secretary Cameron: "The action of the President in the premises has been taken to ensure a fair return and to further the people of the country with satisfactory evidence that the verdict of Tuesday, whatever it may be, whom declared, has been free from fraud."

Special to the New Orleans Times.]

FLORIDA BOTH WAYS.

Tallahassee, November 11.—Returns now trickling in from the counties indicate the loss of this by the cyclone at 40,000. Calculations are narrowly kept.

Reports of the famine from Bombay are worse, and a water famine is feared in some districts.

The Berlin correspondent of the Times says the Russian papers abound in warlike reports.

It is announced that Russia is ready to obtain from Roumania money on a large amount of railway shares.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times confirms the report that the Russian army will be moved 200 in a few days. Russia will not agree to the Powers' last the returns demanded by all can only be fulfilled by Turkey if Russia prepares to defend herself.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mobile, July 31st, 1876.

Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Laundry Soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture some but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contained, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

Mobile, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the mate rials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that in fact of their unbleached purity, is fully established.

It is a great convenience to business men who board at the Battle House that the hours for meals are so long—breakfast from six and a half to nine; dinner from two to five; supper from six to nine. The rates of board are so low that it is cheaper for families to board there than to keep house; and young men are just live in clover there.

City Court.

In this court yesterday, Judge Semmes on the bench, the jury found Andrew Washington guilty of running a gaming table and fined him $100. William Adams, for a similar offense, was fined a like amount.

Abram Nash for assault and battery was found guilty.

Betty Warsaw pleaded guilty of assault and was sentenced to county jail for thirty days.

Prince Hampton for assault and battery, was sentenced to jail four months.

John Smith, for assault and battery, was fined $500 and sentenced to two months county jail.

John Jackson, for assault and battery, was sent to jail for four months.

River News.

The R. E. Lee, from Selma, arrived yesterday morning with 735 bales cotton, 45 sacks cotton seed, 1 cabin mess, a short list of sundries and a few passengers.

The Lee went out last evening, with a to enable freight.

The elegant steamer Mary, with Captain John Quill as master and Mr. Jimmy Quill as clerk, will back out this evening at five o'clock for Selma and Montgomery. She has unsurpassed passenger accommodations, and can carry large quantities of freight. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The lively little steamer W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whiteside on the roof and Mr. Virgil H. Powers in the office, will leave this evening at five o'clock for points on the Bigbee river. W. Johnson, North Front street, agent.

Crop Reports.

The Mobile Cotton Exchange sends to the Tribune the latest crop reports for Alabama and Mississippi, as follows:

Alabama.—56 counties, 104 reports. The weather is reported as having been dry and more favorable for gathering the crop than last year. There have been light frosts all over the state, but no damage has resulted therefrom. Nearly all report that picking is about finished, and the crop will be entirely harvested by the 15th inst. The yield as compared last year is estimated to be 34 per cent. less in 14 prairie and bottom land counties, and 19 per cent. in 32 upland or sandy land counties. The crop has been gathered much more cleanly than last year, making the grade much higher. Many of our correspondents state that the yield of lint to a given number of pounds of seed cotton is less than last year.

Mississippi.—19 counties, 49 reports. The weather has been dry and more favorable for gathering the crop than last year. There have been light frosts, but the damage there from has been very slight. About 75 per cent., on the average, of the crop has been gathered, and picking will be completed from 15th instant to 1st December. The yield as compared with last year is estimated on the average, to be 24 per cent. less. The same conditions as to cleanly gathering and yield of lint as stated in the Alabama report apply to this state.

Forty eight sewing machines, many of almost new manufacture, and in good running order, were broken up by the use of axes and sledges at the Singer Sewing Machine Agency in this city to-day. There were machines of other manufacturers which had come into the possession of the agency by exchange, and a wholesale destruction of them was ordered by the Singer Sewing Company. The destruction of property seemed a wicked and wasteful one, but all offers for the machines were refused, and the employees of the agency smashed machine after machine, including the black walnut machine tables, the polished steel nickel-plated work. One of the machines destroyed cost $120 three months ago, and the gross cost to the individual purchasers of these various machines must have been $2,000 or $3,000. The broken fragments are sold as old junk.—Lawrence (Miss.) American.

The novel which George Sand wrote some years ago will probably be published in a short time. The work is said to turn on the life and adventures of the student Staaps, who attempted to assassinate Napoleon after the battle of Essling, and who belonged to the Tugend-Bund, or Association of Virtue. That it should have been impossible to publish a book on such a subject under the Second Empire is easily conceived, nor would it have been popular, except among the Radicals, directly after the late war.

BY

H. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B. LYONS

The National Peril.

From the New York World.

No candid Republican who reflects on the voting last Tuesday and the great Northern commonwealths of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, will observe by what a small percentage even those States saved to Hayes have been saved, and then look at the tremendous majorities for Tilden in Texas, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi and Alabama, can doubt that the Tilden electors received a great popular majority in Louisiana. Independently of these general considerations, our own private information from authentic sources does not permit us to doubt that Tilden has fairly and honestly carried that State. The practical question for men who love peace and order to-day, then, is this: Is there any power, State or National, which can prevent Governor Kellogg from suppressing or perverting this fact?

Let us bear in mind the three stages of an electoral vote for President. These are (1) the examination of the supervisors' returns and the ascertainment by Kellogg, in the presence of two or three State officers, of the persons elected to be electors, which must take place on or before the 27th of this month; (2) the meeting and voting of those electors, which must take place on the 6th of next month, and the sending a certificate of their votes to Washington, which must take place before the first Wednesday in January; and (3) the opening of those certificates by the President of the Senate and the counting of the votes therein described, which must take place on the second Wednesday in February The time is really short!

The first stage of the creation of the electors, has been and is practically in the hands of Kellogg. The commissioners who receive and count the votes are his agents and creatures, appointed by him, and so are the supervisors who at the parish courthouses, are to compile, proclaim, and return the votes to the Secretary of State. These returns Kellogg examines, and ascertains therefrom the electors. "In presence" of other officers, to be sure, but his is the official act, and his alone. There is, by the State, no power or revision.

The second stage is the voting and certificate of voting by the electors, and it they pursue the forms of law and the certificate is theirs, and truly declared their votes, it stands without apparent power of revision in any one. If a certificate be not a certificate of the electors of any State, of course the votes of that State are not to be counted. But it made by the electors appointed by the State under the forms of its laws, and formally authenticated, who shall exclude its votes even though the President of the Senate and every member of both houses should be convinced that the electors were legally elected or appointed?

Here is the critical stage! The Constitution says: "The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and "House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be "counted." What "votes" shall be counted? Are they not those in the lists certified by the electors? Who shall count? The Constitution does not say, for has any "law of Congress said. A joint rule of the two houses (for a law) undertook by a treaty to say that, unless both houses consented, the votes in a certificate should not be counted. If it be said that this rule has fallen, at least this rule did comprehend the principle that the two houses are not to be mere gazing spectators, powerless in action, but that either could exclude a certificate, which is as much as making the Constitution read, "shall be counted" by both houses, or thrown out by either house.

Now, if the Constitution gives, by its words, this power of exclusion to either house, the gift and its existence do not depend on the life of a joint rule. The latter can neither give nor take away the power. It is by the Constitution inherent in each house can be exercised at the will of each, and the mere house can exclude a certificate from Louisiana. The President of the Senate, on that theory, breaks the seals, hands over the certificates to tellers or each house to count the votes and declare them to the President; and each house could then control its own agents, who are the tellers.

But if this be not clear as to counting, it is clear, as to "presence," that nobody can "open all the certificates," if one house be absent. And, if either house persistently refuses to be present, there can be no opening, or counting, and no election in that manner. The Constitution does not fix the day for opening and counting, but the law of 1792 does, as "the second Wednesday in February," and adds that "the "certificates, or so many of them as "have been received shall then be opened, "the votes counted, and the persons to "fill the offices • • • ascertained and declared, agreeably to the Constitution." A law may undoubtedly repeat or modify the law of 1792 as to the day of opening, counting and declaring, but this last must be on or before the 4th of March, for then Grant's four years end. So the House can, in that way, prevent the counting of a certificate which it thinks fraudulent.

But if either house refuses to be present, as the Constitution contemplates, how can the nation get a President? There will be no Vice President. The twelfth amendment only empowers the House to elect in a particular state of facts, which is when no candidate has a majority on the counting, but in the emergency we contemplate, there will have been no counting. Very clearly there would be the vacancy in both offices contemplated by the law of 1792 (sections 146 to 150 of Revised Statutes) who rein the President if the Senate would act as President in it a new election is ordered by Secretary Fish, and held. And this election could not, under the present law (of which Judge Story doubted the constitutionality), be held till within the 34 days preceding the first Wednesday in December, 1877, more than a year from now.

If the Senate has been a permanent body since 1789; if, like the King it never dies, and its President will be in office although the present Congress dies, then there will be some one in being to catch the falling office of President; but if otherwise, then what is it Grant, the dictator as of necessity?

Here, indeed, will be a portentous national peril, if Kellogg and his agents in Louisiana thwart the will of the voters in that State expressed last Tuesday, by counting in, or otherwise ascertaining and declaring Hayes electors! This peril the Hayes leaders can ward off from the nation and prevent. The Governor of Louisiana is a creature of Grantism and the carpet-baggers. He bears no such relation to Louisiana as does a Northern Governor, Democratic or Republican, to a Northern State. A word from his creators, justice reigns in that State upon its glorious course. Will they give the word? If they do not give the word, over them and theirs what a tremendous responsibility impends!

Our Exhibition Beats the World.

From the Philadelphia Press.1

Comparison can now be made between our Exposition and those of other countries with the most gratifying results. The indications are that the total number of admissions will be 10,000,000, against 8,805,091 at the Paris Exposition in 1867. The cash receipts will foot up nearly or quite $4,000,000, against a little over $2,000,000 at the Paris Exposition just mentioned, which was the most numerously of all the international fairs held at European capitols. The apparent difference in the amount of receipts is due part to the fact that the entrance fee charged at Paris was much less than that charged here. Such extraordinary success is a fair recompense to the gentlemen who have had the management of the enterprise, and they deserve not only generous recognition for their marvelous work but the thanks of the nation for sustaining its honor in a brilliant and noble manner, although most of the time acting upon their own responsibility, unsupported by either the Government or the people in the national undertaking.

Also, a catalogue of newspapers which are recommended to advertisers as giving greatest value in proportion to prices charged. Also, all newspapers in the United States and Canada printing over 5 000 copies each issue. Also, all the Religious, Agricultural, Scientific and Mechanical, Medical, Masonic, Juvenile, Educational, Commercial, Insurance, Real Estate, Law, Sporting, Musical, Fashion, and other special class journals; very complete lists. Together with a complete list of over 300 German papers printed in the United States. Also, an essay upon advertising; many tables of rates, showing the cost of advertising in various newspapers, and everything which a beginner in advertising would like to know.

IT MAY BE.

Almost every person—particularly politicians—whom one meets on the streets is doleful. He seems to think that the world is now approaching a cataclysm: that is a deluge. There are certainly some signs of a convulsion in the political elements, but out of it may come good: a restoration to thoughtfulness in respect of the suffrage. After the value of that shall have been found, why there will be not much cheating, and if there be any, it will be provocative of much anger among the mas of the people. Perhaps this political millenium may never come until after Millerism shall have proved itself. But then it will be too late.

THE NATIONAL PERIL.

Under this head we extract from the New York World an article of great present interest. It explains the modus operandi of the president tial election, and shows very clearly how perilous it is when in the hands of selfish and non-patriotic citizens.

Men of wisdom in New York are apprehensive. We mean the Tilden men. They are certain—as it is the case on all such occasions—that their candidate is elected. We are certain—as far as human judgment may go—that he is.

If the people of this country, believing this, will submit to fraudulent devices to deprive them of their votes—it amounts to disfranchisement—they had better let Gen. Grant stay where he is, and administer the government in his own way. It is not a good way, at best, but it is possible that eight years of experience have fitted him for a permanent residence in the Whitehouse.

THE EXPOSITION &C.

The grand Philadelphia Exposition—according to its limitation—ended last Friday.

It was opened on the 10th of May, and was open 159 days. The whole number of visitors was about 10,000, 000. The money taken in was $3, 761,598.

We learn from the New York World that the daily average attendance was 61,038. In the great exposition in London, 1851, the average daily attendance was 49,923. In 1855, in Paris, it was 25,811. In London, 1862, it was 36,322. In Paris, 1867, it was 47,619. In Vienna, 1873, it was 39,003.

So, it appears that the Philadelphia concern beat all the prior exhibitions of the kind, as far as visitors are concerned; but it did not directly pay its expenses It left a good deal of money in the rectangular city.

The closing of the affair was accompanied by much ceremony—prayer, speeches, praise and excellent music.

President Grant was present, and formally closed the business in a speech which was brief and to the point. It is thus reported in the World:

"Mr. President and gentlemen of the Centennial Committee, I now declare the International Exhibition closed."

We have heard loggy speeches than this, but not one that the gaping auditors could more readily comprehend.

The day before—that is on the 9th—there was a grand banquet given, with 255 guests—most of them men of notoriety or celebrity. Gen. Grant presided; and the first toast was delivered by Gen. Hawley, as follows: "The President of the United States." This was drunk with some degree of vim; but the President made no response—never uttered a word in acknowledgment.

We gather these facts from two long letters in the World.

Gen. Grant is one of those persons whom no one knows any thing about. He can talk when he wants to, and when he thinks no one is listening to criticise his talk, or when he desires to say something which he wants to be known. He has studied the old adage: that "a still tongue shows a wise head." He knows that much letter-writing and much speechifying have ruined the! popularity of many politicians. This illustrates Carlyle's idea: namely, that speech is silvern, but silence is golden.

Local politicians ought to give some study to the subj ct. Mr. Jones hurt himself by too much, or, rather, by two imprudent speeches, and we are inclined to think that our estimable fellow-citizen, Mr. Laugdon, did the same thing.

DON'T PAY YET.

No one is going to pay for the hats and shoes t' at have been betted on the general election, and that of this state until the warrants or the governor shall have been properly sealed.

Therein is the hitch. The governors of three of the states: namely, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana are Republicans; and it they determine to manage the electoral votes, they can do it; and on these three states hangs the ultimate of the Presidency.

This danger is well set forth in the article which we extract from the New York World.

If the governors are ready to resort to the power they have in order to elect Governor Hayes, in defiance of a fair counting of the votes, why, "chaos has come again." We fondly thought that we were getting out of this chaos, but it is not quite sure that we shall not have much trouble, if there be a wrong done in this very grave business. Of it may come a turmoil that may continue the reign of government in the hands of the now President.

We do not expect this, but it is possible—nay, more, under certain conditions, it is probable.

The government—what we call constitution—has of late undergone many changes. It is not what it was, and it will be less like what it was, and it will be less like what it is as time goes on.

But the country, with its immeasurable wealth, will still live. Somehow the people will find some means of making themselves respected.

A constitution is of no more value than a piece of blank paper, if popular suffrage or prejudice choose to set it aside. It is nothing but a sort of measure of what is, when it is made. Nothing more. And yet we have been, like a set of ninnies, gabbling about that bit of parchment, with good words on it, as though that thing had some great virtue in it to restrain the passions, prejudices or interests of men.

Gov. Kellogg, of Louisiana, on the 9th inst sent a dispatch to Mr. J. M. Edmunds, the head of the Republican committee in New York, the following brief despatch.

"N. ORLEANS, Nov. 9.—The state is safe for us; you need not worry about it. W. P. KELLOGG.

Major Pauline Cushman, who was a confederate spy in the war and afterwards an actress, has opened a hotel at San Gabriel, California.

Gen. Butler is not coming to New Orleans to investigate. Committees have gone to Florida and South Carolina, on a like business with those now in New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

PROOF OF YOUR BUILDINGS!
Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint
(Fifteen Years Established.)
MIXED READY FOR USE.
Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by applying one of these slate paints to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate. &c.

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,
and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water-tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is
EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tarred felt, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition, the efore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. CURLED OR WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, stopping leaks and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect in a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,
when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On

TIN ROOFS
our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For

BRICK WALLS
ONE BRIGHT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES presented by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 150 to 200 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other line or route.

The management, in announcing to the public this

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME between the South and the East, begs leave to say that, in arranging their schedules to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequently missing connections, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running

EXPRESS TRAINS
stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality; Pullman sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars on day trains; extra charge, consists, experience and attentive conductors and employees, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals,

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections
are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

Do not forget to read the furniture advertisement of Kelly & Co.

F. H. Pepper & Co. advertise a large and fresh stock of city goods.

The patent slate paint advertised this morning is worth buying.

Both branches of the Alabama legislature were organized yesterday.

The liveliest place in the city last evening was the Battle House billiard room!

The civil term of the city court, Judge Semmes on the bench, commences tomorrow.

There is a loquacious parrot on the gallery over the store corner of Government and Royal.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 75, minimum 59, a range of 16 degrees.

Only about $18,000 city scrip is in circulation now. It is presumed that no more will be paid out.

By the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was received yesterday 100 barrels flour, 4 bales hay and 1 car corn.

Contemplated improvements in the Tribune will make it the most interesting paper in Mobile for general readers.

The eight page Sunday edition of the Mobile Tribune will be the most popular and most widely circulated paper ever published in Mobile.

The rates of board at the Battle House, for single gentlemen or families, are so low that the temptation to board there is almost irresistible.

The Acorn cook stove, sold by Ira W. Forter & Co. is one of the best stoves in the market. To make home happy, buy one of these stoves.

Alabama is so quiet and peaceful that only she quartermaster and the regimental band are left at Mount Vernon, to defend the national honor.

Thanksgiving day, if Tilden is elected, will be celebrated all over the south with all the earnestness that ever attended its celebration elsewhere.

The city has received, since the last official reports were made, from the tax assessor, tax collector, clerk of Southern Market, clerk of Dauphin street Market, and chief of police $85,574 67.

The city tax sales, commenced last Monday, by postponement from the Monday previous, are progressing from day to day, and the tax collector will give bargains to somebody.

The official vote of Baldwin county is Tilden 789, Hayes 602. For representative to congress Herbert 785, Hall 602, Bromberg 3. And so the state of Baldwin gives a rare majority for Tilden.

Ex-United States Marshal Healey who sold a railroad in Mobile lately, and didn't get the cash for it, is one of the members of the grand jury of the United States district court, now in session at Montgomery.

Outside of the centre of the city there is a large amount of building in Mobile, chiefly of small frame houses, that are a good investment at a rental of five or six dollars a month or are owned by the occupants.

Thomas Rowell, who shot the colored woman on the corner of Cedar and St. Louis streets, last Saturday, without provocation was required by the mayor yesterday to give bond in $1000 for appearance before the city court.

An act to authorize and regulate municipal taxation in the city of Mobile, prepared by Stephens Croom, esq., city attorney, is calculated to enforce the collection of taxes taxes by a more compulsory process than that now adopted.

Under the apprehension that President Smith, of the board of aldermen, was still absent, the reporter suggested yesterday morning the necessity of electing a president pro tem. The return of Mr. Smith obviates that necessity.

Coroner Harwell held an inquest last week on an unknown man found dead on the railroad track near Mauvilla. It now appears that three men have been arrested and are now in the Meridian jail charged with the murder of this man. They had a fight on a freight train.

The reporter met a Conti street habitue on the street yesterday, with his nose bandaged. He explained that he went hunting Monday night and carried powder and tobacco in the same pocket. He filled his pipe with tobacco, but it exploded like powder, and hence that bandaged nose.

The St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, is the grand centre of the leading politicians of the country, who have gone to that city to see fair play in the counting of the electoral votes. All of these gentlemen will learn more about the politics of the south by this visit than they ever knew before.

President Grant is reported, by a Washington special to the New York Evening Post, to have said last Monday that he firmly believed Hayes had been legally elected president and that he would be inaugurated as such on the 5th day of next March. How does he know any better than a Mobile man does?

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A telegram received from the United States Marshal at Charleston, says; "Hampton's majority is 1500, and Tilden's 1000."

Col. Ludlier, formerly of the Charleston Courier, telegraphs: "S uth Carolina is unmistakably Democratic."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Attorney General of Florida has telegraphed to Baltimore stating that Tilden's majority there is 1200.

Senator Gordon telegraphs from Columbia that Tilden has carried South Carolina.

Ex-Attorney General Williams, Congressman Sloss Brown, of Indiana, and other prominent Republicans, concede Tilden's election.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, pertumed." From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in it manufacture some but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official test and of United tates Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the mate ials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture,

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by a skipticial chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating that in fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. P. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

Just received from Colonel Pleasant's orange orchard, 25 barrels of strictly choice oranges, and for sale low by Owen Farley, 64, 66, 68, 70 and 72 Government street.

An Aggravated Assault.

In Justice Flanagan's court yesterday, one white woman, who is otherwise respectable, was tried for aggravated assault on another white woman, also respectable. A large number of witnesses testified to the assault. The owner of a house assaulted and beat a tenant, who was in arrears for rent, and that was the case. Fined $20 and costs, and peace bond of $200 for six months.

Additional returns from the parishes do not materially change the result as telegraphed Saturday. The Democrats appear to have about eight thousand majority. The Republicans, however, still claim that they have carried the State, and that Packard will be the next Governor of Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, November 14.—L. Q. C. Lamar telegraphs from here to a friend that the people of New Orleans, though profoundly agitated, are quiet, and there is not the slightest purpose to disturb the public peace.

The proposition to place the counting of the vote under the supervision of honorable men of both parties from a distance, meets the cordial concurrence of the entire community.

The Democratic Committee have complete returns made up from duplicate lists of the Supervisors, showing Tilden's majority in the State 8,107, by which majority they claim they have carried the State.

The returns show Nichols's majority to be nearly 7,000. This city is very quiet. The politicians are AWAITING awaiting the action of the Returning Board, which, by law is required to meet 10 days after the election.

THE RESULT.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—The tone of the New York papers regarding the result is unchanged.

FIRE.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 15.—There is a very large fire in the deep-water cotton yard of the Georgia Central Railroad. One warehouse, twenty empty cars and about 1000 bales cotton are already burnt. The fire is still burning and the wind is high and in the direction of some 10,000 bales. The white and colored people are working shoulder to shoulder in their efforts to save it. The cotton has been burning since 8:40 to night.

COTTON BURNED.

SAVANNAH, November 14.—12:40 A. M.—Twenty-five hundred bales of cotton, twenty empty and twenty loaded cars of freight were burnt. The fire is under control. The warehouse contained fertilizer which was also destroyed.

WAR.

LONDON, November 14.—The Post, in a suspicious paragraph, confirms the report that Russia is about to mobilize her army. It is stated that Russia intends, after January, to levy all her taxes in gold. This increases her tariff 20 per cent. Most of special correspondents take gloomy view of the situation. The Post's Berlin dispatch reports that Russian journals say war is determined on.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Attorney General of Florida has telegraphed to Baltimore stating that Tilden's majority there is 1200.

Senator Gordon telegraphs from Columbia that Tilden has carried South Carolina.

Ex-Attorney General Williams, Congressman Sloss Brown, of Indiana, and other prominent Republicans, concede Tilden's election.

SPORTSMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 13.—The annual meeting of the Tennessee State Sportsmen's Association commenced in this city yesterday with field trials. The shooting tournament opens Thursday. The attendance of visitors is large, and the entries full.

YELLOW FEVER.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 13.—Total interments to-day three, of which two were from yellow fever.

CHARLESTON COTTON EXCHANGE.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 14.—The crop reports of the Charleston Cotton Exchange for October are based upon 71 replies from 74 counties in South Carolina. The weather during the month has been generally dry and favorable for picking; 44 counties report it more favorable for gathering the crop this year than the last; 18 counties about the same, and 6 counties as less favorable; 18 replies report a killing frost from October 1st to 5th; 35 about the 15th; 7 from the 20th to 25th, and seven report that there has as yet been no killing frost; from 75 to 80 per cent of the crop was gathered on the first; thirty seven that picking will be finished about the 15th, and twenty-four say by the 30th. The yield in twenty-four counties heard from show a falling off of 11½ per cent. compared with last year.

FLORIDA.

NEW YORK, November 14.—The Times' Tallahassee special says Gen. Hager had arrived yesterday afternoon and takes command of the troops.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, November 14.—A Columbia special to the News and Courier says the Republicans had made a proposition to give the State to Hampton and Hayes, which the Democrats rejected.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 14.—Republicans state that they have information that East Baton Rouge has gone Republican by 800 majority; the Democrats claimed it by 200. The tables published up to Saturday night of the city vote put down the majority for the Democrats at 9,700; the unofficial count shows 10,016 majority for Tilden.

Board of Aldermen.

At the regular weekly meeting last evening, President Smith in the chair, twenty members were present, seven more than a quorum.

Report of city assessor, collection of $207 for week ending November 11; collection of $146 75 for week ending November 4. Referred to ways and means.

Reports of city tax collector, collection of taxes for 1874, $4 75; for 1873, $57; for 1874, $1,102 01; for 1875, $5,408 56; for 1876, $30, 239 87. Referred to ways and means.

Report of clerk of Southern Market, collection of $595 65 for October.

Reports of clerk of Dauphin street market, collection of $48 80 for October.

Referred to market committee.

Report of city treasurer, showing balance on hand November 1st, $27,161 66. Received and filed.

The disbursements reported by the city treasurer are: bonded debt tax $24,283; loan account paid W. A. Garnett, $670; loan account left at W. A. Garnett's, $500; interest and discount, $474 67.

Report of chief of police, collection of fines and forfeitures for October, $119. Referred to police committee.

Communication from S. Croom, city attorney, in relation to a new city tax law, the draft of which he submits herewith.

From Wealth to Insanity.

Poverty.

Baltimore American.—Among the shabby, dirty and ragged unfortunates who came to the Southern Station last night to obtain a night's lodging was an old man bent with years and showing the evidence of fatigue and travel by his tottering footsteps and wretched apparel. He gave his name to Captain Delaney as Paul Venlier, of New Orleans, and was sent back to the room assigned to tramps. A glance at his rags and careworn face would never suggest to the observer, that Paul Venlier was, at one time a leading business man, a prominent citizen of the Crescent City, but such is indeed the case, and the history of his life has it in all the elements of a dramatic story, which we may read, throw aside and say it is improbable. A few points in the life of this unfortunate individual may not be uninteresting. About thirty-five years ago there arrived in New Orleans a young and handsome man, accompanied by his wife, a Creole, in the full bloom of her youthful beauty. The couple had come from Martinique, and brought with them a large sum of money, which Venlier proposed to invest in trade. They settled in a magnificent house on the bank of Lake Pontchartrain, which became, on account of the social qualities of its master and mistress, the central point of attraction for all the aristocratic people of the neighborhood. The husband had in the meantime embarked in the shipping and commission business, and was very successful. Realizing large ly on his investments, he became one of the wealthiest citizens, while he at the same time attained a reputation for unblemished business integrity, probity and honesty. Three children had been born, and every bright prospect in life seemed attainable without effort to the young couple. About this time a gambler, well known in those days for his success with cards and remarkable for his handsome exterior and pleasing address met Mme. Venlier at a ball masque. Other meetings followed and the foolish woman abandoning her luxurious home, her children, her husband and her honor, listened to the seductive addresses of her destroyer and fled to Cuba. The husband followed, but never succeeded in coming up with his wife, whom he had forgiveness to offer, nor with her seducer, for whom he had vengeance. He gave up the pursuit, and returned to New Orleans. But business had no longer any interest for him, now that she for whom he labored so earnestly had deserted him. The three children fell victims to the cholera, and Venlier, a broken-down man, aged before he was old, sold out his business interests and disappeared.

The Presidential Election.

The published dispatches, touching the presidential election, were sent by the American Press Association:

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Post's Washington special says that the President said to-day, that he believed firmly that Hayes had been legally elected President, and that he would be inaugurated as such on the fifth of next March.

Official dispatches received from South Carolina, say that orders have been given to Rifle Clubs to concentrate in Columbia to-morrow. Gov. Chamberlain telegraphs, however, that the United States troops there are ample to protect the State authorities and prevent interference with the Returning Board.

The Graphic says that an important conference was held at Democratic headquarters yesterday, and Congressman Townsend, of the 1st district called on Abram S. Hewitt to point out the necessity for some investigation into the qualifications of electors who have been chosen in the three doubtful States. According to the constitution, no person is eligible as an elector who holds any office of trust or profit under the United States government. Four years ago two members of the Democratic Electoral College in this State were found to be ineligible, but were changed before the election, and the mistake remedied. Mr. Townsend thinks that of the 18 electors in the 3 States, which have no means of altering the electoral lists, there must be two or more who are disqualified by holding office. That is to say, it is more likely that, overlooking the provisions of the constitution electors may have been chosen on the Republican side who are holding Federal office, or are in receipt of Federal money in some shape. It is agreed by the committee that an investigation should be immediately undertaken to see whether one or more Hayes electors are not disqualified in any other State but the three mentioned. It would make no difference, as the the Colleges themselves, under the State law have power to fill such vacancies. If one or more Hayes' electors should be found wanting it will defeat the Republican candidate for the Presidency, as only with the united votes of Louisiana, South Carolina, and Florida, he has the requisite 185 votes, or one majority. But whether Tilden would be chosen with one vote less than a majority of the whole College, is a question which has not been raised or settled.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—The Commercial this morning editorially says: A dispatch from Gov. Chamberlain of South Carolina to the editor of the Commercial seems to settle that State so far as the Presidential election is concerned. The majority for Hayes on face of the returns will not be less than 8,000. We have also a dispatch from Jacksonville, Florida, by Mr. C. D. Brigham, formerly editor of the Pittsburg Commercial and a gentleman of the highest intelligence and respectability, which speaks of the management of the democrats in overcoming on the face of the returns what he holds to be a Republican majority in that State. The reliability of information given of outrages committed we do not question, but we have doubts touching the sufficiency of the remedy proposed. There have been frauds, we presume, the specifications that Mr. Brigham makes can, we assume, be verified; but it is not clear that evil work has not been accomplished. Several symptoms have appeared that there is a most strenuous effort being made by Democratic politicians to secure Florida. Under all the circumstances, we do not feel at liberty to claim Florida confidently for the Republicans. We are not giving up the State, and therefore the election, to Democrats, but we have an impression that there will be a good deal yet to hear from that quarter that will be of public interest before the Presidential question is settled. The most vehemently disputed State is Louisiana, and there is no material change in the situation since our last issue. An examination of the laws of Louisiana would seem to show that the State has been guarded with extraordinary skill against fraud and intimidation at elections.

Shocking Murder.

From the Meridian Mercury.

The so frequent reports of murder are sickening; and we have now one to report that is truly shocking. A Miss Britton, living about two miles from Garlandsville towards Hickory, just inside Newton county, was murdered by a negro about last Wednesday or Thursday. The father had taken a younger daughter with him a fishing and let this grown daughter at home alone. When they return she was missing. A search revealed her dead body between the house and the spring and shockingly mangled. The father had left an axe at thegate and that was found near her dead body, with which he had first hacked her arm and broke it, knocked her down and then chopped at her neck severing jugular vein and cutting the flesh entirely to the neck bone. It is not known whether he had first violated her person.

There was some difficulty at first in getting on track of the murderer, but a suspected negro man was arrested by the people, and his statements soon convicted him; and, besides, there was blood on his clothes and a gun he was known to have carried, he, himself, went and found it, making some absurd pretense about it.

He was taken before a justice, and after a full hearing of all the evidence was committed, and ordered to be brought to the jail of this county for safe keeping. He has not yet arrived. There is a vague report that somebody found a type pendent from the limb of a tree in the woods, and a sign as if something had been dragged off. Then there is another vague report that somebody saw a crowd of men in the woods hauling and piling up lightwood as if they had an intention of making a fire there. The jailer here has received no negro prisoner committed from Newton county.

The heirs of William Penn now receive "forever," $20,000 a year, in compensation for their proprietary rights to Pennsylvania. A London paper suggests that, "considering the very dubious claim the old Quaker ever had to the State which bears his name, and that is now the great Republic's, it might not be imperti nent to suggest that the United States Congress should talk over the liability for the pension, with the other privileges attaching to it." To daughter of a famous Attorney-General of Florida, whom a Spanish colony received until this year a pension of $750.

They tell a good story of an old business man who recently found himself "cornered" financially, and desired to go into bankruptcy. He applied to a lawyer to know how much it would cost to have the papers made out and the business put through. He was told that the expense would be about $100, and, appearing to be satisfied with the price he told the lawyer to go ahead. The lawyer followed the instructions, and when the work was done he called for his little $100. "All right," said the bankrupt, "you can put your claim right in with the others."

We have information of a very unfortunate tragedy, which occurred at Montevallo, Shelby county, on Friday last, resulting in the killing of Mrs. Fallan by her husband, who then shot himself through the heart. Mr. Fallan, before killing himself also pursued his wife's mother, who barely escaped with her life. The maiden name of the murdered lady was Nelson, and her father is a highly respectable citizen of Shelby county. The cause of this sad affair is shrouded in mystery.—Mont. Paper.

The outlook for cheaper tea is good. This plant was only introduced into India forty years ago, and already 2,000 acres are covered with it on the slope of the Neilgherry hills. The yield of the current year has been 18,000,000 pounds, value $10,000,000.

There are now sixteen companies of United States soldiers in New Orleans.

As far as the two committies are concerned, there seems to be a desire to have the vote of the state honestly delivered, and under the supervision of the gentleman who compose them, we have no doubt that it will be honestly reported. This, then, will avert the danger of what might amount to much strife, and, perhaps, a general convulsion.

The Register is trying to "hedge," to use a word of the racing and other betting men; but its "hand" is so plain that no sensible man can be deceived by it. It is trying to get back to the point from which it started. Well, we hope that it may get back, but why not come out right straight and say so? It is trying to resuscitate the old caucus rule; but it is not possible for it to do that unless the men who have been supposed to be its allies are knaves or fools. The people of this county, we suppose, have got possession of themselves. If they choose to sell themselves, why they have a legal right to do it. Of this gambling game, there is plenty of time to speak, after awhile.

DEATHS--YELLOW FEVER.

There were 118 deaths in New Orleans last we k, not including 14 stillborn children. 29 were children under five years of age not including the stillborn. The fevers were few. There were 24 of consumption, which is more than fifth or the whole. The people are not scared by this universal and constant epidemic, and they will run away like scared sheep if a words yellow fever be uttered. Well, the one does its work slowly; the other puts a person out of his pains without much delay. Consumption, we think, is a scandal to the popular ignorance of hygienic methods which can secure immunity from it. The present generation is beginning to understand this, and it is not impossible that the time for the expiration of a few generations, the disease will be only historical—as the yellow fever may be to us of Mobile, if not to the whole of our gulf coast.

FROM MONTGOMERY.

Our Montgomery letter is interesting. We are sorry that the writer doesn't know how to spell; but we have spelled for him.

The central importance now is the United States Senator, in place of the nearly expired term of Mr. Goldthwaite. We could applaud several Mobile gentleman who are worthy of the office by their probity and their experience of affairs; but it would be only complimentary—and that is of no possible weight at Montgomery—for it is quite certain that Mobile will get nothing, except the very honorable and most desirable privilege of paying a large part of the taxes of the state. That is an honor that ought to have some influence at Montgomery, if there, as it is in other places of the kind, the person, and not the welfare of the commonwealth, controls.

The masses of the people are getting tired of the lack of personal political virtue. We threw a good deal of that lack off a few days ago. But the serpent was not killed. It may have been only scotched. The parts may come together again.

SAVANNAH AND DOCTORS.

The Savannah papers express earnest gratitude for the help that the city received in the calamity of disease which recently fell on it. Contributions from all quarters of the country were sent to it, and doctors went there from New Orleans Mobile and elsewhere. Dr. Iglehart of this city did great service which is gratefully acknowledged. It was also so in that smaller place, Brunswick, where there were, as we see stated, more deaths in a ratio with the population than there were in Savannah.

Was it Sydenham who said that the doctor is like a good priest, who thinks it to be the necessity of his office to go whithersoever suffering may be?

The doctor and the priest are not sure of a night's rests. To shrive or pray for a passing soul is the business of the one. That of the other is to make the priest's services unnecessary. But each assumes an obligation that neither refuses. There is no obligation on the doctor except that of humanity. On the other is what passes beyond the region of humanity. But, as there are more sick people than dying people, it is probable that the humane doctor has the greater labor. The one, it is also likely, gets no pay. His function is not predicated on pay in this world. The doctor must provide for his household, and we are sure gets many promises of pay.

PRAYER.

One of the city papers proposes that we shall all go to praying be cause of the election of Gov. Tilden to the presidency.

We make an amendment to this, namely, that we shall be secure that we shall not be praying on the wrong side.

We are pretty certain that Mr. Tilden is elected, and that by no party hocus pocus can he be deprived of the office. But one ought not to be thankful for a thing that he is not sure of the possession of.

President Grant has issued a proclamation, in which it is suggested —not legally responsible on any one —that the 30th of the current month shall be held as a day of thanksgiving and praise. By the 30th, we of the Democratic faith will know whether Mr. Tilden or Mr. Hayes shall have been elected.

Gen. Grant's proclamation—he is a pious man—in all probability was made to thank God for the election of Mr. Hayes. Perhaps not. It is not graceful to suppose that a man asks us to thank God, without supposing that he means what he says, without reference to Tilden or Hayes.

But we had better wait a little while and heed what the President recommends to us. By that time we may be able to rejoice with some degree of assurance—fully satisfied that God has interposed to save us from the wickedness of the rascals who manipulate the ballot boxes.

The Devil is always standing at those boxes. After we shall have got rid of him, every man's vote will tell for its individual worth. The we shall have much reason to pray, and God will smile on us, and there may afterwards be no more rascals in polling. For that time we pray most fervently, for it will be the full salvation of this government. Let us all pray for the immediate coming of that blessed time.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 14, 1876.

The members of the Senate and House of Representatives began to arrive as early as Sunday night, and the vestibule of the Exchange Hotel presented quite an animated scene during Sunday and Monday evenings by those who had congregated from all parts of our state, and were actively engaged in the "button hole" trade, determined to secure some fat place for themselves, a relative or dear friend. But since the nominations have been made, they have had the glorious consolation of knowing that "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

Large delegations are present working in the interest of Morgan, Pugh and Houston for the Senatorship; and if Mobile desires to assert her rights, she must be equally as active.

The House and Senate assembled in caucus this morning at 10 A. M. Mr. McElroy, of Barbour, was chosen chairman of the House caucus, and Mr. Torrey, of Florence, of that of the Senate. Mr. Cobb, of the 13th district, a resident of Birmingham, was nominated president of the Senate, and Mr. N. N. Clements, of Tuskaloosa, Speaker of the House—both excelent nominations. Mr. Carmichael was nominated for secretary of the Senate and Mr. Phelan clerk of the House; and after nominating the minor officers, the Senate adjourned until to-morrow at 10 A. M. The House assembled in legislative capacity, when its members received the oath of office from Chief Justice Brickell and adjourned until 10 A. M. to-morrow, without electing to office those whom they had placed in nomination. The object of this movement was to stave off the election of United States Senator for one more week, as the law makes it obligatory among the members to commence the election on the 2nd Tuesday after organization. The election of Mr. Cobb, as President of the Senate, is an indication that the people elected Governor Houston to be the Gov. of Ala., and not to make him a U. S. Senator, and leaves him behind in the race. The principal candidates now are (and I place them as I think they rank on the list,) Col. Herndon, of your city, Col. Pugh, of Eufaula and Gen. Morgan of Selma. There are, however, other candidates spoken of, but who are, at the present writing, so far behind that they have not even a corporal's guard to marshal them in the nominating caucus, if one is held. Among them may be mentioned Ex Gov. Watts and Capt. Bragg. Most of the members of both houses are new as law makers, only five of those in the Senate having filled such a position before, and only thirteen of the House having ever before been elected to that body. The delegation from your city make a fine appearance; have already acquired prominence and, I think, will compare favorably with any other delegation now on the floor of the House or Senate. Not a colored man in the Senate and only eleven in the House. The new paint which has whitened the wood work, and the addition of so many more white members, in contradistinction to the two most Houses, gives them a pleasing appearance, and indicates a more healthy political atmosphere.

Sam Rice is the acknowledged leader of the Republicans in the House and Bob Knox in the Senate.

The House will not be without amusement, for I observed the Ace of Spades from Perry, known by the cognomen of George Washington Napoleon Shadrack Green, who has, during the past three sessions, consumed more of the time of the House than all the other colored members.

The grief of the Republicans over the election of Tilden and Hendricks is "like a pent-up flood, swollen to the height."

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 50 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route is or can make.

The management is unbecoming to the public this.

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East. Say leave to say that, in arranging their schedules to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed, thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the stability of their road-bed and connections, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important stat ons, and by taking up time, four to five hours at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

EXPRESS TRAINS

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque regions of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the tediousness usually attendant upon railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade—Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge, combining experience and all safety devices now in use, and attentive conductors and employes, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT, ATTENTION !! SAFETY !!

A regular line of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and supplied with meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, or in fact traveling supply or in search parties, will do well to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and DANVILLE.

Walks Around town.

Class May, in song, Varieties.

Shut the door and keep out the cold.

Dick Roberts, Ethiopian delineations, Varieties.

Just now there is a lull in the department of news in this city.

Let people come to Mobile from the north and eight our mild winters.

Billiards is a popular game at the Battle House billiard room. Free for all.

Dealers in turkeys hail with delight the approach of the national thanksgiving.

A cold wave swept over Mobile yesterday, lowering the temperature several degrees.

Wholesale and retail dealers should advertise in the sunday edition of the Tribune.

Pay as you go, and live within your income—both these maxims embody good advice.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 64, minimum 53, a range of 10 degrees.

The Battle House numbers among its guests a considerable number of permanent boarders, from the ranks of the business men of this city.

Make it a point to buy goods of those who advertise in the Tribune, and then safe purchases can be relied on.

Mobile is very quiet just now. The eight page Sunday Tribune, on the 26th, will wake up our newspaper readers.

A regular meeting of the common council will be held this evening, if there is a quorum, the first since October 26.

The total cotton exports to foreign ports yesterday were 3,981 bales, weighing 1,964,115 pounds, valued at $400,280.

A carriage broke through a bridge at the intersection of St. Francis street and Spring Hill avenue yesterday morning.

The city court will hold a session this morning, Judge Seamen on the bench, when the civil docket will be called and cases set for trial.

By the New Orleans and Mobile Railroad yesterday 32 hogsheads sugar, 6 barrels molasses, 166 sacks corn and 20 barrels apples were received.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday 3 crates apple butter for Walter Crosbie, 100 bags, 20 kegs beer, and 20 barrels potatoes.

The funeral procession of the late Dr. Nettles, at Whistler, preceded by the first Regiment Brass Band, attracted general attention as it passed along Royal street yesterday afternoon.

Justice Thorwer sent two colored sufferages to jail several weeks ago to await trial for stealing railroad iron. They were convicted by the city court, and sentenced to be jailed 16 months.

By the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was received yesterday 86 barrels potatoes, 45 bales snuff, 2 cars of stock, 1 bundle hides, 14 crates cabbages, 153 sacks corn, 25 barrels apples, 10 barrels onions and 1 car of corn.

Dr. Thomas W. Nettles, of Whistler, died at that place last Tuesday and was buried in Magnolia Cemetery yesterday. His funeral was attended by Pioneer Lodge No. 241, F. & A. M., and Mechanics' Lodge No. 69, I. O. O. F.

The opening exercises of the Alabama Medical College in this city were highly interesting. The inaugural address by Dr. Fournier was a production most gratifying and instructive to those who listened to it.

The St. James Hotel is the name given to the new hotel that has been constructed from the Savings Bank building on Royal street. Captain Van Gaunison intends to demonstrate that he knows how to keep a hotel.

The eight page Sunday Tribune, the first number of which will be issued on the 26th, will be delivered to subscribers in all parts of the city. Subscriptions will be taken and a thorough canvass will be made for that edition only.

In the city court Tuesday, after our report closed, Monroe Harris and Enis Booker were convicted of stealing railroad iron belonging to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and each sentenced to 18 months imprisonment in the county jail.

A ripple of excitement was created yesterday afternoon by the running away of an animal attached to Clark's ice wagon, bearing the No. 66. Spectators commented on the disaster, as they examined the wreck of the vehicle on Royal street alongside of the court house.

In the Cathedral last evening about five o'clock the very interesting solemnization of the marriage of Mr. Dan. O'Connell and Miss Katie White was witnessed. Thus the future of the newly wedded pair may be unclouded was the wish expressed, which the Tribune echoes.

The schooner Emma Cady, of Dearborn street, near Belava, has been on another "scare" the last few days and a warrant was issued by a justice of the peace yesterday that will "gather her in" and keep her locked up, under the new law, till the next term of the city court.

Among the exports yesterday for Havre was 941 pieces of lustic, which was probably imported into Mobile from Mexico. This dye wood is not of native growth here. The schooner Maenaline brought 465 pieces of lustic from Tuxcalpham, Mexico, July 15, 1876, and this may be the same wood cut in two for better storage.

TELEGRAPH

RELIGIOUS.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—The third Church Congress of the Protestant Episcopal Church opened yesterday morning at St. Paul's Church. Bishop P. Eddock called the Congress to order, and delivered the opening address. Rev Sam'l Osgood, of New York, read a paper on the true place of art in Christianity.

POST OFFICE RECEIPTS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The Evening Post's Washington special says that the forthcoming annual report of the Postmaster General will contain very gratifying statistics showing an increase in the receipts of nearly $2,000,000, and a decrease in the expenditures of $347,000.

DIED.

AKRON OHIO, Nov. 15.—Lucian V. Bierce, Past Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Ohio died here last Sunday at a ripe old age. He was very prominent and a shining light in the order. He served in the war of 1812, was a State Senator, and an officer in the late war. His loss will be deeply felt among Masons as well as by a large circle of relatives and friends throughout the State. The funeral will take place Tuesday with Masonic honors.

FOR EXTRADITION.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Max Cohen, the alleged defaulter of the firm in Metzingen, Saxony, was arrested on debarking from the Indiana and held for extradition.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Star says Senator West reached the city yesterday morning. Soon after his arrival he received a dispatch from a person, who he says is entirely reliable, saying that Louisiana had gone Republican by at least 1500 majority, even if the disputed parishes are thrown out.

REMONATE N.

The Postmaster General has received the resignation of H. N. Sollace, Postmaster at Bridgeport, Vermont, elected Presidential elector.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 14.—Gentlemen arriving in this city to-night from St. Louis, say that Gen. Phil Sheridan and staff, in citizen's dress, passed over the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago Railway to day en route to New Orleans. They will arrive at New Orleans at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

CHARLESTON, South Carolina.

CHARLES'N, S. C., Nov. 14.—The Columbia special to the News and Courier says the Republicans had made a proposition to give the State to Hampton and Hayes, which the Democrats rejected.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 14.—The following prominent Democrats: ex Gov. Parker, of New Jersey, Senator Randolph, of New Jersey, Hon. Montgomery Barr, of Maryland, Hon. H. H. Slaver, of Virginia, and Hon. G. V. Cox are here. All quiet and the Democrats are cheerful.

CHARLES'N, Nov. 14.—The Supreme Court, a unanimous decision, has required the Board of Canvassers to answer on Thursday why writs of prohibition shall not be issued restraining them from judicial functions and confining them to ministerial functions only.

LATER.—Nothing has transpired since the action of the Supreme Court this morning. Dem crats are cheerful; every thing quiet. Republicans concede the Hampton is elected. The action of the Board of Canvassers renders it impossible to get figures of returns.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 15.—Garfield of Ohio, and Kelly of Pennsylvania, will arrive to morrow, when the Republicans will answer the communications of the Democrats. The city is very quiet.

The New York Tribune's New Orleans special says the Democrats claim that a count of the votes actually cast will show Tilden to have carried the State by about 8,000 majority and Nicholls by about 9,000. The Republicans do not deny that a majority of the votes actually polled are against them, but they assert that under the law they will be able to prove that several parishes were carried by the Democrats by intimidation and violence, and that when the votes from those parishes are rejected, as they will be legally, Hayes and Packard will be found to have carried the State.

FLORIDA.

WASHINGTON, November 15—The Herald has an elaborate Tallahassee special, which says the official returns from nine counties justify the unofficial returns made a few days ago. It is settled that the full returns of the county canvassing boards will give the State to Drew by over 900 majority, and to Tilden by over 500. These returns will be attacked by the Republicans before the State canvassing board. The Democrats are confident that they can defend every return.

The contest before the State Board will probably be long and long and subtler. A Democ committee will be attacked by one party or the other and the testimony in each case will be voluminous.

WISCONSIN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 15.—Several weeks before the election one of the Republican candidates was discovered to be ineligible, and a change was made in the ticket, but they did not reach all points. The faulty ballots are not believed to be sufficient to raise a doubt of the election of the eligible candidate.

BLOODSHED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Cabinet meeting yesterday discussed Vermont and Oregon postmasters who were out-doctors, Southern matters were also discussed.

It is stated that several concessions, commissioners, who hold commissions under the broad seal of the United States have been chosen electors.

The Republican elector in Oregon has resigned his post-office, and the Department has placed the office in charge of an agent.

FOR FLORIDA.

William H. Roberts, to, General Francis Barlow and Assistant District Attorney Billings have started for Tallahassee. Wm. M. Evarts declines to go South.

THE ARMY.

The Cabinet appears to agree with the President that the duty of the army in the South is to preserve the peace and to report through regular army channels election frauds and prevent lawless interference, and not to interfere themselves with the machinery for counting the votes.

STEAM HIP SUNK.

ANTRIM, November 15.—The British steamer City of Manchester, from Liverpool for Calcutta, has sunk off this port, and all hands except the captain and steward supposed to be lost.

FIRE DOWN BELOW.

LIVERPOOL, November 15.—The cargo in the main hold of the American line steamer Lord Clive, which was to have sailed from here to-day for Philadelphia, was found to be on fire this morning. The fire was extinguished by the ship's hose before any damage was done to the steamer. The damaged cargo is being reloaded.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

LONDON, November 15.—The Standard's special from Constantinople says Turkey is preparing vigorously for war. Torpedoes have been placed at the eastern end of the Bosphorus, and the forts have been strengthened.

FLORIDA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The Times Tallahassee special says Gen. Ruger had arrived there yesterday afternoon, and taken command of the troops.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 14.—Total interments to-day five, of which two were from yellow fever.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.]

MILITARY.

NEW YORK Nov. 14, 9:20 A. M.—The Washington correspondent of the Sun says: The troops in Louisiana are intended to protect the existing Returning Board, that being the legal board of canvassers recognized by State and United States law.

The Sun editorially views Sheridan's transfer to New Orleans with serious misgivings, and declares that he will not submit to cut his head with the sword if necessary.

BLOODSHED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Cabinet meeting yesterday discussed Vermont and Oregon postmasters who were out-doctors, Southern matters were also discussed.

NEW YORK Nov. 14, 9:20 A. M.—The Washington correspondent of the Sun says: The troops in Louisiana are intended to protect the existing Returning Board, that being the legal board of canvassers recognized by State and United States law.

The Sun editorially views Sheridan's transfer to New Orleans with serious misgivings, and declares that he will not submit to cut his head with the sword if necessary.

GRAND TRUNK RAILROAD TO NO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Cabinet is adjourned at an impossible which is gaining ground fast in Pa ris—nothing definite over the President. They are worn out in their exhaustion of the Great Strain on Sunday and desired that it should be published that was only a vacation and that in the invitation it was intimated the politics and army affairs would be excluded topics.

They are jealous of the General of the Army. They are also particular that it should be published that Gen. Sheridan was ordered to New Orleans before the end of after the interview.

There is an authority for saying that the President gave an emphatic "No" to the anti-reported Bourbon march of Gen. Sheridan on New Orleans through Attorney General Pat.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

Messrs. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & Co., San dard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Pure, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official test of the United tates Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutist Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their brand made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their unfinished purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. R. HARRISON M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

The National Thanksgiving.

There is a large element of the present population of the south who are closely observe the annual national thanksgiving, by appointment of the president, as it is observed in the north and west. The text of the thanksgiving proclamation of President Grant is as follows:

From year to year we have been accustomed to praise in our parents and set apart a time to offer our thanks to Almighty God for the special blessings He has vouchsafed to the with our prayers for a continuance thereof.

We have at this time equal reason to be thankful for this continued protection, and for the many material blessings which His bounty has bestowed.

In addition to these favors accorded to us as individuals we have special reason to express our hearty thanks to Almighty God that by His providence and guidance our government, established a century ago, has been enabled to fulfill the purpose of its foundation, offering anywhere to the people of every race, creating civil and religious liberty within its borders, and inviting out to every individual alike justice and equality before the law.

In, moreover, especially our duty to offer our humble prayers to the Father of all mercies for a continuance of this divine favor to us as a nation and an individual; By reason of all these considerations, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do hereby recommend to the people of the United States to devote the thirtieth day of November to the exercises of their thanks and prayers to Almighty God, and, laying aside their many avocations, assemble in their respective places of worship and observe such day as a day of thanksgiving and rest.

River News.

The steamer Mary Boyd left last evening with a fair freight on her initial trip to Bucoun and Demopolis.

The W. S. Hott backed out for Demopolis last evening with a good freight and a few passengers.

The Sam J. Tilden will retire from the river business for awhile.

At length arrangements have been matured to pay city liabilities in greenbacks. A few small warrants were paid by the city treasurer yesterday, and today payments of the rolls for September will be made. This is much better than paying out city scrip, to be returned month after month in the payment of city taxes.

PROTESTANTS IN SPAIN.—A committee of the Evangelical Alliance have just published a letter refering to the treatment of Protestants in Spain. They say the right to worship God according to the dictates of the individual conscience, when it does not interfere with the rights of others is now embodied in international law; that the concession and exercise of this right does not endanger the well being of the State; that liberty of worship is not incompatible with an established religion; that in Protestant countries, such as Great Britain, Germany and the United States, Roman Catholics are protected equally with Protestants. They therefore represent to the Spanish Government that it is not in accord with the acknowledged rights of humanity, or with the civilization of the age, nor with the custom of nations, nor with the spirit of the Gospel, to interfere in such religious duties.

A Serious View of Hamlet.

A ludicrous incident is reported by the Bristol Post to have occurred during Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann's performance of "Hamlet" at the new Theatre Royal. An elderly gentleman who had taken a seat in the dress circle remained a quiet spectator of the piece until the closet scene, in which Hamlet slays Polonius. Seeing the sword of the Prince plunged through the arras, and the body of the aged courtier fall seemingly dead upon the stage, he jumped up in a state of evident trepidation and exclaiming, "It is most disgraceful that all these can sit quietly here and see an aged person deliberately murdered," rushed out of the circle. The box-keepers endeavored to calm his fears and to explain to him that it was all a dramatic illusion, but he refused to be convinced, and bounced out of the house.

John's Dexterity.

Chicago Tribune San Francisco Letter.—A Chinaman entered a cigar store, and, while asking his way to a certain street, slipped a box of cigars up his sleeve. A mirror betrayed him, and a policeman was called in. "Me honest boy—allee same—belly good—no cigallee." The box was in neither right nor left sleeve, nor in either trousers leg. The left elbow suddenly moved; the policeman squeezed the bone; John smiled; no box. The right shoulder was agitated; the policeman made a dash in that direction; another smile; no box. Suddenly the cigar-dealer saw something creeping across the Chinaman's back, and clapped his hand upon it; another smile; lo! the cigars! At the police station the officers found two more boxes—one under each arm pit.

Thirty-one miles of new streets were opened in London last year.

Misor's Money.

ANOTHER JARNDYCE VS. JARNDYCE CASE IS ENGLAND.

Moncure D. Conway's London Letter.

I once heard George Peabody say that for many years he had been bored with letters from America, asking him about visionary estates, failing to more visionary heirs in the United States; and even so humble an individual as your correspondent has received enough letters about the Jennings estate to yield him a glow of satisfaction in recording the prospect that the famous case has at last reached a situation in which the door will speedily be shut against any more inquiries. The High Court of Chancery will soon have the case in hand. The Jenningses to the number of several hundred, have formed a huge "family association"—a sort of new-stock company—with treasurers and secretaries, and have issued a "memorial for public information." In this actualization of Dickens's Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce the title is Jeneus vs. Jeneus, but I believe that the various ways in which the name "Jenneus" can be written when there are millions in it are more than might be imagined. Many a family that once upon a time succinded that "Jennings" or "Jeneus" was plebeian as compared with Jenyns, Jasuns, Jaunins, seems to have discovered in recent years a more aristocratic accent in Jennings and Jeneus. There never were such a number of J-anningses in London as at present, no fewer than ninety-six persons of that name being on the Directory. The property represented—forty millions of golden dollars, and the holders of tickets that may draw prizes are beginning, it is said, to speculate in them. The old man who left the original property points unusually well the saying, "the heaps with riches and knoweth not who shall gather them." He was god-son of William III., and page to the first Hanoverian king; a miser, he died in lonely bachelorhood, and an unsigned will was found in his pocket. Large sums of money were found hidden away in all manner of magpie places about his house. The sum he left to be fought over was two millions of pounds, and it has now become eight millions. Scores of people have been ruined in the effort to grasp the old miser's hoard, and scores of lawyers have made fortunes by it. When the case is decided it is expected that a number of glossy gentlemen of the bar will have to go about like work-men in the winter, singing "We have no work to do-o-o," Some families may be content with gaining a certificate of connection with a family which includes a Duchess of Malborough (Sarah the termagant); sicken-ed Talbot, Duke of Tyrconnel, and Viceroy of Ireland under James I.; Edmund Jennings, the famous Jesuit; Admiral Sir John Jennings and Soame Jenyns, antiquary, the most respectable of the lot, who reappears in one of the best-drawn characters of the late Mr. Shirley Brooks's most finished romance. The matter has gone now so far that some notices of ejectment from the property have been served, and the conflict begun a century back, waged since in a ghostly way, will soon grow warm.

"Crutchey's" Moral Philosophy.

He was a little newsboy, the very liftiest newsboy that ever lived, but he had a voice like a lion and his coat was big enough for a man. He stood in the rain in the City Hall Park, and he yelled with all the vigor and unanimity of a demon. "M o-rnin' P-a-a-pers, full c-ount of Tilden's election! All about Gov'nor Hayes's suicide!"

"Good times for you, Johnny," said old Mr. Parker, feeling in his pocket for the requisite three cents.

"You bet, boss," said the urchin, "these is bully times, better'n a war."

"What's your name?" said old Mr. Parker, still exploring for the pennies.

"Crutchey," said the little fellow shortly, hopping about in his impatience to be gone, and showing that one leg hung limp and useless, while the little crutch upon which he leaned explained the meaning of this queer sobriquet.

"Crutchey! well that's a curious name; but what do you mean by saying, 'All about Governor Hayes's suicide?' Now you know, Crutchey, that Governor Hayes hasn't committed suicide. Don't you know it's very wicked to tell wrong stories?"

Mr. Parker was quite out of breath now, what with the length of his oration and the vigor of his search for the pennies.

"Look a here, boss, what are you givin' me now? Does yer see them air bulletines," pointing to the announcements in front of the Times and Tribune. "I say, does you see them air bulletins? Ye'd better go in there an' talk to the editors ab out tellin' arong stories. It's business with me boss. I want to sell my papers an'"—cheese this ere, please—some o' my frien's has been, an they wants to hedge 'em, an' so I'm makin public opinion. Rush out them three cents boss."

Mr. Parker frowned at such immorality, and, saying something about dishonesty, gave the newsboy three cents one of which was a token and not good for anything. Crutchey seized them, gave Parker a paper and hopped off, still yelling at the top of his voice: "Ere's full e count Tilden's elect on and Gov'nor H y s's suicide. Only three cents, an' supplement throwned in." A headline in the paper read: "Hayes's Political success by Democratic Ballots."—N. Y. World.

From Rome--Pope and Cardinals.

The following is an extract of a letter in the N. Y. World, dated at Rome, Oct 29:

The last report from the Vatican is that His Holiness has announced that he shall create some new Cardinals about Christmas; most of them will be foreigners, but the names are not even speculated upon. It is believed now, that if the Pope were to at any time during the present year the Conclave would be held in Spain. The Jesuit party, it is said, favor that country. In any case the future Conclave will not be held in Rome; at least, this is the impression of those who are up in Vatican affairs. The Roman Cardinals are mostly infirm old men, except, to be sure, Panebianco, the favorite of His Holiness; he is in excellent condition and is as much opposed to Cardinal Antonelli as any Jesuit father can be.

One of the most remarkable changes in personal appearance has taken place in Cardinal Buonaparte. He is not an old man in years, not over fifty, and yet he looks like a decrepit man of eighty. We all remember his fine soldierly walk and youthful look during the Council winter. Now it seems as if he might have been the victim of any number of paralytic strokes. He goes shuffling his handsome, and yet feet about in huge red shoes; walks bent over and leaning on a cane, and trembles as with extreme age. There are some who say it is a mask, and recall the old story of Sixtus Quint; but the Buonaparte Cardinal may as well enjoy his vigorous mid-age, if he really has it, openly; he has not the shadow of a chance in a conclave, not if he went in carried in a litter, and pretended to have both feet in the grave. It is the Pope's desire, it is said, that a foreign Cardinal may be elected the future Pope, in order to engage foreign interest in Papal affairs. Spain is about the only European government that might undertake such a mission and she could hardly do it safely. Cardinal Panebianco, however, is one of the Italian Cardinals who is regarded as papeggiante (likely to be Pope.)

It is said there are more than 100 New York Jews, each of whom, on an average, is a millionaire.

A point might lists 142 days. This is the very important discovery made by the last explorers of that bleak region.

At the last accounts (Sunday) Commodore Vanderbilt was comfortable. He lingers with most remarkable tenacity.

Many pews in Rev. Dr. Hall's church, New York, cost each $3000 a year, in gold too. There is more in that church in gold than in paper money.

Judge Westbrook has decided that Beecher shall not be tried in Kings county. The people are tired of it. He has, accordingly, sent it to Delaware county.

The British Empress has conferred a pension of £100 on the widow of the Mr. Lane who translated the "Arabian Nights." The big and the little people will be made glad by this.

The New York World, alluding to a recent declination of a beautiful building in Constantinople, thus writes of the Moslem prayers on the occasion: "It is a rather curious circumstance that the Mahometans, whose daily devotions, five times repeated, are the merest rote, branch out on occasions of this character into extemporaneous prayers, in which, save for the absence of Christ's name, any Presbyterian could join."

Nothing yet is positively certain in regard to the presidential election.

There is hardly a doubt that Tilden has been elected, but it is a game in which vast party interests are concerned, without much regard to the interests of the people. Whether there will be successful cheating in the business is a question that is now in abeyance.

General Grant commands the army and the navy; and it is said, one hundred thousand office holders. This latter may not be true, for it doesn't follow that a man is a rogue because he holds an office. If one could eliminate the rogues from politics, the result might be something; and yet we must have men to manage official affairs. We can't do without them. The wheels of the government machine would stop, if we had no engineers of the kind. We must employ the rogues, if executives lack the industry or skill to find out who are not the rogues.

THE PROPOSED MUNICIPAL LAW.

The official paper of the city publishes the text of a very long tax law for the uses of Mobile. In order to make it valid, it must be approved by the legislature of the State. Prior to its submission to that body, it must have the sanction of the municipal authorities.

The constructor of it was the City Attorney, Stephens Croom, esq., and its verbiage and skill in taking everything and everybody are worthy of admiration. Under it, if it be faithfully administered, there can be no escape for any man who owes duty to the city treasury. This is well-enough—for every man ought to pay for the procession which the government gives him.

But, looking at the act with the most conscientious desire to serve the corporation, it is not pleasant reading. No man or woman loves taxation. It is, at best, a very disagreeable thing.

The proposed law, we have no doubt, will be thoroughly scrutinized by the mayor and the two boards. If they approve it, why it will, we suppose, have an easy passage through the legislature.

We have only glanced over it. It has great length, and it would take much time to read and honestly weigh its innumerable sections. It will take a lawyer to do that—although in most of the acts of the kind there are, generally, only a few salient points. You get hold of them and you get hold of their merits.

We may observe that a measure of the kind requires a great deal of calm consideration—for once put on us, it will be hard to remove it.

It may also be said, as we hear mentioned on the streets, among men of "wisest censure," that the enactment of it would amount almost to confiscation—that it would especially bear heavily on the industrious and useful citizens who are now the least able to endure the burden of taxation. This weight has become so great that it one is a disposition to throw it off entirely. That is, it is a way for the purpose could be discovered. For your patient camel will bear a great deal; but put too much on the beast and it will not rise, under any amount of blows, to carry it. The universal law of human nature comes in here as superseding all dialectical theories.

But this is only general, and, perhaps, has no proper application to the proposed law.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

A brief telegraph summary of Gov. Houston's message was published yesterday in the Register. The Governor, according to this report, is in a high condition of excitation over the election of Tilden and Hendricks. That is not yet settled, for there are a great many ways of clouding a dog, without using butter for the purpose. How it will finally be—if there be much triumphant rascality—is only one of those insertable things, which, in the ordering of Divine Providence, we have no means of finding out.

As far as the popular vote is concerned, there can be no difficulty in the matter—they, we presume, from what are apparently reliable figures, that Mr. Tilden has been elected by two or three hundred thousand majority of the popular votes. But that comes nothing, if there be a majority of votes within the electoral college.

This, our of our contemporaries might declare, is the result of the protection of minorities. Thereon it would make a mistake. For these minorities are only an incident of a system which was the result of the best political philosophy that was at hand when it was adopted.

The people are getting weary of it, and are disposed to change it, so as to make the votes of the whole country tell as they do in our local elections. We are getting away from the tradition—not for good, as we think, except in this case, and there is every where a desire to change the system, and get down to a direct vote—all votes being counted all over the country—and a majority or a plurality making the President. By this we get rid of the cumbrous machinery that may cheat the people of a state. Vide, the attempt now to cheat the people of Louisiana.

But this is foreign to the governor's message. He shows that the government of the state has been managed with a desire to reduce its cost, and that its obligations have grown in value. This is the essential thing—for its only by giving industry encouragement and lessening the taxation of the people that the prosperity of communities may be made more prosperous. This may be considered an indisputable maxim of political economy from the time that Adam Smith composed his elaborate work down to the printing of the writings of Henry Carey, of Philadelphia, or the later philosopher Peter Cooper, for example, who was a candidate for the Presidency, running on the greenback platform.

We don't expect to print the governor's message. No man can look for it within these columns. The reason is this: we have no room for elaborate messages. But, like "little Jack Horner, sat in a corner eating a Christmas pie. He put in his thumbs, and picked out plums," &c. Like that little Jack Horner, we may be able to find the plums of the message after we shall have received a copy of it.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 15, 1876.

EDITOR TRIBUNE.—At 10 a. m. the house was called to order by Mr. Botts, the oldest member, from Madison, and elect d the following officers: Speaker N. N. Clements, of Tuscaloosa; Clerk Ellis Paelan, of Jefferson; Assistant Clerk W. L. Martin, of Jackson, Doorkeeper, Mr. Hogan, of Cleburne, a one-armed confederate soldier; Enrolling Clerk, Gen. C. Battle; Engrossing Clerk, Elmore Garrett. When the vote for speaker was taken, Green, colored Representative from Perry, stated that in casting his vote, he would rise above party, and cast his vote for the nominee of the dominent party, for it was only through him he could expect protection for his rights.

After the speaker had been elected, Messrs. Herndon, Manasco, and McKleroy were appointed to conduct Mr. Clements to the chair. On assuming the duties Mr. Clements delivered a very appropriate address, in which he counselled that the reforms commenced by the last Legislature be perfected by the present power, and fully carried out. He also recommended the protection of the public school interest of the state, that all might receive a good education.

The Senate assembled at 10 a. m., and elected the officers nominated in caucus yesterday.

Only one bill was introduced in the House, and that by Mr. Griffin, of Marshal, which is designed to regulate estrals by jury," giving the power of nine of them to bring in a verdict after six hours' absence, if the twelve cannot agree. This will be a relief to those of the white race, who have been afflicted with the punishment of sitting on a jury composed of nine white and three blacks.

The Auditor's report is published and in the hands of the members. It shows that the watch dog of the Treasury, "The Bald Eagle of the mountains," has expended from the contingent fund during the past year $6,894 59; that the expenses of the late constitutional convention were $25,984 29; and that the State Legislature for 1875 cost the snug sum of $78,383 20.

It is well that our people will not for the future have to submit to this large expenditure, except once in every two years.

Yesterday I thought our people had sent too many young men to make laws for them, but today, casting my eye over this august body, I found among the assembled wisdom of the state, out of the 97 present in the house, nine who had sun-kair on the tops of their heads where the same ought to grow," and thirty one whose hair was frosted with gray, an indication of knowledge gained by experience.

The contest for the place of one who has been anything but a Senator, will be the most exciting of any thing in the political line for years. Already those most anxious for the honor are marshalling their forces, for the out side pressure, and are present in person. It makes one sauile, and they will make you smile if you let them.

This day's trains have brought in additional numbers from Eufaula, Selma and Opelika who are interested in the senatorial contest. Pope Walker, from North Alabama, has also arrived on the ground, but as he has published a card that he is not a contestant, he must be left out of the ring.

Capt. Johnson, Ex-Chairman of the state committee, arrived this morning from Selma, and is taking a hand in favor of Gen. Morgan; Gen. Pettis of Selma is also taking an active part for Selma's favorite; one of the Bragg Bros. of Eufaula also arrived this morning, and recorded himself on the Pugh side of the contest.

Among the new aspirants for a winter's residence in Washington is Taul Bradford, late member of congress, and Mr. Barnes, of Opelika, who are now numbered among the small fry.

The mouths of James Pugh and John Morgan are on the broad grin and look as though split from ear to ear. They are no mouth hoppo.

Walks Around Town.

Mobile Varieties tonight—new programme, Queen of song, Clara May—Mobile Varieties.

For bargains in dry goods, go to P. H. Pepper & Co.

The city pay rolls for September, paid in greenbacks yesterday, amounted to $14,000.

A change of 3000 votes in Pennsylvania would have defeated Martin Van Buren in 1836.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 67, minimum 47, a range of 20 degrees.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 5 bales of hay and 1 car load of corn were received.

The full telegraphic dispatches published in the Tribune, give election reports from both parties.

The sun made a feeble effort to shine yesterday morning, but it was under a cloud later in the day.

The Battle House has the best table of any hotel in the south. It is better than any in New Orleans.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received 100 barrels lime, 13 sacks nuts and 25 carrels apples.

The 36 electoral votes of New York elected Polk in 1844, and then his majority in that state was only 5000.

Walter Johnson, for assault on Rebecca Nichols, pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs by Justice Thrower yesterday.

John Adams was elected president of the United States in 1797 by three votes. Tilden is sure of 184, and only needs one more.

When a majority vote was required in Massachusetts, Marcus Morton had only one majority in a total vote of about 120,000, in 1841.

Parties wishing to buy furniture cheap, will do well to call on Kelly & Co., St. Francis street, who have a large stock at small prices.

The change of 19 electoral votes in 1848 would have elected Cass over Taylor, and then several of the states had very small majorities.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 30 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 50 to 100 hours shorter than any other route, and is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points being free to stop over at Chattanooga for any other route is or can make.

The Saloon Cars are unsurpassed by the public conveyance.

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedules to meet all the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the ability of freight to arrive in safe condition, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important stations, and by taking up little less than three days at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transfer between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and avoiding the risk of accidents in the least degree.

EXPRESS TRAINS

Bearing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the attention of the traveling public is called to the air, and the variegated scenery continually presented to the view during the journey, as compared to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade; Palace sleeping cars on all night trains. Parlor or drawing-room cars without extra charge, conveying passengers between Montgomery and Atlanta, and elegant day coaches by running to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

The time for the arrival of connecting trains will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.

QUICK TRANSIT. FEW CHANGES. SURE CONNECTIONS are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other of all rail routes; and visitors who their traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

TELEGRAPH

POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Republicans are scanning the lists of Southern elections for some one laboring under politics disabilities.

THAT HURRICANE.

The State Department has details from St. Thomas of the hurricane of the 13th ult. The bark Idella Birney, of New York, broke from the wharf and went on the rocks. Capt. Turner, his wife and four of the crew were drowned. The American brig Veteran broke to pieces.

FLORIDA.

WASHINGTON, November 16.—The New York Herald has a dispatch from J. J. Daunel, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of the 8 county District of Florida, saying: I send you below the vote of the State by counties; the returns are all in except from Brevard. [Here follows the details by Congressional Districts.] First, The Democratic majority in 18 counties is 5,171; Republican majority in 4 counties, 4,565. Second, The Democratic majority in 11 counties is 2,791; Republican majorities in 6 counties 2,359. Total Democratic majority in the State, 1,038.

The dispatch concludes: This insures the election of the State and national tickets, Democratic Congressmen from both districts, and a Democratic majority in both houses of the legislature. The Herald's Tallahassee dispatch says it is impossible that Drew's majority can be cut below 800, or Tilden's below 400.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Herald's dispatch from Columbia, S. C., says after hearing various protests the Board of Canvassers made no answer, but in reply to another protest against their character as having judicial functions they adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Board will not act upon any proposition until the question of its powers and duties be decided by the Supreme Court.

LOUISIANA.

The Herald's New Orleans special makes Governor Kellogg say he has no control over the personnel or organization of the Returning Board.

Gen. Sheridan's visit is simply in a military capacity for the preservation of the peace. He spends most of his time with Gen. Augur. To be followed by the disposition of the troop: Two companies are at the Mechanics' Institute, six at the Customhouse, and five back of the St. Charles Hotel, total number of troops 680.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 15—The Medical Society have just declared the epidemic at an end, and hereby notify absentees that they can return.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 15.—Total interments to-day four, of which two were from yellow fever.

The City Council tonight approved the action of the Georgia Medical Society and Health Officers in decaring the epidemic at an end and advising absentees to return.

WAR PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, November 16.—The correspondents say Austria continues a pacific and conciliatory line of army.

There is reason to believe that Russia will call in her next year's contingent of recruits, numbering 200,000 men, instead of waiting till April, one month hence. The first military train, with 16,000, left St Petersburg yesterday for Kischen if. All railway companies in Russia are ordered to place their railways at the same disposal of the government.

[Special to the New Orleans Picayune.]

POLITICAL EXCITEMENT.

WASHGTON, Nov. 15.—The impression is gaining ground that a serious conflict is impending. The present indications are that any attempt to install a President by fraud will be resisted by the House of Representatives and the people.

It is predicted that the first act of the session will be the appointment of a committee to investigate all the facts of the election in Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina.

Gentlmen recently from the North represent a very excited feeling among Democrats.

OREGON.

SAN FRANCI CO, November 16.—The Secretary of State of Oregon will count the vote and issue the commission to Postmaster Watts, unless restrained by the Supreme Court of the State. The necessary writ will be asked for.

Gossip By Telegraph.

A all the dispatches touching the election possess interest at the present time we reproduce the subjoined sent by the American Press Association:

New York, Nov. 14.—The Graphic's Washington special says: The excitement of last week has relaxed and the District of Columbia is at present in a state of almost inanimate suspense. The work in the several departments, which was almost suspended last week, has been resumed and the most of the clerks who went home to vote have returned. The Democrats have given up Florida and South Carolina. Wade Hampton only claims 100 majority for Tilden to-day in South Carolina, and two days ago he thought he had a majority of 1,0,000. Gov. Chamberlain still sticks to his claim of a majority. Reports from Florida state that with the aid of a revenue cutter several persons, in charge of the poll boxes, escaped the ambuscade of knaiux which they have positive evidence were lying in wait for them. Some of the returns it is supposed are lost, and the messengers, in whose charge they were sent, are missing. The Governor has sent back for duplicates of those that are missed. At present all eyes are turned towards Louisiana. The President stated that he intended to have a fair count in that State, and that the returning board should be protected in the discharge of their duties if he had to call for militia and volunteers. When asked his opinion on the possibility of bloodshed he replied with the old adage, "that a stitch in time saves nine" in war as well as in tailoring. He does think the people of Louisiana will not be so lost to their own interests as to provoke bloodshed, although he is aware of excitable temperaments, and to put it beyond temptation he ordered General Sheridan there, and if he was sure of anything it was that they would keep cool enough to consider that they had no chance of making anything by an outbreak while Sheridan was there. He rather expected that the announcement of Sheridan's arrival would be a sort of antidote for an eruption.

The Evening Post's Washington special says:

The Democrats here say that they have a dispatch from Columbia, S. C., saying that the Returning Board to-day threw out nine votes of Edgefield county, which accounting to the Democratic estimates, gave a Democratic majority of 3,500, although the county is Republican by nearly that majority.

The National Committee to-day received a letter giving the vote in all the counties of South Carolina, by which it appears that Hayes has 7,616 majority, and Chamberlain 5,256.

Another Washington special to the Tribune says that Senator West has just arrived there from New Orleans. He left there on Saturday, and says great confidence in victory for the Republicans, even after allowing the Democrats the benefit of their illegal votes. He made a thorough canvass of the State, and is familiar with the returns as far as received. In regard to the Returning Board, Senator West says it is composed of men who can be neither frightened or bribed. Madison Wells, who is the chairman of the Board, was formerly governor of the State, and a Union man during the war. He is a native of Louisiana, and a man in whom everybody has confidence.

The long suspense in regard to the results of the presidential election has resulted in a marked abatement of the excitement over the unsteady gold quotations. Persons in general have learned to distrust the correctness of bulletins of both sides and are disposed to wait the result of the official count in the several States. The extreme partisan leaders and partisan journals, of either side, confidently claim the success of their candidate, while the independent observers are compelled to admit that there is nothing like certainty in the issue. In Wall street and the other great exchanges the sanitious of the call is a soothing theme. The excitement is less than usual, but the discussions are more in earnest and the anxiety more intense with each succeeding day. The cause of the anxiety felt in Wall street is the large amount of money at stake. It is said that the sums wagered, and depending on the announcement of the result in the three States, and particularly of the Louisana vote, exceed the enormous amounts shut up in the uptown pool rooms. One broker said to-day: "Nearly all brokers bet. There are hundreds of thousands at stake. The pot cannot call the kettle black, and we are all in the same boat." Among the rumors afloat to-day is one to the effect that the Democratic leaders are inaugurating a system of indigestion messages to be held all over the country. A letter received from Gov. Chamberlain's private Secretary this afternoon says: We have an undoubted majority of 4,000 in South Carolina, counting in Edgefield—there intimidation was extreme—it giving 3,000 Democratic majority and some other counties as giving vastly larger returns than could honestly have sufficient foundation. The most outrageous frauds were perpetrated in every part of the state. Georgians came over and voted.

NEW YORK.

From the returns so far received of the election in this State it appears that the legislature will be Republican by a decided majority. The Assembly will stand 73 Republicans to 55 Democrats, and in the Senate the Republicans will have a small majority. Tilden's majority in the State is now estimated at about 31,000.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Quality," purchased from the resident of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official star and of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examine d their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have to declare in stating, that no fact of their and stated purity is fully established.

The Common Council.

At the meeting of the common council, last evening, President Quigley in the chair, Councilmen Anderson, Brown, Danner, McCaw and Perryman were also present.

A communication from the mayor was read, received and filed and the recommendations adopted.

The appointment of a joint special committee of three from the board of aldermen and two from the common council was recommended, to report on officers' salaries and wards for 1877.

President Quigley appointed on that committee Councilmen McCaw and Danner.

The communication also recommended that, from and after the first of December next, the police force be reduced and constituted as follows:—1 chief of police, 1 assistant chief, 4 sergeants, 2 regular detectives and 57 privates, making a total of 66 men, instead of 80 as at present.

It also recommends that the ways and means committee be requested to report the rate of licences and special business taxes and that the mayor and the presidents of the two boards be requested to assess and fix the taxes provided for in section 57 of the charter.

Papers from the board of aldermen were concurred in, except one or two, among them the resolution of Alderman Hanna, of reference to which former action was adhered to.

The Ways and means committee reported their financial operations by which payments of all city obligations to the first of December will been made in legal currency. The committee calls attention to the necessity of the most rigid economy in the city expenditures. They allude to the reduction that has been made to $63,000 a year, and suggest a further reduction. Report received and filed.

The determined resignation of Councilman Smith was accepted with regret, and the council voted to fill the vacancy after 5 days' notice. Adjourned.

FRIDAY..... NOVEMBER 17

Something for the Alabama Legislature.

From the New York World.

A story is told of a scene in the New Jersey Legislature. A newly-made member arose in his seat and began to deliver an address on the advisability of amending and revising the Statute of Frauds, concerning which so many ponderous tomes have been written. Thereupon a venerable lawyer arose and said: "Mr. Speaker, it has cost the people of this State "$5,000,000 to learn what that statute "means, and I don't propose to be a party "to any further expenditure about it." It is with a feeling such as this that we arise from the perusal of the ponderous statute containing the first fifteen chapters of the New York Code of Procedure Amendments. The Code of Procedure was adopted in 1849. Since that time the whole bar of the State has been in continual and earnest discussion as to its meaning. In this city branches of each of the courts have been continuously sitting, poring over its mystic contents and doing little else. It became the charter of our property and our happiness; whether a man wanted to lose a wife or to recover money for the loss of one; to keep his own estate or to oust another man from his, he has been compelled to proceed in accordance with its precepts and not otherwise. What these precepts were the courts have had to decide. It is late in the day now to criticise the work then done. The world has adopted that work, and England, with all her claims as the leader of the common law nations, is now discussing, just as we did twenty-five years ago, how to use a man under a new practice. This work has been done, and millions have been spent in framing the practice under it. The community under it was getting into a condition of comparative rest. Practice reports were becoming fewer; the courts had fewer questions of construction brought before them, and above all, the bar educated in the new way had learned how to apply its rules so as to waste as little as possible of the money of suitors and to their own time. Then in an evil hour the Legislature appointed a committee of lawyers and philosophers to revise the whole matter, and the results of their labor, unless the Legislature comes to our aid, are to become the law of the land on May 1, 1877. They are now before us. When we say that there is scarcely a point which has not been the subject of new statutory enactment, we are within the truth.

Mr. Joseph Hull, of Columbus, Ga., with thirteen mules, has made 130 bales of cotton, 3,000 bushels of corn and 1,500 bushels of oats. This is 19 bales of cotton, 231 bushels of corn and 100 bushels of oats per mule.

BY

E. BALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B LYONS

New York, which has never been a manufacturing city, in 1874 produced in that line, $533,000,000, 87½ per cent. more than the value of the entire cotton crop of the United States. In the same year nearly 7000 vessels entered that port.

Between 17,000 and 20,000 alligator skins are tanned yearly, which are consumed by boot and shoe manufacturers in every portion of the United States, as well as exported to London and Hamburg. Jacksonville, Fa., is now the great centre of business.

A student in Paris, after passing three years in the Latin quarter, wrote to his father as follows: "I have made up my mind to set to work, dear father, therefore I should like to know whether it was law or medicine that I came to Paris to study?"

The Baptist Methodist churches have within a week each lost one of their most eminent men, the Rev. Richard Fuller, of the Baptists, and the Rev. J. P. Durbin, of the Methodists. At the funeral of Dr. Durbin it was related, in proof of his eloquence that on one occasion he preached on the "Day of Judgment," and the congregation, terrified by their pastor's vivid description of the approach ingdoun, arose in a shriek of wild panic rushed to the windows, tore open the shutters, and wrenched the staples from the walls, in their frantic efforts to let the mid-day sun in on their inward gloom and terror. The holes in the wall are still to be seen.

A certain man whose name was Zachariah went down from Washington to New York and fell among thieves, and the thieves received him gladly, and he abode with them many days. And he said unto them "Behold, I have three States. South Carolina is mine, and Florida is mine, and Louisiana is mine, and there are nineteen electoral votes in those three. Go now and get me an hundred and sixty-six other votes, and we will count in these nineteen, and the inheritance will be ours; for we shall scoop the boys." But behold the boys sent spies into the States of Zachariah, and found he was not his by a thousand, and South Carolina was not his by fifteen hundred. And when Zachariah saw that certain wise men had been sent down from the North who oversaw the county in Louisiana, he girded up his loins and fled swiftly.

For the last State of that man was five thousand worse than the first.

A Reprehensible Practice.

Another instance of the reprehensible practice of allowing office boys to open boxes and receive mails for business firms was brought to light by Special Agent Sharrett at New York. Complaint was made to him of letters received by different persons, sources to which were to be addressed to a certain box, promising to return lost articles upon the receipt of a named amount of money. The complaint once made, and the number of the box given, it was easy to find the culprit, who proved to be an office boy in a Broadway firm, who was intrusted with the key to the letter box. He made a clean confession of the whole affair, stating that he had written answers to advertisements for lost articles, giving it to be understood that he had found or stolen the same and would return them if suitably rewarded and no questions asked. It is known that he had been quite successful in this business, but to what amount is not known. It is not probable that there will be any prosecution in the case.

Phipps-Duncan.

Miss Duncan, the eldest daughter of Mr. William Butler Duncan, of this city, was married yesterday at Grace Church to Mr. William Wilton Phipps, a son of Charles Phipps, esq., of Ditton Court, Chalcot, in Wiltshire, England, formerly a Conservative member of Parliament for Westbury. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Porter, the rector of Grace Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Morton, of St. James's, in Philadelphia, the early home of the bride's mother. The beautiful interior of the church was filled with a goodly company of friends, including many of the best known and most highly respected citizens of New York, Boston and Philadelphia. The groom's "best man" was his brother, Captain Phipps, Royal Artillery, who came out from England to attend the ceremony, and Mr. J. Balfour acted as usher. Among the guests were a number of Mr. Phipps's Eton school-fellows, including the Earl of Rosebery, Mr. G. and Mr. Philip Allen and the Hon. Mr. Romilly. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Phipps will sail within a few days for England.—N. Y. World 19th inst.

Watching and Waiting.

Not long ago the good ship Star Queen lay in the East River, near pier 9, the usual scene of bustle and excitement incident to a vessel's sailing in progress on her neck and on the wharf near by. Perched gracefully on her bow, and resplendent in purple and gold, was the figure of a woman, a shapely carving and a better bit of workmanship than the average figurehead seen along the water front. An autumn sun gilded her tresses and cast a pulsar og light in the wavelets at her feet. The day before she sailed the tide had fallen and the Star Queen sank lower and lower, until she nearly touched the edge of the wharf. The men on board had noticed a little stranger who came daily to sit at the feet of the Queen. He was a boot-black, very ragged, very muddy, very coarse, and very hungry. The following morning it was discovered that some one had wound a strip of bright colored ribbon around the Star Queen's neck. It was sufficed to remain where it had been placed. At last the moment came when the hawsers were cast off and the vessel headed out into the stream. Flinging aside his box the little bootblack darted at the figurehead, and, winding his arms affectionately about its neck, kissed the wooden image tenderly on the mouth and then burst into tears. He had lost his dearest friend, but he still awaits her coming, walking day after day along the wharves, and looking eagerly out to sea for the first glimpse of her gilded form. That figure makes up for him all that he may know of womanly beauty and womanly grace, and perhaps it shall not be set against him that his humble worship is an offense against the Christian law.—N. Y. World.

HORSE EATING IN FRANCE.—The French committee for promoting the consumption of horse flesh has issued the following note: "During the summer six months of the present year the butchers' establishments for the sale of horse flesh have delivered for consumption 3,869 horses, 193 asses and 15 mules, which yielded 747,610 kilos(2.2 pounds each) net of meat, without taking into account the liver, heart, tongue, etc., which are used like those of oxen." According to these figures, the consumption of this article of food is extending in the capital, and the same condition applies to the large towns in the provinces.

A Paris correspondent of the New Century for Women writes: "In the French system of female education, the boarding school does not occupy the position to which it has risen in America. They allowed too much liberty, too many opportunities to evade surveillance, to please a people among whom it is popularly said that if a young girl is once seen to cross a street alone no man will marry her. Hence in the highest and the upper middle classes girls are either sent to convents or taught by governesses at home."

God gives food to every bird, but he does not bring it to the nest; in like manner he gives us our daily bread, but by means of our daily work.

The Rome correspondent of the Journal de Bruxelles states that Father Bollig, who, it appears, is a member of the Society of Jesus, has been appointed to the office of custos of the Vatican Basilica. Father Bollig is said to be an exceedingly learned man, and to be able to speak fifty two languages.

General Sheridan is now in New Orleans, in command of the U. S. troops in that city.

The popular majority of Tilden over Hayes is set down at 306,500. His gain in the state of Pennsylvania is 123,000.

We have several communications on hand and letters which we would like to print, but that is not possible at present. Some of them will not spoil by delay.

A VERY COLD WINTER.—Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will please to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., No. 16, 18 and 20, North Water street.

THE PENITENTIARY.

The Governor says that the net earnings of the penitentiary last year exceeded $20,000. This is turning the vice and wickedness of the various communities of the state to some useful purpose, for the prisoners must be morally improved by it. It indicates the presence of industry, if they are not more apt to cheat the people of Louisiana, but of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. We add Indiana).

"The very gravity of the issue encourages us to believe that all will be right in the end. There are too many good men in the Republican party, too many politic and far seeing men, to countenance fraud when the gain of the electoral votes is to be secured by unparalleled dishonesty and disregard of the highest obligations of American citizenship and patriotism."

NO WAR.

The telegraph despatches have it now that Russia intends to inaugurate a war. Telise came from Europe. The United States and Russia are in accord—extremes, theoretically, here meeting.

It is quite likely that most of these despatches are intended for commercial uses—not by honorable merchants, but by the rogues who make trade and the telegraph instruments of lying, in order to cheat honest people.

It requires no great skill to find a reason why there will be no European war. And it is simply this: the nations can neither acquire territory nor profit by it. The whole matter is here within a small nutshell; and we trust that our Mobile cotton men will consider it under this light.

Rust which is great. This is simple, for any few which engenders discontent in the citizens lessens the hold which is here for it would give them. The great thing is to make the city and have his country, and this low can be found nowhere except in the justice of its laws. As soon as a citizen begins to doubt in this respect he has lost a large part of that patriotic ardor which makes states strong and great.

To prevent the enactment of unjust laws and to give us just laws, in order to promote the love of country, is a work that is not to be entrusted to the hands of demagogues, but only to the good and wise men who love their country and their fellowmen.

This is the elevated purpose of what we call politics, but the great importance of it in controlling human happiness is lost sight of in the miserable machinery of our parties, which seem to suppose that it is nothing but a game of chance and that the stake is office.

We are not enough informed as to this business in Mobile; but we have reason to believe that our demagogues are no more virtuous than those of other places in other states.

Let us be glad because we are no worse. It would be better, if we were to set a small example to all the various cities and states.

"NOW RETURNING BOARDS."

The returning board of Louisiana was to begin its work yesterday—Friday. The matter has been so long in abeyance that it has aroused the interest and anxiety of the whole country; and its progress will be watched and carefully scrutinized by the whole country. Under this condition, it will be a very dangerous business to perpetrate a fraud. If it were done and could be demonstrated, the Democratic party of the country would gather into its folds all time men. It is rumored that the ballot boxes will be taken on board of one of the gunboats to be examined. This implies approbation of trouble.

The Washington Capital says very truly—

"The fate, not of Mr. Tilden, but of the integrity of republican institutions, may seem to hang upon a slender thread. But the press for an honest count is not the cause of party or faction, but of the whole country. We do not fear that the 525,000 Americans who voted for Mr. Tilden and the 200,000 who voted for Mr. Hayes are going to suffer the first principle of free government, an honest election, to be trampled under foot by a handful of wretches who have neither consciences in their bosoms nor the fear of God before their eyes.

"There will be no appeal to arms, no disorders such as under similar circumstances, might characterize our neighbor, Mexico; but the moral force of public opinion will reach the chamber where the conspirators are assembled, and make them realize that in their contemplated frauds they are not merely about to cheat the people of Louisiana, but of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. (We add Indiana).

"The very gravity of the issue encourages us to believe that all will be right in the end. There are too many good men in the Republican party, too many politic and far seeing men, to countenance fraud when the gain of the electoral votes is to be secured by unparalleled dishonesty and disregard of the highest obligations of American citizenship and patriotism."

NO WAR.

The telegraph despatches have it now that Russia intends to inaugurate a war. Telise came from Europe. The United States and Russia are in accord—extremes, theoretically, here meeting.

POLITICS.

We have too many elections—not too much politics.

What is this thing that we call politics? The answer is brief: it is the safety or insecurity of every man in his property or person. It includes all the home affections, and all the destinies of the little children that may be growing in our families.

This, in brief, is an answer to the question; although comes in another one: that is the moral effect of bad government, in contradistinction to Knee Worm.—The largest stock of white and red shaker flannel and cashmere undershirts and drawers, of the star make, at the Mammoth House, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

The majority for Tilden in Alabama is 35,000. The states which gave him the largest majorities are Georgia, Kentucky and Texas. In each the majority is set down at 55,000. The next among the highest is Tennessee, which is put at 50,000. These however are only proximate results.

[FOR THE REGISTER.]

"There is no hope for Alabama or for the county and city of Mobile except in the Democratic party, especially as this city and county, except by a strict obedience to its rules."—Register, Nov. 15, 1876. Again: "We consider it our duty to abide by established rules in order to preserve the party."

Mr. Elliott, what do these wise words mean? That we shall endorse the Odd Fellows' Hall Convention, and denounce the "Bolters and Dodgers," and then wheel "about face," endorse the "Bolters and Dodgers," and condemn the members of that convention, in legal majority assembled, after the "Bolters" dodged?

Does it mean, "especially in this city and county," that the voice of "The People," as shouted forth from six tongues bow a cringing obedience to the feeble utterance of two "Bolters and Dodgers"? Is that "DEMOCRATIC" rule? "Lochiel, Lochiel, beware of the day," etc.

"SOLID SOUTH."

Editors of the Tribune:

GENTLEMEN—In your edition of to-day, speaking of the proposed municipal tax law, (which you say you "have only glanced over") you say: "The constructor of it was the City Attorney, Stephens Croom, Esq., and its verbiage and skill in taxing everything and everybody are worthy of admiration." The inference which many may draw from this hasty and caustic statement is that I have officiously proposed a law whereby the burthens of our people may be increased.

Permit me, gentlemen, to say: 1st, that the act was drawn up by me at the request of the city boards, and was submitted to their wise approval and subscription; 2nd, That it does not increase the power of the city to levy taxes, either as to the rate of tax, the person to be taxed, or the subjects of taxation. (Except dividends, gross commissions and premiums, which the state law taxes, and which, perhaps, the corporate authorities may strike out on revision. It is not compiled in the interest of or in hostility to any man or set of men. It is merely an effort to harmonize the city's present powers of taxation with the requirements of our new constitution—to make them clearer and to adapt the admirable machinery of the State Revenue Code to the collection on the city taxes. No doubt it has its faults, but it has no tendency whatever to increase taxation.

Indeed, by enforcing payment from all, its tendency is to render possible a reduction of the general rate. No man who is in the habit of paying his taxes need fear it, be his rich or poor.

You have, doubtless, unintentionally given a wrong impression of the act; and its author hopes you will do him the justice of publishing this.

Very Respectfully,

S. CROOM.

MOBILE Nov. 17, 1876.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 16, 1876.

The House assembled promptly at 10 A. M. and completed its organization by the appointment of the usual committees.

Mr. T. H. Herndon has received the distinguished honor of being made Chairman of the Judiciary Committee; Mr. Glennon has been placed upon three committees Judiciary, Engrossed Bills and Local Legislation. Mr. Haskew is upon those on Corporations, and Claims; Mr. Shields is upon Printing, Enrolled Bills and Fees and Salaries, and Mr. Burns is Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. Quite a number of bills were introduced, among them one by Mr. Muldon for the better preservation of bits and gates.

By Mr. McKleroy:—To repeal the local approved March 6th, 1871, which imposed a tax upon the amount of $50 00. Also one to amend section 4222 of revised code, making witness certificates a good defense against such county and receivable in payment for taxes and forfeitures, and payable out of any funds in the hands of the county tax collector.

Also a bill for the better relief of the members of the medical profession of the state, remitting the license tax paid by them previously to the passage of the law exempting them from such tax.

A committee of five was appointed to report rules for the House. The Governor's annual message was read and 1000 copies ordered printed.

Mr. Mott, from Washington county, made his appearance and enrolled his name.

The bill in regard to witness fees, if passed as introduced, will deprive the clerks of courts of the present fees for issuing the witness certificates.

Only one political magnate arrived to-day. This was Gen'l W. H. Forney, one of the present congressional delegation who, as yet, has not expressed his preference for any of the Senatorial aspirants.

Peter Williams, of Mobile, who has been present in our city for the last three days, will leave for New Orleans to-night, a dispatch having been received by Colonel Graham chairman of the state committee, requesting Mr. Williams to be present at the counting of the votes in that state.

The Senatorial candidates are bubbling hotter and hotter, and if straws are any indication how the wind is blowing, it may be said that those who are making such personal exertions to secure the prize, will soon find themselves stranded in mighty shoal water. But, as self-preservation is the first law of nature, I suppose, although they find it an up hill work, they will not be weary in well doing. So consider well and be not discouraged, gentlemen, at the end of their political journey, will be tired and oil-worn, have the privilege of looking back and reflecting upon the folly, the foolish ness, and the vanity of their unsatisfied ambition, and can exclaim:

Like little wanton boys that swim in bladders,
These pompous claimants to seas of glory,
But rar beneath are drowned. My boy-hood proves,
A foolish track; search me, and most has left me,
Of what a wild and wanton pate I am,
And what a stream that must for ever know me.

1776. CENTENNIAL. 1876.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SHORTEST AND BEST ROUTE.

FIED.LONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is confidently expected that ever route between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route to or from same.

The management is announcing to the public the

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, being pleased to say that, in arranging their schedule a to meet the demands of the public for greater despatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to put the trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the safety of passengers by missing connections, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, of course, the advantage of stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former or slow at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East materially, thereby increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without increasing safety in the least degree.

The Fiedlont Air-Line, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the scenery of the mountain, the sunny slopes of the air, and the variegated scenery contributes not a little to render the transit necessary so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality; Pullman sleeping cars on all night trains, and elegant reclining chair cars without extra charge, combining safety, comfort and economy to passengers, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at convenient points along the line, and supplied with articles of the best quality.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Safe Connections: are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial grand ball thousands will be located over this route as low as one way rate; all that is needed is pluck and patience, and those intending singly or in social parties will make to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

A Deadly Pool.

Pall Mall Gazette.

Some remarkable statements were made at an inquest held at Bury, in Lancashire, on Saturday, respecting a mill-stream lodge known as "Old Charley's Lodge," or "The Hatter's Cemetery," in which a young woman, aged nineteen, drowned herself. The lodge, it seems, is in the midst of a thickly-populated neighborhood and is not protected by any fence. The water being warm, it offers unusual temptation to suicide, and, owing to its unguarded condition, it is also the scene of many fatal accidents to young children who fall into it while playing on the banks. The coroner said he considered it "a public scandal" that "Old Charley's Lodge" was not fenced off in some way. He had himself held inquests on the bodies of from fifteen to twenty persons who had met with their deaths in that lodge, and he understood that altogether upwards of fifty bodies had been taken out of it. He did not think there was another place in the kingdom to equal it. This is a mistake. The ponds on Hampstead Heath claim to have destroyed more human lives than any other pieces of water of a similar size in Great Britain, and the number of bodies taken out of them is almost beyond calculation. "Old Charley's Lodge" is however, beyond doubt, a most deadly pool, and a police constable present at the inquest stated that it was a common saying in the borough, "I'll go to Old Charley's Lodge," or, Go to Old Charley's Lodge," the first being an expression of despair, the second of brutality.

A Paris correspondent writing of the ex-Empress Eugenie's proposed visit to the Pope, says she will make Florence a stage in the direction of Rome. She intends going to the latter city to implore the Pope to lend his support to the Imperialist cause. His Holiness leans toward the Count de Chambord; but the impracticable Quixotism of his pretender having detached from him the clerical party in France, the acute advisers of the ex-Empress conceive that her intervention at the Vatican might now be useful. Cardinal Bonnechose, the most Bonapartist member of the French episcopacy, has preceded the widow of Napoleon III. to smooth away the difficulties of which she has been advised.

A SKILFUL FORGERY.—On the 18th of September last a man called at H. B. Crosby & Son's wholesale grocery store in Paterson, N. J., and asked the book-keeper to sell him a check for $16 to send by mail. The check did not come back until yesterday, when it turned up as a check for $1,200. It was made out for John C. Holt, but the name had been erased as well as the amount, and the check was made payable to James W. Parker.—N. Y. World.

I. BALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B LYONS

It is reported that John Morrissey has deposited $3,000,000 of money in one of the city trust companies. There is probably as much more put into the hands of the other pool managers. It would not be extravagant to say that there are $5,000,000 today pending upon the results of the elections in various States, and the sum is increased hourly by the conflicting stories which come from the doubtful States. If there should be no election or a dispute as to who is President, the people who have invested in pools would be deprived of their money for some time to come.—N. Y. Graphic.

The Electoral Vote.

The electoral votes must be counted in Washington on the second Wednesday in February. There are several constitutional methods of defeating fraud:

1. The House will insist that the Twenty-second Joint rule is in force and then the objection of the House will be sufficient to reject the vote of any State.

2. It will be insisted that the Senate and the House, sitting as a joint convention, must count the vote and that joint convention would not count an unlawful vote from any State.

3. The Constitution commands that the vote shall be counted "in the presence of the Senate and the House of Representatives." The House can reject a fraudulent vote by refusing to lend the sanction of its "presence" to its counting.

4. By either of these methods, which are lawful, the fraudulent electoral vote of Alabama can be excluded from the count, and then the House, having declared that there has been no election of a President by the electoral college, will proceed, in compliance with the Constitution, to elect a President.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Trade and Politics.

A New York dispatch of the American Press Association, dated the 10th says:

The Herald asserts that there is no material change in the situation. The discussion of the situation on change and other business localities, relates principally to the effect the excitement has had on Southern trade. A member of one of the large dry goods jobbing houses in the city, says: "It is no use disguising the matter; there is a decided lull in business with the South, occasioned by political turmoil. Where my firm at this period of the year, should be doing a business of $70,000 per day we are now doing only $10,000, in consequence of the uncertainty now existing. Southern men are commanding their orders in some instances, and cutting them down from one-half to one-third of what they usually are. Merchants who we calculated on, from former sales, would buy $30,000 worth, now send orders for $10,000 and, in some instances, even $5,000 would cover the amount." The main question is, how long this state affairs is to last? Cool-headed men say that the present situation does not amount to a pinch of snuff. That the South has got to have goods, and will buy them when they get over their present fit of anger. Western and Southern shippers generally say that their shipments have fallen off tremendously within the last three weeks. Orders are being countermanded. In addition to this, they report that less dry goods have been bought for the Eastern trade this year than during any of the five preceding years. The reason given for this is that the visitors to the Centennial have also visited New York, and individually purchased what they needed, instead of paying extra profit to stores where they reside. Stewart & Co, and other large houses have done well on this score, but jobbing houses report a corresponding loss of trade with their Northern customers. This, in addition to the falling off in Southern orders, makes the political situation very serious to them.

The Private Markets Closed.

From the N. O. Republican.

For the present the law against the keeping of private markets appears to be triumphant. Nearly all their owners have succumbed to the writs of contempt, and have purged themselves of contempt by promising under oath, not to open them again while the injunctions are in force. True, three more were committed yesterday, but they will probably follow the example of the others to-day.

Nothing is then apparent to the mind of the ordinary public market-man which is sufficient to disturb his dreams of profit under the law. The enormous expenditures will be returned four fold, and the consumer will foot the bills. The price of meat, vegetables and fruit have therefore advanced from fifty to seventy-five per cent in all the public markets over those of last week. If the law be permanently maintained these prices will continue to advance until greed overrides prudence and the public find their remedy in the natural reaction.

The private marketmen, however, have not exhausted their remedies in the courts, and when the merits of the case come fairly before the Supreme Court the decision will be in accord with justice and equity. They have already gained the sympathy of the public by pursuing their case they will become its protectors and receive its aid.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—At the several political headquarters things are noticeably quiet. The scene is very different from that of a few days since. The public interest in the present political crisis can scarcely be measured however, by outward appearances. There is no great excitement. No surging crowds are at the headquarters. No bustling mobs are gathered at the newspaper bulletin boards, but there exists a powerful undercurrent of interest in the political problem now being solved by the nation. The officials at the Democratic headquarters are besieged with inquiries, personal, telegraphic, and postal from all parts of the country for news as to the election. To-day they stated that they had no news of any kind; that the political situation was practically unchanged; they had no doubt of Gov. Tilden's election, but what the result of the official count in the South would be, is impossible to tell.

Gov. Tilden is sanguine as to the election being declared in his favor. The bulletin boards are still as conflicting as ever.

The Times says there is an undisputed majority for Hayes.

The Mail declares that Florida is sure for Hayes.

The Tribune says that the election of Hayes seems certain.

The News announces bright prospects for Tilden.

In no city in the United States is the travel-stained, weary traveler taken as good care of as he is in a San Antonio hotel. The manners and customs of the guests are carefully studied. A young man from the frontier, stopping at one of our hotels told the clerk the other evening that he was going to be out late. "Just wait a minute, replied the accommodating clerk, and he rushed out, but he soon reappeared with a large envelope, which he placed in the guest's breast pocket, with the remark: "That is a bond for your appearance before the Recorder, properly signed. As soon as you are arrested for being drunk and disorderly, just give the bond to the policeman, mention my name, and he will bring you home in a hack. Good night! God bless you!"—San Antonio Herald.

A WEDDING occurred a few days ago at Corinth, Miss., in which the groom was a German Catholic, the bride an American Presbyterian, the attendant a Baptist, the clergyman an Episcopalian and the ceremony was performed in the Methodist Church, before a mixed assembly.

The table of majorities within this District which we gave yesterday has one error. The Mobile majority of Mr. Bromberg was 3338.

A lawyer of N. York city, named C. H. Hastek, has been arrested charged with stealing $50,000 from an estate of which he was trustee.

The missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal church—New York—has appropriated $625,000 for its purposes. The money is not on hand. It is to be collected.

KEEP Warm.—The largest stock of white and red shaker flannel and cashmere undershirts and drawers, of the star make, at the Mammoth House, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

Our Montgomery letter was received yesterday. We were unable to get it in this morning's paper. There is nothing of much interest in it concerning the progress of the legislature. It has, however, a very strong leaning towards Col. T. H. Herndon for U. S. Senator. That seems to be the absorbing topic in the capitol.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

The Governor's message—we are sorry that we cannot print it—is a well-considered and carefully prepared essay. Most of its various suggestions will no doubt find favor among the people and with the members of the legislature.

The Governor is a man skilled in affairs, and, we suppose, loves Alabama with an earnest love; and what wisdom and experience he has at command and love in relation to its condition both frankly and wisely given in his message.

THE ELECTORS.

The Presidential electors do not vote by states. They vote like individuals, each one for himself. If an elector, so-called, be ineligible, he is a nobody. He cannot represent anybody. He cannot emancipate himself from the burden he will inevitably find himself stranded in a court of bankruptcy. Property can have small value under the incumbrance of heavy taxation, which keeps enterprise silent and inactive. In short, it makes industry work for those whom it gets no compensating benefit from—bondholders who have bought securities for a song—bought them as a man buys a lottery ticket, or pools on the coming in of Tilden or Hayes. These bonds are paid for by the first holders of them, and the subsequent purchasers of them are taking the risk of getting cent. per cent.—or, perhaps, nothing. We should like to see them get the nothing.

Another thing that the people should insist on is this: that the authority of the state and of our municipalities should be divested of the privilege of giving any bonds, except by the direct sanction of the people—the people who have to bear the burdens which they impose. We should go a little farther, and declare that such bonds and securities should not be collectible by those who buy them. The event people might be deceived by the hope of great profit in the investment; but they ought to suffer as well as the speculators.

It is very true that emergencies may come—for example during war—when the credit of a state may preserve its autonomy; but occasions of the kind are rare. When they come no doubt the people will warrant any plan by which the safety of the state, or the city may be conserved.

We have no desire to suggest repudiation; but we know that the happiness of a community is of more importance than is the value of bonds given by any temporary authority which assumes the right to issue them.

To avoid the necessity of this extreme measure of repudiation of what we now owe, is to reduce the taxation, and that is only to be done by reducing the cost of the government. When we shall have small taxes, we shall be in a condition to pay them, and will pay them cheerfully. We think that the articles that we have the first of this month in hand will show how it may be done.

Editor of the Tribune:

MUNICIPAL TAXATION—THE OPPOSITION OF ITS REDUCTION.

In these evil times which are upon us, when every industry, every interest is burdened by the oppressions of a general prostration, which renders the struggle to live a serious question with almost every one among us, it behooves us to examine with a careful eye those evils which, being nearest our doors, are the most easy of redress.

National disorders, it is true, are as extensive as the limits of the nation. State prostration is as extensive as the limits of our commonwealth; but the remedy for these misfortunes must, of necessity, be worked out by agencies, so vast and gradual, as to be beyond the circle of our control.

But there are evils nearer our doors, evils which, every day bear the interests of every man within this municipality, whether high or low; the remedies for which must be worked out by this people, united upon a well-defined platform of mutual interest and self preservation. This fact does by no means involve the idea of incompetency or unfair use upon the part of those who now administer our local government and define its policy. The truth is that the terrible decline which has taken place in all values, connected with the prostration in commerce, in manufactures and in every industrial pursuit, has brought about a state of things which no man fully anticipated and for which no man was prepared. But now that the result has been accomplished, and every interest is crippled by its effects, is it not far better to look the truth as it is, in the face, and then apply ourselves to the adoption of a corresponding policy, than to please the mind for a moment with delusions which, if persisted in, will only increase our calamities. The purpose of the writer will be to set forth, as clearly as he can, the subject of taxation, so far as it affects the interests of the city of Mobile; with a view to ascertain, first, its extent; next, whether or no it is excessive; then to consider the question of its reduction. Under our peculiar system, it is the misfortune of those who dwell in cities to be subject to four widening circles of government, with four distinct sets of officials; to each of which they are bound to pay tribute. First comes the national government with its demands in the form of direct and indirect taxation; then comes the state government, with its legislative claims for support, which must next be satisfied; then the county government, by authority of law, adds its name to the list; then, last but not least of all, the city tax-gatherer comes with an important footstep to the stall of the innkeeper and to the bank of the millionaire. Thus the payment of eternal money becomes the price of such government as the people enjoy.

The vast and ill system of taxation is beyond the scope of this inquiry, but the following extract from a recent speech of the great financier, Mr. Belmont, may not be unINSTRUCTIVE:

"TAXES AND INDEBTEDNESS.

"It is useless to deny that we arrest this moment the most heavily taxed people in the civilized world. Besides a local indebtedness (town, county and state) of more than $1,400,000,000, upon which the annual interest charge is over $80,000,000, we have a federal indebtedness of more than one third larger, say over $21,000,000,000, on which the annual interest charge exceeds $100,000,000. Add to the annual interest charges the annual working expenses of our national, state, county and municipal governments, and the weight of our tax burdens is partly accounted for."

STATE TAXATION.

The statute of state taxation, however, claims a brief consideration, in view of interests hereafter to be considered. Under the present plan of administration, matured by our legislature and guided by the hands of our wise executive, the estimated amount of administrative expenses, including everything except the interest on the public debt is put down at about—$708,280

The total state debt, before the funding bill amounted to something over $30,000,000. This sum has been reduced by the compromise to $10,000,000, upon which the state has agreed to pay 2 per cent. (with a few exceptions) for the next five years. The state's interest account then is about.....$200,000

So, then, this sum of.....$908,280 represents the present basis of expense upon which the state government is to be conducted. Upon the basis of the last census we can estimate the population now at about one million. The rate, then, of state taxation is on one dollar per capita.

OPINIONS OF THE STATE COMMISSIONERS.

It will be remembered that Gov. Houston, Mr. Bethea and Gen. Lawler were the commissioners who devised this scheme by which the state debt has been adjusted; and their plan was adopted by the Legislature, after it had been accepted by the bulk of the public creditors. The known character of these gentlemen for financial wisdom, the success of their policy, and the relief and hope which it brings, certainly renders their peculiar views upon these questions worthy of serious attention. In reducing the amount of the public debt and in adjusting the using scale of interest, their minds were brought to consider the vital questions of how much debt, how much taxation the people of the state could bear.

The total taxable property of the state they ascertained to be about $160,000,000; and in view of all the circumstances which surround us, they concluded that a debt equal to one-sixteenth part of the aggregate wealth, was as much as the people could ever hope to pay, and, further, that for five years income two per cent. upon this demonstrated debt was as much interest as they could undertake to pay. The commissioners wisely said, "One thing needed by the state now is indulgence. Its finances are broken, and the state needs rest. So far as the public debt is concerned, our proposed adjustment is based upon the well known poverty of the people, and consequent empty treasury." The adoption of this wise policy, based upon these manifest facts, is bringing both "rest" and hope to the people of the state at large; but what will this avail us, if our domestic resources are consumed by municipal taxation? The Funding Bill of the city will next be considered.

(To be continued.)

A VERY COLD WINTER.—Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will please to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of domestic, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., No. 16, 18 and 20, North Water street.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 50 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 150 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now known that the opinions ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta and all intermediate points being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route to or from the

Metropolis, as demonstrating to the public this

UNPRECEDENTED FACT TIME between the South and the East, big leave to say that, in arranging their schedules to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in through passenger service, they have set forth a tenacity to run their trains at a high rate of speed always insuring danger to the safety of life in trains and the liability of frequently missing connections at junctions, which, for no other than the safety of our citizens, they have, by their running

EXPRESS TRAINS

stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East ordered materially by running the speed of trains, and by only refusing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the variegated scenery contribute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade to those usually seen on railroads, being

MONDAY THE 6TH OF DECEMBER next, the

A suspension bridge of iron connecting the extremities of two books occupied by some of the main cotton offices in this city, crossing St. Louis and Front street, attracts considerable attention. It is 65 feet wide, of iron, and besides the convenience of the purpose it was intended for by the originators, it is capable of bearing a freight weight equal to a five ton iron safe, which may be taken over it without danger of injuring car or servant. This is vouched for by the constructors of the bridge, John Lang & Co, of the foundry at No. 85 South Royal street.

River News.

The Prize Villain of History.

London Daily Telegraph.

Apropos of Fieschi's attempt to blow up Louis Philippe, M. Maxime Ducamp relates a horrible story regarding one of the accomplices of that crime, who was not prosecuted. The conspirator had a child a year old, and on the day of the attempt he told the nurse to go with the infant and to wait in front of the Jardin Ture, in the Boulevard du Temple, to see the King pass. It was at this spot that the infernal machine exploded. The conspirator reasoned thus: "If arrested I shall be able to declare before the Court that having sent my only son to the place designed for the explosion, I could not have known anything of the matter, and I shall certainly be acquitted by the jury." This monaster, whose name is not revealed, was not arrested, and strange to say, his child and nurse escaped without a scratch. "The hero of this tale," M. Maxime Ducamp, "is still considered by his party as un homme fres fort.

It is not a little amusing to read the newspaper attacks that were prompted by an assurance that Hayes has been elected to the Presidency. While some doubt still exists in relation to be counting of the electoral votes, this assurance still remains as will be seen in the following extracts of an article copied by the N. O. Republican of Thursday morning. It is from the Chicago Post: "Man proposes, God disposes." The campaign was fought on the basis of a solid North vs a solid South. A Republican victory on this line would have been complete, but, after all, fruitful of sectional bickerings and full of the old time antagonisms. It would have perpetuated a geographical division of the country, and enabled the South to continue its claim that the North was inspired by a policy of hate, to which the North would have retorted that the South was consolidated by a policy of rebellion. As it is, the victory of Rutherford B. Hayes cannot be criticised as sectional. He lost the Empire State of the North. He lost the hermaphrodite "State of Noo Jersey." He was defeated in the bluest nosed State of Yankeedom. He failed to carry Indiana, one of the leading States of the West. He did carry all the Pacific States where the population is almost equally representative of every one of the older States, South as well as North.

On the other hand, Tilden is whipped by the turning votes of southern States. Politically, the Confederacy has proved to be a shell, just as Grant predicted it would be, in a military point of view, when he sent Sherman on his march to the sea. South Carolina, the core of State sovereignty and nullification, casts her vote for Hayes. Louisiana and Florida, states of the extreme South, go for Hayes; while sturdy North Carolina, it is reasonably probable, will fall into line. This is as it should be. It disposes of the Ohio river as a political divisor. It breaks down forever the middle wall of partition between the freemen of the South.

Signs of War Increasing.

LONDON, November 16.—The Standard says great activity prevails in the Woolwich arsenal. An imperative order was issued yesterday that the production of rifle-ball cartridges be increased 2,000,000 per week. The usual quantity manufactured weekly is 500,000.

The Press Association reports that the authorities of the Davenport dock-yard have received orders to prepare the iron-clad turret-ships Cyclops and Hydra for immediate active service.

The Globe this afternoon announces that it hears from a trust worthy but unofficial source that twenty-one battalions of infantry, seven regiments of cavalry and eighty guns have already been told off as the first British force for the East, should the Government consider their services necessary for the protection of British interests.

The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon states that up to this morning the Porte's objections to the conference had not been removed. The same journal in a leading editorial says that it believes Russia intends war. She is prepared to insist upon claims which she believes the Porte will refuse, and is getting ready to impose them by force. "The situation" it says, "is but little different from what it would be if, for the word 'armistice,' the words 'Russian demands of reform' were substituted and the Ignatieff ultimatum thus modified were still lying before the Porte."

LONDON, November 17.—The Standard's Vienna correspondent says Servia, in spite of a winter campaign, intends to keep 40,000 men in Montenegro and Herzegovia; 40,000 on the borders of Greece and 80,000 to watch Serbia.

Reuter's military intelligence, dated Chatham, November 16, represents that the company of Royal Engineers which was recently placed under orders for foreign service, is now undergoing a course of instruction preparatory to embarking.

A special from Dublin to the Daily Telegraph announces that soldiers on furlough in Ireland have been ordered to join their regiments, all furloughs having been temporarily suspended.

The Next Senate.

The Radical leaders are interested in more ways than one in the result in South Carolina and Louisiana. The former elects one and the latter two United States Senators, and if they are Democrats it makes the Senate almost a tie. The next Senate will consist of seventy-six members, two being added from Colorado. The Democrats in the present Senate number twenty-nine, and each one of them will be in the next Senate or have a Democratic successor. In addition, the Democrats gain one in Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas and New Jersey, making their number foot up thirty-three. It is regarded as absolutely certain that the Democrats and Independents will elect a successor to John A. Logan from Illinois, and he will be in opposition to the Republican party. This will make the Democratic strength 34. If the Democrats are not cheated out of their rights in Louisiana and South Carolina they will gain the two Senators to be elected in the latter State. In this case the Senate will stand 39 Republicans to 37 Democrats. Among the Republicans are several who were elected as liberals over regular Administration caucus nominees. Some of these it is thought will oppose the revolutionary tendencies of the majority of their party associates.—[Montgomery Advertiser.

English Demand for American Wheat.

There are many indications in England of the probability of a large demand there this winter for American wheat. A writer in the London Times says that last year the British wheat crop was twenty-two per cent below an average, while this year it is eleven per cent below. The amount this year available for consumption, after deducting the wheat necessary to be retained for seed, is stated at about 72,000,000 bushels, the average yield per acre being twenty-five bushels this year. The requirements of the population for the year are estimated at 184,000,000 bushels. Therefore 112,000,000 bushels must be imported, an amount about equal to the imports of foreign wheat into England during the past year.

In the wheat trade the fact is demonstrated in England that wheat can be imported cheaper than it can be grown. Each year there is a diminution in the acreage sown Thus the increased yield per acre this year compar d with last year is entirely offset by the reduced surface planted in wheat, which is but 3,114,506 acres. England now looks to the United States as her chief source of supply for foreign wheat, of which San Francisco sends her probably the greatest amount of any single port.

If we are able to grow breadstuffs and provisions for England, and supply her more cheaply than she can do it herself, it would be, for the present at least, a vantage ground held by no other nation. What we do for her we are doing in France, Germany and other European countries, and so long as we can keep out of foreign quarrels, and also keep the peace at home, this trade is sure to greatly benefit us.

The biggest tree in California is not in the Yosemite Valley. King's River Valley in Fresno County is 5,000 feet above the sea, and its walls which are about three thousand feet high, are very precipitous. In this valley a new grove of colossal redwood trees has been discovered. One of them eclipses all that have been discovered on the Pacific coast. Its circumference, as high as a man can reach and pass a tape line around is a few inches less than 150 feet. This is beyond the measurement of any tree in Calaveras grove. The height is estimated at 160 feet, and a part of the top lying on the ground is over one hundred feet in length.

Mountain of Salt.

MOUNTAIN OF SALT.—A mass of nearly a million tons of pure, solid compact rock salt, located on an island 100 and eighty-five feet high, which rises from a miserable sea marsh on the route from Brashear to New Iberia, up the river Teche, Louisiana, is one of the wonders of the world. How this Island, containing over 300 acres of excellent land, ever came into existence in such a locality is a matter of conjecture. Vegetation is prolific, and the scenery is beautiful and varied. Here is an immense bed of pure rock salt, whose extent is as yet only estimated, and scientific men are puzzled.

A swindler in Chicago, during the recent great fair, dressed in homespun clothes, made the acquaintance of farmers at hotels, and fooled them in a new way. After inviting a victim to take a walk, he remarked that sharpers were plenty, and they had better leave their pocketbooks with the clerk. He displayed a well-filled wallet, the victim handed over his, and both were tied together and left with the clerk, the swindler taking a check, with which he soon returned and got all the money.

It has been discovered that one of Rhode Island's Presidential electors elect—Mr. Geo. H. Cardiss—was, at the time of election, and for a few days after, holding an office of trust under the United States government as a Centennial Commissioner. There has been considerable speculation as to whether this does or does not conflict with article 2, section 1, of the constitution.

A city missionary was asked the cause of his poverty. "Principally," said he, with a twinkle in his eye, "because I have preached so much without notes."

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate paint to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be painted and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water-tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, white or tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

the odor, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. Directions on each shingle as it comes to their places, and keeps them there. It fills in all holes in felt roofs, keeps them tight, and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it a few hours after application. Any one can use it, and that are black contain tar, be sure you do not get genuine articles, which (for shingle roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On

TIN ROOFS

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For our BRIGHT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

BRICK WALLS

Three paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.

The official majority in New Jersey foots up 12,475 for Tilden and Hendricks.

A little girl not in her teens won the prize of a recent cooking match at a fair in South Carolina.

The United States Circuit Court is in session at Montgomery. Judge Woods had arrived and presided on Saturday.

The latest European opinion is that war is imminent. Large numbers of troops of all arms were being mobilized in Russia.

Avery and Wm. McKee, of Missouri, convicted and fined and imprisoned for whiskey frauds, have been pardoned by the President.

Gov. Houston has recommended the 30th inst. as a day of thanksgiving and prayer—the same day as that recommended by the President.

At the last accounts Gen. Grant was confident that all three of the contested states would be secured for Hayes, and accordingly he would be made President.

The county Court House at Carrollton, Pickens county, was destroyed by fire last Thursday. All the Probate and Circuit Clerk's offices were consumed. It is supposed that the building was set on fire in two places.

A Bill is before the Spanish Congress, proposed by the Minister of the Interior, which restores the old law disapproving the abolition of universal suffrage, grants it only to certain tax payers and to members of certain professions.

Pool-selling is lively in Montgomery in relation to the United States Senator. The Advertiser says that "the recognized candidates sold at almost even figures." Who the "recognized candidates" are is not mentioned.

The Montgomery Journal is not now a pictorial paper. Its big eagle is not trying to crack its throat. The Montgomery Advertiser had fourteen cocks at the head of its column. It has omitted thirteen of them.

The Republicans are claiming all three of the Southern states which are now in dispute. Their claims of a majority for Hayes in South Carolina, is very small—only between two and three hundred. The Picayune punishes the following despatch from Gen. Hampton to Mr. Lamar, who is now in New Orleans:

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 18.—To Senator Lamar: The Returning Board report in court 239 majority for Hayes electors. Some irregularity of the vote in three counties, which, if counted in, will give the electoral vote of South Carolina to Tilden. The decision of the Supreme Court, deciding that the board have no judicial powers, makes us hopeful.

HAMPTON.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Last Saturday the business of the legislature was not of much interest. Various bills were offered, read once and ordered to second readings. The bill to regulate trials by jury which was referred to the other day by our correspondent—was reported against by the House judiciary committee. The report was concurred in. The two houses then went into an investigation of the returns of the election of the state officers. As far as the Governor is concerned the result is reported as follows: Houston 99,228; Worsham 83,382—making the majority of Houston 15,846.

EATING.

The New York World has an experienced chef de cuisine showing how good dinners may be made—for eight persons. The list was numbered LXXII. They are delightful reading, but the tramp who goes on the streets of Mobile hungry might discern, what are these carte to him? It is like looking into a place through open windows, where there are comfort and luxury. Poor people can get a dinner, if they have the money to buy it. Tell us how to get a substantial dinner at a moderate cost, and put the names of the dishes in simple English terms. French cookery doesn't help the feast, although there are many persons who would think that a timbale of potatoes—why not say pommes de terre, and make it all French?—are better than other potatoes, to English.

If one were well off, these bills of fare would save a great deal of trouble as to knowing what to eat and how to prepare it. But down this way, Jey are of small use. After we shall have become rich, these cartes will be of great usefulness, and we are gathering them up in order to hold them for the future.

We have preferred to print the communication in regard to "Municipal Taxation" in parts. The first one we gave last Sunday. The second we shall print to-morrow. Our purpose in this is to keep the subject before the people. Let them take it in "broken doses," in order to give it proper digestion and effect.

We do not intend by this to leave the reader to suppose that we approve of every word that is written in these articles. Our purpose is to attract attention to the evils that are to be found in our municipal system, and to show up particularly the need of reform. It is possible that we may not have trouble—only a few disagreeable and innumerable assents to public prejudices; and that out of this turmoil will come a conclusion that will substantially take the influences of the party knaves.

THE ELECTORAL MUDDLE.

The South Carolina Board of Canvassers has given the state to Hayes by a majority of over 200. Several changes in votes have been elected governor; but it is not known at this writing whether the Board will not also cast him out.

The Louisiana Board is trying to get at an unjust conclusion; and in order to do that some of the parishes may be disfranchised.

There is a similar bundle in Florida, and this may follow the example of the South Carolina Board.

If this be done, and the patient public submit to it, why, of course, Mr. Tilden will not succeed General Grant.

This process is on the presumption that there shall have been fraud in the ballot-box.

But, whether honest or not, the losing party will ascribe the loss to fraud—for fairness is an apparent relief in such party cries its candidates have been elected. We think that this is an honest belief in the rank and file of both parties. When the leaders of either party may know about it is not known to us. The committees that are now in New Orleans watching the returns of the Returning Board, we suppose, are mainly composed of gentlemen who want nothing but right—and they ought to insist on getting it, even if to save the country into anarchy.

We have not a doubt a coalition which will be a very strong one, of the stability of any system of government. Approximation in fact is a very general among thoughtful men. Respect for it is growing less from day to day. The present state of affairs has given a great impetus to that apprehension. Most of this evil we have acquired from the bitterness of political animosities—a sequence of the war.

We are no, like Cassandra, prophetic of evil, but know that we have a right to govern themselves, and that a majority of them have a right to govern; and also that in the process of honesty men can disagree without destroying the fabric of society. Let us then stand by honesty, and by the laws of Mississippi and Louisiana, and South Carolina and Florida, and think only of the right. Possibly we may be defeated—and then—what then? Oblivion, a return to reflection, and a renewed and more thoughtful love of country. And, perhaps, never in the last ten years of strife. It seems to be likely that we shall have to test it.

A VERY COLD WINTER.—Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will please to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English manufacture, from the "Centennial," and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., No. 16, 18 and 20, North Water street.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors.

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

Is being shortened shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and avoids the mountain scenery over such debatable ground as Cumberland Gap, Bristol, Knoxville and Lynchburg, and all intermediate points, thereby saving from two to twelve hours more time in going to or returning from the Centennial.

Also, the only route passing to the public grounds

THE UNPRECEDENTED PAST TIME between the South and the East, bay leave to the attention of the public for greater dispatch in running time than they have not found it necessary to use their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their passengers, but having a much shorter line of road to travel over, they have by running stopping only at important stations, and by having no high grades to overcome, made quicker time, and continued to reduce the time between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of their trains, thereby securing greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

EXPRESS TRAINS

Passing as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the scenery of the Piedmont Air-Line is unsurpassed, and the elevated scenery commands a view of the Blue Ridge Mountains for a distance exceeding.

The magnificent coaches over this route are of a superior grade. Palace sleeping cars on all through trains. Care of baggage, and all other attentions, experience and attentive conductors and employees, study to be incurring to travelers.

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

The above mentioned advantages will be found at reduced rates to all points along the line, and the time offered the same.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, while traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO and RICHMOND.

TUESDAY,.....NOVEMBER 21

Walks Around Town.

The coldest morning of the season was yesterday.

At the Mobile Varieties tonight new programme, brilliant artistes.

The retail dry goods stores were thronged with customers yesterday.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 151 bales cotton were received.

The board of aldermen will hold a regular weekly meeting this evening.

The weather yesterday was magnificent after the frost of Sunday night.

1210 bales of cotton came by Montgomery Railroad yesterday for New Orleans.

The evenings are a little too cool now for open air concerts in Bienville square.

Joe Murphy opens at the Mobile Theatre in "Kerry Gow" next Monday evening.

Johan Danner sells very fine hand-made gaiters for gentlemen's wear at $6 00 a pair.

The Mobile Turn Verein had a gay time last night in Turner Hall. Music and dancing.

A rising of the rivers will make steamboating more brisk and bring cotton in faster.

A good deal of business was done by wholesale dealers yesterday in filling orders for the country.

The reporter of the Tribune is both young and diffident. Otherwise he might "interview" somebody.

Polite and attentive waiters are prompt in supplying the wants of guests in the Battle House dining room.

When the dirty, ragged and worn fractional United States currency wants of circulation, "what will be joyful."

Those who advertise in the Tribune have the goods to sell which they announce and customers flock there to buy.

Few unless eaten by people who are restless and cannot readily go to sleep will produce somnolence rights specially.

There are signs of life at the Battle House billiard room every evening, such as belong to Mobile knows little of elsewhere.

A great many "smiling" people visit the Battle House bar. There is no bar to their pleasures when they sip as they drink.

The silver in circulation is largely increasing. It is given in change by nearly all the retail dealers to a customer making a purchase.

The consumers of groceries owe a debt to Owen Farley for reducing prices, not "beating" large sales and small profits.

An unusual number of visitors walked through the grounds at Magnolia Cemetery Sunday, notwithstanding the chilly weather.

Quinine is at the head of the culinary department of the Battle House. Under his direction the most tempting viands are prepared.

On the anxious seats at the present time are the federal officers, who are in doubt what is to become of them after the fourth of March.

The streets of Mobile are cleaner than in any other city in the south. The soil being sandy and porous, a spot of stagnant water is seldom seen.

Some of the Conception streetcars were so crowded late Sunday afternoon that they had to leave some of the passengers and were waiting along the route.

The city court, Judge Semmes on the bench, disposed of some business yesterday of no public importance. Several cases are set for trial next week in addition to those not reached.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday 603 bundles cotton ties; 40 barrels apples, 156 sacks corn, 20 half barrels and 100 quarter barrels beer for Mobile Ice Company, were received.

The new Babcock engine for Lafayette No. 6, when in place here and is put in operation, will be the first machine to use sawdust for fire. It will be a regular extinguisher, and the boys will be very proud of it.

It is probable that the committee on laws and ordinances will report to the board of aldermen this evening the draft of the act to regulate municipal taxation in the city of Mobile, without material amendment.

In South Carolina, the official report gives the highest republican elector a majority of 926 over the highest democratic electoral candidate, and the lowest republican a majority of 235 over the highest democratic competitor.

Two carloads of scenery, to be used in the production of plays in which Joe Murphy will appear at the Mobile Theatre were received here yesterday from New Orleans. The opening performance of Mr. Murphy will take place next Monday night.

Major Boyd, secretary of state of Alabama, will receive, until the 15th of December, bids for doing all the printing and binding required by the state two years from the first of January. Bids and bond for $10,000 must be filed by 15th December. It is hoped that a Mobile house may get this contract.

In a little unpleasantness Sunday afternoon near the corner of Conception and Selma streets, a young white boy got a black eye, and a colored man was wounded in the left shoulder by bird shot. If grew out of the refusal of a grocery store salesman to sell a drink to a negro. Arrests were made by the police.

THE TELEGRAPH

MUSTANG RACE.

NEW YORK, November 18.—The first race of fifty miles, 46 fifty, one hundred and one hundred and fifty mile races, for $2000 on each race, between John Murphy and Capt. Mowry, of the Anstralian team, came off to-day on Fleetwood Park track. Capt. Mowry rode mustangs, or horses of California breed, and Murphy rode bred back horses. Both of the parties changed horses frequently. Money was the quickest in mind, but Murphy had the fastest horses.

The race was won by Murphy. His time including changes, was two hours twenty-five minutes. Capt. Mowry's time being two hours twenty-six minutes and twenty seconds; winners average time per mile was 2.54.

FLORIDA.

TALLAHASSEE, November 19.—There is reasonable ground for believing that Gov. Scarnie of this State will assume that the State Board has no power to count the electoral vote, but that that power resides in the Governor. This assumption will permit the Governor to decide all issues pertaining to the case and throw his certificates to which ever set of electors he decides are elected.

This assumption is based upon the fact that the act creating the Returning Board does not use the words electors in giving the list of officers whose vote the board shall canvass. The power to canvass this vote not being specifically conferred upon the board, he contends it resides in him, as he is required by a United States law to issue the electors' certificates, and must canvass it in order that he may decide who is entitled to certificates.

The Democrats are very much astonished that this claim should be set up, and contend that the word "electors" is not used in the act referred to simply because electors are included under the head of State officers, which expression is used in the act.

The Democratic committee waited on the Governor and notified him that if he contemplated such a step they would ask permission to file a protest. He stated that they should have an opportunity to do the same, and this morning no office them by a letter, that he should be pleased if they would forward in writing whatever they had to say upon the subject. This will be considered an intimation that he intends to move in the matter without delay.

Electorate opinions are being prepared on both sides of the question.

There is some movement ordered in military circles tonight; precisely what it is cannot be ascertained. It is supposed troops are going to some of the contested counties.

SERIES ENDED.

AUGUSTA, November 19.—The strike on the Georgia Railroad is ended. A compromise was agreed upon satisfactory to the engineers and officers of the road.

RELEASED.

ST. LOUIS, November 19.—Wm McK. 9, of shinky trade, was released yesterday.

LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, November 19.—The Returning Board have received returns from 35 of the 71 parishes, and will commence the canvass on Monday. Counsel for the committee to inspect the returns when received, and says that they had not been tampered with.

GONE TO FLORIDA.

Ex Gov. E. F. Noyes of Ohio, Gen Lew Wallace of Indiana, and Hon. John A. McKee, of Iowa, left Saturday by rail for Florida.

The visiting Democrats appointed the following gentlemen to remain here and be present to witness the counting of votes by the Returning Board: John M. Palmer of Illinois, Lyman Trumbull of Illinois, Wm. Bigler of Pennsylvania, George B. Smith of Wisconsin, and P. H. Watson of Ohio.

Gen. Sherman, in behalf of the Republicans accepted the invitation of the board, but the five persons to act are not designated.

THE REPUBLICAN PROCEEDINGS.

The prominent men here at the request of the President, and also those sent here by Republican organizations from States other than Louisiana, have determined, they say, to secure a full stenographic report of all the proceedings and evidence before the Returning Board, as that an important statement may be given to the public and sent to the President. They have also determined to change their committee of five from time to time so that all their members may observe the mode of proceeding and the appearance and character of the business examined.

MILITARY.

WASHINGTON, November 20.—Several companies of soldiers have arrived here, and others are coming. This is made the basis for sensational paragraphs about massing the army in the District. There are assurances that these troops are merely en route, and their movements have no strategic or political significance. It is likely, however, as the District has no local government, that the army will police the 10 miles square until after the 4th of March.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Quick, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their scope and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical College of Alabama.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21

The Hanover Provincial Parliament have passed a unanimous resolution to the effect that the sequestered property of King George of Hanover should be restored to its owner. There is no doubt that the motion will be approved by the Imperial Government Parliament, provided a guarantee is given that this property, which amounts to nearly £3,000,000, shall not be applied to purposes hostile to Prussia and Germany.

The strain on the Pennsylvania Railroad Company during the six months of the Centennial has been so great that the Auditor's department has been unable to keep up with the accounts, and is still several weeks behind. At the Jersey City depot 22,917 trains were started westward, made up of 127,080 cars, carrying about 7,500,000 passengers. This does not include the way passengers and only includes the travel in one direction. It will be some time before the company can render the returns to confuse statistical statements.—N. Y. World.

Municipal Taxation—The Question of its Reduction.

NUMBER TWO.

Editor Tribune:

On the 9th of March, 1875, an act was approved "For the reduction and funding of the debts of the city of Mobile, etc." The ideas upon which the scheme contained in this act are based are threefold. First, the entire debt, which amounted on the 1st of May, 1875, (according to the Auditor's statement) to $3,142,677 85, should be reduced to a sum not to exceed $2,000,000; second, that this funded debt of $2,000,000 should bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum; third, that each year a sinking fund of $50,000 should be provided by means of which the principal of this funded debt should be gradually extinguished. The funding of this debt, upon the principle of this act, is now in progress, and when this is accomplished, if it ever is, the result will be that certainly for many years to come the sum of one hundred and seventy thousand dollars ($170,000) will have to be yearly provided, by taxation, for the required payments on account by the public debt of the city. Let it be borne constantly in mind that the State of Alabama is only undertaking to pay for the next two years the sum of two hundred thousand dollars upon her entire public debt. The commissioners say, in vindication of the justice of their settlement, that "capital will not to any great extent seek investment in the mines, quarries, water power and fertile lands of Alabama until it becomes satisfied that the present rate of taxation will eventually be reduced. Three-fourths of one per cent upon the full value of property is a high State tax. There are but five other States in the Union (all Southern except one) which impose a tax as high as the present rates in this State." Mobile, as we all know, contributes nearly one-fifth of the entire State tax, and besides, she is now undertaking to pay on her domestic debt, a sum equal—lacking $20,000—to the total sum collected from the people of the whole State on their entire debt. So also we add the pro rata part which Mobile must pay on account of interest on the State debt, to the $170,000, which she must pay under her own funding bill, we perceive that she would suffer less for many years to come, if she were allowed to assume the entire debt of Alabama, in lieu of all other liabilities. It is by any truth or sincerity in the basis devised by the commissioners and upon which the State debt has been settled, then, it is evident that the people of Mobile are attempting a burthen upon their property and commerce which can never be borne, unless, perchance, it can be demonstrated that this city, unlike the rest of the State of Alabama, is in a condition or the highest and most exuberant prosperity.

TOTAL EXPENSE OF OUR MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

We come now to the next great item of municipal disbursement, the administrative expenses. This will account for the current year, according to the estimate of His Honor, the Mayor, to $225,000. If we add to this the sum of $170,000, we perceive that this sum of $395,000 is the yearly cash basis of expenses upon which the city government is to be administered, when the whole debt is to be funded, provided there be no departure from the present policy. Let us contrast the amount of this municipal burthen with our yearly resources. We all know that the city is chiefly dependent upon her commerce in cotton for her maintenance. Many direct and indirect profits, it is true, are made out of the staple which comes to our wharves, out of the profits which accrue from the mere sales of the bales we handle, at the present rates do not exceed, in commissions, the sum of one dollar per bale. During the last business year, we only received 375,672 bales. So the total commission account of the city for the sale of our entire receipts, will scarcely equal our town expenses.

CAN THE CITY STAND IT?

Now, whether or no the city of Mobile, in her present prostrated and impoverished condition, in addition to the sums which she must pay to the national, State and county governments, can undertake to pay each year this enormous sum of nearly $400,000 (about one forty fifth part of the aggregate wealth) for mere town expenses, is a subject worthy of some consideration. Put the population down at the highest reasonable figure, say 40,000 souls; put the yearly expense down at the lowest estimated figure, $384,000, the result will be a yearly tax of nine 60-100 dollars ($9 60) per capita upon every member of the municipality. The State Commissioners say that a tax of ¾ of per cent. is a high State tax, and this, with all other taxes for State purposes, imposes a State tax of but one dollar per capita. Now, after this people have paid their part of this tax, then their county tax, by the power of what Alladin are they to pay for more town expenses, more than nine times the tax per capita imposed by the State. The unanimity here found to exist in the form of deserted property being consumed by taxation, in the form of a half million of back taxes while the people cannot pay, in the form of a crippled commerce—conclude the argument that this extravagant, oppressive burthen is one which cannot, will not, ought not to be borne. The short but certain result which is now being accomplished by this gradual confiscation, like a cancer in the system, has become so marked that its presence can no longer be disguised.

ALL CLASSES OPPRESSED BY THE BURTHEN.

Let every man ask himself the question, is there any class, any interest in the community which is not oppressed by this burthen? Begin next to the planter, with those classes which are most able to bear it, the capitalists and the merchants. It falls upon their real estate, upon their stocks in trade, upon the capital itself, upon incomes, and further in the form of a license tax to do business, upon industry itself. If we come to the professional and laboring classes, who live upon wag s, we find that their industry is equally taxed, or their income diminished, in an exact ratio to the depression of those out of whom their livings must come. But when we turn our eyes to that pitiful class—the widows and the minors—who are possessed of no earning capacity, and who are obliged to live upon incomes derived from real estate, after the taxes are first deducted, we are called upon to witness the sad spectacle which a society presents when its nonconsumants, who hope to live upon the produce of accumulation, are obliged to consume the capital itself.—SPECTATOR.

Highway Women in N. O.

The neighborhood of Dryades street, which has so often been the scene of highway robberies and garrotings perpetrated by the abandoned ag ressors who haunt that section of the city, is becoming daily more and more dangerous for strangers who, in their rambles through the city, innocently pass that street. Numerous instances have already been cited of pedestrians being suddenly pounced upon by some five or six women, dragged into a dark alleyway and robbed of all their money, and watches, etc. Complaints are made, a number of women arrested, but seldom indentified by their victims, and consequently released. Friday night, at 9 o'clock, a gentleman, stranger in the city, who had been to the Poydras Market, leisurely walked down Dryades street towards Canal.

Upon arriving near the corner of Perdido street he was suddenly seized by four negro women, who dragged him into a dark alleyway and robbed him of $125. Earlier in the evening, Mr. J. ii. Hurst passing that street, was also garroted and robbed of $130 and a Smith & Wesson revolver. A woman, named Lizzie Boyd, was arrested, charged with robbing Mr. Hurst; but in the other case none of the women who inhabit that street have been identified as the guilty parties, and the stranger, from all probabilities, will return home minus his money.—N.O. Picayune.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate can make to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be painted and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying cinders, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and never cracks nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water-tight in a small expense, and preserved for many years.

Tar Paint in Bulk.

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from one to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

the effect, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives an economical roof that will last for years. UNLIKE ON WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, makes them tight, and although a slow dryer, can does not affect it's free hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain tar, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is when first applied, changing in about a month to a handsome slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

TIN ROOFS

BRICK WALLS

Our ARMORY RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.

There was a destructive fire at Hampstead, Texas, on the 15th inst. The loss was about $80,000. The insurance did not cover more than a fifth of it.

WAR AMONG THE BARBERS.

There is anger among the barbers of New York. Some of them have reduced the price of shaving to five cents, and the others, in order to stop it, have formed an association, and adopted a constitution and by laws. At their meeting it was stated that in some of the shops they not only shave for five cents, but, in order to attract custom, throw in a segar. In others they throw in a glass of liquor. The latter are considered the most atrocious of all scoundrels.

FALLING.

One sign of the "shrinkages" of times is the fact that some of the largest hotels of New York have reduced their prices. The St. Nicholas and the Metropolitan have docked off a sawbuck a day, and take charge $3.50. The Fifth Avenue and Windsor refuse to lull, and hold on to $3.00 per diem. Mr. Darling, of the former, says that he intends to give his guests five dollars' worth and they are willing to pay for it. The house is doing a good business. Darling is a millionaire, and could keep his place going even under averse circumstances.

ALARMING PEOPLE.

One of our papers has alarmed the public by its calculations of civil strife, because Hayes will be chosen President, and no one can help it.

In all the contested states there is trouble; and we are glad that there is, for it will test the value of our so-called republican institutions.

The life of all republics is of brief tenure; and, as human nature and cupidity came in with the first man, Adam, why we shall expect it to remain with us until the "old Adam" be driven out of us.

Hayes may make a good president, but he will not be President by the will of the people. His servitors may rejoice in an election given to him by fraud—as now seems to be the means in the struggle for position. But this is only the beginning of the strife. We shall have to wait to see the end of it.

We think that no man be disturbed in his mercantile operations by the anticipation of trouble, and also that the opinions which weaken the confidence of men are not yet based on any act that warrants them in coming to a conclusion.

Here comes in another thing: that is the apprehension of a general war in Europe. Every merchant seems to be acting on the presumption that there will be a war, and he is calculating what effect it will have on his business. Well, there will be and are preparations for war, but there will be no war. Diplomacy and the good sense of the great nations will manage to evade this terrible evil.

Five years ago a Board of the kind as that in Louisiana would have thrown the state out of the count in estimating an electoral vote.

To day it is afraid to commit so great a crime. Not, perhaps, because it has not the desire to do it, but because the people have got rid of some of their prejudices, and are now growing up into the belief that our Southern citizens are not all brutes, as some of the newspapers, controlled by demagogues, and stump orators who are demagogues, have taught them to believe.

The amount of lying that has been done in this business is really appalling, and we are sorry to say that most of it has been done on the Republican side. The Democrats have not been lacking in the work—for if lying be the trade of politics, the ins of office have more temptation to contrive this kind of machinery than the outs—for the ins have the security of place; and the outs have innumerable p rsons to get the places of the ins. In the latter there is no certainty of getting place: in the former is the certainty of its possession.

And so it turns out that the former have a great advantage.

"Possession," a legal maxim runs, "is nine points of the law,"—that is nine to one.

And from this we can see why within the three Southern States now in dispute, there is much trouble in regard to the result of the election.

It is because the ins don't want to be outs; and for this wretchedly selfish reason, all of us, who want nothing but peace, and such government composure as will allow us to be sure of the future, are kept in this turmoil, which is a disgrace to what we fondly name suffrage—suffrage, a miserable thing that may be bought, and which many men consider the very perfection of what we call "liberty."

Well, let us wait, and see whether this thing is worthy or any man's respect. There is ain Louisiana, and Florida and South Carolina. What is the measure of the worth of the suffrage will be seen by the result in those States. The whole despiny of the present and future of the country seems to depend on them—that is if a President of the one side or of the other can make this destiny.

We have no great amount of patriotism, either state or federal. We love the country because it is worthy of love. Its resources are immeasurable, wealth lying all over it and under it. Alabama the equal maker of excellent Senator. It was thought that the senatorial aspirants would return home on Saturday evening, that the members might have a day's rest and time to "remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy." but, alas! no such good luck for them, for Sunday morning found them still at work eager for the place.

The religious community of our city are much excited at the present time, on account of the advent among them of the Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, formerly of your city.

He is of the Baptist faith, and you will no doubt recollect him as the pastor in 1858 of the people who worshipped in the little wooden church on the corner of Broad street and Spring Hill Avenue. He is now the settled pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city, a wealthy congregation; and his fame as a pulpit orator is such that it is almost impossible to find even standing room in his church, morning or evening. When he preached to-day he addressed the members of the legislature upon the subject of State Legislation; its Relation to Public and Private Morals." The church was filled: most of the members of the Senate and House were present, and all felt satisfied that Alabama had at least brought forth one who might truly be called an orator. He is without doubt the most polished pilblic speaker now living in the Southern State, if not in the United States.

The members of the Democratic party who compose the present House and Senate held a caucus on Saturday night, and, after adopting the two-thirds rule, agreed to hold a caucus next Thursday evening at ½ past 7 o'clock. Those of your city who feel interested in having one of her citizens elected United States Senator had better come up here and lend a helping hand, for Mobile has one man who is now so far in the van that it will take but a little to elect him. He is one of your representatives.

Heavy snow storms are reported by telegraph in the northern part of Scotland. There has been no snow in Mobile this season but there is considerable ice.

We regret to learn that the Rev. Mr. McCamley, while on his way to attend a meeting of Presbytery, in this city, was run over and killed by the cars of the Selma, Rome and Dalton Railroad. We were unable to obtain particulars of the sad accident.

Visiting Magnolia Cemetery frequently during the week, the reporter can attest to the fidelity of the watchman, Mr. Kelly, and can aver that he has seen no evidence of desecration or of disorderly conduct, as was mentioned in the Register of last Sunday morning.

The South Alabama Presbytery met and organized yesterday morning in the Government street Presbyterian Church by electing Rev. Mr. Ewing, of Talladega, Moderator. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Raymond, of Marion, who was unavoidably detained at Meridian, the opening sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Ewing. Synod will meet this evening in the same church, at 7 o'clock.

The rainfall for the week ending November 17 averages about as follows in the various districts: St. Lawrence valley 0.20 inch; New England, 0.05; Middle Atlantic States, 0.25; South Atlantic States, 0.10; Eastern Gulf States, 0.75; Western Gulf States, 0.75; Lower Lake region, 0.40; Upper Lake region, 0.13; Ohio Valley and Tennessee, 0.42; Upper Mississippi valley, 0.40; Missouri valley, 0.15; Minnesota, 0.15.

We hear it rumored that the Richings English Opera Troupe will give two entertainments in this city—at Temperance Hall—on the night of the 30th of November and 1st of December. The memory of the last visit of this troupe is as dear to our citizens that we venture the prediction of full and enthusiastic houses. In the event of their coming, "Bohemian Girl," has been requested for one of their entertainments. We don't know who can take Miss Howson's place as Arline, but we feel confident that the pretty little opera will be rendered in a style worthy of the high reputation of the troupe.

Board of Aldermen.

At the regular weekly meeting of the board last evening, President Smith in the chair, more than a quorum was present when the roll was called, sixteen members answering to their names.

TELEGRAPH

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 21.—The Returning Board will hear evidence and argument in contested polls and parishes, and lay them aside for a final decision in secret session.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

LONDON, November 21.—Representatives of the Porte abroad have been instructed to make known its resolution that the Sultan neither could nor would in any circumstances consent to the occupation of Turkish territory, even by the most friendly powers. Russia and Turkey continue war preparations.

Mr. Cross, Home Secretary, at a banquet spoke hopefully of the aspect of Eastern affairs, and thought the disputes would meet before the end of the week.

PARIS, November 21.—The Senate rejected the bill recently passed by the Deputies for a cessation of the prosecution of Communists.

A special from Pesth to the Temps says Russia is determined on war.

ST. PETERSBURG, November 21.—A dispatch from Simla says news that the Afghan Ministers have refused the demand of Gen. Futermayeff to be admitted into the Cabinet, declaring that if he entered they would resign.

BRUSSELS, November 21.—The Government of Belgium has received a communication from the Belgian Consul at Malta announcing that the Malta authorities had informed the Chamber of Commerce that torpedoes had been placed at the approaches to the ports of Odessa, Kertch, Sebastopol and Eupatoff.

ZARA, November 21.—Intelligence received here announces that Moukhar Pasha is concentrating twenty battalions of Turkish troops at Carinara near Dernegatyon, on the Austrian frontier. It is asserted that he intends to proceed to Gravosa, where the troops will embark for Constantinople. This would necessitate their marching across Austrian territory. Several Turkish transports, it is stated, have already arrived at Gravosa. Up to the present time five Turkish battalions have reached Carinara.

BUSINESS QUIET.

ATLANTA, November 20.—Business is at stand still, on account of the unsettled state of politics. Many large orders are held back, merchants being afraid to increase their stocks.

PASSENGER RATES.

MEMPHIS, November 20.—A large number of general ticket and passenger agents of leading Southwestern railroads are in this city, to attend a convention tomorrow for the adjustment of passenger rates over their respective roads.

NORTH CAROLINA.

RALEIGH, N. C., November 20.—The Legislature of this state, more than two thirds Democratic, met to-day and organized. It elects to-morrow a Senator.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.]

TROOPS IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, November 20.—The concentration of troops in Washington has added greatly to the excitement respecting the election. All sorts of pretexts and falsehoods are sent out by the Administration to obtain their purposes, but there is no doubt that these are preliminary steps to bringing here a large military force. This proceeding is seriously injuring the Republican party at the North. Prominent gentlemen say that the bringing of soldiers here will not be of any advantage to Hayes.

Senator Patterson, of South Carolina, expressed the opinion today that the State Supreme Court would not sustain the State Canvassers in their recent action.

American Press Association Dispatches.

FLORIDA AND LOUISIANA.

NEW YORK, November 20.—The Evening Post's Washington special says that dispatches have been received to-day in official quarters from Florida and Louisiana, from a trusty and careful man, and in both States the Republicans are confident of a satisfactory result. The dispatch from Florida says that the Democratic leaders are badly frightened over latter returns which show that the Republicans have carried the State without their throwing out a single vote. The Republicans here are very jubilant in consequence of the information sent to-day.

FALSE ALARM.

Another special says that Gen. Sherman is greatly amused over the sensational dispatches sent from here last night stating that troops are being concentrated here for a political purpose. Two hundred and forty regular soldiers stopped here in returning from the South and a cry of alarm goes up. The Democrats protested against the sending of troops to the South, and now, frightened and indignant because the same troops are returning North.

THE NEXT HOUSE.

The Graphic's Washington special says that the officers of the House of Representatives, now in the city, have been figuring up the Congressional returns, and they report that according to returns received up to to-day, 142 Republicans and 144 Democrats are elected three districts in New Hamshire are yet to elect representatives, and two Republicans and one Democrat are expected. Four districts in Louisiana are now in doubt, and two in Missouri and two in South Carolina. Estimating that these doubtful districts are divided equally between the two parties, the House will stand, Democrats 147, Republicans 140, Among the Democrats is Alexander Boyden, who is not expected to be able to take his seat. This will leave the House a tie in his absence.

VIOLENT STORM.

The storm which has prevailed in this city and vicinity for the past thirty-six hours is one of the severest that has raged during the last six months—the rain falls in torrents and the gale increases in violence. The highest velocity of wind was noted between 10 and 11 o'clock to-day, when it varied from thirty six to forty five miles per hour. The damage to property in every section of the city is great, and reports come from every quarter of the devastation of awnings, uprooting of trees and carrying away of signs. In Water street the cellars are flooded, and many business houses in Front street and the east side are suffering from inundation. The storm is of ele sweep, and extends all along the coast, and several Maine disasters are reported already. At Sandy Hook the storm rages with unabated fury, the wind blowing hard from the south east and the atmosphere is thick and foggy.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Laundry soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contain, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soaps made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,

There was a destructive fire at Hempstead, Texas, on the 15th inst. The loss was about $80,000. The insurance did not cover more than a fifth of it.

WAR AMONG THE BARBERS.

There is anger among the barbers of New York. Some of them have reduced the price of shaving to five cents, and the others, in order to stop it, have formed an association, and adopted a constitution and by laws. At their meeting it was stated that in some of the shops they not only shave for five cents, but, in order to attract custom, throw in a segar. In others they throw in a glass of anger. The latter are considered the most atrocious of all economizers.

FALLING.

One sign of the "shrinkages" of times is the fact that some of the largest hotels of New York have reduced their prices. The St. Nicholas and the Metropolitan have docked off a dollar a day, and now charge $3.50. The Fifth Avenue and Windsor refuse to fall, and hold on to $3.00 per diem. Mr. Darling, of the former, says that he intends to give his guests five dollars' worth and they are willing to pay for it. The house is doing a good business. Darling is a millionaire, and could keep his place going even under adverse circumstances.

ALARMING PEOPLE.

One of our papers has alarmed the public by its vaticinations of civil strife, because Hayes will be chosen President, and no one can help it.

In all the contested states there is trouble; and we are glad that there is, for it will test the value of our so-called republican institutions.

The life of all republics is of brief tenure; and, as human nature and cupidity came in with the first man, Adam, why we shall expect it to remain with us until the "old Adam" be driven out of us.

Hayes may make a good president, but he will not be President by the will of the people. His servitors may rejoice in an election given to him by fraud—as now seems to be the means in the struggle for position. But this is only the beginning of the strife. We shall have to wait to see the end of it.

We think that no man be disturbed in his mercantile operations by the anticipation of trouble, and also that the opinions which weaken the confidence of men are not yet based on any act that warrants them in coming to a conclusion.

Here comes in another thing: that is the apprehension as a general war in Europe. Every merchant seems to be acting on the presumption that there will be a war, and he is calculating what effect it will have on his business. Well, there will be and are preparations for war, but there will be no war. Diplomacy and the good sense of the great nations will manage to evade this terrible evil.

Five years ago a Board of the kind as that in Louisiana would have thrown the state out of the count in estimating an electoral vote.

To day it is afraid to commit so great a crime. Not, perhaps, because it has not the desire to do it, but because the people have got rid of some of their prejudices, and are now growing up into the belief that our Southern citizens are not all brutes, as some of the newspapers, controlled by demagogues, and stump orators who are demagogues, have taught them to believe.

The amount of lying that has been done in this business is really appalling, and we are sorry to say that most of it has been done on the Republican side. The Democrats have not been looking in the work—for if lying be the trade of politics, the ins of office have more temptation to contrive this kind of machinery than the outs—for the ins have the security of place; and the outs have innumerable promises to get the places of the ins. In the latter there is no certainty of getting place: in the former is the certainty of its possession.

And so it turns out that the former have a great advantage.

"Possession," a legal maxim runs, is nine points of the law,"—that is nine to one.

And from this we can see why within the three Southern States now in dispute, there is much trouble in regard to the result of the election.

It is because the ins don't want to be outs; and for this wretchedly selfish reason all of us, who want nothing but peace, and such government composure as will allow us to be sure of the future, are kept in this turmoil, which is a disgrace to what we fondly name suffrage—suffrage, a miserable thing that may be bought, and which many men consider the very perfection of what we call "liberty."

Well, let us wait, and see whether this thing is worthy of any man's respect. There it is in Louisiana, and Florida and South Carolina. What is the measure of the worth of the suffrage will be seen by the result in those States. The whole destiny of the present and future of the country seems to depend on them—that is if a President of the one side or of the other can make this destiny.

We have no great amount of pollen, either state or federal. We love the country because it is worthy of love. Its resources are immeasureable, wealth lying all over it and under it, Alabama the equal if not the superior of any of all with in its vast domains in its capacity for the production of wealth.

Well, now, what? It is good government alone which tempts this to make itself useful and our people comfortable. The earth proffers its riches, and the men who control the slaves, white and black, are those who govern us—most of them no better than you or I; but skilful in methods to make you and me slaves. Slavery is white. Talk about the negro as a slave. The white man is a greater slave to his own color than the poor black man that has hard y any comprehensible idea of what the word means.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 18, 1876.

The House assembled at 10 a. m. The bill to amend section 4222 of revised statutes, as reported in my letter published on Saturday, was reported favorably upon by the judiciary committee, and so far as the House is concerned has becomes a law. This reduces the perquisites of the clerks of state courts, and will make quite a saving to every county in the state. The bill extending the time for commencing action from six to ten years against those who are indebted to the state for lands purchased, which were a part of the 16th section, also was passed by the House. This will, if passed by the Senate, save a large amount of money to the school funds of the state. At 12 m., according to previous arrangement, the two houses assembled in joint convention, and counted the votes cast at the late state election for state officers.

Only one more Richard in the field for senatorial honors.

Col. James H. Powell, known by the title of the "Duke of Birmingham," has been brought forward by his friends for this honorable position. He is a gentleman of large wealth, has lots of friends, and would make an excellent Senator. It was thought that the senatorial aspirants would return home on Saturday evening, that the members might have a day's rest and time to "remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy," but, alas! no such good luck for them, for Sunday morning found them still at work eager for the place.

The religious community of our city are much excited at the present time, on account of the advent among them of the Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, formerly of your city.

He is of the Baptist faith, and you will no doubt recollect him as the pastor in 1858 of the people who worshipped in the little wooden church on the corner of Broad street and Spring Hill Avenue. He is now the settled pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city, a wealthy congregation; and his fame as a pulpit orator is such that it is almost impossible to find even standing room in his church, morning or evening. When he preached to-day he addressed the members of the legislature upon the subject of "State Legislation; its Relation to Public and Private Morals." The church was filled; most of the members of the Senate and House were present, and all felt satisfied that Alabama had at least brought forth one who might truly be called an orator. He is without doubt the most polished public speaker now living in the Southern States; it is it in the United States.

The members of the Democratic party who compose the present House and Senate held a caucus on Saturday night, and, after adopting the two-thirds rule, agreed to hold a caucus next Thursday evening at ½ past 7 o'clock. Those of your city who feel interested in having one of her citizens elected United States Senator had better come up here and lend a helping hand, for Mobile has one man who is now so far in the van that it will take but a little to elect him. He is one of your representatives.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present ed by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have be n made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route to or from Mobile.

The management, in announcing to the public this

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedules, to meet the demands of the public for greater speed in this direction, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequent missing connection, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running

EXPRESS TRAINS

stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of running trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and despatch, with one night less out in the less degree.

Passing, as is done, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the stability of the roadbed, the purity of the air, and the variety of the scenery combine not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade; Pullman palace cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge, conducted by experienced and attentive conductors and employees, thereby insuring to travelers

COMFORT, ATTENTION AND SAFETY!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at all the principal stations, where ample time allowed for meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Safe Connections are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial excursion tickets will be issued over this route as low as by any other, for the benefit of visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties. Will be glad to have interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, CHARLESTON or RICHMOND.

We hear it rumored that the Richings English Opera Troupe will give two entertainments in this city—at Temperance Hall —on the night of the 30th of November and 1st of Dec ber. The memory of the last visit of this troupe is a dear to our citizens that we venture the prediction of full and enthusiastic houses. In the event of their coming, "Bohemian Girl," has been requested for one of their entertainments. We don't know who can take Miss Howson's place as Arline, but we feel confident that the pretty little opera will be rendered in a style worthy of the high reputation of the troupe.

Board of Aldermen.

At the regular weekly meeting of the board last evening, President Smith in the chair, more than a quorum was present when the roll was called, sixteen members answering to their names.

Report of city tax assessor, collection of $110 for week ending November 18. Referred to ways and means committee.

On a motion to concur in the action of the council on the mayor's retrenchment communication, which included the adoption of the recommendation to reduce the police force on the first of December, Alderman Cahill moved as an amendment to refer the whole communication to the special committee of five on officers' salaries as it had been so referred to therein. That motion prevailed.

When Alderman Hanna's greenback resolution came up as amended by the council, to provide for the destruction of city scrip by the issue of the city treasury, commencing on the last day of January, former action was rescinded from and the burning amendment was concurred in by a yea and nay vote—yeas 12, nays 4.

Yeas—President Smith, Bruce, Cahill, Chamberlain, Craft, Hanna, Kennerly, Malone, Mighell, O'Connell, Pepper, Walsh.

Nays—Beaton, Gates, Kirkconnie, D. E. Smith.

The petition of Jno O'Reilly & Co., asking that overpaid taxes be refunded to them to the amount of $452 50, was referred to ways and means.

Leave of absence wasgranted to Alderman Malone for 60 days from the 13th instant. Alderman Cahill was appointed on a committee in the place of Alderman Muldon.

President Smith appointed on the special committee suggested in the mayor's communication, Aldermen Cahill, Kirkbride and Kennerly.

A resolution of Alderman Cahill to contain the special privilege now conferred on taxes of 1876, till May 1, 1877, was amended by the substitution of January 1, 1877, and as amended was adopted.

The board adjourned at ten minutes before nine o'clock.

American Press Association Dispatches.

FLORIDA AND LOUISIANA.

NEW YORK, November 20.—The Evening Post's Washington special says that dispatches have been received to day in official quarters from Florida and Louisiana, from a trusty and careful man, and in both States the Republicans are confident of a satisfactory result. The dispatch from Florida says that the Democratic leaders are badly frightened over latter returns which show that the Republicans have carried the State without their throwing out a single vote. The Republicans here are very jubilant in consequence of the information sent to-day.

FALSE ALARM.

Another special says that Gen. Sherman is greatly amused over the sensational dispatches sent from here last night stating that troops are being concentrated here for a political purpose. Two hundred and forty regular soldiers stopped here in returning from the South and a cry of alarm goes up. The Democrats protested against the sending of troops to the South, and now, frightened and indignant because the same troops are returning North.

THE NEXT BOUND.

The Graphic's Washington special says that the officers of the House of Representatives, now in the city, have been figuring up the Congressional returns, and they report that according to returns received up to to-day, 142 Republicans and 144 Democrats are elected. Three districts in New Hamshire are yet to elect representatives, and two Republicans and one Democrat are expected. Four districts in Louisiana are now in doubt, and two in Missouri and two in South Carolina. Estimating that these doubtful districts are divided equally between the two parties, the House will stand, Democrats 147, Republicans 146. Among the Democrats is Alexander Stephens, who is not expected to be able to take his seat. This will leave the House a tie in his absence.

VIOLENT STORM.

The storm which has prevailed in this city and vicinity for the past thirty-six hours is one of the severest that has raged during the last six months—the rain falls in torrents and the gale increases in violence. The highest velocity of wind was noted between 10 and 11 o'clock to-day, when it varied from forty six to forty five miles per hour. The damage to property in every portion of the city is great, and reports come from every quarter of the devastation of awnings, uprooting of trees, and carrying away of signs. In Water street the orders are flowed, and many business houses in Front street and the east side are suffering from inundation. The storm is of wide sweep, and extends all along the coast, and several Mississippi disasters are reported already. At Sandy Hook the storm rages with unabated fury, the wind blowing hard from the south east and the atmosphere is thick and foggy.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

Messrs. ALEXANDER, St. John & Co. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Standard soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of available contents, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official std and of the United tates Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, Nov. 8.—The officia counting of votes was completed this afternoon by the Board of Canvassers. The result shows Hayes' majority in the State to be a little over 600. After the count had been ascertained, a recess of one hour was taken to enable the Board to prepare and certify the result to the Supreme Court, now in session, and by whose interlocutory order the count was taken, pending decision of certain legal points concerning the powers of the Board. The Court will accept the returns as final, and declare that Hayes has received a majority of the electoral votes of the States.

The counsel for the Democrats have filed the following protest in the court: "We except to the aggregation of the results and the announcement of them, on the ground that the canvass and comparison of the managers' returns with the county canvassers' statements, show irregularities, errors and omissions which vitiate the result and prevent the aggregation of the county canvassers' statements from being regarded as a true aggregation of the votes cast at the election."

[Signed] "JAMES CONNOR, "Counsel."

The result of the count will be certified to the Supreme Court for its consideration and action.

RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 18.—The Russian government has begun to organize its forces in pursuance of the determination lately announced to mobilize the army, and preparations have commenced for the mobilization of a sanitary corps. Movable hospitals are also being got ready, and committees of ladies are being formed on the same plan as during the Franco German war, for the private nursing of the wounded. These, it is said, are under the patronage of the Empress and Grand Duchess of Russia.

It is semi-officially stated that General Tchernayeff will not retain command of the Servian army should Russia engage in war with Turkey, as his generalship has not given satisfaction to the Russia army officials.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Private advices from Paris say that the Rothschilds have promised to loan the Russian government a large amount of money, and this it is said, removes the principal obstacle in the way of Russia's declaring war. The loan will be made privately, as Russia's conditions are so favorable that the Rothschilds can easily dispose of the entire amount.

How to play the Piano.

It was a young woman with as many flounces round her as the planet Saturn has rings, that did it. She gave the music stool a whirl or two, and fluffed down on it, like a twirl of soap suds in a hand basin. Then she pushed up her cuffs as if she was going to fight for the championship belt. Then she worked her wrists and hands to limber'em I suppose, and spread out her fingers till they looked as they would pretty much cover the key-board from the growling end down to the little squeaky one. Then these two hands of hers made a jump at the keys as if they were a couple of tigers coming down upon a flock of white and black sheep, and the piano gave a howl as if its tail had been trod on. Then another howl, as if the piano had two tails and you had trod on both of 'em at once, and then a grand clatter and scramble and string of jumps, up and down, backward and forward, one hand over the other, like a stampede of rats and mice more than anything I call music.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Czar and the Sultan.

[Boston Advertiser.]

PARIS, October 15.—A popular legend in Bohemia, whose origin is very much like that of of the "Arabian Nights," has a strange actuality in the present moment, and runs thus: The Czar of Mossow sent to the Sultan Moulesit presents of great magnificence: A table of massive gold; upon this table a golden mosquito, encircling the mosquito a serpent of gold, and in the serpent's mouth a diamond of purest water. Salves, enriched with precious stones, for the crown prince. A cradle of gold, supported by golden falcons, for the Sultana. How could such courtesy be returned?

"O, glorious Sultan Moulesit!" said the hodjas, "consult the Christian patriarch; he knows what will best please the Czar of Moscow."

"Speak," said the Sultan; and the Christian patriarch replied: "Send the crosier of Sava Nemantitch (founder of the Serbian dynasty), the crown of the Emperor Constantine, the sacerdotal vestments of Saint Jovan and the standard of Lazaar, with his cross. All this has but little value to you, O Sultan Mouiesit!"

The Sultan listened, smiled and sent back the messenger of the Czar charged with the—to him—worthless objects, and in his divan boasted of being quit at small little cost, but a certain pasha remarked to him, "Why not likewise have sent the keys of Stamboul?"

This brought a flash of comprehension to Sultan Moulesit's mind. He sent forth orders to overtake and bring the messenger, but alas! too late. The Russians, anticipating second thought, took another road, and the Turks never recovered what had been so lightly lost. But one means of vengeance remained to the enraged Sultan. He ordered the Christian patriarch to be decapitated, and this was promptly done, allowing the ground favor the old man's last prayer, to die upon a hill top, his face turned toward the Black Sea and his eyes toward Moscow. And thus it came to pass that the Czar received from Moulesit the standard of Lazaar, with his cross, the sacerdotal vestments of St. Jovan, the crown of Emperor Constantine and the crosier of Sava Nemantitch.

An Indianapolis debating society has just decided that the execution of Charles I. was unjustifiable. The prospects of the Stuart family are beginning to look up.

South Carolina.

Some information is contained in the subjoined American Press Association dispatch, that will interest our readers:

COLUMBIA, S. C., November 20.—Upon the meeting of the Supreme court this A. M., counsel for democratic candidates asked for orders requiring the board of canvassers in reporting their action under order of 17th to include at same time all errors, irregularities and discrepancies in statements of county commissioners, which exist between returns of managers of precinct elections, and those of county canvassers as tabulated and discovered by this bond. This order was asked for on the ground that comparison of returns of managers and county canvassers made of counties for Aiken, Abbeville, Barnwell and Charleston by State Board of Canvassers had made manifest great irregularities and discrepancies that votes given to one candidate so appearing upon the managers' returns were by county canvassers transfered to another candidate, that county canvassers, included in their statements of returns purporting to come from profisients, designated in every statute, and that board of State canvassers received returns not forwarded according to law, signed by managers of one party only, and never submitted to the board of county canvassers, one forwarded by one party after the county canvassers had made and closed their official statement. The court declined granting this order on the ground that the Board had not, as yet reused to produce the papers asked for, and that it would therefore be irregular to do so. The court, however, intimated that it would require the production of the returns by the Board to morrow, and threatened to issue a peremptory mandamus to compel them to do so. The court commented quite severely upon the failure of the Board to perform merely the clerical work required of them, and their action and temper to day is regarded as another significant hint to the Board that no tampering or tinkluring of returns will be allowed. The Board is now canvassing for members of Congress and will probably conclude their labors to-day.

Judge Linley of the Circuit Court, No. 4, had an unusually large audience this morning, occasioned by an application made by the attorneys of L. S. Miller for mandamus to restrain the county clerk and Canvassing Board from certifying to returns of the late election held in the 3d Congressional district, as they now appear on the books in the clerk's office. The character of the case will be argued to morrow morning.

A Political Misunderstanding.

While the German American has no rival as an order-loving, industrious tax payer, in political matters he is generally not so well posted as his American fellow citizens.

This morning, while the carpenters were fixing up the polls for the voting to-morrow, an old German from the country, who had been paying a great deal of silent attention, inquired of a bystander:

"Was its den dose?"

"The election comes off to-morrow, and they are fixing up the polls," replied the party addressed.

"So dot is it. Who was running dis time?"

"Tilden and Hendricks are running pretty well," was the respose.

"The election comes off to-morrow, and they are fixing up the polls," repiled the party addressed.

"So dot is it. Who was running dis time?"

"Tilden and Hendricks are running pretty well," was the respose.

"Tilden and Hendricks!" inquired the astonished countryman. "Den I hopes Hentrick beats him two to one. I read about dot Tilton mit de Peecher pisness. He is a nish man to run for a Texas Legislature, don't it? When he is peat right pad I dreats the crowd."

And he got into his wagon as if he was right mad about it, and drove off.—San Antonio Herald.

KILLED.—We regret to learn that the Rev. J. C. McAuley, a Presbyterian minister of Talladega, was run over by the cars and killed near Munford, in Talladega county, early Monday morning. The train had passed by the station, and Mr. McAuley got on the track to walk down to it, and as the cars were backed up again he was struck by the rear car, knocked down and run over. His death will be regretted by the entire community, as he was universally respected.—Montgomery Journal.

The hear-rending particulars of the murder of Miss Britton, near Gainsdale 1 e, we gave in our last. The neighbors were on the alert, til finally they came up with the murderer, Tooey Anderson, a negro living in the neighborhood. The posse started with him to Hickory; about half way they were met by another posse, who wrested him from his captors and hung to the limb of a tree. He is said to have confessed everything.—Enterprise (Miss.) Courier.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate, made to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate.

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

In the expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying slate. This paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying cinders, as may be easily tested by a match.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water tight at a small expense, as I preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from one to two gallons are required to 100 square feet of roofing. And although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

the effect, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a substantial roof that will last for years. UNLIKE ON WARPED shingle as it lies flat on it, and holds them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, stops the leaks—and although a slow dryer, fair does not affect it. Will stand in any climate. It is the only paints that are black contain tar, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. Or,

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

RED OXIDE

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For

BRICK WALLS

Our MOUNT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a PRESERVATIVE on fine buildings.

The only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.

The last daily New York bulletin says that Commodore Vanderbilt "rested quietly last Saturday night."

128 deaths in New Orleans last week, exclusive of five stillborn, 20 of consumption. 35 were children under five years of age.

We are indebted to Hon. S. C. Muldon for a copy of the State Auditor's report. It bristles with figures, and is very handsomely printed by W. W. Screws, the State Printer.

A negro was almost beaten to death in New Orleans last Sunday night. It was done by some of his own color, who suspected him of having voted the democratic ticket.

Yesterday was one of our lovely days, here now near winter, and every person said so; and there was no dispute in regard to it. We shall have to thank God for the weather, if nothing else; and, we suppose, the husbandman will thank Him.

The Pope may not pease every one of every other faith, but a few days ago a requiem was sung by him for the repose of the souls of all his enemies as well as of his people of the church. For all he made intercession by his high spiritual authority—including in the number Lesliu Rollin.

The New Yorkers are troubled by apprehensions of a "water famine." Probably they will have too much of the element after a little while. To be secure against a recurrence of the fear, it is suggested that an appropriation of $30,000,000 would be useful.

That miserable word "boil-dozer" is getting into the best of the New York papers. They don't seem to know what it means. A white man who kills a colored man for political party reasons, is a boil dozer. This is the definition given to the word by the New Orleans Republican.

The governor of Mississippi has issued a proclamation recommending the 30th instant as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. All the governors have done, or will do, like Pope. He is useful at all times, but on thanksgiving is because we are not worse off than we are.

At the Fifth Avenue theatre, New York, "As You Like It" was at the last accounts having great success in drawing houses. Miss Fanny Davenport was the Rosalind. There were doubts in the critical mind as to her complete success. The critical mind, we have no doubt, recollects Ellen Tree. When she played the part in a little stadium on Government street, after our theatre had been destroyed by fire, there was a lovely performance, the men applauding it, and the women learning grace from the manners of the charming lady actress.

James Wallace, armorer, was drowned last Monday in New Orleans. He was crossing at night over a canal on a bridge of trestle work and it is supposed accidentally fell through it.

A cotton screwman, named Anderson in the same city was caught in one of the slings used for loading cotton. One of his legs was cut off as clean as a surgeon could have done it. He was precipitated into the hold of the ship and instantly killed.

Blanche is Rebel, (both jury returned from their summering).—"Why, how thin you look!" Rebel—"Of course, my dear; for three toilets a day, and the German four times a week, are not fattening. Besides, one doesn't wish to come back to society looking like a dairy maid."

FULL RETURNS.

The following is the full official vote of this Congressional District. One of our papers thinks that it may be erroneous:

	JONES.	BROMBERG.	TURNER.
Clarke	1462	76	960
Choctaw	1309	648	95
Marengo	2255	1104	652
Mobile	2859	6687	323
Monroe	1330	7	578
Washington	616	35	70
	10,832	8,193	2,710

Jones's majory over Bromberg.....2,639
Jones's majority over Turner.....7,972

It is enough to warrant the citizens in paying their bets. The tables show that Mr. Bromberg ran with strength in some of the interior counties; and it is likely that if those counties had been properly canvassed we might have been enjoying the picture on the obverse side. Turner's strength is more than we expected it to be.

There are rumors of a contest for Mr. Jones's seat. Of the movements in this respect we have no knowledge.

It is worthy of note that Mr. Bromberg did not get a single vote in Monroe county.

TAXATION.

Article number three in respect of municipal taxation we shall print to-morrow.

These articles have been drawn up with much care. Their figures are accurate, and in this respect alone are worthy of public consideration.

We must reduce the cost which has been put on us for government. Rather than carry the burden we have to borne so long, it were better to resolve ourselves into an indefinite condition—get rid of all taxes—every man secure himself by insuring his property, and repealing the statute which prohibits the carrying of concealed weapons, or make it respectable for each man to hang a bell around his, with a reverser in it.

This, we know, is running the business to an extreme; but it is better than having our property confiscated in the form of taxation.

There is one alternative: that is republication—a very rough remedy for an evil—but one that the public will nurse until it grow alarming, if no other remedy be provided for it. And there is nothing between that and a recognition of our obligations, except a reduction in the cost of the government—more especially that of our municipality.

The people are getting weary of this terrible drain on their resources and comfort. They have submitted to it patiently; and when they see the broad sheets of advertised property, they are ready to resolve that the purchaser or any of it shall lose all the respect of the community.

This evil is one which deters enterprise. It is the bete noir of our progress.

THE SITUATION.

The bulls and the bears are now very busy in all the commercial marts; the former trying to force securities up, and the latter trying to drag them down. Nay, more, all staple articles are subjected now to the same process. "Cotton is King," but was what has been said for a great many years. But now cotton, like everything else, is a bull or a bear.

There are two pretexts for turning the securities and the innocent staple into the forms of these two beasts. First, is the apprehension of a general war in Europe; and, secondly, is the assiduously cultivated belief that this country—as far as the government is concerned—is falling into anarchy. Vaticinations of this kind have been common since the beginning of the time when men were looking out for some means of self-governmentality; and they were speculators in the products of human industry.

Although, apparently, our party shall be unclouded, we have small doubt as to the final serenity of the political atmosphere, and the fees and fines which are now filling the purchasers purses only do harm, and not good. They are making confusion by promoting prejudice, and that can have no more effect on the conclusion than a dog which buys the liquor.

The whole business is one of legality. That, of course, is according to the opinions of the present managers; but when, with all evidence, it shall have been fairly put before the public, there is hardly a doubt of a correct conclusion: that is, as nearly to a correct one as can be expected from prejudice and ignorance, which still have an aspiration for the doing of what is right.

"Under The Sod."

Sooner or later all must pass under the sod, and though there are many afflictions greater than death, yet it seldom happens that man is more sorely afflicted or bowed down with deeper grief than he who followed his fondly-loved wife to the grave, in a beautiful family enclosure in Magnolia Cemetery, from the Cathedral yesterday.

A week since she was in the full flush of health, but an affection of the throat, terminated the young life of Mrs. Marie F. Cantonnet, wife of Major M. M. J. Mason, resident proprietor of the Battle House, and daughter of Mr. Cantonnet, a cotton broker well known in Mobile and New Orleans.

The funeral services at the Cathedral were solemn and impressive, and the remains of this lady, who died at the early age of eighteen years and nine months, were followed by a large concourse to the place of her last earthly repose.

Major Mason has the warmest sympathy of his numerous and devoted friends, in this hour of his great affliction.

Mrs. Mason was a household treasure, beloved by her family and esteemed by her friends, and her death will be most deeply lamented by those who knew her best.

There is no change in the aspect of Louisiana affairs. The Democrats seem to be resolute, and by no means disposed to be hopeless. There was a rumor that a compromise had been offered—namely, to give up state offices in exchange for the Hayes electors. The Picayune calls it silly. A similar rumor was made in regard to South Carolina. Of course it is silly. Who is authorized to offer such a compromise? The people themselves, at this stage of the game, could not do it.

The dead and astute counsellor of the Pope, M. Antonelli, it is said, was a very genial gentleman. The papers say that he loved a good joke, and liked good jokes in other persons; but there was no diplomatic joke that inveigled him into any combination that injured the great trust that was mainly in his hands. In his death one of the wisest and oldest men of the age has gone to his long account, for the gentleman was also quite one good bishop Portteous, whom every man of every denomination in Mobile loved.

They begin to talk now of throwing Mississippi out of the count.

Walks Around Town.

Johan Bluzer sells very fine hand-made gaiters for gentlemen's wear at $6 50 a pair.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 67, minimum 50, a range of 17 degrees.

An entire new programme, with a lively dash about it, at the Mobile Varieties this evening.

"Murder will out" may be illustrated in the case of the man found dead, near Manvilla lately.

The brig Florence Rathbun arrived yesterday from New York with an assorted cargo of merchandise.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 463 sacks corn, 200 barrels and 200 half barrels flour were received.

It was lovely weather yesterday, and the promenaded Dauphin street and did "shopping" at the shy goods stores.

Sergeant Ryan, of the police force, who was shot lately up town while performing his duty, is out again all right.

The bark Underwriter cleared for Cork yesterday with 2,024 bales of cotton, weighing 1,003,534 pounds, valued at $110,420.

Messrs. Nat. Strauss & Co. will sell today at ten o'clock clothing, dry goods, tobacco, boots, shoes, etc., saved from steamer Hale Birmingham is agitated about the coming municipal election in that city. Mobile has no restlessness about that matter this year.

The Birmingham Independent declares that trade has improved in Mobile, Montgomery and Selma, since the election of Tilden and Hendricks.

The schooner Elizabeth Edwards cleared for Galveston yesterday with 3,500 railroad cross ties for the Galveston, Houston and San Antonio Railroad.

The residence of Jno. R. Lassabe, Dauphin way, near Ann street, has been menaced by by burglars twice lately. They did not succeed in making a haul, however.

Professor Herrmann, the prestidigitateur, has just returned to New Orleans from a tour through Texas. He is the great Herrmann. The little Herrmann is at the Mystic.

In the United States there are forty-seven Young Women's Christian Associations. Sixteen of them hold property valued at $1,000,000. None of them are located in Mobile.

San Francisco will lay 130 miles of pipe from the Sierra Mountains to its Waterworks. The iron is ordered from St. Louis. Mobile gets water from a shorter distance and it is good—to wash with.

The Mobile police force get their pay now without discount; but the New Orleans police, whose pay has been reduced to $60 a month, now get certificates which sell for only $24, thus losing more than fifty per cent.

A lusty steamboatman, full of tanglefoot, went up Conti street yesterday afternoon singing and shouting. Not long after he was brought down by a levy of policeman, who had a deal of trouble to lockin along. He was strong as a giant and would go his way.

The steamboat Great Republic passed Natchez on her way to New Orleans with 6300 bales of cotton and 1,000 sacks of cotton seed the largest load of the staple ever carried to New Orleans by one steamer, and a little larger than was ever brought to Mobile.

George Washington, when a little but of a chap, could not tell a lie. Governor Kellogg, of Louisiana, a full grown man, cannot tell the truth. For he is suggested by the reckless declaration of the New Orleans Republican that Kellogg is the highest authority in the state as regards veracity.

Rough crowds of rough men hang around the levee, discussing the question of Hendricks and Conception streets, especially on Sunday. Last Sunday that locality was the scene of a bloody fight, and the police took some of them in. They should do so some more, and then respectable people can venture out without fear of insult.

The Babcock chemical fire extinguishers have done some good work in Mobile and the Babcock engine will do more. Tuesday night the Babcock tug boat machines extinguished a fire among the cotton under the main hatch of the bark Manlegen, lying at the wharf in the city of New Orleans. She was built in Rockport, Maine, was on her first trip, and had 900 bales on board.

Caleb Cushing, who was secretary of state under Franklin Pierce, and was balloted for ever so many times as the democratic candidate for president at the Charleston convention of 1860, knows something about law. He says that no postmaster or other officer is disqualified for holding the position of presidential elector, provided he resigns his office before accepting the electorship.

Five presidents of the United States, all men of the revolution, were 66 years old when their presidency expired, to-wit: Washington's in 1797, Adams's in 1801, Jefferson's in 1809, Madison's in 1817, and Monroe's in 1825. Washington was born in 1732, Adams in 1735, Jefferson in 1743, Madison in 1751, Monroe in 1759. Mobile never had the honor of pronoucing a man who became president of the United States, but possibly our turn may be president when he grows up.

TELEGRAPH

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, November 22.—The eligibility of Governor Ingersoll as an elector is questioned because he was a Federal Court Commissioner some five years ago and there is no record of his resignation.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 22.—Nicholls's purposes have been canvassed, only two of which enjoy Democratic majorities, showing that most of the protests are to the Republicans in Democratic parishes. Several protests by in Democrats of a general character have been filed, but the action of the Board on them is not indicated.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON November 22.—The Supreme Court has ordered a writ of peremptory mandamus to be issued to the Board of Canvassers, requiring them to give certificates of election to accordance with the report made yesterday. This gives the Democrats a prima facie majority of four in the House and 15 of the 33 Senators.

COLUMBIA, S. C., November 23.—The Supreme Court to-day issued a peremptory mandamus to the Board of State Canvassers to issue certificates of election to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives appearing on the face of the returns to be elected. The final contests in which seats are to be decided by the legislature themselves.

The House in the Senate 18 Republicans and 15 Democrats, and in the House 60 republicans and 64 Democrats; Democratic majority on joint ballot; one. The Legislature consists for Governor and Lieutenant Governor and elects a U. S. Senator The Court has decided to consider the other contests separately, and will hear argument this afternoon as to counting the electoral vote.

FLORIDA.

WASHINGTON, November 22.—The summary of the rulings of the Florida Circuit Court are in accordance with the Democratic pleas. The rules are temporary, to be finally decided to-morrow.

The Federal Supervisors of Louisiana claim the right to be present at all the sessions of the Returning Board. Their claim is backed by the opinion of District Attorney Beckwith, who holds that their duties as Inspectors commence with registration and end with the issue of the certificates of election.

The official details of the returns made to the Governor of South Carolina by the Canvassing Board has not transpired here.

VERMONT.

MONTPELIER, Nov. 22.—The Board of County Clerks reassembled, and John B. Hale, county clerk for Bennington county, officiated the following resolution:

Resolved, That this Board of Canvassers are of the opinion that their powers are simply ministerial, and that their duties are already defined by the statutes of this State, and they therefore decline to hear or receive evidence outside of the certificate of votes by the proper authorities. Adopted.

The course for the contesting electors will be to apply to the Supreme Court of the State for an injunction.

An elaborate organization is progressing before the County Counting Board, on a motion that they return Postmaster Sollecito to the Governor as intelligible. No decision has been reached.

PENNSYLVANIA.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 22.—The official vote of Pennsylvania is: Hayes, 384,148; Tilden, 366 204; Cooper, 7,204.

CYPRUS SPINNERS.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.

WEAKENING.

WASHINGTON, November 21, 10:30 P. M.—The conspiracy is weakening. The Administration is satisfied that they have blundered in their military demonstration at this time.

The dispatch of W. E. Chandler from Florida to them is despondent in tone, and the reports from that State to-night inspire the Democrats with great confidence.

The action of the Louisiana Returning Board in excluding Democratic counsel and holding secret sessions is disapproved by respectable men and is to-day condemned by the New York Tribune.

Judge Montgomery Blair reports that Gov. Chamberlain stated to him in the presence of Mr. Fox and Judge Cartter that it was the duty of the State canvassers to compare the returns of the county canvassers with the returns of the examiners or precinct managers who conducted the election, and to correct the former by the latter. It is believed here that the Supreme Court will order the State canvassers to make these corrections, thus electing two of Tilden's electors.

Some of the Cabinet are talking in a wild manner of introducing counters into the hall of the joint convention. A very excessive scheme of bluster and intimidation by the Administration is on foot, but will fail.

American Press Association Dispatches.

NEW YORK, November 21.—A special to the Evening Post, from Washington, says that a dispatch from Tallahassee to Secretary Chandler says there is no cause for uneasiness among Republicans that their prospect for success could not be better, and that the confidence here of Lee expressed as to the result is maintained.

A special to the Express from Tallahassee says: The majority all told is quite 1,000 for Drew and only a few less for Tilden electors. Soldiers cannot change, visitors can alter it only by fraud, or force can prevent it.

POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

A Graphic Washington dispatch says: Assistant Solicitor Robinson of the Treasury Department has been examining into the status of ex-rebel cotton tickets in several States and is to-day at least six of those on the Democratic ticket in the South have never had their political disabilities removed.

SNOW STORM.

BOSTON, November 21.—The snow storm which raged along the coast last night with great severity, continued this morning. Only one shipwreck is known as yet to have occurred, and that was of a small schooner. The fate of the crew or where the vessel hailed from, is not yet known.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st. 87.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Sir and Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LOUISIANA SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Quality," and find from the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its composition no adulterations such as paraffine and resin have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours, (Signed) CHAS HOHR.

Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that in fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

River News.

The Mary Boyd, from Turkey Shoals, brought in 205 bales cotton, and 149 sacks cotton seed to Spaulding & Co., and 100 sacks to Lake & Marshall besides the usual list of sundries and several passengers.

The Lotus No. 2, from Tompkins' Landing, arrived with 350 bales cotton, 145 sacks cotton seed to Spaulding & Co., a tolerable list of sundries and a few passengers.

The steamer W. S. Holt the pride of the river fleet, went out last evening with a large freight and several passengers.

The Mary Boyd, Captain Woodie Stone, left last evening for the Warrior river with a fair freight and several passengers.

The Sam J. Tilden, having been released by the United States marshal left last evening in a southerly direction. Powt river carrying a few passengers and pulling a tow.

Colonel Jno. Little Smith, after presiding at the meeting of the board of alderman last Tuesday night, took the train for Chattanooga.

The Late Judge Rapier.

On the opening of the circuit court yesterday morning the obituary committee reported the following testimonial

"On motion of and by recommendation of the Mobile bar, the undersigned were appointed by the honorable circuit court of Mobile and by the honorable city court of Mobile a committee to prepare suitable testimonials to express their sentiments at the death of their late associate and former judge, Charles W. Rapier.

"In the performance of this service they feel the inadequacy of any formal action properly expressing their sentiments of respect for his character as a lawyer and as a judge, or their regard for him as a man and a fellow citizen.

"This occasion presents no opportunity for a proper display of that. We therefore shall say only as much as will place upon the records of this court, a brief testimonial of his presence; services and death among us. He was born in Nelson in the State of Kentucky in 1819, and removed to Mobile, Alabama, in 1846, when he engaged in the practice of the law, in which he continued until his death in October, 1876, with the exception that in 1853 he was elected to the office of the circuit court for the sixth judicial district of Alabama, which he held until 1858, a period of thirty-four years, fifteen years of which was as judge of the Mobile circuit.

"His office as a lawyer and his bed or death were within four hundred yards of the court room where he practiced and presided. Esteemed and honored for his amiable propriety in his practice, his unobtrusive fairness, his patience and unswerving indifference to the parties in the causes tried before him, and the utter abnegation of himself in the settlement of controversies and in the preparation of causes for the appellate courts in his determination of what had taken place during the trial, present him in these respects as a model, and worthy of imitation.

Your committee present these few remarks and request the court that they may be spread on the minutes of this court, and that the court do now adjourn for this day; and that copies of these proceedings may be furnished to the family of the deceased as a testimonial of the respect and esteem in which he was held by his associate members of the bar."

The names of Alex McKinstry, E. S. Dargan and D. C. Anderson, committee of the circuit court and Jno. T. Taylor and G. Y. Overall, committee of the city court were signed to the above.

Judge Dargan, Judge Elliott, Colonel Geo. N. Stewart and Major Percy Walker, of the Mobile bar, followed in touching and appropriate remarks.

Judge Toulmin, of the circuit court, in expressing his sentiments, said:

"Gentlemen of the Bar—The court is sensible that every mark of respect is due to the memory of the late Hon. Charles W. Rapier, and cordially unite with you in the resolutions which you have presented to offer, in commemoration of his public services and private worth.

"Many years of Judge Rapier's life were passed in the public service and it was more particularly connected with the judicial bench of the government. For more than thirteen years he occupied this bench, and throughout this long service, his life was marked by its purity, integrity and disinterested devotion to the public good. How eminently appropriate then, that we should unite in the honors proposed to his memory.

"As a magistrate, Judge Rapier was conscientious, painstaking, impartial and enlightened, and during the many years he was judge of this court he uniformly discharged his high duties with fidelity and ability, and with an unswerving love of justice. No stain blurred the pure ermine which he wore, but he always commanded the highest respect and justly enjoyed the entire confidence of the bar and the public.

"As a lawyer, he was sound in judgment, safe in counsel, honest as an adviser and earnest as an advocate. His intercourse with his professional brethren was ever courteous, kind and conciliatory, and although gentle and kind in his intercourse with others, he could be stern enough when the public interests or his personal honor required it.

Judge Rapier possessed in a high degree those qualities of personal character which contribute to the formation of "a good man." To true and fervent patriotism, to love of right and devotion to principle he added a temper reverential to the feelings and the rests of others. He was a man without guile; the soul of sincerity and honor. His "actions, looks, words, steps, form the alphabet by which we spell his character."

"While we lament his death and cherish his memory, let us endeavor to emulate his virtues, and let us indulge the hope that the light of his example may illuminate our path and lead us to "an end that shall become one day."

"The court directs the testimonial which has been presented, to be entered on the minutes of the court, and will adjourn for the day without transacting any business."

The court was then adjourned till ten o'clock this morning.

The alarm of fire yesterday morning was occasioned by a conflagration across the creek, outside of the city limits.

The New York Tribune declares that Tilden did not receive a majority of the popular votes. It arrives at this conclusion, by omitting the majorities of the Southern States "Rebels" ought not to be counted.

The Manvilla Mystery.

Deputy Sheriff Moore went to Jackson, Mississippi, a few days ago, and obtained a requisition from the governor of that state to enable him to bring down from Meridian, where they are now in jail, Russell Stewart and Augustus Wood, charged with the murder of the unknown man found dead near the Mobile and Ohio Railroad track at Manvilla.

The sheriff of Lauderdale county refused to give up the prisoners unless he was paid their board and jail fees, and so Mr. Moore came back without them.

The mystery hanging over this case may be cleared up some time. When Coroner Harwell went up there to hold an inquest, he could find no one to make an affidavit that there was reasonable cause to believe that the death was the result of violence. Under the new law, really enacted to reduce the fees of the coroner of Mobile county, but ostensibly for economy purposes, the coroner is shorn of his power to summon juries. Two or three citizens, who saw the man before he died, expressed the opinion that he came to his death from natural causes, as there were no bruises but an abrasion of the skin.

The Meridian Mercury says:

"The murdered man was on a train conducted by a man name not given. After the man had been beaten on the train until he was nearly dead, he stopped it and tenderly put him off, and was considerate enough to lay him some feet from the track, as a precaution against his rolling on the track in his agony, in the way of a passing train. We are credibly informed that, in the plenitude of his commiseration for the unfortunate man, after he had put him out on the cold, cold ground, in the agonies of death, he thoughtfully provided him with a pillow—got an old discharged cross-tie near by and put it under his head."

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 3182 bales.

The noon report of the Board of Trade was: "Market quiet and unchanged. Fair demand and offerings. Only sales—about 1200 bales."

Closing report: Sales today 3000 bales. Market closed quiet and weak for better grades, and steady for lower grades. Fair demand and supply.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominal, ordinary nominal; good ordinary 10¼ and 10¾; low middling 10¾; middling 11; good middling 11¼.

A Sharp Boy.

The fate of two girls hangs upon the result of this election. Both are said to be residents of a sister city. One is poor and the other is estimated at about $40,000 in the matrimonial market. A gallant young Democrat has been paying attentions to both. Both are in love with him. The parents of both have got tired of the young man's inability to decide for himself. Each in turn called upon the "Imperial" latter and desired a settlement of the affair or the discontinuance of the visits. The old gentleman eased his son into "the office" and told him that matters had come to such a crisis that he must decide which of the two girls he would marry.

"I can not decide till after the election."

"Why? What has the election to do with your marriage?" asked the "paterfam."

"All to do with it, sir; I am going to marry the richest one."

"Then why don't you marry Miss—; she's worth $40,000, and Miss—ain't worth a red."

"Look on, old man; I know Miss—is worth $40,000, but then you see Miss—'s mother lived in the South during the war, and the soldiers stole her hens."

"Well, what the d—l has that to do with this case?"

"Well, you see each one of those twelve hens laid an egg a day; that's 4380 eggs the first year. The next year there are 4380 chickens; say half of them roosters, she would have had 2202 hens, who would have laid an egg a day; there's 208,000 eggs the next year. Another year she would have had almost 4,000,000 dozen eggs; and I tell you, dad, eggs is money. Just think of what that old woman would have been worth if the soldiers hadn't stole her hens. If Tilden's elected, the old woman is going to put in a claim for $4,837,121,321,873, and that claim is good. I tell you, dad, I wouldn't marry any girl with $40,000 against such spleit did chances as these."—Portland (Oregon) Bee.

Municipal Taxation—The Question of its Reduction.

NUMBER 3.

THE REMEDY.

If it be true then, that these evils do exist, and that a remedy is now an imperious necessity, the next question which arises is this: Is there any just means, even of partial relief, to which the people can appeal? Relief can come but in one way, so far as municipal taxation is concerned, and that is by a decided reduction for the future, and by an equitable settlement of what remains due from the past. If this be done, the result, which must immediately follow, will be a reduction of the sum now paid as interest on the city debt and of the sum now expended in administrative expenses—of each in its order.

THE DEBT.

So far as the first question is concerned, we must meet it without circumlocution. No man can doubt the sincerity or the wisdom of the big-hearted, big-headed, earnest man by whom this funding scheme was devised and defined, but to err in judgment concerning public affairs in times like these, when the data of fact upon which the mind must dwell is constantly shrinking and shifting is eminently human. Certainly, in the light of subsequent events, it now becomes apparent to almost every man that, in the structure of this scheme, one fatal error was committed; an overestimate of the ability of this people to pay. The fact that this city, in its present condition, cannot pay the enormous sum of $170,000 per annum on her public debt, is a fact which has become so apparent to those who have at all considered it, that in the current discussions of the question, scarcely any one requires an argument to be convinced. If this be true then, the present plan will soon perish of itself and the issue between the bondholders and the city will arise by the force of natural causes. Sooner or later the issue must come. Is it not far wiser and better for the interests of all to abandon the hopeless, exhausting struggle, and to come at once to the true basis of honesty and mutual interest—the actual ability of the people to pay? Where is the standard by which this ability is to be measured and ascertained? As we all know, the State debt, which exceeded thirty millions, has been funded and reduced to ten millions, upon which, for the next five years, we are to pay but 2 per cent. This debt, like our own, consisted of different classes of obligations classes of obligations—some direct, some collateral, but the equities were all settled and the entire debt reduced two-thirds in amount, and the interest for the present three-fourths. Was not all this done by the best and wisest in the State, and did not the public creditors consent without much difficulty, and do we not see the wisdom and fairness of this measure in the result? Now, upon what principle of justice or fair dealing can the city of Mobile be denied the right to abandon the present scheme, which in all probability can never be consummated, and to adopt the basis upon which the State has successfully, and with justice to her people, settled all her obligations? If these principles be applied, these results will follow: the whole city debt, which amounted to something over three millions before the funding began, can be refunded and reduced to a sum not to exceed one million; and on this one million, for the next five years, we will only be required to pay two per cent. Thus a yearly reduction of $150,000 would be accomplished, so far as the payments on the debt are concerned. We will then be more just to our creditors, for we bear at least one fifth of that burthen besides our own. If this policy was successfully carried out, the city would only be required to pay $20,000 per annum on her public debt; instead of the enormous sum of $170,000, which will be required under the present arrangement.

REDUCTION OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.

Let us now consider the reduction of the administrative expenses. It it be true that this city is in such a condition of prostration that she is obliged to ask the indulgence of her creditors, it is but reasonable and just that she should abandon all extravagance in the municipal administration! A municipal government we must have, adequate to administer the police power, the sanitary system, the fire department and such other agencies as are indispensable to the public health and public safety But these privileges should be indulged in, for the present, in moderation, and with the greatest possible economy.

The budget of estimated standing expenses for the current year (Auditor's estimate) is.....$214,900

This sum should be, and can be, reduced to the sum of.....$150,000

This would be a reduction of more than 25 per cent. An absolute reduction on all items indiscriminately of more than 25 per cent. might be imprudent; but those items which should be subjected to even a greater reduction, would compensate for such as should be more lightly touched. Take, for instance, the Police Department. According to the last annual report of the Chief, the force numbered ninety-one members. The Auditor estimates the expense of the force for the current year, at $74,000. Can any one doubt that in times of such tranquility as these, that fifty policemen, exclusive of the Chief, could adequately perform this duty? Can the city undertake to pay a greater sum than $40 per month for this service, and can any one doubt, when so many competent men are eager for work, that in a day the desired number could be employed? If this be true, $30,000 per annum would a liberal allowance, against the extravagant sum of $74,000 now expended. The $44,000 which can be saved on this item, would compensate for the moderate reductions which would have to be made on account of such necessities as the health and fire departments

If then the whole administrative expense can be reduced to, say.....$150,000

The total sum to be paid on the debt to.....20,000

This sum then of.....$170,000 would be the total amount which would have to be raised each year by taxation; against the sum of $384,000 now demanded, a reduction of more than one half.

POSSIBLE REDUCTION OF TAXATION.

What would then be the possible reduction of the existing rate of taxation! The total taxable property of the city for the year 1875 was put down at.....$18,272,841 00

A tax of ½ of 1 per cent. would produce.....136,887 00

Deduct $9,887 for contingencies.....9,887 00

Net revenue from this source.....$150,000 00

Of course as the taxes are diminished, the possibility of their prompt collection will increase; and, as we will hereafter see, the back taxes can be made an available fund to supply all deficiencies in this account.

THE LICENSE TAX.

There is no form, perhaps, which taxation can assume, in which it is more obnoxious to the tax-paying than in that of a license tax upon the mere exercise of every industry or occupation. The license tax upon the city, all told, amounts to about $55,000. Under the scheme proposed, every man's license tax could be reduced one-half, making this item.....$27,500

The market revenue, now estimated at $11,000, is practically a tax on food, and should be reduced to.....5,500

The police fines are estimated at.....2,500

Estimated receipts from Powder magazine.....1,000

Estimated receipts from cemeteries.....3,500

Add to this property tax....150,000

$40,000

And we will have the sum of $190,000 to provide for the estimated disbursement of $170,000.

CONSUMPTION,

A trial box of Mr. Risner's celebrated Consumption Powders will be sent free, by mail, post paid, to every sufferer from the above disease. This is the only preparation known to cure or benefit the Disease.

Price for large box $2.00.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate can make it last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than as shingles without the slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The slate is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands for heat, contracts by cold, and never cracks nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

therefore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. It is known as the cheapest shingle to bring to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, on tin, iron, &c., and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it in two hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are blue-black in color, we have to obtain our gumtine article, which (for shingle roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint.

TIN ROOFS

BRICK WALLS

Our ancient RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on cottages and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BISCUIT BLUE AND UMBER.

A Methodist clergyman at Livonia, N. Y., is paid regularly every week by his congregation. Each pew-holder is provided with envelopes in which to deposit each week's pro rata tax for the minister's support.

This is a good idea, and might with advantage be generally adopted.

We are indebted to the Hon. S. C. Mulkon for a pamphlet copy of the "Revised Code of Alabama, passed by the General Assembly at the Session of 1875-76. With Index and General Instructions." As well as we can judge, after a cursory examination, this little pamphlet has been drawn up with much care. It has side-notes to each paragraph, and a copious index, which is a work of the kind is the essential thing to make it handy.

INTIMIDATION.

England, it is said, is about to throw 25,000 troops into Constantinople, to protect that city from real or supposed designs. The place is now being made strong to resist any designs of Russia. With this and the grand, brave fleet of England at hand, it will go hard if Russia be not made impotent in the business. This preparation for the service will check any attempt on the part of the other to accomplish what, it seems to us, is not possible. England, after all, holds the peace of the world in her hands.

Without her assent, war will be fruitless on the European continent.

MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

The third number in respect of "Municipal Taxation," will be found in this morning's paper. It is worthy of consideration. The reader may not accept all of its conclusions, but its figures are indisputable. These never lie when they are used by honest men.

We are hanging on to the election of a President. Some people think the world will speedily come to an end unless this or that man shall be made president. There is much in this apprehension of evil, but there is something superior to it; that is the security of our own households.

One desires to see the general government managed with honest purposes. Every citizen will rejoice when the administration at Washington shall be so conducted as to enforce even the respect of the partisans who oppose it.

But, after all, Mobile is more to us than the general government. With tight taxes and skilful uses of what we get, we can easily bear the evils that may come from the Capital—for those evils are on all parts of the country. It is for us to get rid of burdens which are carried here in this city of Mobile. Take as much as possible of them from our shoulders, and then there may be more stimulus to the industries which may exceed the value of our cotton traffic.

There is only one vote necessary to make Mr. Tilden president. This vote is to be found within one of the three states—S. Carolina, Florida or Louisiana. These three states are controlled by Republican officers. The certification of the electors must be got from the Governors.

All these three governors are in pursuit or that one vote, and the three, putting their heads together, and leaving their morals in abeyance, are now trying to get that one.

This is the substance of the trouble which lies between the two parties.

There are courts to appeal to—supreme courts—but what can one expect of them, if they be in love with the profits of the Republican party. These men of the courts are generally like other men. They have their price. It is possible that they have taken it.

Louisiana is still in doubt. The Florida managers have given their decision. So also have the managers in South Carolina, in the last state excluding Gen. Hampton from the office of Governor. Well, he is a man who will not submit to injustice—a wise, brave patriotic man—He will not stand still and see his state cheated out of its representation—not because he has been a candidate, but because he knows that he was elected and because he loves his state and is sure that the colored men of the state, when not bought up, would prefer him for governor to the man that is now there at the head, and who is ready to certify to anything which will hold himself in his place. This is the reason why Gen. Hampton has been counted out. He would give honest certificates to the electors, and so, to make the baseness "thick and slab," they have counted him out. He is not a man to be treated in this fraudulent way. He could go to-day through South Carolina, and make even the negroes rebellious. He desires nothing but justice, and we think that in order to prevent all the contrivances to get that one vote, he and other brave and honorable men will be sufficient.

INTIMIDATION.

The great instrument in use for neutralizing the vote of the Tilden electors in Louisiana was that easy assertion that men were intimidated within certain of the parishes by a dozen, as they call it over there. It is becoming apparent that colored men of the Republican persuasion bulldozed those of the Democratic faith. Some of the colored citizens of those parishes are coming forward to give their testimony of the fact, and thus it appears probable that the tables will be turned.

Whether or not, we can hardly refuse any legal or moral reason why none except colored men, should receive all the government protection We have seen white men in Mobile refused the privilege of voting, and on this account the polling was not considered invalid. If the colored man has a right to the suffrage, he ought to insist on it; or subsequently find why it is denied to him. We don't know how it is in Louisiana, but here no colored man—whatever his party prejudices may be—need fear a rejection of his vote, if, disputed, he proves his right to it. And this, we suppose, is generally true of New Orleans and the interior parishes of Louisiana. In some of those parishes there are large sugar plantations, and on them a great many employes—running up as high as two or four hundred, on the largest of them. Now, it is not at all improper for the owners to go among their laborers to ask them to vote in a particular way. If this were a wrong, there is hardly a white or a colored man in Mobile who could not be made by knaves the subject of intimidation.

Plenty of knaves, at a dollar a head, can be found in Louisiana to swear of intimidation; and it is by the oaths of these ignorant men, used by those more astute knaves of a white color, that the country is being brought to the verge of civil war.

We are not without hope that the result will be as all good men of all parties desire, that is that there shall be an honest return of the votes, whether it be in favor of Tilden or of Hayes.

How they do it at the North and elsewhere among the virtuous states, may be seen by the following:

The following letter was sent by the superintendent of the "Howe Sewing Machine Company" from Rochester, N. Y., to their agent at Rutland, Vt., just before the late election.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1876.
To the Rutland Office:

We wish you to discharge any of your subordinates who vote the Democratic ticket. We believe that the success of the Democratic party will be the ruin of our company and business, and will not support any one who will not do all he can for this. This is a struggle between the intelligent and respectable portion of the community and the ignorant and roughs of the cities.

Mr. Stockwell fully concurs with me in the above.

(Signed) GEO. R. PETTIBONE.

Write to all your agents to the above effect and what we wish.

(Signed) GEO. R. PETTIBONE.

The company which issued this positive order is composed, it is to be supposed, of men of intelligence—of little above the level of our poor people of the South. There is no doubt of it, and, granting all of it to them, why the device should those political jugglers in New Orleans be trying to make the world and the rest of mankind believe that it is a great crime to try, not by a threat of discharge, but by simple persuasion, to induce ignorant men to vote as intelligence chooses to recommend?

There are in Louisiana reckless men, as there are every where—but men who take no thought of what great harm—especially now—they may do to the peace of the country. They are white and black, and all of them would be useful to the country, if they were hanged.

In the streets of Brussels steam is used to draw the cars.

Cardinal Antonelli, it is reported, left property worth 30,000,000 francs. The Pope was near him in the "article" of death, and wept when his skilful servator was about to leave him. The Cardinal was a grand man, and there are few of the wise heads to fill the place which he managed with admirable skill.

There is a doubtful character in Rhode Island, but the Governor of it says that the laws give authority to fill the place of any person that may be disabled to take his place in the Electoral College. We, therefore, count R. I. for Hayes and Wheeler.

The busiest part of the city is on Government street. They are tearing up the old iron and putting down a T rail. After this shall have been accomplished, we shall have the best road in the city. The Messrs. Moog are not sleepy people; and those who overlook the work are skilled in their business.

THE LATEST GOSSIP.

American Press Association dispatches embrace interesting gossip, as follows:

INELIGIBILE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Post's Washington special says that a dispatch from New Orleans states that ex-Governor Wickliffe, one of the Democratic electors at large for Louisiana, is found to be ineligible, Congress not having removed his disabilities for participation in the rebellion. Mr. Wickliffe asserts, however, that he is eligible on the ground that he took the oath of allegiance when Banks was in command of New Orleans, before the close of the war. The Republicans claim that taking an oath of allegiance does not come within the requirements of the constitution, and that before any person who participated in the Rebellion can be an elector, his disabilities must be removed by Congress.

THE NEXT HOUSE.

The Commercial's Washington special says that, according to the latest reliable information received here, the next House will stand, when first called to order, 148 Republicans and 145 Democrats, and that by the time the elections and contested seats are settled, the Republican majority in the House will be increased to 23.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Legislature meets on the last Tuesday in November, and there is likely to be two governments, one presided over by Hampton and the other by Chamberlain, as there was in Arkansas a few years ago. There are thirteen companies of United States troops at Columbia, which will be enough to prevent blood shed.

RAILROAD SIGNAL.

The new invention, called the Electric Railroad Signal, of Mr. J. J. Conklin, is attracting the attention of railroad men, and promises to supersede the flagman. These sig nals are placed along the line of roads, about one mile apart, and operate by electricity, the danger signal being displayed the instant a train passes the signal station, being reversed when the train has safely passed the next station. The engineer is thus warned of any open switches or other danger, and can avert disaster.

ALECK STEPHENS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—Hon Alex. H. Stephens, of Georgia, is expected in Washington to-morrow night. He will take his old quarters at the National Hotel. Being still in feeble health, he is coming North by easy stages, stopping over at some point every night. Last night he is supposed to have rested at Knoxville, Tennessee. To-night he will probably stop at Lynchburg. It is possible he may come via, Richmond, in which case his arrival here will be delayed.

NATIONAL BANKS.

Receipts of National bank notes by the redemption agency, for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1876, amounted to $204,299, 875.94, a net increase of $63,878,205.46 over the preceding year.

The following is a statement of credits to National banks in 5 per cent. funds: United States currency deposited with the Assistant Treasurer, $105,134,838.57; United States currency received by express, $19,048,491.62; National bank notes received by express, $52,643,075.00; Checks received at counter, $96,498,965.

The expenses incurred by the Redemption Agency, and assessed upon the banks during the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1876, in carrying into effect the provisions of section 3, of the act approved June 30, 1874, foot up $365,193.31.

APPROPRIATIONS.

The House committee on appropriations did not meet today on account of the absence of the chairman, Randall, who is expected to morrow. The estimates of all the departments are in the possession of the deficiency and legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bills. The estimates call for $25,000,000 more than last year's appropriations, or in round numbers $175,000,000 as against $150,000,000 appropriation at the last session of Congress.

As assassination of Mr. Lyon,

Our readers will remember a statement made these columns a few days since, concerning the murder of Mr. Lyon, near Crawford, in Russell county, Alabama. It was to the effect that the murderer of Mr. Lyon, Mrs. Lyon, the wife of the deceased, and Mr. and Mrs. Davis the parents of Mrs. Lyon—all his accomplices—will take place Monday morning at 10 o'clock, at Crawford, Russell county, Alabama. It was to have taken place Saturday, but on motion of the State it was postponed MEINIKA'S CONFESSION IN SUBSTANCE.

Meinika was arrested Tuesday in Opelika and imprisoned. While in jail he disclosed the entire plot of the murder and his accomplices in the same. He wholly exonerated old Mrs. Davis and says that Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Lyon have been urging him and off ring $500 since last May to commit the deed; but he did not until a short time ago, get his consent to do so. Davis and wife and deceased lived on the Lyon plantation near Crawford, while Mrs. Lyon resided in Opelika. He (Meinika) was escorted by Mrs. Davis Friday the 10th instant, on the place, and was to have committed the foul deed on Friday night, but his courage failed him, some dregs of conscience were still within him and he had not banished all the feeling of humanity. Mrs. Davis had given him a musket belonging to Mr. Davis, loaded with iron slugs, and he was to shoot out of the window as he (Lyon) went out to the well for some water, but he lacked the brute-heartedness. On (Saturday) Mrs. Davis called him as servely for his wavering and ineffective conduct. Saturday night, he repeated reproaches and an assurance of the $500 reward, he committed the horrible tragedy, while the latter man was going to the well, as was his custom, and fled. He knew nothing of Terry (a man whom it is reported Mrs. Lyon desired to marry) being concerned in the plot, but supposed that he had fled.

MRS. MEINIKA CORROBORATES HIM.

Mrs. Meinika corroborated her husband's statement, with the exception of his manuevrings upon the tragic spot, of which she knew nothing, as she was in Opelika. She is privy to the entire plot.

Mrs. Lyon and her parents, Mr and Mrs. Davis, are secured in the court house by a strong guard. Meinika is guarded in the hotel.

There is no talk of lynching, but the people are clamorous for speedy justice.

No promises were made to Meinika of less punishment would make a sweeping confession, but it is thought that it would otherwise have been.

Col. James F. Waddell of Seal, is for the State and Col. William Sanford of Opelika, for defense.

The deceased had given his wife a home and lot in Opelika and a home stead on his lands and owned 2,000 acres besides.

The murder of the good old King, Duncan in Macbeth is the only parallel in history to this foul and hellish deed.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate, is made to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without this slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about one cost of simply laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying cinders, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER cracks nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, white on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

therefore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. UNSLED OR WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in foll roofs, stops the leaks—and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for sale by roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR.

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. ON

TIN ROOFS

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For our PATENT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced and will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the surface.

BRICK WALLS

These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on floor boards &c.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BROWN RED and ORANGE.

Yesterday some people thought that there would be snow.

We are indebted to Hon. W. A Shields for copies of public documents.

Oranges are very abundant in New Orleans. The poorer kinds are sold on the streets at five cents a dozen.

The steamboat Grand Republic has arrived at New Orleans, with a wonderful cargo, namely, 6300 bales of cotton and 14,000 sacks of cotton seed. There were also what is called "sundries."

There is no essential change in the political phase of the three disputed states. It will be right after awhile. The conspirators are beginning to think that they are a little in advance of the time for their purpose.

THE ELECTION.

Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will be pleased to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

The death of Captain John Parham is one of the links which are breaking between us and the past. How long he had dwelt, a live man, within this community is not known to us; but he occupied many positions of trust, and as far as our knowledge extends never failed to do his duty in them. He was a very courteous gentleman, and of a curious disposition—could get a man's opinions without apparently looking for or wanting them. In methods of bonhommie there are few of our citizens who are better known than he was.

The link is broken; and it is likely that there will be other broken links. Well, there is some consolation in the belief that the grave is respected, and that the body of a man lying therein only feeds the soil. The spiritual part of it lives—goes somewhere—here is not for us to say. We know this, however, that a good man may be on his death-bed, and wrap the drapery of his couch around him, and lie down to pleasant dreams. Something like this is said by our very old poet, Bryant.

Rest! rest! rest! This is the desire of most men. It can be found near the place where the body of Parham lies. Get there or any where else under the sod, and then the bank discounts will give you no trouble.

We have received two numbers of what is entitled "Potter's American Monthly." It is published in Philadelphia, at a subscription price of $3 00 a year. The pages are larger than those of any magazine within the United States, and as hand-somely printed as are those of any other. It is also elegantly illustrated by engravings—out of the imagination, but of places and things which exist and that one would like to see. The matter of the magazine is in harmony with its ample pages and admirable typography. Its literary criticisms are excellent, for the reason that the writers of them do not seem to think that ignorance of a book is an essential element for the proper criticising of it. In short, we hardly know any publication of the kind that is better fitted for the instruction and diversion of families, from the critical paterfamilias to the younger people whom it is desirable to give knowledge and literary instruction to. It is not exactly like the current monthlies, and in its departure from the humdrum style, it has made itself especially worthy of consideration.

THE CENTENNIAL.

Up to the 17th instant, the receipts of money by the Centennial Exposition from all sources were $4,308,735 24. The Chinese government has made a present to the U. States of the chief valuables that it had in the show.

The Exposition made no money directly, out indirectly it gave an impetus to Philadelphia, which will find in various ways much profit. The truth is the Quaker City holds a great many things which relate to the time when the country was strug gling to emancipate itself from the thraldom of England. These are shown to the visitors, and they think that there is something in them to reinspire the patriotism of which they are the symbols. That is of the long ago.

Long! Why only a hundred years. There are men now living who were born a century ago; and we seem to think that the life of a nation has acquired old age when it shall have stood one hundred years. Why, Mobile has that many years on its back. It has grown, and now it is a question whether it may not shrink up, having acquired so many years. One hundred! The longitude of a man's life! We are making a fuss because this country has had an independent existence of one century! and in this very century and birthday there is an appurtenance among thoughtful men that there will never be another centennial.

There is now not much left of what was begun by the Fathers. By numerous additions to the constitution, it is thought that it was improved. By these so-called improvements the substantial quality of it was removed, and now it is a new thing. Before the end of the coming centennial, which we are going towards, there will not be a word of the origin left. That original will be, in some degree, like on. Confederate notes. We have got some of them, and not to keep them until sometimes, or other person, shall offer a price for them: cent. per cent.

This seems to be jesting with a very grave subject. The sentiments of some men may not have the depth of feeling which sometimes underlies a jest.

Hood, a man of much wit and humor, and inimitable genius, was a serious man. Grimaldi, the great clown, who kept all London in a roar was a very sad man. He took his own life.

Here we are in a country which we desire to love, and everywhere around us we see nothing but demagogues controlling, or trying to control, it, and, we, poor fools, who can now grow wiser than we five are not afraid to subscribe our name, and defy you to do your best, and, what is more, we are all American born.

ELIHU GOODWIN,
SAM HEATH,
CHARLES HUNT,
JAMES KERR,
PHIL LISK.

The fact is the fraud bet ays itself. No man would put his name to such a threat. It ought to have been signed KoKlux. That is a word which politicians conjure by.

"TRAMPS."

The northern States are more troubled by "tramps" than those of the South. The New York World says:

"Sixteen Tramps were counted on an eastward bound freight train as it passed the Union Depot in Elizabeth on Tuesday night, and each arriving train from Philadelphia and the West brings additional detachments, all bound for "Gotham." Camden and Trenton papers announce the presence of large numbers in those cities, the greater portion seeming to be on the wing eastward, where visions of soup-houses and free lodgings during the winter are doubtless the incentive. Throughout New Jersey the poor masters have made arrangements to provide assistance only to the deserving needy of their respective districts, and strange applicants for county, town or city aid are satisfactorily rejected. The law is a deserving, will move with equal ease in town. There are authorities of New York, Elizabeth Princeton, Trenton, New Brunswick and Jersey City have also taken action on the tramp question, and it seems to be their determination to close the station-house against tramps this winter. The Board of Street Safety House in Elizabeth, which in former has been the haven of rest for myriads of homeless and penniless tramps, has been sealed against their presence. Last night after night jolly, hearty-looking specimens of humanity, may be seen standing by the gate seeking to the subject of the soup-house, awaiting hopelessly for the appearance of old Richardson, the Judge Keeper. When informed that the place is shut up they wander around the street and eventually find their faces in the direction of the "Hitchen," a dreary spot in the swamp just above the Western Depot, where during the summer hundreds have found shelter beneath the oak and willow trees. Of late, however, their depredations among the farmers of that vicinity have become so innumerable that many of the unfortunates have been frightened away by threats and no. few stop over night at this point.

A few of the old "professionals" who habitually infest New York and the other old New Jersey during the summer months, have wandered like the swallows to a warmer climate to spend the winter and will return reinvigorated and reinforced for next year's campaign. It is estimated that there are 50,000 tramps in New York at the present time, and more are arriving daily. How they will live this winter is a question for the authorities to answer.

If Grant intends to make a military despotism of the government, here is a fine field for recruits.

Walks Around town.

Go to Pincus for a holding suit. He sells clothing cheap.

About twenty Alabamians left Montgomery last Monday for Texas.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad yesterday 6 hogsheads of sugar were received.

Sixteen gin houses have been burned in Alabama since the first of last September.

Johan Bluger sells very fine manufactured gaiters for gentlemen's wear at $4 50 a pair.

In the circuit court today Judge Toulmin presiding, the motion docket will be called.

Go to Crosbie's, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson and order a week's supply of groceries.

Mr. W. H. H. Judson, business manager and joint proprietor of the New Orleans Times, was in Mobile yesterday.

The opening of the bowling alley, this evening, at the Bank Saloon, corner Royal and Conti, promises a game that was very popular in Mobile twenty years ago, when there were no less than five bowling alleys in operation at the same time, and each one was crowded every night. That was in the "flush times" of Mobile. It is a healthy exercise and calculated to develop all the muscles of the human body, and stimulate the brain into activity, for the reason that it requires judgment to know how and when to to throw the ball.

The wife of Mr. Cecil Fleming died at Jackson Tennessee Wednesday night, and Mr. Fleming was summoned there by telegraph.

Stop grumbling. Drive away the blues. Keep moving, keep pawing, keep doing. Something actually income is infinitely better than nothing.

Justice McCormick had a Whistler free-love case before him yesterday, where the wife of a man who sought stolen sweets, had the frail one fair one arrested.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday, 50 bales oil, 1 car stock, 1 car wool, 100 barrels lime and 32 sacks rice, a portion of it it for Mountain & Sons rice mill.

The roof of a kitchen on the premises of John Horres, Franklin near Charleston, was on fire yesterday morning, but the fire was extinguished before any material damage was done.

The Mobile Cadets paraded Thursday night, and with the First Regiment Brass Band, honored the Tribune with a midnight serenade. The music was excellent, and the courtesy was appreciated.

Only just a little above wholesale rates are the prices of W. Crosbie, southeast corner of Dauphin and Jackson streets, for the freshest fancy and family groceries to be had in any part of the city without drayage charge.

Sarah Mangel had George Coleman arrested for going to her residence, and he, in the door, threatening to beat her. Fined $5 by Justice McCormick and ordered to give bond in $100 to keep the peace six months.

There were three interments of noted men in the Magnolia Cemetery yesterday: Captain John Pacham, whose death has already been mentioned; Captain John Warner, who died of consumption, and Mr. M. M. Rowan.

Governments were instituted for the protection of the people and to guard their lives and interests, and all officials, from the highest to the lowest, are but servants of the people, responsible to the people and subject to retirecy at the will of the people.

Parents, look to your interest. The largest stock of youths' boys' and children's winter clothing, just fresh from the factory. In all styles and at low prices, at the Mammoth Clothing House, Nos. 16, 18, and 20 North Water street.

The chilly weather of the past two or three days has prompted multitudes of ex, loiterers to visit the clothing and furnishing goods store of Pincus, northeast corner of Dauphin and Royal, to purchase goods adapted to the season.

The opportunity to pay city taxes with city scrip that could be bought at a discount of from six to ten per cent., passes away with the removal of this scrip from active circulation. That is all the better for the city and the whole people

The most delinquent tax-payers here and in other cities of the south, as a rule, are those who own the most property. It has been stated that the principal owner of New Orleans, an active business man, was some forty thousand dollars in arrears for city taxes when he was elected, and for some time afterwards.

That old and reliable firm, Scranton, Barney & Co., as will be seen by advertisement, are supplied with a superior quantity of white lead, lubricating oils and axle grease. Those who need any of these articles, or anything in the line of hardware, will profit themselves by purchasing from Scranton, Barney & Co., 10, 12, 14 and 16 Commerce and Front streets.

P. H. Pepper & Co., corner Joachim and St. Francis, having resolved to continue their business, present the largest retail stock of dry goods, notions, etc., in the city, which will be sold at New York prices. As December approaches all the year people look out for cold weather, and they can prepare for it by purchase of goods for winter wear from this firm.

The producers of the country are the men who create its wealth. The mechanic who converts the raw material, whether it be wood or iron, into an increased value equal to to the labor bestowed on it, adds to the general wealth. The tiller of the soil, who gathers a crop that remunerates, his labor, adds to the general wealth. They do not live on the people, but other people live on them.

TELEGRAPH

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 24.—Gov. Wells has announced that the canvass of the Electoral vote must be completed by the 4th of December. Members of both political committees occasionally ask questions.

FROM BRIGH.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—Bismarck, in a conversation with a British member of the Parkish conference, intimated that Germany would observe a friendly neutrality in case of collision. Bismarck did not suspect the fact that he regarded the circumstance as menacing.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Times contradicts the rumor that Lord Beaconsfield resigns and that Lord Derby succeeds him, and that there are discussions in the Cabinet.

WHITTLINGS.

The anniversary of the Fenian execution in Manchester was commemorated Friday night in New York. Gen. O'Mahoney, Gen. Burke, Col. Libby and J. O'Donnell Rossa spoke. Two 69th Irish Brigade and the First Volunteers were present.

Judge Lindley, of Missouri, after argument, decided to take evidence yesterday whether the figures in the returns had been altered in the Mecasif and Frost contest from the First Congressional District.

TWEED IN JAIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Tweed, when landed from the Ferankin, was taken to Ludlow street jail through the gate and not by the office as usual. All he remarked on being placed in his cell by the warden, Watson, was: "I thought it would come and see you again." No person will be allowed to see him to night and no one but the watchman will be permitted to enter the corridor. Experience of his escape has made the officials of Ludlow Street Jail very watchful. He will be treated precisely as other prisoners, and allowed no privileges. His rooms are much smaller than those he previously occupied. The windows open on the court yard, and no access can be had to the apartment except through the warden's room, while in the corridor a watchman is continuously on guard.

COUNTERFEITS.

RICHMOND, Nov. 24.—On the persons of Long and Boland, arrested here Wednesday night with counterfeit notes, there was found $800 in counterfeit notes and $1000 more of the queer in their baggage. Among the spurious notes are fifty-dollar Treasury notes, a very fair imitation of the issue of 1869; twenty dollar Treasury notes of the second issue, and fives on the Traders' National Bank of Chicago; the latter were in part of the lot. The twenties are pronounced very dangerous.

SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 24.—The epidemic here is over, and travelers need fear no danger in coming to or passing through this city on their way to Florida or any points south. All absentees have returned, and business is going on as usual.

POLITICAL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24.—Senator Kelly, of Oregon, left here Tuesday, ostensibly for Washington. It now appears he left the train at Roseburg and took fast and stage for Oregon. It is reported he returned on summons by telegraph to assist in obtaining an injunction from the court restraining the State Board of Canvassers from issuing certificates of election to Postmaster Watts, elector on the Republican ticket. Republicans here sent U. S. District Attorney Coghlan to Portland by steam yesterday, to attend to the interests of their party.

Special to the New Orleans Democrat.

INDIANOLA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The excitement and indignation here over the fact of robbery of rights so clandestinely perpetrated by the State Canvassing Board of Canvassers yesterday are intense and unanimous. Not a voice, however partisan, is raised in apology. Democrats and Republicans alike are outspoken in severe denunciation of the bold, Prominent Republicans, who have hitherto been silent over the questionable acts of their party and its tools in the past, now openly condemn in unmeasured terms this last and crowning infamy, and declare they no longer uphold such actions or the party that encourages them.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The Tilden and Hendricks Club have abandoned their idea of a procession, so as not to give a pretext to the Administration for filling the city with troops.

Members are beginning to arrive, but the city has an air of gloom and business depression.

The action of the South Carolina canvass is condemned, even by Republicans.

Special to the Register.

SENATORIAL CONTEST.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 23.—Caucus ballots were made of Morgan, Herndon, Pugh, Watts and Houston. Watts was withdrawn on the fourth ballot. Eleven ballots and no nomination. The caucus adjourned until to-morrow night, at 7 o'clock. On the last ballot Morgan was in the lead, with forty-three votes. Seventy one necessary to a choice.

Assorted candies, a fresh arrival for family use at Owen Farley's.

Low rates of board, an excellent table, prompt attention and cosy room as fair the best hotel in the south, the Battle House.

The reporter acknowledges the receipt of an invitation to attend a grand ball and fancy dress ball of the Mobile Soiree Association on the evening of the 29th instant at Turner Hall.

The longshoreman of New Orleans are on a strike. About two thousand of them marched in procession. They committed no violence. All work on the levee wastopped. Cotton that had been sent to it for shipment had to be taken back to the presses.

The young gentlemen and older people who want to enjoy a rollicking, lively, jolly performance should go to the Mobile Varieties this evening. Every performer is a star, and every star glitters: May Hendley, Clara May, Chris Mathews, J. H. Cooke, Dick Roberts and a host of talented artists in song, dance, farce and comedy. Admission 25 cents.

River news.

The steamer Peerless, from Selma, arrived with 319 bales cotton, a good list of sundries and several passengers.

The Lulu D., from Montgomery arrived with 694 bales cotton, 100 sacks cotton seed for Spaulding & Co., a shoe list of sundries and several passengers.

The D. L. Tally, from Wright's Landing, arrived with 264 bales cotton, 23 sacks cotton seed, a little list of sundries and some passengers. The officers of the Tally report four feet of water.

The Lulu D, with Captain Owen Finnegan as master and Mr. P. J. Lyons as clerk, will leave this evening at five o'clock sharp for Selma and Montgomery. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The flagship D. L. Tally, of Frank Stone's Grange Line, will leave this evening at five o'clock. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Peerless, for Selma, went out last evening with a good freight.

Mince meat, in packages from five to two hundred pounds, at Owen Farley's.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 2817 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was: Market quiet and steady. Limited demand and fair supply. Sales about 600 bales.

Closing report: Sales to-day 1200 bales and 500 last evening. Market closed quiet and easy. Limited demand and fair offering.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominally ordinary nominal; good ordinary 10¾ and 10¾; low middling 10¾; middling 11; and 11¼; good middling 11¾; middling 11¾ and 11¾; fair nominal 12¾.

The cotton receipts at Mobile for the last week were 22,918 bales, against 21,491 the week previous.

The cotton receipts here since September have been 148,945 bales. Exports during that period 93,545 bales. Stock on hand and on ship board not cleared 55,709 bales.

Apple, peach and quince butter, in five pound cans, at Owen Farley's.

A Nice Little Bill.

When Mr. Sou bworth went from Mobile to New Orleans and was appointed a United States Commissioner, it was thought his fortune has made. But the following from the Picayune of yesterday leaves the matter of fat fees in doubt:

The two weak precincts to the election were a season of apparent harvest for United States Commissioner Southworth. The ten thousand affidavitsoned were a golden prospect, and though he was unable to reach the one-fifteenth part of them, the prospective results pecuniarily on the cases tried were not to be sneezed at.

It turns out, however, that the Commissioner's hopes are blighted; at least the outlook is not at all encouraging. He presented his bills to Judge Billings for approval, but the latter refused to indorse them, stating that it must have been evident to the Commissioner that the affidavits were fraudulent.

Judge Billings remained inexorable in this opinion and refused to approve the bills, and as a last resort Mr. Southworth requested that he would not indorse his refusal, as Judge Woods might be more lenient. It does not appear that Judge Billings complied with this request or not.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in it man'facture some best pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs. Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of these soap made by said local Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of the city, I have no occasion in stating, that the fact of their good and pure quality is fully established.

Fall of a Theatre Floor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 19.—A dispatch from Sacramento says last night during a performance at Moore's Opera House the floor gave way, killing seven and wounding about one hundred spectators. The opera house was situated over a large livery stable on Second street, between J and K and L and was formerly used as the State Armory. It had recently been converted into a theatre by putting up a gallery and tier boxes, making the hall capable of seating 1,000 persons. The floor was unsupported, except by the usual beam A vaudeville troupe had engaged the theatre, and it being the opening of the establishment, the house was crowded soon after the performance began. A sudden sinking of the floor was noticed, accompanied by the cracking of beams, and directly the entire auditorium, carrying with it the stage and gallery, was precipitated into the stable beneath. The rear portion was partly supported by the stalls beneath, and the audience were thrown forward towards the stage. The lights were extinguished by the concussion and a scene of fearful confusion ensued. The fire alarm was struck, and in a few moments the firemen were on the ground, and with the assistance of the police proceeded to rescue the wounded and remove the dead. A great crowd had in the meantime assembled and the excitement was intense. Hundreds of people crawled from the ruins unassisted and uninjured.

J. BALLENTINE AND THOMAS B LYONS

Municipal Taxation—The Question of its Reduction.

NUMBER FOUR.

BACK TAXES.

The excessive rate of municipal taxation to which the people have been so long subjected, far more than the defective character of our tax laws, has caused, during the last few years, an accumulation of back taxes which now exceeds $500,000. Under our system of government, where rights of sovereignty are sparingly exercised and jealously watched, it is a hard thing to divest the title to the soil from the owner by means of tax sales and tax deeds. The Government, great or small, can always cast a cloud upon the title of the tax payer; if the burthen be not excessive, there is coercive power enough in this fact to secure the payment of the tax. For wise is it constitutes as to avoid the painful and doubtful issue which arises when ever it asserts its sovereign right of confiscation. The dark cloud which, in the form of back taxes, now hangs over almost every title in the city, never can be removed by a full payment. And if the policy proposed be adopted, the collection of this great sum in full out of this disheartened people will be entirely unnecessary. The essence of the plan proposed is that taxation is too great, by one half, if not one third. It should, therefore, be retrospective as well as perspective. By this means, all back taxes could be reduced at least fifty per cent, thus giving the people a hope to be able to pay. The possibility of a settlement of these obligations upon this basis, would of course, bring within a short time into the treasury a sum far in excess of any deficiency in the standing expenses. Out of the sums which would be derived from this source, some economical arrangement could be carried out, by means of which the present deficient supply of water could be increased.

HOW CAN ALL THIS BE ACCOMPLISHED?

It is the natural question to be expected. Almost every one will admit that we are in a bad way. Slowly but surely is the ocean tempie." Divided we may have been in the past upon some questions of a mere abstract or per sonal character, but by the bond, of a common prostration, we are all united by the bonds of a common adversity we are all overshadowed. The disturbing issues, however, which have late y divided and excited us, have certainly, to a great extent, passed away with the unhappy causes which produced them. What, then, is now to divide this people upon a vital question of mutual interest and self preservation. Does not any scheme for reducing public burthens and for the increase of the general prosperity appeal with an equal power to the Montagues and to the Capulets? Does the taxpatherer make any distinctions in his visits or his exactions? If, then, the whole people will unite upon this policy and resolve to perfect it, so soon as the organization is accomplished the battle is won. Suppose the next administration which goes into office is composed of wise, true ute men, frash from the people and instructed by them to accomplish this policy. No one can doubt their ability to at once reduce the standing expenses to the limit of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars! But how would they manage the debt?

READJUSTMENT OF THE DEBT.

A plain, straightforward policy upon the part of the new government would be the only one worthy of this people. A full and true statement, our actual condition, in reference to the ability of our impoverished people to bear taxation, should be made to all holders of city obligations. It would then become obvious to all, that even if the present plan could be carried out, a default would have to be made before the new obligations could be laid away. The just proposition should then be submitted to all bond-holders that the city is willing to take the debt just as it stood when the present funding bill was passed and to adjust it upon those principles of equity and discrimination upon which the State has funded her obligations, and then upon this funded debt the same rising scale of interest to be due that is promised by the State. If the bond holders upon a review of all the facts are fair minded, just men, they must at once perceive that an obligation bearing interest at six per cent, which can not be paid, is of less actual value than one for a smaller amount, at a lower rate of interest that can and will be paid.

WHAT POWER HAS THE CITY TO PRESERVE HERSELF!

But everyone will ask this question Suppose that the bond holders are unreasonable, and say that the city is not a sovereign, and appeal to the courts to compel the city boards to legislate and collect taxes to satisfy their demands. If it be true that the present arrangement cannot be sustained for any length of time, and this be the despe ation of the holders of these bonds, this issue will inevitably arise whether the people are united or divided. When this issue comes if it ever does come, that great question must arise, which is yet to be settled in the affirmative in our country: Can a court, State or Federal, compel by a writ the legislative power of a public corporation, by an inordinate exercise of the taxing power, to destroy the resources of the corporation itself? Whatever technical rules there may be upon the subject, this result can never be practically accomplished, under our American constitution, unless we at least submit in part from the fandom ental notion that this is a government by the people and for the people, who must consent to tax themselves. At the worst the courts could only imprison for a season the members of the corporation who refused to tax the people beyond the proper limit. The act of imprisonment would not pass the desired ordinance without which the taxes could not be collected, and in that last resort the officials could resign, which would end the entire jurisdiction.

THE CITY MAY BE PRACTICALLY AS SOVEREIGN AS THE STATE.

But it must be remembered that a public corporation is a political organization, existing by the power and authority of legislative enactments. By a legislative act, powers can be conferred or taken away, or perchance, by the approval of a single bill, the whole corporation might die a legal death. In plain language, when our necessities are made known to the Legislature, the State at large can never deny us a helping hand when we are attempting to accomplish a policy which she has advocated, sanctioned and adopted for herself. The State Legislature has every power necessary to perfect this policy if the corporation of Mobile shall resolve to pursue it, and to the justice, wisdom and necessity of such a policy, the people of Alabama are irrevocably committed. If the servitors of the city, after we have done all in our power to satisfy them, should attempt extreme measures, the Legislature could simply repeal the city charter, and there would end the whole question, so far as the power to coerce the city is concerned. But then, some may ask, what will we do for a local government, ad interim! That is a simple question. If the charter was repealed, we would be entrusted to the county government alone. Upon this solvent corporation, the Legislature could confer every additional power necessary for a local municipal administration, and increase the county tax, by a just apportionment to meet the additional expense. And this would be no untried experiment; the government of the city and county of Philadelphia is conducted, and has been for many years in this way and is a model of economy and completeness; and, by the way, the gross tax is for purposes upon real es ate in the heart of Philadelphia is only $1,90 on the hundred. These changes are not recommended, but are only set forth to show that in the last resort Mobile has the power to adjust her obligations upon a basis that is just to herself, provided she is not deserted by the State at large an evil not to be expected. For, what Cuvas in her better days has been to Spain, our Gulf City is to-day to the State of Alabama—and as the first will never by her own consent part with the Queen of the Antilles, so the last will never by her own utterd render steril e her most fruitful g rden. If this people form a compact organization upon this basis of justice and truth, and commit it in confidence to the hands of resolute, unselfish, intrepid men, the desired result will be as certain as the people are true to themselves.

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate-paint may be kept from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be painted and coated, looking quite better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about one-fourth the cost of laying slate. The slate is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or falling cinders, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron roofs is equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and never cracks nor wrinkles. Roofs covered with Tar Paper can be made water tight a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, metal, canvas, or any smooth surface, five to five quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a body, or is easy applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

the odor, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new coat equal to one of paint for years. CURED ON WARPED shingles so it brings to their place and keeps them in shape. It fills holes in felt roofs, stops the leaks—and although a slow drier on account of its body, a few hours after applying. An evil results that are block contain TAR, from which roofs is

Mr. Bingham, our postmaster, was last Thursday in Montgomery.

There is much teasibility in New Orleans—not among honest people, but the "tramps" and other fellows who are not willing to work.

Some of the Republican papers stiff assert that the next President will by called Hayes. We doubt it. His name will begin with a T.

It is stated that the official returns at Calcutta shows that the loss of life in India by the recent cyclone amounts to the enormous sum of 215,000.

We were called on yesterday by W. H. H. Judson, esq., the business manager of the New Orleans Times—one of the best and most widely circulated paper in this section of the country.

Many of the New Orleans people are killing themselves. They have got nothing else to do. Perhaps it is better for them, as there will be no funeral expenses to pay. The city pays.

The official vote of Virginia is, for Tilden and Hendricks 139,512; for Hayes and Wheeler 95,268. Majority, 44,244.

The official vote of Maryland is, Tilden and Hendricks 91,480; Hayes and Wheeler 81,981.

ELECTIONS—The largest stock of white and red Shaker flannel and cashmere undershirts and drawers, of the star make, at the Mammoth Clothing House, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

ILLITERACY.

Strange that there are more illiterate people in Rhode Island than in any other northern state, except Colorado. The percentage of the former is ten, that of the latter fourteen. The smallest percentage is in Nevada and Nebraska, where it is two. The average of the Southern states is fifteen per cent: North Carolina 23; Tennessee 19, and Kentucky 18. Of course within our states the freedmen are counted. That will account for the large disparity. Mississippi is 51, Alabama 16, Maryland and Mississouri nine. The table from which this is compiled includes only male adults. Some of the papers are using this exhibit to show that ignorance voted for Hayes; but that is a mistake, for the mass of our colored fellow men voted for Hayes.

THE WINDING-UP.

We publish the last of the series of communications concerning our "Municipal Taxation."

The whole purpose of the writer was to demonstrate how the taxation can be made less. All his suggestions may not be above the reach of criticism, but the ground-work of some measure of reform in this respect is laid down within them.

Every taxpayer, of course, desires to throw off the almost intolerable burden which lies on him. This is natural and estimable—for if we pay all to the government for the protection we get from it, why who is to feed and clothe the little people of both sexes who are trying to get big enough to take care of themselves? And after all, what is it worth? The value of bonds. That is mainly answer—bonds whose values went into the pockets of those who have speculated on the credulity of their fellow citizens, apparently not thinking of the tax collector at all. That gentleman is Nemesis. Death and Taxation are alike. No man can evade them. They go into all people's houses, and the Sheriff or the Undertaker presides.

It is becoming obvious to us that the citizens are not ready yet to give all that they have to the government, either state, or municipal or federal. They have not much thought of it, for there have been no wise and resolute men to blaze the way for them.

This whole business of taxation has been allowed to go on its way, without any person trying to show how the poor, pensive public can relieve itself of some of its crushing burdens.

ABOUT NOBODY.

There is something that ought to be de ired by us. First is harmony. Not that kind of harmony which resembles the sea when there is no wind and it becomes stagnant—for that is an evil which engenders disease. We want the harmony of diversity. This seems to be a literal contradiction; but it is exactly, in political relations, as the winds are to the sea—producing health in public opinion.

This is the whole purpose lying at the bottom of the business and yet our parties are managed entirely by those who are seeking their own goods; that is office, with profit in it.

This aspiration and the hope of profit are natural and not improper. Every man desires the profit, and we suppose that every man who wants it thinks that he is moved entirely by a desire for the public good. In short, he wants it for himself. In himself, he declares is embodied the public good.

We have only one objection to his kind of patriot. He is a worker—hard one too—is everywhere at ward meetings and caucuses, and all that sort of places where the party machinery is moved.

But he doesn't work for nothing. He has a lively hope of pay in the future.

If the men who work for their party are honorable men, why they deserve what official positions are within the control of the party which they have served.

A rogue in office got by authority of a party is not much worse than that authority—indeed, somewhat better, for the one has a great trust in its hands, while the other has no purpose except to pocket his official money and steal what will keep him on the outside walls of a penitentiary.

In this we are alluding to a deformed person, called Nobody. We like to see that fellow hit on the head—for he is a very pernicious person, and goes about the streets doing a great deal of harm, and getting out of the way because he is nobody.

OUR GREAT NEEDS.

A public journalist cannot too frequently allude to the great needs of this section of the south and especially of Mobile. The population here is estimated at forty thousand and it does not vary much from that. What is there to give employment to the people? A few hundred thousand bales of cotton are handled here annually, from which factors, steamboats, railroads, draymen, cotton presses, tug boats, stevedores and a small proportion of the laboring population of the city obtain some profit. But that is by no means adequate to support the whole people.

What is needed by the working classes of this city is remunerative employment, and that can be secured only by the creation of new industrial enterprises. In the "flush times of Mobile," this was the second cotton emporium of the country. It is common to attribute the decline of the cotton trade of this city to the construction of the New Orleans and Mobile Railroad. But here comes in a fact: the cotton receipts, which are greatly diminished, include in the statistical figures every bale of cotton that passes through here en route to New Orleans. We have the credit of this cotton, because this is the first receiving point which it reaches, while it only passes through Summerville street on the same cars that it is first loaded on. So, therefore, the opening of this railroad does not account for our greatly diminished cotton receipts.

The truth is that much cotton that formerly came here from remote points by river steamboats and other conveyances, seeks the more direct channel to the Atlantic coast, since the creation of railroad routes from the interior to the sea.

But this is a digression. We started out to assert that the great want of Mobile is the creation of industrial enterprises to give employment to the people. Every little branch of manufactures that is established, even if it gives employment to only half a dozen people, adds something to our resources. The iron foundries, the sash and blind factories, the cistern builders, the wooden ware factories, the cigar makers, the one small cotton factory, the saw mills, the grist and rice mills, all contribute to our prosperity; but there is not a store in any part of the city, where there are not some articles for sale, for which we send our money to northern manufacturers, instead of encasing them by the labor of our own people. When labor is rewarded by the creation of small industries, for the production of many articles that are now bought elsewhere, but which can just as well be made here, Mobile will attain a higher degree of prosperity.

THE ELECTION.

Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will be pleased to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

Weeks Around Town.

John Hunter sells very fine hand-made gaiters for gentlemen's wear at $6 50 a pair.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 58, minimum 41, a range of 17 degrees.

Pinaud is a public benefactor, for he sells clothing and furnishing goods at astonishingly low prices.

By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad yesterday 50 barrels potatoes and 2 cars of coal were received.

It was a close poll. Pacheco, republican, is the fourth district of California, is elected by one majority, official returns prove.

On the outside of this morning's Tribune may be found a column of interesting dispatches sent by the American Press Association.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad 11 barrels, 10 half barrels molasses, 14 hogsheads sugar and 1 car of coal were received yesterday.

This morning any article of furnishing goods or clothing can be bought at the store of Pincus, northeast corner of Royal and Dauphin.

After twenty-two ballotings, the democratic legislative caucus at Montgomery adjourned Friday night till tomorrow at four o'clock, p. m.

The opening of the bowling alleys in the Bank Building, corner of Royal and Conti last evening attracted a great many people there to enjoy the sports.

The Young Brothers, corner Dauphin and St. Emanuel, have a large stock of gas fixtures, burners and chandeliers of the latest and most elaborate patterns.

In the two counties of Itawamba and Lowndes, (Miss.) there was not a single Republican vote cast. Only four counties within the state gave Republican majorities.

One of the most disagreeable nights of the season was last Friday night. A cold rain was falling, and people preferred the comforts of home to peregrinations on the streets.

It is said that Tweed, who is now in a New York jail has lost seventy pounds of flesh since he ran away. In the business of hanging it is probable that he will be a weight.

The schooner E. A. Baizley was cleared by Goldthwaite & Garrow for Havre yesterday with 1330 bales of cotton, 2097 staves and 20,000 feet pine deals, the whole valued at $50,250.

Major LeBaron has received information that last Thursday night three buildings were destroyed by fire in Pensacola. One was occupied by W. J. Turbell and was entirely consumed with all its contents.

R. Cornelea, cigar manufacturer, northwest corner of St. Francis and Jackson, keeps constantly on hand, Havana and domestic cigars. When in that vicinity stop in and try one of Cornelea five cents cigars.

A family quarrel was settled by Justice Finnegan, by a fine of $10 and peace bond of $100 for six months. The assulting party assulted both the daughter of his wife and her husband, without provocation, and "that was the cause of it!"

Every one in want of Winter Clothing should, by all means, examine those durable and desirable Cassimere and Cheviot Frock Suits, Coats, Pants and Vests, at $10 and $12; guaranteed fast colors, at the Mammoth Clothing House of M. P. Levy & Co.

The loogaleorem who were on a strike in New Orleans, are becoming starved out. They are modeling with sailors who are doing their work, and the British consul has addressed Lord Kellogg in the matter. He has promised the tars protection.

Hair dressing and shaving saloon, conducted by Edwards & Williams, under the Gulf City Hotel. This saloon is elegantly fitted up, and in of the first class and promotes the comfort and convenience of customers who desire shaving, hair cutting or shampooing. Call there.

Occasionally, visitors to the Magnolia Cemetery have noticed fastened by a ribbon to the statue of a woman a string of scriptural quotations or a poetical effusion. The writer of those eccentricities sleeps beneath the surface of the earth by the side of that statue, where his remains were interred last Friday.

A living plume! The soldier whose statue surmounts the confederate monument at Magnolia Cemetery, wears a cap, but it has no plume. Two days ago as the reporter was walking through the grounds, his attention was called to a dove sitting on the soldier's cap and giving the appearance of wearing a living plume.

At the hotel Tremont, 56, 58 and 58 Commerce street, is the place to get feed, hay, corn, oats, bran, cotton seed or cotton seed meal, of which he has a large supply on hand and is consistently accommodating to the public at large. Now is the time to get feed. Call on J. H. O'Hara, or send your orders there, which will receive prompt attention.

Next Wednesday at ten, o'clock, the two women who were arrested at Meridian, charged with the murder of the man found dead on the railroad track near Manvilla, will have a preliminary examination before Justice Crabtree and Finnegan at the office of the latter. They have been brought to this city and are now in the county jail. The names of the accused are Russell Stewart and Augustus Wood.

The body of Captain Taylor, pilot of the Haley, has been found.

Postponed.

The issue of the eight page Sunday Tribune, contemplated to begin today, is briefly delayed in consequence of unexpected mechanical difficulties that were not foreseen.

A Georgia colored debating society was lately discussing, "Which is the best for the laboring man, 10 work for wages or part of the crop?" An old "uncle" spoke the sense of the meaning when he thought "bofe was the best, if dey could only be brung togedder somehow."

The University of Leipsic now has a total of 4730 students, of whom 983 are natives and 1747 foreigners, the latter being in the proportion of two to one. The Russians are the most numerous among the foreigners, being seventy-three. There are ten from the United States, a great falling off within a few years.

River News.

The departures yesterday were the D. L Tally, for the Tombigbee; the Lulu D. for Selma and Montgomery with a good freight and several passengers.

The A. I passenger and freight packet John T. Moore will be ready to commence her regular trips for Selma and Montgomery next Saturday evening.

City Court.

In the City Court, Judge Semmes on the bench, the case of the Gold Life Insurance Company vs E. B. Lott, was tried and the judge gave a decision in favor of the plaintiff, in the amount of $2,594 75.

The cases set for trial tomorrow are:

J. E. Denny vs James O'Connell.
Diamond, Steele & Co. vs A. J. Leslie.
Chipman & Fellows vs. Jno. P. Kennedy.
S. F. Whitman & Son vs. Geo. Staffens.
David D. Jackson vs. Mahon & Fetze.

Municipal Legislation.

When a mission was made to nonconsent in the common council, adopting the recommendations of the mayor to reduce the police force to 50 men, all told. Alderman Gaines of the 2nd ward said that the people, he said he saw how it was. Members did not want a reduction of the force, but he could tell them that if the expenses of the city government were not reduced materially, they could be no taxes collected to pay the police or any body else. This led to a discussion on the part of the members of the council, and on motion of Alderman Gaines a special committee, that in fact any purpose to hinder a reduction of the police force. Economy should rule the action of the council, and a retrenchment in every department, and the committee on officers' salaries should report a reduction, from that of mayor all the way down, with possibly one or two exceptions.

Professor Hiett's Teaching.

Printing has been termed the "art preservative of all arts," but there is another, higher, nobler and more important in its influences on the human race. Professor Hiett, in the store of Felsby night, a summons came to the reporter to visit the Battle House at an hour unorganic. Conducted to the spacious dining room he saw long tables laid in the form of cross, laden with the richest viands, most elaborately and skilfully prepared, pleasing to the eye and tempting to the taste.

It was not a supper, but a collation, the occasion being the first of six "assemblies" by Pro Gildea, a club of about fifty select young men of the city, who escorted there the fairest ladies of Mobile to join with them in the many dances to the music of Gass's string band.

The tables were loaded with delicacies in large plates of transparent jellies, smothered in which were boned fowl—ducks, wild and domestic turkeys—all in their own jelly. Fish, perfect in form as they came from the sea. A little deer, "cooked to perfection," with its pretty head untouched by the heat. Pyramids of pastry and fruit and everything else that was nice. And at each plate there was a pretty bouquet of flowers, with their delightful perfume.

The way to the hearts of the young ladies of Mobile is through the instrumentality of what is prepared for them to eat. It is certain that more tempting tables were never spread here. The gallant club would have tickled the palate of one Creole love, of this substantial food. The meal was nice, the fish and fowl were excellent and the pastry just as good as could be made. And all this just from the kitchen of the Battle House, over which a cook presides who rivals Professor Hiett, and is as adept in the art of making hungry people happy.

It is the ambition of the new management of the Battle House to excel in whatever they undertake, and Major Mason, the resident proprietor, puts his whole soul into the enterprise which he personally controls, with the full determination to achieve a success.

CONTENTS OF CODES.

COLUMBIA, November 25.—The Supreme Court has just entered up—gment of $7,500 fine each and commitment of all the members of the Board of Canvassers to jail until released by order of the Court. The Court is now proceeding with the case against United District Attorney Corbin, counsel of the board for contempt. There is considerable suppressed excitement.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 25.—Seven polls are missing from the returns before the board of the fourteen in East Baton Rouge, leaving the court before the board: Tilden 1,102. Hayes 1,477, instead of Tilden 2 228, Hayes 1,526, as ascertained from the returns of the Commissioners. After much discussion and bitter complaint from the Democrats East Baton Rouge was laid aside.

Returns from fourteen parishes are and missing. St. Martin parish is finished. The Democrats row contrive that the returns for all but eleccors and Governor are examined and tabulated by the clerks in the rooms apart from the Board. They ask for Democratic representation on the clerical force to detect errors and frauds.

RESIGNED.

NEW YORK, November 25.—The Tribune, in its report of the meeting of Governors Tilden and Hendricks yesterday, says Gov. Hendricks said, that public sentiment in the Western States in regard to the election was so strong that he was compelled to come East to ascertain the condition of public feeling here. He expressed his admiration at the conduct of the Senators Democrats who, without the least manifestation of turbulence, had appealed every where to the Courts, and was glad, both in the West and on his journey hitherward, to note the disposition of all parties to have matters amicably and lawfully settled. Governor Tilden fully concurred with all of Governor Hendricks' remarks, and they appeared to be a perfect accord in all respects in regard to the questions of the hour. No disposition was manifested on the part either of Governor Tilden or Governor Hendricks to enter upon a decided plan of action, and after a few further remarks on the various topics, Governor Hendricks withdrew without making a definite appointment, only expressing the hope that he would see Mr. Tilden again before leaving the city.

At the Everett House, last night, Mr. Hendricks said: "We have no idea of coming upon a piece of action. My coming East was caused solely by a desire to get posted as to the public feeling and to see a few members of the National Committee. We talked to politicians at dinner this evening. I may go back to Indiana to morrow."

Governor Hendricks and wife, Governor Tilden, Ex Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Hewitt sail this week from Peter Cooper to New York Friday. Mr. Hendricks is homeward bound to-day, and says he did not come here for a conference.

P. HERON.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A Times' despatch from Argos, says Deinmanaris, excavating at the site of the supposed tombs of Atamemnon and Cassandra, discovered that some contained a great variety of gold and silver plate and jewels.

The Times, reviewing the prospects of a conference, says the pacific proposal which will come before it have been matured in every capital of Europe. The conclusion is universal that they present no insuperable obstacle to peace.

Under the leadership of the English Russian Plenipotentiaries they may be expected to command the support of every guaranteeing Power and secure the acceptance of the Porte.

RAILROAD ROBBERS.

Eight striking engineers and firemen on the St. Louis and Cairo Narrow Gauge Road are held for malicious destruction of property, decision of the mails and assault with intent to kill.

AS IT TWEEDS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The lawyers say regarding Tweed's situation, that he would be obliged in order to obtain his liberty to furnish bail in three million dollars. He could then be immediately rearrested and required to give bail in seven million dollars, with sureties justifying the fourteen millions dollars, in consequence of the judgment obtained against him in the civil suit. He could also be held in one million dollars bail in another suit. The appeal from the judgment in the civil suit is now pending in the courts. There are now twenty-six indictments hanging over Tweed, including three of forgery and several others for procuring forgery.

A gentleman who saw Tweed, says he is not in good health. Lost seventy pounds of flesh; but his old warbler and defiant look and manner are gone and appreciative. One would hardly recognize "the unfortunate gentleman."

SUTTER CAN LIVE.

A dispatch in the Herald says H. W. Parvis, a member of the South Carolina Legislature, refused to sign the certificates of members of the Legislature and county officers, on account of fraud. He signed the certificates of the electors and State officers.

A dispatch to the Times says Dr. Gilroy, supervisor of election in Swan Quarter, Hyde county, N. C., was found drowned.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 24.—The supreme court has just issued a rule to the State Canvassers and their counsel, D. T. Corbin, to show cause why they should not be attached for contempt in violation of the writ of prohibition issued on the 17th inst., and issuing certificates in defiance of the court. The answer is made returnable at 4 o'clock this evening. No doubt of their continued defiance of the court.

The court adjourned to 10 A. M. tomorrow.

GRANT'S POSITION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A Report is current here to the effect that Grant tele graphed to Columbia that he will stand by Chamberlain.

ADVISED TO GO SLOW.

NEW YORK, Nov 24.—The Herald, this morning, warns the Louisiana Overturning Board that its secret sessions will not be tolerated, and calls on Northern Republicans to assemble in mass meeting and let those political gamblers know that they must stop.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO., Stan dard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's EXTRA OIL, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official star ard of the United states Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

Joe Murphy.

This favorably known and popular actor will make his first appearance here this season at the Mobile Theatre this evening in the romantic drama of "The Kerry Gow." He will be supported by the same stock company that has been engaged for years at the Academy of Music. The press of New Orleans indulges in commendation of the play and the company, and Mr. Murphy ought to draw full houses during the week's engagement. Box office open tomorrow morning.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the net gross receipts at Mobile yesterday were 1300 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Market active and firm. Good demand and light supply. Sales about 1500 bales.

Closing report: "Sales to-day 4000 bales. Market closed firm and have of cotton. Good demand throughout the day.

Hewitt to Hampton.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Hon. Abram T. Hewitt has written the following letter to Gen. Wade Hampton.

NATIONAL DEM. COMMITTEE, } New York, Nov. 25, }

My Dear Sir—Your admirable address to the people of South Carolina is the subject of universal commendation here; in fact, the prudence, the forbearance and the self control of your people under the most exasperating provocations, is beyond all praise. I can only trust that in the existing situation in which you will find yourself next week, no outbreak will occur. It is almost too much to expect that there will be no indiscreet men in South Carolina who may provoke the collision, but nevertheless the providence of God has so far guided you and your difficulties, that your friends rest in calm confidence upon the wisdom and good fortune which have so far attended your actions. You may rest assured that your Northern brethren have conspired, themselves to the work of your deliverance, and will never cease their efforts until you are restored to that freedom wherewith you were made free by labors and sacrifices and wisdom of our forefathers and your forefathers.

God give you and your people all the wisdom and all the patience needed in the hour or trial now at hand is the earnest prayer of your friends in the North. We have full faith in the justice of the people of the United States, and we do not entertain a doubt of the final verdict which they will pass upon the recklessness of the last two weeks. This verdict will surely vindicate their integrity and re-establish free government upon a lasting basis.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

ABRAM S. HEWITT,
National Democratic Chairman Committee.

To Gen. Wade Hampton, Columbia, S. C.

TERRIBLE CRIME.—The Eutaw Gazette, (Miss.) Courier of the 18th inst. says that on the morning of the 8th, Mr. Berry Britton, residing three miles east of Gainsville, went out to a mill pond near by. He was accompanied by a younger daughter. The only person left on the place was Miss Melissa Britton, an elder daughter, a young lady about twenty.

About noon the fiding party returned, to find the house pillaged. Upon searching, about one hundred yards from the house, horrible to relate, the mutilated corpse of the young lady was found. The weapon used was an ax, and was used in the most brutal manner. The head, neck and arm all bore repeated traces of the deadly weapon.

The alarm instantly flew over the country, and the neighbors quickly assembled. There is no certain clue to the perpetrator of the fiendish deed. The only possible conclusion is that it was instigated by mercenary motives, it having been reported that Mr. Britton kept a large amount of gold and silver in his house.

Political Gossip.

The anti-joined American Press Association dispatches present a budget of sensations:

SOUTH CAROLINA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Post's Washington special says that the change in affairs in South Carolina yesterday is viewed here in official circles as foreshadowing trouble to both political parties in that State.

Numerous official dispatches here been received from Columbia regarding the orders of the Returning Board, but those who have received them decline to make known their contents.

The members of the cabinet are not disposed to talk very freely, believing that they will be called upon officially to advise the President as to his duty when the question of recognizing Hampton or Chamberlain as legal governor is brought before him, as it may be. But what few expressions are made leave no room to doubt that the administration fully justifies the steps taken by the Returning Board as not complying with the orders of the Supreme Court, to certify to the election of members to the legislature in counties where gross frauds are said to have been practiced by the Democrats in order to secure a majority.

It is asserted here that the Returning Board so did under the advice of an able legal counsel, and that the steps taken were not determined upon without full discussion and examination of the results that would follow.

Lively times are expected in Columbia during the next six days.

The Legislature will meet Tuesday and the Governor must be inaugurated on Thursday of next week.

The President will undoubtedly stand by Chamberlain in this contest, and there is reason for believing that word to this effect has been telegraphed to Columbia officially.

The Graphic's Washington special says: "As was predicted in those dispatches, the Returning Board in South Carolina has acted on its own responsibility, independent of the court. There is plenty of evidence to show that the court was corrupted and it will be produced in due time. The movement is, of course, commented upon variously here, but the political pulse in Washington is very low now. Nothing less than actual bloodshed would cause a stir. It is the opinion here, however, that there will be two Houses in South Carolina and no end to complications.

JERRY HARRALSON.

Another Washington special to the Graphic says that Congressman Harralson, of Alabama, published a letter here this morning in which he says that he was defeated in a district where the black population is four to one to the whites. He says that he was taken into a mode at Selma by the Democratic candidate, who put a pistol to his ear and gave him his choice between signing a document, the contents of which he knew nothing of, and instant death. To save his life he signed it, and discovered afterwards that it was a retraction of certain charges he had made against his opponent in a speech. Harralson will contest his seat.

FLORIDA.

A Commercial Tallahassee special says: Returns from the thirty-nine counties are all in, and their face shows a majority of seven hundred and sixty-three for the Republican electoral ticket. This is no the face, but it is thought through revision will increase the majority. On the announcement of the result, it was received with great rejoicing by the Republicans and the most intelligent of the Democrats accept the result with great complacency.

A KENTUCKY BLUNDER.

CINCINNATI, NOV. 23.—There is a flutter among Kentucky politicians over the allegation just made, that at the election in that State, the voters did not cast their ballots for Presidential Electors, but for Hayes and Wheeler and Tilden and Hendricks direct. This raises the question as to whether the twelve electoral votes of Kentucky can be legally counted for Tilden, and if maintained may result in a loss to the Democrats of twelve votes in the Electoral College. At any rate the discussion of the question has created a profound sensation.

R. BALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B LYONS

Gossip by Telegraph.

The Tribune reproduces the subjoined gossip by dispatches sent by the American Press Association:

CHEAP TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company continues to show a stringency of times by announcing still further reductions in its rates. On December 1st a new schedule of prices will be much more favorable than any other heretofore adopted. For this purpose the company has divided the territory of the U. S. east of Kansas, into four sections. The first comprises the New England States, New York city, Brooklyn and Long Island; the second, the Middle States, Maryland and Virginia; the third extends to Illinois, and the fourth includes the other western States. Between any two points in section one, and between any two points in each section the rates are to be 25 cents for ten words. The highest rate between any two points in each of the second, third, or fourth sections, and between any point without section one and another point within another in section three, the highest rate will be 75 cents. In like manner the highest charge between points in section three and four, or one and three, will be 75 cents. In section one and four, or two and four, one dollar.

The circular is issued by the company denies that it is not earning its current working expenses; that it has not issued bonds and is free from debt, except for construction material now in process of erection; that it has more than $3,5?5,000 of its own capital stock, and in its treasury, and owns more than three fifths of the capital stock of the Franklin Telegraph Company. The Company has greatly increased its facilities during the past year. It has opened new offices in every direction, employed a large additional force of operators, has stretched its wires throughout the South and West, and added greatly to its effectiveness north of the Ohio river and east of the Rocky Mountains. It touches every prominent city, including those of Canada, and has connection with the United States cable.

ALECK STEPHENS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, arrived here by way of the Virginia Midland railroad at half past 6 o'clock this morning and proceeded to his old quarters, the National Hotel, where he has engaged rooms for the winter. His present rooms are 17 and 18, on the second floor, and fronting on Sixth street. He is accompanied by his body servant, Harry, who has attended him for many years past, and whom Mr. Stephens styles his Major Domo, and another colored servant. He left his home at Crawfordsville, Georgia, on Monday last for Atlanta, the Georgia Railroad Company placing a special car at his disposal. He reached Atlanta on Monday afternoon and remained there until Wednesday when he took a sleeping car on the Kennesaw route, coming through to Washington without change. He stood the journey remarkably well, and with the exception of a headache, was feeling as well as usual. This morning he looks considerably better than he did when in Washington several years ago, and states that his general health has improved considerably since June last; in fact, that he has gained about ten pounds in weight. He is still suffering from rheumatism in the right foot however. He cannot walk without the aid of crutches. The night before leaving his home, in Georgia, he was serenaded by the colored people, and on taking his departure a large number of his friends, among them at least 200 colored men, bade him good bye. If his health continues as good as it is now he intends regularly to attend the coming session of the House. On being asked if he did not anticipate a lively session, he said, with a serious expression, "I anticipate at any rate one the most interesting and important sessions held. Grave questions may arise—and probably will arise—and my own hope is that a spirit of moderation, and of calmness, may possess every member. I would deprecate excitement, and so far as lies in my power, I shall try to allay it. I sincerely and earnest ly hope a spirit of patriotism will prevail, and that in the adjustment of any complications which may arise, the only aim may be simple justices and a full compliance with the requirements of the constitution as framed by the fathers."

The Jeweler of Ascalon.

Dama was the chief jeweler of Ascalon and eminently distinguished for his exemplary life and many virtues. On a certain occasion a committee of the elder called upon him for the purpose of purchasing precious stones with which to ornament the ephod of the high priest. Diamonds were the stones they sought, and having thus informed the jeweler, they offered him what they considered a fair price for the gems. Dama told them he could not at that time attend to them, and bade them call again, later in the day. The elders did not wish to be thus put off, and moreover they suspected that this was only a ruse on the part of the jeweler to increase the price of the stones. They per sisted in their demand for immediate attention. Diamonds, such as Dama only possessed, were necessary to complete the ephod, and they offered double, and triple, the price they had at first proposed. But Dama was immovable, and the finally went away greatly disappointed, not to say wrathful.

Later in the day the elders called again, and Dama placed before them the diamonds they desired, and when they had made their selections they tendered to him the higher price they had at last offered.

"No," said the jeweler. "Your first offer was all the stones are worth, and that only will I take."

"Why, then," exclaimed the chief of the elders, in astonishment, "did you not close with that offer this morning?"

"Because," answered Dama, "my father had the keys of the chest in which the diamonds were deposited, and he was at that time asleep. He is aged and infirm, and his short hour of sleep was of more worth to him than was your increased offer of price to me. My father has not so many comforts that I can knowingly deprive him of a single one of them."

The high priest, when he had heard the story, came to the jeweler's house, and laid his hand upon Dama's head, and said;

"Blessed be thou to Him who hath said, 'Honor thy father and thy mother,' and in the time to come may thy children honor thee as thou hast honored the author of thy being."

A Fruit Dealer's Troubles.

A staid-looking gentleman, apparently a stranger, stopped at an apple stand!

"What is the price of oranges?" he asked, pointing to a collection of large pears.

"Dees ees not de horange," said the polite vender, "dees ees de California pare. One lor twenty fi' cent.'

"You don't mean to tell me," said the stranger, putting his hand upon an apple, "that this is a pear?"

"Pardo! No! I say dees ees de pare. Dees is de appel. Tree lor ten cent."

"Well, I must say," continued the stranger, picking up a handful of chestnuts and examining them critically, "that these are the queerest apples I ever saw."

"Oh, Mon Dieu! No! Dem ees de chessynut, what grow in your own countree. You roast them en de fire."

"Roast them in the fire! Well, upon my word," fingering a bunch of bananas curiously, "I don't see how such chestnuts as these can be improved by roasting. They seem to be soft enough now. However, I am much obliged. I'll see you later. Good day," and the stranger passed up the street.

"Gentlemen," said the fruit dealer, turning in an appealing manner to the crowd that had gathered, "dat man is one escape coon from de penitentiary."—Atlanta Constitution.

Along the Virginia river in Nevada are some of the most remarkable salt formations in the world. They are in fact mountains of crystal, extending for more than thirty miles. The salt lies under a shallow covering of earth, and is raised by blasting. Most of it is perfectly pure, and so clear that fine print can be read through a foot of it.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap quality, and by application of this paint will last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be painted and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the water, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about one cent a square foot. This paint is fire-proof against sparks or flying cinders, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron roofs is equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS or blisters, consequently will last indefinitely, nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing or Tarred Paper can be made water-proof at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of straight roof, when on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to the square foot of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

the effect, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof for a few years. Unlike on wooden siding as it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It is in all kinds of fire proof paints the cheapest, and although a slow dryer, can does not affect it for a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you get only our genuine article, which (for sample roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. Or

TIN ROOFS

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to two of any ordinary paint. For

BRICK WALLS

Our masonry and is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring plaster.

These paints are also largely used on houses and fences, or as a priming coat on house grounds.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BLACK and OLIVE.

There are so many diverse accounts of affairs at Columbia, S. C. that it is impossible to form a conclusion from the innumerable conflicting opinions. The Democrats at Washington are certain of a triumph. The same degree of certainty is expressed by leading Republicans. Mr. Hendricks thinks that there will be no serious trouble and has expressed confidence in regard to the Louisiana business. He also very positively denies that the U. S. Senate has authority to make a president. The final struggle will be at Washington, and we are glad of that, for there will be the last shift of the politicians; and it is better that it should be there than here—for we of the South are considered by a great many prejudiced men at the north as mere lookers-on in the affair. They get the ear of similar men, and conjure with the word "rebel."

It were better that all this business should be completed at Washington, which is within the radius of the great power which has not been rebellious, except as it is charged against the Democrats. Let them settle the matter there. We will be anxious spectators of what they are going to do with it—for wrongly done, it will be worse for them than for us.

The Tyler press makes much noise, but it crushes the bales of cotton into a small space.

The Government street railroad is getting in condition, with some of its new iron laid. That is T iron, and the middle of the track is being filled up with oyster and other shells.

The fourteen New Orleans markets have been sold for the month of December, for $15,703 50, which is less by a $1000 than they were sold for in November, notwithstanding the private markets are closed.

A Georgetown girl had a fall last week, and injured herself so severely that she was carried home insensible. Upon recovering, her first words, addressed to her sister, were: "Mary did I have on my a riped stockings?"

The total product of gold in the world from 1848 to the close of 1875 is reported to have been something over $4,000,000,000, but it has been varied considerably from year to year. The present annual yield of the world is a little below 140,000,000.

The cotton in the hold of the bark Manhegan, at New Orleans, caught fire recently. The captain refused the services of the fire department, and used a new extinguisher called carbonic acid gas. This extinguished the fire in a short time.

The proceedings of the legislature last Saturday were without general interest. A great many bills, resolutions and motions were offered in each House. Some reports were also made. The following is the only part of the business that concerns us:

Mr. Shields, from a special committee, reported favorably on bill to authorize the construction of a bridge or trestle in the bay and harbor of Mobile; passed.

YESTERDAY.

Every one said that yesterday was a delightful day—such a one as would make Boston grow poetical. The clouds flecked the sky in such manner as would have inspired a northern painter—nay, even Emerson, who is called a poet.

Mobile has much to love in this kind. We have sunsets here which illustrate the old poet Herrick, that they are a bridal of the earth and sky. Yesterday was a day of the kind. Poverty holds its hands on the throats of many of our people. Yesterday his hold was loosened, for how could any man, even with tattered garments and shoes betraying the holes that let water into them, go out and not bless the climate, which asks of him nothing—not even shoes—in order to escape the terrible inclemency of a more northern parallel? Well, we have got something to be thankful for; that is a no-necessity—ab-olute necessity—for shoes. There is a lack of food. That is some thing, but the grocer will further wish that it be have a hope that he is not giving it away. One cannot ask him to give it for nothing, and it is probable that he, as we are sure, thinks that it is not his duty to give it away.

But to come back, this is a delightful part of our country. It is for us, a heritage which nothing but a change of climatic influences can deprive us of—and of this there is not much present danger.

Content is rich and rich enough. This is what was said by one of the greatest men who lived in the past, and greater than any man who lives now. Let us be content with this content, and not go to bed dreaming of political evils which seem to threaten, but which a little patience and wisdom will show us that we may escape.

HOME INDUSTRY.

The New Orleans Republican, in order to illustrate the encouragement to home industry, says: "Some time ago an industrious and persevering mechanic discovered that a bed of clay near this city would make better fire furnaces than any he had even seen—such furnaces are used in families for charcoal fires to heat flat irons. He made a full investigation of the matter, intending to embark in the business. He visited whole sale and retail business houses that deal in such articles and learned that he could manufacture the furnaces here and sell them at lower prices than the Philadelphia factory did. He made known his figures to the wholesalers and his proposition was accepted, but with one proviso—he must stamp his furnaces with the word "Philadelphia." The enterprising mechanic at first objected, but, finally, seeing that he could make some money, consented. He is at once began operations, and is today supplying this and markets with a superior article, but the stamp is still Philadelphia.

"Another branch of mechanical industry, the manufacture of brooms, was started here, but it lingered, sickened, and would have died had not a public spirited citizen, Mr. John W. Fairfax, interested himself in the matter. By chance he visited Mobile, and while conversing with prominent mercnants there mention ed this subject. Several dealers agreed to send orders to New Orleans, and, after a fair trial, were so well pleased that they now rely entirely on this city for a supply of brooms, the consumers still supposing that they are using a Northern or Western product."

It will be recollected that a large part of the goods manufactured by our Dog River mills was sent to the north to come back, with two freights and other expenses, before it could find a market. This, however, is passing away in respect of our cotton factories.

TREED.

They have got Boss Tweed in New York. Sheriff Conner has got him, and will no doubt keep him fast, for Mr. C. is held responsible for his getting away. Now that he has possession of the depleted body of the great thief, he will be relieved of his security. How the disinguished prisoner looked is thus told by a reporter of the New York World:

"He is certainly greatly changed, and yesterday he looked jaded, downcast and ill. He wore an old low-crowned soft hat; his overcoat was of the stuff known as salt and pepper a dark, grayish color, wrinkled and creased as though it had been slept upon. It was open in front, disclosing a black coat, vest and pants. In his hand he carried a wooden cane with a curved handle, which he carefully placed before him when walking, as it afraid to rely entirely on his legs for support. His whiskers, nearly white, were larger than he permitted them to grow when in New York, and his general appearance was that of a man completely broken down, physically, if not mentally."

Tweed stole too much. He was heroic in his rascality; yet having got so much and so easily, he gave it away with a liberal hand. At one time by this liberality, he could have bought up half of the voters of New York city, and now, being fetched back as a criminal, there is a large part of these voters who think nothing of his crime, but only of the open hand which gave generously away what he never earned, except by fraud.

We can respect this kind of sympathy for a criminal. The laborer on the streets of New York never asked how the money was got which paid him for his services. He put it in his pocket, and with some degree of gratitude for the man by whose position it was acquired.

This is natural—for an individual, with several millions within his control, can make people love him.

We believe that not much harm will come to Tweed, if he have kept within his control the millions: nay, more, he has a vast amount of knowledge of the rogues; and will hold that knowledge, and "squeal" only when the other rascals abandon him.

And so we expect nothing more by the Spanish politeness in extraditing him than that he shall be in a jail a short time, with all kinds of luxuries, and then emerge from it, and, perhaps, finally, be mayor of New York city.

It is stated that a case was recently tried in a Canadian court involving the responsibility of mercantile agencies in the matter of reports on the standing and reliability of those asking credit. In this case the seller applied to the "agency" for a report of a party applying for credit. On the favorable showing given by the "agency" the goods were sold, and in a short time thereafter the buyer failed, involving the seller in loss. Suit was then commenced to recover the amount lost from the agency, on the ground that the report was false. The court ruled that the agency was responsible for the amount lost, and gave judgment against it accordingly.

Bayard Taylor says that eight years ago, when he was in Italy, a shoddy American could obtain a baron for a son in law by settling $2,500 a year upon him; a count could be got for $10,000. All things considered, this was not high.

Walks Around Town.

An ox wagon load of sugar cane went down Government street yesterday.

The bowling alleys, as the nature of Royal and Conti streets, are nightly thronged.

The schooner Clara E. M. brought here from Apalachicola 74,000 Florida oranges.

John Bunze sells very fine hand-made gaiters for gentlemen's wear at $6 50 a pair.

The official majority for Tilden in Georgia was 58,161. That is much larger than his majority in Alabama.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad was received yesterday 1 car coal, 1 bagshead sugar and 10 kegs molasses.

General Humphries, chief of United States engineers, recommends an appropriation of $60,000 for Fort Morgan, Mobile bay.

From day to day there are accessions of business men and their families as boarders at that excellent hotel, the Battle House.

Mobile is lamentably deficient of statues. In New York a statue of Daniel Webster was unveiled at the Central Park last Saturday.

At the Battle House yesterday a large number of names were registered, including Joe Murphy and the Academy of Music dramatic company.

In that beautiful city of the dead, Magnolia Cemetery, the birds carol in the sunshine and are as happy as those who sleep the sleep that knows no waking.

In the city court yesterday the case of Jokou vs. Malone and Foote consumed the whole day. Among the cases for trial today is that of A. & B. Moog vs the Government street Railroad.

The New Orleans Times is for sale here by the news dealers, on the arrival of the train from that city, shortly after 12 o'clock every day. The Times is one of the best newspapers in the south.

The F. E. Lee brought yesterday from the Alabama 206 sacks cotton seed for Spanidge & Co., and the Lotus No. 2 from the Bigbee river 67 sacks cotton seed for the same firm. It passes through to New Orleans.

Death is here and death is there, death is busy every where. Captain Paul Shirley, of the United States navy, died at or near Columbus, Ohio, while on a railroad train en route for Mobile.

From the treasury department, bureau of statistics, has been received a summary statement of the imports and exports of the United States for the month ending September 30, 1876, corrected to November 10.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 10 half barrels beer for John Meyer, 1 bundle hides, 1 engine and fixtures, 50 barrels sugar, 50 barrels and 100 half barrels flour, 1 car corn and 963 sacks corn were received.

Not much smuggling is discovered by the Mobile custom house officers because not much is attempted, but forty-six packages of smuggled lace were seized the other day from a lace dealer at Paterson, New Jersey.

A suit has been brought in Washington against A. R. Shephard and Edgar Ketchum, bondsmen for General Howard, of the Freedmen's bureau. Mobile depositors in the Freedmen's Bank may derive some benefit from this.

There was a little fight on Church, below Royal, yesterday afternoon between a cavalry private and a citizen. The citizen got a blow that brought the blood from his teeth. The soldier was conducted to the New Orleans train by an officer of his command.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday, 10 half barrels and 120 quarter barrels beer for Mobile Ice Company, a lot of beer for Martin Horst, 66 barrels flour, 30 barrels apples, 215 barrels potatoes, 30 barrels onions, 12 barrels sugar and 1 car cotton.

No branch of promise suits have been instituted in Mobile lately. Suits in New York where Eugenia Martinez brought suit against Juan Del Valle for $50,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage and betrayal, the jury assessed the damages at $50, which was a big discount.

Mrs. Richardson, the wife of Captain Richardson, superintendent of the National Cemetery at Mobile, was the first woman belonging to the United States, who entered the city of Mexico, when our victorious army marched into that city. She rode a pony, by the side of a light battery to which her husband belonged.

The Montgomery Journal compliments United States Marshal Turner for the faithful performance of his duties in the United States courts at Lesuen there last week. It also says good words for United States District Attorney Chas. E. Mayer. Both of these gentlemen are Mobilians.

To the memory of Mrs. Marie J. Cashonnet, wife of Major M. J. M. Mason of the Battle House, formerly of New Orleans, the Picayune pays this tribute: "Young, fair and accomplished, her demise has left not only a void to be sorely felt by her numerous friends and admirers. May roses and violets always bloom on her pure and devoted heart."

The soaps made in Mobile by the Standard Company are pure. But the city scavenger of Chicago informs a paper there that he has delivered in four months at the Union Rendering Company works in that city nearly 7,000 dead dogs and 500 dead horses, to be converted into soap, and so people will wash their faces with dead dogs and dead horses.

TELEGRAPH

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Jefferson Davis arrived yesterday on the Adriatic from Liverpool.

FLORIDA AND LOUISIANA.

A Gazette Washington special says: I have the highest authority for stating that there is no longer any doubt that the electoral votes of Florida and Louisiana will be cast for Rutherford B. Hayes. This result will be arrived at without any reasonable pretext for believing that injustice has been done. It is the deliberate opinion of every Republican conversant with the facts here that Hayes will have a majority of one in the electoral college, and that with this majority he will be declared by the Senate and House President of the United States after the 4th of March next.

The statements received from the inside political citizens of Florida and Louisiana leave no longer any doubt of the result. Republicans should be warned not to commit themselves by any reports made by irresponsible correspondents or outsiders. The votes will all be given to the public in due time, and moderate conservative men of all parties will all feel perfectly satisfied with the facts and figures when fairly presented.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

A Herald special from Columbia says Judge Bond has told U. S. Senator Chestnut, Judge Bacon and others that he is here one week in fore his court meets solely for the purpose of examining into the business to come before him, and without any other object whatever.

United States Judge Bond writes: "The Canvassing Board have never been advised by me. No one has applied to the Federal Circuit Court of this District. If any person does so, and there is a statute for it he shall have relief. If there be no statute, he must seek his remedy elsewhere.

The Times' Columbia Dispatch says enough Republicans will absent themselves to give the organization of the lower house to the Democrats.

SUSTAINING CHAMBERLAIN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The following was sent from this city to night:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—To Gen. Thos. H. Rogers or Col. S. M. Black, Columbia, S. C.: The following telegram has been received from the President:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Nov. 26, 1876.

To Hon. J. D. Cameron, Secretary of War.

Sir—D. H. Chamberlain is now Governor of the State of South Carolina beyond any controversy, and remains so until a new Governor shall be duly and legally inaugurated under the constitution. The Government has been called upon to aid with the military and naval forces of the United States to maintain republican government in the State against resistance too formidable to be overcome by State authorities. You are therefore directed to sustain Gov. Chamberlain in his authority against domestic violence, until otherwise directed.

U. S. GRANT.

In obeying these instructions you will advise with the Governor and dispose your troops in such manner as may be deemed best in order to carry out the spirit of the above order of the President. Acknowledge receipt.

J. D. CAMERON,

Secretary of War.

FILLS IN JAIL.

COLUMBIA, Nov. 28.—The Board of Canvassers are still in jail. Their counsel have in contemplation their release by Judge Bond, of the United States court, on the writ of habeas corpus, though no such action has yet been taken.

THE CHARLESTON RACES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The California Oaks Stakes, four miles and repeat, for mares and fillies, for a purse of $15,000, is set December 9, at Bay District tract. The following are the entries: Mattie A., Josie C., Emma Skaggs, Solo, Lodi, Ballinette and Mollie McCarthy.

THE GREGG CASE.

A Chronicle special from Portland, Oregon, says an intimate friend of Gov. Grover asserts that he will not give Waits a certificate of election. The Conservatives, Democrats and Republicans generally doubt the report. Cronin, the Democratic elector who received the highest vote, stated, and reiterated, that he would not accept the appointment if Watts was thrown out. Nothing can be assuredly stated till the count is made.

DEAD.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—Rev. J. D. Williamson, a distinguished Universalist, author and divine, and one of the fathers of Odd Fellowship in America, is dead.

A KENTUCKY MUDDLE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—The Commercial says editorially, that before committing themselves utterly to the doctrine that the Congress of the United States has the power to regulate, supervise and dictate the election of a President, the Democratic leaders should take a look at the whole situation. General Ewing proposes, in case the electoral vote of Louisiana is returned for Hayes, to send out an investigating committee and take testimony with a view of contesting that vote in Congress. Then suppose the Senate sends out a committee to Kentucky to look into the informalities of the so-called Presidential election in that State. Louisiana has the same rights in the Union that Kentucky enjoys. Her State government is as legal as that of Kentucky; her methods of determining how her electoral vote is to be cast are no more to be called into question than those of Kentucky. One State is as sovereign as another. If one House of Congress has a right to go behind the record of the vote of one State, another House of Congress has a right to go behind the record of another State.

The House might find that Louisiana is infested by dishonest men who are suspected of dealing unfairly with the people. The Senate may find that, though the local affairs of Kentucky are exceptionally well managed, the solemn regulations made by the constitution for electing a President, are utterly disregarded in that State. If Louisiana can be pitched out, why not Kentucky, or any other State. Let us not depart from the plain path marked out by the Constitution.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY Soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap by my analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their unlimited purity is fully established.

The democratic majority in Alabama is big enough for all practical purposes. In New York Tilden had 522,942 and Hayes 489,577 votes. The majority for Robinson, democratic candidate for governor, was 30,365. Tilden's majority was 33,955.

E. C. Hancock has brought suit in New Orleans against Mrs. E. J. Holbrook and others of the Picayune, praying for a decree of $1,636 of the value of the paper, the shares having been to $650, and a receiver. There is no paper in Mobile that is valuable enough to tempt the appointment of a receiver.

The Kerry Gow.

This popular Irish drama, with Joe Murphy as Dan O'Hara, was presented in Mobile for the first time last night. He was supported by the Academy of Music dramatic company. The play is full of interest, abounding in exciting situations, and the company was a faithful portrayal of leading incidents. It will be repeated tonight.

One of the largest audiences that ever witnessed a performance at the Mobile theatre, expressed by their demonstrations last night that Mr. Murphy was the best delineator of Irish character they had ever seen. From beginning to end there were storms of applause.

River News.

The R. E. Lee arrived from Selma with 300 bales cotton, 200 sacks cotton seed, 1 bale moss, 7 bales hay, a fair trip of sundries and several passengers.

The Lotus, No. 2, came in from Naheola with 302 bales cotton, 68 sacks cotton seed, a short list of sundries and a few passengers.

The R. E. Lee went out last evening for Selma with a large freight and a pretty good number of passengers.

The Mary will arrive in time to depart for Selma and Montgomery at 5 o'clock this evening.

The fleet steamer W. S. Holt, Captain G. H. Whitcomb in command and Mr. Virgil H. Powers in the office, will look out this evening at five o'clock sharp for Demopolis.

The Lotus No. 2, A. J. Stone on the roof, will back out this evening at five o'clock for Demopolis.

The new iron steamer John T. Moore, Captain Owen Finnegan master, will leave for Selma and in termediate landings every Wednesday evening commencing tomorrow. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 2093 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was: Good demand among several. Offerings light. Market quiet and firm. Sales about 1000 bales.

Closing report: Sales to-day 1000 bales and 1200 Saturday evening.

Market closed quiet and firm. Limited demand and light supply.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominal; ordinary nominal good ordinary 10¾; low middling 11⅛; middling 11⅝; good middling 10¼ and 11¾; middling fair 12; fair 12⅝.

FIXED WHITE LIGHT.

The Light House Board gives notice that, on and after December 1, 1876, a fixed white light will be shown from the light house recently erected at the mouth of the Calcasieu river, Louisiana.

The Illuminating apparatus is catadioptric, of the 4th order, lighting 180 degrees of the horizon. The focal plane is 25 feet above the ground, and 27 feet above mean low water.

The light should be seen in clear weather, from the deck of a vessel 15 feet above the sea, 18 nautical miles.

The structure is a pyramidal iron tower, on a screw-pile foundation, and painted black.

The approximate position of the light-house, as taken from the coast survey chart, is as follows:

The Meinika Murder.

The other day we gave an account of an atrocious murder committed in Georgia. The following is a sequel to the narrative. The other party to it was Charles Meinika. He has also been committed with bail:

As we announced in yesterday's issue, Mrs. Lyon, charged with the murder of her husband in Russell county, Ala., was committed to jail without the benefit of bail.

The decision of the Magistrates was rendered Thursday morning at four o'clock. About nine o'clock the same morning preparations were made to convey Mrs. Lyon to the jail situated at Seale, Ala. She preferred to go in her carriage; so it was agree by the officers that she should go that way. Her carriage was brought to the door, and in it she was seated—she upon the back seat, her mother beside her and her little daughter in front. Mr. Davis, her father, drove the carriage. On each side of the carriage was a couple of the guard: while in the rear of the carriage Meinika walked hand-cuffed, and guarded by two bailiffs. In this wise the cortege moved from Crawford to Seale, fourteen miles distant.

When the prisoners arrived at Seale it was late in the evening. Quite a crowd had gathered to see them, and especially to catch a glimpse of Mrs. Lyon, charged with the murder of her husband. The curosity of the crowd was not long gratified. The jail was reached and the prisoners placed in quarters. Meinika takes his chances with the other prisoners confined there. Mrs. Lyon has a cell to herself. We learn she was made quite comfortable. It is right and proper, and only paying a just regard to morals, that women prisoners should have a separate cell, no matter who they are; and we are glad to note that the officials of Russell county provided Mrs. Lyon with a comfortable room.

Her counsel, Col. Samford, will sue out a writ of habeas corpus before Judge O'Neal, Judge of Probate, asking him to assent to a bail for her. As yet, no stay has been taken, but probably it will be done early in next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis, and the bright little child of Mrs. Lyon, left her in jail, and returned to a sorrowful home. Mrs. Lyon was only affected when she went into jail; previous to this she has shown no trepidation.—Columbus Times 28th.

Railroad Traveling Companions.

The Paris Figaro has raised a curious discussion upon the question of the proper constitute of persons in a railway carriage under the following conditions: One person demands fresh air, and wants the window open; another can not endure the wind—having bronchitis, perhaps—and asks to have the window closed. The partisans of fresh air are generally belligerent, and say that they will break the glass, paying for it at the end of the journey, rather than not have air. This means is occasionally employed, but it is one full of danger to say the least. One day, a few years ago, an aged gentleman was sitting in a first class carriage when two young officers entered and began to smoke. The old gentleman let down the window; one of the officers put it up. This operation was repeated, when the gentleman broke the glass with his elbow. The two officers, who were on their way to join their regiments at Versailles, took this as an insult, and cards were exchanged. They took a very different view of the matter when they read upon the aged gentleman's card, "Marshal Niel, Minister of War." One never knows exactly who his traveling companions are, and circumspection is always prudent, to say the least. We have never yet seen a case where this question was not arranged a l'amiable between the different travelers, but in case of dispute we should say, on general principles, that the person who wants air should take a corner seat fronting the locomotive, leaving the other person the seat opposite, where he is protected in a measure from the winds that he fears, from one motive or another. With a majority of well bred people the difficulty is easily gotten over, but there are some persons, commercial travelers, and cockneys in general, who demand fresh air in mid winter through pure bravado, or through a pretentious desire to show that they are different from other people. But one may safely say that such disputes could occur but rarely among people of rank and good breeding.

General Sherman on the Crisis.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—General Sherman, in an interview to day, said: "Everything is very quiet in the South. All the rifle clubs have dispersed, so far as I can hear. I do not apprehend any trouble from the Southern people. They are all quiet and law abiding, and apparently disposed to be guided by their friends at the North."

"In case of there being trouble next March you will have a great responsibility thrust upon your shoulders, General?"

"I don't know. My God, I hope there is not going to be any trouble. I don't apprehend any. I shall try to do my duty always."

A gentleman present, with a work entitled "Fallen Empires" under his arm, pressed near General Sherman and asked him if he did not think that our country was in great danger of being again rent by factions and ruined in this coming contest.

"No," said Sherman, bluffly, blowing a great cloud of smoke in his most energetic fashion; "our country is too young to die that way."

"But," said the philosopher of fallen empires, "don't you think our safeties in doing away with our present system and building a more secure form of government, like the English?"

"No," roared Sherman, "our people are not made for that sort of thing. We must work out our destinies under our present laws and Constitution. Our form of government may be modified in time, but its spirit will ever rest the same."—Chicago Times.

A Curious Will Case.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Walter, who inherited a large amount of property from her father, died October 7, 1870, leaving a will which provided for three trusts, two for $15,000 for each of her children during their lives, with remainder over to their heirs, and with reversion first to her husband and then to her father's relatives. Another trust was for $30,000 for the benefit of her husband during his life, with remainder to her children and reversion over to her father's relatives. In May, 1875, in the wreck of the steamship Schiller, her mother, aged sixty-nine, her husband, aged forty-five, and her two children, aged seven and nine, were all lost. It so happens that under the will four different means of distribution may be adopted, according as it may be decided that one or the other of these parties drowned on the Schiller survived the others. It the children died last, they became entitled absolutely to the property, and their heirs go into possession. If the husband died last, he was heir of his children, and his heirs are entitled to the property. If the mother died last, and the husband first, she became heir of her grandchildren, and her heirs take it; and, lastly, if all died together, the reversioners secure it.

A suit now on trial before Judge Van Vorst raises the question whether there is any law as to which it can be decided that one died before the other.—N. Y. World.

One of the largest steel manufacturing firms in Sheffield, England, is about to establish its factory near Syracuse, N. Y., and addresses its customers to that effect. This is not the only industry in Sheffield which will have to remove to America, if it wishes to retain any of the American trade, and file and cutlery manufacturing show a similar condition. By the returns for the last quarter—and by the way the returns of English industries are published once a quarter, so as to be of some practical value, instead of in a decennial census—it is shown that the exportations of steel from Sheffield to the United States had fallen off to an amount no less than $125,000, while on cutlery it was $85,000, and on files $10,000. This decrease has been going on steadily for the last four years, and the end is about reached of trade with the United States. American manufacturers now make as good steel files and cutlery as English, and plus the freight and duties are cheaper.

Patent Slate Paint

MIXED READY FOR USE.

(Fifteen Years Established.)

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate we make it last from 10 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The slate is fire-proof against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER cracks nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing felt can be made water-tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, white on tin, iron, felt, smooth boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

therefore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. CURED ON WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, stops the leaks—although a spoonful may be used—and the effect is a few hours after applying. As nearly all roofs that are not tin or slate tax, be sure you ob ain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On

TIN ROOFS

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For

BRICK WALLS

Our masonry test is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on out-houses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine building.

Only our colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BARNEY RED and ORANGE.

A Rich Shoemaker.

In the 12 months of Brooklyn appears the name of a German whose annual payments for taxes exceeds those of many of the wealthiest private individuals who live on the heights. He pays taxes yearly upon real and personal property a assessed at $150,000, but worth, probably, double that amount, yet this man works hard at the bench every day, and it he spends a dollar in recreation for his wife and children on Sunday he thinks it is a big thing. He has no help, but works for a few customers, doing all their wors and cutting, nothing about any on them. If they are displeased with his way of doing things he simply says they can take them, and he possesses more than their patronage by his manner of disappointing customers as to time. This man collects his own rents, builds two or three new houses every year, and from his frugal habits promises, if his life is long spared, to be the wealthiest of an Brooklynites. His yearly income from real estate is not less than $15,000 per annum, but in regards idleness as a sin, and works every day upon boots and shoes as regularly as if his bread and butter were in jeopardy.

By statistics it is shown that with in the limits of the island of Java every year about three hundred people are eaten by carnivora, two hundred by the crocodiles, one hundred killed by the rhinoceros, five hundred killed by lightning, while one hundred die by snake bites, and a varying number by earthquakes and volcanic action.

There is a general impression that things will not be particularly pleasant for the two solitary colored members who have been elected to the Georgia Legislature.

The value of Rhode Islands's natural and manufactured products, last year, was over $300 for every man, woman and child.

Major Watthall, as will be seen by his notice published elsewhere, has left the Cycle, as one of its editors; but his busy and skillful pen is not to be idle.

It is stated that during a recent public welcome to Gen. Butler, at Bangor, Me., there was stretched across the street a flag bearing the motto: "Welcome to Gen. Butler the 'Hero of Five Forks,' and God knows how many spoons."

Grand opera is to be given, in English, at Odd Fellows' Hall next Thursday and Friday. The stage is not large enough to allow the scenic effects that ought to go with grand operas. The music, however, may supply what the small capacities of the stage lack.

We are again indebted to Hon. S. C. Maldon for favors. The last is a copy of a bill entitled "A Bill to be entitle an Act to organize and regulate a System of Public Instruction for the State of Alabama." It is very elaborate, covering thirty-eight pages, had been read twice in the House of Representatives, and then referred to the Committee on Education.

THE ALABAMA SENATOR.

The caucus balloting for U. States Senator on Monday was at the close as follows: Morgan 53, Pugh 45, scattering three. Col. Herndon and Gov. Houston had withdrawn from the contest.

We expected that, as far as Col. Herndon is concerned, there would be small hope of a nomination. Mobile has not much chance when pitted against interior influences. It ignored us as far as congres man is concerned, and that showed a disposition which indicated that we of this city have no prospect of a position worthy for any of the honors of the state.

THE THEATRE.

The audience at the theatre Monday night was a very large one, and it seemed to be delighted with the performance. It was a well dressed crowd, and it looked nice, and it was a gentlemanly crowd, for it did nothing but laugh at the proper time, as Richelieu said when Joseph applauded in the right place. There was only one lack in it: that of the fairer and gentler sex. Some of them would have learned something, if more of them had been there.

The theatre is a great teacher—almost as good as the pulpit, if the latter be gas and the can be kept out of it.

G. G. HOLCOMBE.

The death of Grymes G. Holcombe was announced the other day, and all that was mortal of him was put in the ground on Monday.

We knew the gentleman very well. Opportunity gave us the means of understanding his character, and we have no hesitation in saying that not a more kindly-hearted and lovable citizen has gone from us these many years. He was at one time a merchant here; and, perhaps, lost some wealth by a little too much honesty—was, in some degree, a prey of crafty rogues.

Like Ben Adam, he loved his fellow-men, and it was a delight to observe him pass through the streets and seeing the little people looking at the fruit stalls, wishing, but with not the means of purchasing—seeing him take from his pocket—not much of coin there—what would gratify the wishes of those adolescent folk. We have seen this frequently, and opinion it, was a greater delight to give than to receive. He was, in short, a genial gentleman, and no temptation could have made him otherwise.

CITY AFFAIRS.

The affairs of the city of Mobile are now managed with a good deal of skill. The people have no objection to the administration on this account.

But they see that it has been running in the old ruts.

Within those those old ruts it has done well.

Every person is ready to give it credit in this respect.

Now, there is a general desire to get out of those ruts, and for the purpose many new notions have been thrown into the bubbling caldron of public opinion, and these have found much entertainment among thoughtful citizens.

The chief of them is that economy is the first virtue, it we desire to pay what we owe and conserve our credit.

Having among us much poverty, and a great reduction of the values of the taxable, how is the community to be saved, except by retrenchment? If some political philosopher will tell us how, we have no doubt that all of us will give it much consideration, and, if proved, dutiful submission.

Retrenchment, as we understand the word, means the lopping off of what is superfluous; and this is what we also understand is the meaning of those who use it, and if is this that is proposed by those who think an economical government is the only means to pay its debts and reduce the cost of taxation. We see no other way of accomplishing the purpose which our citizens are now so desirous of finding.

All the potter about past administrations or the city government, showing that this one has been cheaper than any other one doesn't meet the question. It is how to make a new one cheaper by the abolition of superfluities. Thereby, and nobow else, is the problem to be solved.

We published yesterday an order from Gen. Grant, backed by his secretary of war—Cameron—in which the President assumes that the present governor of South Carolina is the governor. Well, he has been; but the President, giving his order to Cameron, says: "You are, therefore, instructed to sustain Gen. Chamberlain in his authority against domestic violence, until otherwise directed."

The meaning of this seems to be that the governor shall be held in his place, even if it be vacant, by the expiry of his term of office until a new governor shall be approved—held in the place by the United States army.

What right has a President to make an order of the kind? By it he prejudges the question; and he has no more right to do that than has the governor of the State of Alabama. If trouble come, why the troopers may be ordered to interfere with it, but there is no more trouble in South Carolina than what concerns the proper business of the people of the state. Gov. Chamberlain has not, by the virtue of the powers of his office, much to do with this. Gen. Grant has, in effect, declared that he has, and that he will be held in his place by force of arms, if that be necessary for the purpose that the order seems to have been contrived for: namely, to control the state for Hayes and Wheeler.

We should prefer Tilden for the presidency, but if he cannot be honestly got by the voice of the people, we should accept Hayes.

It is simply a question of right; and men ought to fight for that. They do sometimes, and are overpowered, and then they submit. Let us see now, in this civil convulsion, if the right may not obtain, and the wrong be not helped by the arms of a government which has no authority except what, under the laws, is given by the voice of the people.

A report having been published in the West that Mrs. A. T. Stewart had purchased a large tract of land in the vicinity of Lake George, on which she proposed to erect a summer residence which would eclipse anything or the kind in the world, to be inclosed by a park of such sans passing beauty that even the fabulous would pause in wonder and admiration at the sight of it, and as which estate she proposed to bring together all of her most intimate friends for continued seasons of feasting and banqueting, a World reporter called on ex-Judge Hilton yesterday to ascertain whether or not the statement were true. Judge Hilton said that it was true, with the exception that the proposed location of this marvellous residence was in the moon, instead of on this mundane sphere. The house was to be of solid gold, with trimmings of diamonds. The hallway was to be paved with emeralds, in token of the late A. T. Stewart's native lands and the whole edifice was to be perfumed by the breath of angels, imported expressly for the purpose at lavish expense. No housekeeper has yet been decided upon, but Queen Victoria has an offer of several hundred thousand dollars per day under her consideration, and there is every probability of her acceptance. He also added that the report that he had purchased Mrs. Stewart's interest in the business of her late husband for the sum of $25,000,000 was entirely true—just as much so as the rest of the story.

Extraordinary Triumph of science. This new principle, now way, to cure Cough & Consumption, Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. As rapidly as the Globule dissolves in the mouth, a healing gas is formed and inhaled, which cures Throat and Lung diseases. Trial boxes 25 cts. by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

The whole force of the United States army, including all arms and officers, is 28,571, of which 11,932 are infantry, 9686 cavalry, and 2846 artillery.

TO CORRESPONDENTS AND THE PUBLIC.

The undersigned, being in receipt of frequent communications concerning the editorial, and business departments of the Cycle, respectfully announces that he is not, and has not been since the inception of the daily issue, either in an occasional contributor to its editorial columns.

His withdrawal from more active duty has not been occasioned by any disagreement with his associates, but, having accepted other engagements necessitating his active exercising duties of the editorship of a daily paper, he has been obliged to relinquish them mainly into other hands.

He still hopes to be able to contribute, as opportunity may offer, from time to time, to the editorial columns of the paper, but begs that correspondents, instead of sending their favors to him, will address them to the Editor or Publishers ("Cycle Company,") as the subject of their communications may make proper.

The Florida oranges brought here, by a schooner from Apalachicola, are of about the same flavor as the Louisiana and Alabama oranges.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad was yesterday received 9 hogsheads sugar 2 bbls molasses, 2 barrels turpentine and 200 sacks corn.

It is very refreshing after a game of bil liards to step into the saloon adjoining and drink the beverages prepared by a Battle House barkeeper.

A newspaper is the great public educator It should reach every family, be read in every household and thus disseminate valuable information all the year round.

A little house well filled and a little farm well tilled will make home happy, and free the mind from the cares, perplexities and anxieties of speculative and mercantile pursuits.

A first class hotel like the Battle House, with the geographical and climatic advantages possessed by Mobile ought to attract hundreds of winter visitors to this delightful city.

There are traits in the Irish character portrayed by Joe Murphy that show a "gushing" love of fun, that will crop out like sunshine, even under the darkest clouds of adversity.

Tomorrow will be thanksgiving day, both by national and state appointment. There are many things that people of Mobile have to be thankful for; but they need not be enumerated.

In the white world there can be no happier people than the families of laboring men in Mobile, who occupy their own houses, produce their own fruit and raise their own vegetables.

The Florida board of canvassers, having adopted rules governing their proceedings, are getting ready for a solution of the question whether Sam Bird carried that state for Tilden or Hayes.

Go and see Joe Murphy tonight at the theatre in the protean Irish drama of "Help," supported by the Academy of Music dramatic company, the best that has ever been secured for that dramatic temple.

To the working classes this advice is given: Do not live a day longer than you possibly buy a cheap lot of ground and erect a comfortable building on it. Paying out money month after month for rent is so much wasted from your substance.

Justice Flanagan sent a Mrs. Moore to jail yesterday, where she will stay six months if she does not give the requisite bond, for attempting a murderous assault on a tenant who hired a house of her. This was the second assault by the same party on that tenant.

A petition is being prepared at a law office in Mobile asking the legislature of Alabama to provide for an amendment of the state constitution authorizing the garnishment of laborers' wages for house rent. Little by little all the exemptions in the present state constitution will be routed away.

The canvassing board, of South Carolina having taken before Judge Bond of the United States circuit court, on a writ of habeas corpus, the decision of the case was postponed till tomorrow. In the meantime they are at large, accompanied by the deputy United States marshals.

Adella Gomez had Margaret Maxwell and Mary Rush arrested for using indecent, insulting and vulgar language. Both waived examination and gave bonds to appear in the sum of $100 each for trial in the city court. Mary Rush was arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Maxwell for assault to do bodily harm. Peace bond $100 six months.

John Randolph, of Roanoke, once announced in the national house of representatives that he had discovered the philosopher's stone. "Pay as you go!" If that were the rule adopted by every one, newspaper publishers would be the happy, prosperous and unembarrassed, and so would many others who require credit because they give it.

Circuit Court.

In this court yesterday, Judge Toulmin on the bench the following orders were made in the cases mentioned below:

Parker vs Peebles, continued.

Foster vs Harrington, death of defendant suggested.

Lyons vs city of Mobile, judgment for plaintiff $500 42.

Lelaisant vs Barton, verdict $270 75, property in garnishee's hands to be sold.

Smith vs Scates, demurrer sustained and leave granted to amend complaint.

Reid vs Hayes, death of defendant suggested.

Voss & Co. vs Schell, verdict of $1821 54.

Wood & Ridgley vs Leslie, verdict $1078 72.

The following cases are set for trial today:

The Mary arrived with 883 bales cotton, 367 sacks cotton seed, 2 bales hides, a short list of sundries and several passengers, some of them for Texas.

The W. S. Holt arrived with 466 bales cotton, a good trip of sundries and a respectable passenger list.

That elegant iron steamer, the palatial Jno. T. Moore, a "Dependent Packet," will depart this evening on her initial trip of the season for Selma. She has all the comforts and conveniences of a hotel, and under the command of that gallant officer, Captain Owen Flanagan, she will go through quickly and safely.

The Moore has been thoroughly repainted. The bar kept by Mr. John Kenny, is stocked with fine wines, liquors and cigars. For freight or passage apply on board or to Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Mary went out last evening for Selma and Montgomery with a tolerable trip.

The jaunty little Holt for Demopolis had a splendid trip out.

The Mary Boyd is expected to be here in time to depart this evening, Captain Woodie Stone on the roof and Mr. Alex Ussery in the office. She will leave at five o'clock sharp. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 2345 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Moderate demand. Offering fair. Market firm. Sales about 1500 bales. Closing report: "Sales to-day 2500 bales. Market closed quiet and firm. Moderate demand and fair offerings.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominal; ordinary nominal; good ordinary 10½; low middling 11¼ and 11½; middling 11½; good middling 11¾ and 11¾; middling fair 12; fair 13.

The Board of Trade reports the cotton receipts here since September 1, in bales as follows:

Alabama River	24,981
Bigbee river	7,869
Warrior river	59
Mobile and Ohio Railroad	81,451
Mobile and Montgomery Railroad	45,256
Alabama and Grand Trunk	7
	159,153

This an excess over last year for the corresponding period of over 30,000 bales.

Retail Fry Goods.

The largest, freshest, most complete and cheapest stock of dry goods ever exhibited in Mobile is that of P. H. Pepper & Co., corner of St. Francis and Joachim streets. All these goods were bought for cash in the lowest markets and are sold at the smallest possible advance from wholesale prices. The grand aim of this enterprising firm is to accomplish large sales with small profits, rather than to cling to the slow-coach method of large profits and small sales. Indeed, so low are their prices that goods can be bought there at retail for less than they are offered by the wholesale dealers here.

King of Spain.

Yesterday, the 28th of November, was the birth day of Alfonso, the King of Spain, born the 28th of November, 1857. In his honor, the Spanish Consul, Mr. Charles Lebaron, as also the Spanish vessels—the Pastora and Sanbeyan—had their flags thrown to the breeze. And in compliment the foreign consuls resident at this city had their flags out also.

City Court.

In the city court yesterday, Judge Semmes on the bench, the jury gave a verdict for plaintiff in the suit of Lyons vs the city of Jackson vs Malone & Foote. The case of A. & B. Moog vs the Government Street Railroad, resulted in a judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $8,934. The motion docket will be called today.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, November 28.—At midnight, last night, the State House was occupied by United States troops, and no one was allowed to enter without a pass from Mr. Jones, Clerk of the late House, or Mr. Dennis, one of Chamberlain's men. About 9 o'clock, Gen. Gordon, United States Senator from Georgia, and General Johnson, State Senator of Virginia, with Messrs. Peck and Jeffrey, members of the Legislature, demanded admittance. The rotunda was filled with troops and arms stacked around the Washington statue. The Democratic members then met in caucus, and about 11 proceeded in a body to demand admittance. In the mean time, Gen. Hampton had an interview with Gen. Ruger, who then changed the orders so as to allow any one to pass the sentinels who claimed to be elected member of the Legislature. Under this change of orders, all the members are now being admitted slowly, as the approval of the guard examines their credentials. The members are thus admitted to the State house, but not to the hall of the Senate or that of the House of Representatives.

COLUMBIA, November 28.—The United States troops have possession of the State House, and refused admission to the Elgefield and Laurens delegations, they being Democrats.

BURNED.

Wade Hampton's house, near Colum bia, was burned. His two young children and his sisters escaping in their night clothes. It was incendiary.

OREGON.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 28.—A dispatch from Portland says the Democrats have taken no steps to enjoin Gov. Grover from issuing a certificate to Postmaster Watts.

Special to the Register:

MONTGOMERY, November 28.—The House and Senate took one ballot to-day separately according to law. House—Morgan eighty, Sam Rice fourteen, and Nesbit one. Senate—Pugh twenty-nine, Rice four. This destroyed the Republican balance of power, which prevented their electing any one, and makes no election. Joint caucus resumes balloting this evening at three and a half.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

GENTLEMEN—I have made a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed," From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by said Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their undisputed purity is fully established.

A Painful Blunder.

The friends of Lieutenant Philip Read, United States army, met at Lowell, Mass. on Saturday, recently, to receive the remains of his wife, who died last August in Paris. The shipping box, supposed to contain the remains, on being disclosed to view a coffin bearing the name of "Josephine Burnaz," and the inner coffin was opened, disclosing to view the form of a stranger, whose decease must have occurred a year since. It is thought the mistake must have occurred in disinterment at Paris. The remains were interred in the burial ground at Dracut.

The rainfall for the week ending November 25 averages about as follows in the various districts: St. Lawrence valley 0.21 inch; New England, 1.00; Middle Atlantic States, 2.00; South Atlantic States, 0.50; Eastern Gulf States, 0.80; Western Gulf States, 1.05; Lower Lake region, 0.50; Upper Lake region, 0.45; Ohio Valley and Tennessee, 0.60; Upper Mississippi valley, 0.15; Missouri valley, 0.10; Minnesota, 0.20.

A New York Tribune special from Washington says: Gen. Butler has been retained by the democrats as counsel in the impending canvass of the electoral votes in Congress. This plan originated with Governor Tilden, who proposed to retain Butler's legal services, as professional etiquette and custom would not permit Butler to refuse a fee tendered in good faith.

Rather than oppress poor tenants by compelling them to waive all rights of exemption either in personal property or the wages of labor, it would be better to encourage and patronize such home industries as will enable the laboring classes to earn enough to pay their rent and grocery and provisions.

The report of the Registrar-General of England shows, in the report which he has issued of the year 1874, that two thirds of the deaths in England occurred from one or other of fifteen causes. Bronchitis caused 53,022 deaths. Next, phthisis or consumption, cut short 49,379 lives. Atrophy and debility account for 30,995 deaths. Old age, which should be highest, is fourth, and to it 28,604 deaths are referred; the list includes 12,495 men and 16,109 women, all over sixty five years old; and some centenarians. Heart disease accounts for 28,513 deaths, and convulsions caused 27,139. Pneumonia occasioned 25,927 deaths. Eighth on the list stands scarlet fever, to which 24 922 deaths are attributed. Diarrhœa, which is more fatal than it was twenty years ago, caused 21,264 deaths, more than 18,000 of them occurring among children under five years of age. Apoplexy and paralysis caused 12,848 and 12,572 deaths respectively in 1874. Cancer is growing more fatal, and as many as 11,011 deaths were ascribed to it. Last on the list of the fifteen chief foes of life come pneumonia tare birth, which in 1874 accounted for 10,327 deaths, and whooping-cough 10,362 deaths.

1776, CENTENNIAL. 1876

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally is invited to call and be enlisted to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES presented by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have be n made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route in or can make.

The managements, in announcing to the public this

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequently missing connections, but in having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running

EXPRESS TRAINS

stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the Southern and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing much greater comfort and despatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the varied and grand scenery constitute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality. Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge. Courteous, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, there by insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections! are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

Yesterday was a day of May cast into the end of November.

We see no essential change in the political situation as regards the three contested states.

An incendiary attempt was discovered early night before last on a house on Dauphin. By the aid of the neighbors, the fire was put out.

The circus is coming; but the Freedman's Bank has paid no dividends of late. The depositors ought to draw on Gen. Howard. He has got the money, or had it.

An official report made by the Lieut. Governor of Bengal states that the number of deaths by the cyclone which recently passed over that department of India is 251,000.

There were 133 deaths in New Orleans last week, not including nine stillborns. 38 were children less than five years of age. 20 were of consumption, four of tetanus, ten of small pox and two of gunshot wounds.

There is much complaint in the suburbs of tramps, who, taking advantage of the absence of the men, are insolent, and sometimes worse. The police ought to pick up these fellows as vagrants.

Our vis-a vis keeps his cock crowing at the head of the telegraph column. We hope that the bird may not lose its labor: but there is some dubiety in the business, although we know that the cock will not stop crowing until Tilden or Hayes be made President. We are ready to bet on the rooster, provided there be no cheating.

A bronze statue of Daniel Webster was unveiled last Saturday in Central Park, New York. It is the gift of Mr. Gordon W. Burnham; is fourteen feet in stature and weighs six tons. The pedestal, of granite, is twenty feet high and weighs 119 tons There was much ceremony on the occasion. Mr. Wm. M. Evarts delivered the oration.

OUR U. S. SENATOR.

The public generally seem to be well-contented by the nomination of Gen. John T. Morgan for United States Senate, to succeed Senator Goldthwaite. Of course, we should have preferred one of our own citizens. Mr. Hamilton, Col. Percy Walker, Col. Herndon, or some gentleman of similar reputation among us; but being weak in Mobile—although we do pay about one-sixth of the state taxes—it was not to be expected that the aggregate strong of the interior would gratify our desires. Montgomery is within the central part of the commonwealth, and it and its adjacent parts dominate in all matters of the kind. How is this? Are the lawyers there—we can't get rid of the lawyers in the government—more learned, more crafty, or more needy; and that office is necessary to eke out what is lacking in their practice?

Perhaps the influence is due to the fact of Montgomery's being the Capital. Those who think so ought to struggle to fetch it to Mobile.

But, as we couldn't get one or our own citizens for Senator, we shall be content with Gen. Morgan, who is not only of ability and acquainted with affairs, but is a gentleman who, it is likely, will not be seduced into a path which leads away from the interests of his constituents.

NO GRANNAR.

Abraham Brown advertises shoes, and hats, gimcracks and other things for sale, and in his advertisement he informs the public that either or his things is worth a dollar—more or less.

What does he mean by either? He may not know that it means one or another of two things—not one or more things, or three or twenty four. And yet the Messrs. Harper and the Messrs. Appleton say that "either" or a dozen or more books may be bought at certain prices affixed to their catalogues. These publishers are supposed to be literary men—a violent presumption, if what is here stated be the kind of English grammar that is used in their books. But this is nothing, if the books be good. The publishers are the salesmen and are not supposed to know more than how to dispose of the wares that they put in the form of print for general consumption.

In the olden time the printer had something of distinction. He was entitled to wear a sword by his side, and that placed him above the level of the men who were without rank. Printers, however, at that time were men of learning and knew how to write books, or correct the proofs of them, even though they were written in the dead languages.

Coming down from that era, we find, one or two hundred years ago, that the author was the slave of the publisher. Who was it who said that the wine of the publishers was drunk from the skulls of the authors? It was time or that day, but it is not applicable to the present innumerable herd of men who construct novels, and similar make merchandise.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

To-day has been recommended by the President as a season of thanksgiving and prayer. Gov. Ho ston has also recommended it. Submission to these high authorities justifies us in declaring that, in order to allow our Tribune people time to eat and digest their turkeys and go to church, we shall issue no paper to-morrow.

We have no great respect for these set days for doing what ought to be done every day. Any one on these occasions may be assured that it is only the pious people who pray. The others take their chances for tan, and, probably, spend more than they had made the day before. Yet comes in the consideration that they are a recognition of an overruling Providence. This is something worthy of regard.

About praying—which is a similar recognition—there can be no doubt of its usefulness to all men—for the wickedest man is sometimes beset by evils which he sees no escape from, and then he falls on his knees, or puts upa mental supplication to a higher Power for aid, and, although this may last for only a few hours, it has its effect—one seed which, perhaps, may germinate and bring forth good fruit of its kind.

But our business is not to preach, and, accordingly, we drop the subject.

Jefferson Davis arrived at New York last Saturday from Europe.

ALABAMA LEGISLATURE.

There was not much of of general interest done by the Legislature last Monday or Tuesday. In the House the committee on corporations reported favorably on a bill to amend the charter of the Citizens' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Mobile. Mr. Muldon offered a resolution for the more efficient organization of the volunteer militia of the State, and Mr. Beard one to amend section one of an act to protect persons having an interest in personal property as tenants in common, or as part owners thereof.

These propositions were ordered to a second reading.

On Tuesday in the Senate Mr. Torrens, from the committee to which the matter was referred, reported favorably on a bill which authorizes the citizens of Mobile to vote in any ward without regard to the length of time of their residence within it. This is a good change, for some of our citizens were disfranchised by their removal on the first of the current month.

In the House a bill was offered to reduce the State taxation to fifty cents on the hundred dollars. A ballot was taken for U. S. Senator There were only two candidates—Morgan and Rice. The former received eighty votes. The latter fourteen.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Our Garrison—What the sons of Mars are doing—The Democratic Mass-meeting Postponed—Flopping back" in the departments—Approach of the Congressional session—Needed improvements in the Capitol, etc.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25, 1876.

Although Washington is by no means a commercial city, the wide spread and general stagnation of business incident to the existing unsettled and unsatisfactory state of affairs is severely felt even here; and the arrival of several companies of regular troops, about a week ago, was hailed with pleasure by not a few of our merchants, without regard to politics, because their presence would, in a measure, at least, enliven trade and bring some change to the empty tillers. Waraman are proverbially liberal in their expenditures; and as the greater part of the officers and soldiers now here come from South Carolina, where they had had little or no opportunity to spend their money, they came well supplied with lucre and showed a most gratifying disposition to part with it. Washington has always been a favorite "post" with officers of the regular army, to less than it is an envied "station" for those of the navy; and it is very evident that the gay sons of Mars now here are in no hurry to depart, but rather consider it a fortunate chance that called them from the dismal swamps and dreary pine forests, replete with rattlesnakes, fever and ague, and similar delectable delicacies of South Carolina, to the broad avenues, bright skies, and cosy drawing rooms of the National Capital.

That they will find occupation of a more serious nature than to attend dress parade and escort fair ladies, seems extremely doubtful. It was feared by some that the great Democratic torchlight procession, which was to come off here on Thanksgiving eve, the 29th inst., would result in bad blood, and possibly riot. There is a class of "fighting" Democrats here who would like nothing better than a "row;" and this class is always sure to turn out in full force on an occasion like this. On the other hand, the republican colored element down in the "Division" is not averse to a rumpus when opportunity offers; and, in the present excited condition of public feeling, it is almost certain that there would be contact and conflict between these two elements. Hence, it was a very wise precaution of President Grant to order troops here to preserve the public peace, in view of the fact that since the Democrats have abandoned their idea of the procession, and propose to remain home and eat their thanksgiving turkey in peace, that danger is past and no trouble need be apprehended.

It is both curious and instructive, as giving an insight into human nature, to take a stroll through the Government Departments and observe the change that has come over the employees since the election of Mr. Hayes was considered reasonably certain. The day following the election, it was suddenly discovered that a large number of the young gentlemen had been ardent admirers and supporters of Mr. Tilden all along; that while "playing off" as Republicans, they had been good Democrats all the time, and were glad that a change had come at last, and that they could express their general opinions freely and without danger of dismissal. Some, even, went so far as to say that they had actually voted for the Democratic candidate. But, alas! doubt and suspense came, and what had been spoken openly the day before now became a confidential whisper only. More doubt and more suspense; and these same young gentlemen were on the "ragged edge," lest some one should have made a note of their utterances and report their heresy at headquarters. The "flopping back" again was a weary and delicate process; but it was accomplished and they are all good Republicans once more.

Within ten days, Congress will assemble, and a most exciting session may safely be predicted. A large number of Senators and members are already in town; among the latter Sunset Cox, who is under stood to be a candidate for the speakership of the House, but whose chances will not compare with those of Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, or Mr. Morrison, of Illinois. The house of Senator Blaine, on Fifteenth street, is being put in order, as he has telegraphed that he will be here in a few days; Senators Logan, Hamilton, West, Patterson, and Edmunds are here already. Both the Senate chamber and the Hall of the House of Representatives have been renovated, and the heating and ventilating apparatus, which was very defective, improved; new carpets have been put down, and the spittoons have been screwed down to the floor so that members, in the excitement of debate, will not hurl them at each other. The gilt eagle on the Speaker's desk, and just under the reporters' gallery, has had new claws put on (the old ones were broken the last day of the session by the reporter of the N. Y. Herald dropping a seven-pound inkstand upon them), so that the bird is as good as new and ready for anything that may turn up. Of other improvements, I may mention that automatic revolving fans are to be provided at each desk to enable the members to keep cool; that patent coiled springs have been placed in all the chairs to enable the members to shoot out of them with the requisite degree of dexterity to catch the speaker's eye; that a three ton drophammer, operated by the exhaust steam from the heating apparatus has been substituted for the gavel of that officer, so that he may be certain to enforce silence by peremptorily drowning all other noise.

Of social events, few worthy of record have yet happened; but the excitement of the political situation will lend not a little spice and vinegar to the affairs of the beau monde and society generally. Former seasons have been brilliant, but tame; an everlasting repetition of forms and fashions with a fair share of "prunes and prism," but this winter we shall have less of that and more intellect and intrigue; more unscrupulousness, perhaps, but fewer "flats." People of leisure will come here from all parts of the country to watch the proceedings of Congress; there will be balls and parties, marriages, receptions, and divorces; in short, everything that makes a city attractive and life pleasant. To truthfully chronicle these events as they occur shall be the duty of your correspondent, and if present appearances are to be trusted, there will most assuredly be no lack of material. L. B.

Walks Around Town.

The post office will be closed today.

The brig Countess of Dudley, from Rio Janeiro, brought 4000 bags coffee.

The custom house will be closed today, except for the sanctgnery of entries or clearance.

The schooner Linda, from Kingston, Jamaica, brought 350 bunches bananas and 15,000 oranges.

Roll the balls! Billiard players will make it lively at the Battle House billiard room this evening.

The banks of this city will be open today from two to three o'clock, p. m., for the payment of bills and notes only.

On the outside of this morning's Tribune read a string of gossip by telegraph, transmitted by the American Press Associa tion.

A great many people will eat Thanksgiving turkey at the Battle Housetoday; and thus their good judgment will be demonstrated.

The Spanish polacca Paula cleared yesterday for Barcelona by LeBaron & Son, with 595 bales cotton and 1200 staves valued at $31,570 71.

By the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday, 91 barrels apples, 50 barrels onions, 20 barrels potatoes, 20 kegs beer.

Today, under the paternal roofs at the south there will be clustered children, grandchildren and great grand children, to participate in thanksgiving.

Last Monday the United States assistant treasurer at New Orleans transmitted to Washington the bulk of the money within his keeping, amounting to $300,000.

The Board of Trade will close their rooms at an early hour today. The Cotton Exchange will close at two o'clock this afternoon for the better observance of Thanksgiving day.

By the New Orleans and Mobile Railroad was yesterday received 28 hogsheads sugar 9 barrels and 15 half barrels molasses, 10 barrels potatoes, 5 barrels onions and 12 barrels oranges.

"Pay as you go" should now be the governing principle of the city government Not a dollar of debt should be contracted beyond the current pay rolls, which should be paid monthly.

Tomorrow night at the Mobile theatre, benefit to Joe Murphy, when he will appear in the great specialty drama of "Maum Cre," supported by the Academy dramatic company.

Eight inches in the back and a wound in the head was what Ferd. Bynum, colored, got in peaceful Quisitalia parish, Louisiana, election day. It is more peaceful in Alabama than that.

Since the city of Mobile has retired its scrip from circulation, and pays out nothing but United States currency for current expenses, the cost of running the municipal government has been considerably diminished.

A Tallahassee, Florida, telegram to Governor Kellogg, of Louisiana, Tuesday, says the vote of the lowest Hayes elector is 34,367, highest Tilden elector 24,387. Forty majority for Hayes on the face of the returns.

Much is said about the inability of people to pay their city taxes. But the fact does show that the greatest amount of delinquent taxes is owed by large holders of property, who pay all other debts before they pay their taxes.

A Columbia special to the New Orleans Republican, Tuesday, says the republicans have a majority in both branches of the South Carolina legislature, and there is no longer any question there regarding the election of the Hayes electors.

Mobile is peaceful, but in New Orleans Tuesday evening, a bill poster named Butterfield tried to shoot an oyster opener at the Phoenix saloon. He hit the wrong man, however, for the bullet struck Charlie Yeager in the abdomen, inflicting a wound that may prove serious.

He took the horns. Collector Goodloe went hunting in the Bigbee bottom with his double barrel shot gun, and killed a deer that weighed 173 pounds, without the head when dressed. It had large horns and a foot almost as big as a Chinese lady's.

Eliza Pinkston, whose husband was murdered in Ouachita parish, Louisiana, was a witness before the returning board at New Orleans last Tuesday. Her throat was frightfully lacerated, her thigh and hip ripped open, and she was left for dead. She lived, but infant child had been murdered in her arms.

A new, wonderful and simple way to stop Consumption and cure colds by Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and lung Healing Globules, which dissolve, creating a gas which is inhaled, coming in contact cures Throat and Lung disease. Trial boxes 25 cts by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut St. Louis.

A writer, who has been discussing city finances through the columns of this and other city papers makes what he seems to regard as an original proposition—to reduce back taxes fifty per cent. Last year Councilman Danner, from a committee to compromise with certain delinquents, reported that the proposition for a discount of fifty per cent. was tardily accepted. The fact is, if people are disinclined to pay their taxes, hastily any proposition will prompt them to change that determination.

The Nashville Tragedy.

Yesterday before Justice Flanagan, the examination was commenced of Augustus Woods and Russell Stewart, charged with the murder of an unknown man, who was found dead near the railroad track at Manvilla several days ago, but supposed to have been named McLaughlin, a sailor.

It appeared from the testimony that the three were on a freight train, all tramps and all stealing a ride. A fight occurred on the train, and it was in evidence that Stewart kicked and beat the man who afterwards died, he having been put off the train while in an insensible condition.

There being no testimony to implicate Woods, he was discharged, and the case was continued (after hearing about half a dozen witnesses) against Stewart till Saturday morning at ten o'clock. About sixteen more witnesses are to be examined.

The case was conducted by Messrs McCartney and Sibley for the state and by Mr. Shepherd for the defence.

Thanksgiving.

The following is the text of President Grant's Thanksgiving proclamation:

From year to year we have been accustomed to pause in our pursuits and set apart a day to offer our thanks to Almighty God for the special blessings He has vouchsafed to us with our prayers for a continuance thereof.

We have at this time equal reason to be thankful for His continued protection, and for the many material blessings which His bounty has bestowed.

In addition to these favors accorded to us as individuals we have special reason to express our hearty thanks to Almighty God that by His providences and guidance our government, established a century ago, has been enabled to fulfill the purpose of its founders, offering an asylum to the people of every race, securing civil and religious liberty within its borders, and meting out to every individual alike justice and equality before the law.

It is, moreover, especially our duty to offer our humble prayers to the Father of all Mercies for a continuance of His divine favor to us as a nation and as individuals. By reason of all these considerations, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do recommend to the people of the United States to devote the thirtieth day of November to the expression of their thanks and prayers to Almighty God, and, laying aside their daily avocations, assemble in their respective places of worship and observe such day at a day of thanksgiving and rest.

Attempted Abduction.

Before Justice Flanagan yesterday a servant girl was brought on the charge of decoying away the child of a family in which she had formerly lived, but whose service she had left. She gave no cause for leaving, only that she wanted to, and the wife sent her to the husband for the wages that were due. The husband refused to pay her, and then she went to the house and told the wife she would get even with them.

Tuesday evening about six o'clock the servant watched her chances and decoyed a child away from the house of her former employer, walked about a block with it, then snatched up the child and ran with it two or three blocks, till the cries of the mother in pursuit of her child led to the arrest of the servant girl by the police.

The case was continued over to Justice Flanagan, so that he might try it under the law, the charge being simply of a few months imprisonment in jail for the offence of decoying away a child under twelve years of age. A number of witnesses were examined in the sum of $250 for appearance at the next criminal term of the city court, in default of which she was committed to jail.

River News.

The Mary Boyd from Nahoola, arrived yesterday with 417 bales cotton, 25 sacks cotton seed, 20 racks baskets, a short list of sundries and a few passengers.

The departure of the John T. Moore, the pride of Captain Finnegan and his friends, is postponed till Wednesday of next week.

The Emma No. 2 and Peerless are both due.

The only departure yesterday was the Mary Boyd, Cap ain Woodie Stone, of Frank Stone's Grange Line, with a fair freight and a few passengers.

The Peerless, Captain Tom Frank on the roof and Mr. Andy Welch in the office, will pack out tomorrow morning at five o'clock, sharp, for Selma. Spaulding & Co. agents.

A Serenade.

Some evenings ago an event occurred at the Cathedral, in which the most conspicuous participators were Mr. Dan O'Connell, of the Arcade, and Miss White, who now bears another name. Last night about ten o'clock Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, accompanied by brass bands that are accustomed to playing the sweetest music, visited the residence of Mr. and Mrs. O'Conn ll, on Conception street, near Madison, and serenaded their counterfeit and his lady. After the serenade there was "a feast of reason and a flow of soul," interspersed with sentiments of mutual regard, respect and esteem.

"Help" at the Theatre.

The protean Irish drama of "Help," with Joe Murphy, the most correct delineator of Irish character now on the stage, in leading parts, was presented last evening to a large and critical audience, with the most eminent success. The audience elicited nothing but admiration and approbation. "Help" will be presented again this evening and as it is a holiday night, a full house may be reasonably expected. Tomorrow night, benefit to Mr Murphy, in the specialty drama of "Maum Cre." Only Murphy matinee at 12 o'clock Saturday.

A new line between New Orleans and Jacksonville Florida, will be inaugurated tomorrow, to make the trip through, via Mobile, in 14 hours. It will be called the "Pioneer Pullman Palace Car Line," and the fare will be only $44 60 for the round trip or excursion tickets, good until June 1, 1877.

Go to Owen Farley's for fine French brandy pure Jamaica rum; oranges, apples, nuts and other fruit; apple, peach and quince butter; mince meat, spices and everything else that is nice to consume thanksgiving with.

At the Mobile Varieties tonight there will be a new programme, numerous novelties and heaps of fun.

TELEGRAPH

DECLINE IN GOLD

NEW YORK Nov. 29.—The Post says the decline in gold is not strange when it is remembered that $5,000,000 are on the way from Europe.

WASHINGTON LIBRARY SALE.

PHILADELPHIA, November 29.—The Washington literary sale yesterday attracted numerous bidders. The bidding was quite spirited on some of the fine works bearing the imprint of the Washington coat of arms and marked by the General's autography. The prices realized were satisfactory to the sellers. The volumes averaged about $8 each, and the sum realized for the lot was $1983. The proceeds of the entire collection sold today, General Washington's own library, that formerly owned by other members of his family and the few books sold on other accounts, was about $5000.

UNDER THE DEBRIS.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 29.—About half past three o'clock yesterday afternoon the floor of the storeroom adjoining the south wall of the City Hall, which was used for storing iron ties and cotton seed gave way, and the roof fell in with a terrible crash. James Newsome, controller of the city, his brother William, and Thomas McKean, occupied rooms in the second story, and their cries for help soon attracted a large crowd. Controller Newsome was soon released, and found to be slightly hurt by falling debris, but two hours' hard work were required to extricate the others, who were found to be considerably bruised, but not seriously.

SUICIDE CONSTITUTIONAL.

St Paul, Nov. 29.—The Supreme Court decided that the insurance asylum law which assesses $10 from each liquor seller for the support of the asylum is constitutional.

THE SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—The following is the situation this morning: The postmaster question in Oregon is undecided; Florida hangs on two returns from Baker county, the first which is regular, giving the State to Tilden, the last, irregular, giving the State to Hayes, with twenty-nine other counties quo tioned; two lower houses at Columbia, one composed of SIXTEEN Democrats and Republicans; the other fifty-eight Republicans. The suits pending before Judge Bond for a writ of habeas corpus in favor of the canvassers committed by the State Supreme Court for contempt and before the Supreme Court of the State for a rule for counting the electoral vote, remain the same. The main questions before the Louisiana Returning Board seems to be how not to get returns.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—The Herald's special from Columbia says three Republican Senators will vote with the Democrats, making a dead lock in that body. The three excluded delegates from Edgefield and Laurens have a good chance for admission. The Democratic House has appointed a committee to inform the Senate that the House is organized and ready for business, and also appointed a committee to obtain the returns for State officers.

MCKENZIE'S STORY.

NEW YORK, November 29.—A special, dated on the field with Gen. McKenzie, November 25th says: Two fighting lances all day. The village contained 200 lodges and 500 warriors. The camp was at the village when M K rode attached it, and the Indians took to the rocks. Consequently it was difficult to dislodge them. We are camping on the battle field, although the hostile guns are flashing from behind a hundred bushes. The volunteer Indians behaved well in the charge, but afterwards became indifferent to anything but plunder. We captured 250 ponies, killed about twenty Indians, lost one scout a corporal and a private killed, and quite a number wounded.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 29.—Official Hayes' majority, 3767.

FLORIDA.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 28 —The board met at ten o'clock. Present—The gentlemen heretofore reported. The face of the returns gives Hayes 7460, Tilden 7418. Hayes' majority 42. The Republican canvass gave notice of contest in nineteen counties; the Democrats in nine. Dade county, not in, will not give 25 majority. The Democrats claim 23 votes in Clay county, which were evidently omitted and were conceded, leaving the Republican majority 19. There are two returns from Baker county, the first giving a Democratic majority of 94, the second a Republican majority of 41. The last, and latest, is signed by the judge and sheriff, but not the clerk, and the difference is made by throwing out several Democratic precincts.

The following gentlemen were present at the count: For the Republicans—General Barlow of New York; Messrs. Anni and Noyes, of Ohio, Lew Wallace and Mr. Brady, of Indiana; W. E. Chandler of New Hampshire, and several local politicians. For the Democrats appeared Messrs. Manton Marble and Paris, of New York; G. W. Biddle, D. W. Seibers, J. R. Read, Samuel G. Thompson, Malcom Hay, G. W. Guthrie, of Pennsylvania; C. W. Woolley, of Ohio. L. Swinnal, of Massachusetts; Mr. John F. Coyle, of Washington; Charles Gibson, of Missouri; Perry Smith, of Illinois; J. E. Brown and F. M. B. Young, of Georgia, with several local politicians. General Brennon, of the United States army, had a seat inside the railing with the board.

PROTECTING THE PRINTERS.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—The Reichstag yesterday adopted clause forty four of the penal code bill, which prescribes that no publisher, printer or member of staff of a newspaper shall be compelled to give evidence in court when a responsible editor holds himself ready to answer for all offense.

THE REVOLUTION IN MEXICO.

SAN FRANCISCO, N. Y., 29.—A San Diego press dispatch says a letter has been received from San Rafel, the capital of Lower California, confirming the report that Governor Villagrano's government has been overturned, but says the facts are the Governor was himself a revolutionist in favor of Diez, and has been arrested and sent to Guaymos on the charges of rebellion, abuse of the elector law, fraudulent practices, etc.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.

SENATION.

WASHINGTON Nov. 28 11 P M.—Republicans not in office here generally denounce military interference in South Carolina. The New York Herald says it will cause a great reaction in the North. Dispatches from Florida say the official vote will undoubtedly be Democratic.

Hewitt writes that the best man on the Democratic side must be made Speaker.

FLORIDA.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 28. 8:50 P. M.—Gen. B Smith. New Orleans: On first count Hayes's majority 41. Thus after noon it was discovered that the Secretary of State had suppressed prior returns from Baker county, which gives Tilden 95 majority in the whole 34, except Dade county.

Dade county is a very small county and in 1874 gave Democratic majority 23, Republicans 12, therefore the entire vote of the county would not change above result.

Circuit Court.

In this court yesterday, Judge Toulmin on the bench, the following among other orders were made in the case mentioned:

Bruce vs Dawson, judgment for plaintiff $1000.

Anderson vs Dawson judgment for plaintiff $1000.

There will be no session of the court today, on account of the observance of thanksgiving.

The cases set for trial tomorrow are:

Brown vs Martinez; Baldwin vs Maguire, et al; Walker vs Mobile Life Insurance Co.; Tuille vs Rabby; Ballentyne vs Crampton; Hurtel & Ayres vs same; Hamilton et al vs same.

City Court.

In the city court yesterday, Judge Semmes presiding, the following cases were disposed of and then the court adjourned, nine days. The next civil term will commence on the first Monday in February.

The October term of this court, for the consideration of criminal business, will be resumed next Monday.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 2263 bales.

The weekly cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Market quiet and steady. Limited demand and moderate supply."

Closing report "Sales to-day 2500 bales. Market closed quiet and steady. Fair demand and supply.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominal; ordinary nominal; good ordinary 10¼; low middling 11; strict middling 11⅝; good middling 11⅞; middling fair 12; fair 12⅝.

"As empioyed at the accessaries, named Williams Cobb, having wished to possess himself of a piece of phosphorus deposited in a corner obscure, and that served to produce the fires of Bengal, had the fatal idea of lnding it on his stomach, beneath his shirt. At the end of some minutes in the finishing of the spectacle, the unhappy smelt (ferrait) suddenly a sorrow, sharp, horrible—it was the phosporus which came to day-light itself. As a victim, Williams Cobb precipitated himself on all sides, uttering frightful howls. At the sight of this inflamed man the artists fled, and no one dared to fetch him succor in the fear of being equally burned. In less than one moment the vestments of the poor boy were entirely consumed; which was when we could approach ourselves to him and launch upon him several buckets of water. But (horrible thing!) his flesh continued to burn, producing a bluish flame and crackling like fat cast upon the fire! In this state Williams Cobb was led to the police station. He lived there for two hours, preserving all his lucidity of mind, and his flesh continuing to burn, nothing being able to arrest this frightful combustion. So soon as he was dead, his corpse exhaled an odor so insupportable that we were obliged to bear it in haste to the cemetary, in the dread that these fetid emanations might engender an epidemic malady."

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 78, minimum 56, a range of 20 degrees.

Richings-Bernard Opera.

Several years ago, March, 1870, Mrs. Richings Bernard paid us a visit of one week with a splendid and beautifully furnished company. It was during Lent. On this account there was only a light house on Monday, increasing Tuesday and Wednesday, when the praises of those attending brought out the city so that on the remaining three nights and matinee the theatre was crowded. Every one attending was so pleased that they requested not attending all of them.

The prima donna is an "American Girl," highly educated and cultivated. She translated every piece from Spanish into English, and, nothing daunted, her perseverance was crowned by success. She made "English opera" a success. Everything about her was refinement and every one of her assistants ladies and gentlemen; her ensemble effective, and were new, of the best, bright and clean. The skill and thoroughness in instilling into the minds of each performer his or her part was so perfect that they did not even have a "Prompter"—the bugs in the bonnet was by just in front of the footlights lay useless in the property room. she had with her, then, that splendid English gentleman and scholar, Mr. "Henri Drayton." "Peace to his ashes, he has gone before." he was the baritone. Brockhous Bowden the tenor, the Peake boys—tenor and basso. Frank Howard and his charming sister,—now singing in England.

It is pleasant to notice that Mrs. Drayton is with them still, and it is hoped that she has with her her sweet little daughter who acted the part of the stolen little girl in the "Bohemian Girl." Oh! how memory runs back to the time. The columns of the Tribune were freely opened to sound the praises of the "Richings-Bernard Opera Troupe, and flatters itself, with no vegrance, that it aided largely in filling the theatre.

They so appreciated the attention of the Mobilians, that upon invitation from Madame Sands, the organist and directress of the choir at the Cathedral, to lend her their aid in the Sunday morning service, they readily assented and the Cathedral was filled. It is very seldom that the walls of the old and noble structure resound with such music as was that Sabbath morning pealed forth.

Undoubtedly many of those will go to listen to the notes of her who in so short a time gave such entire satisfaction, and who promised if she came back to Mobile she would avoid Lent. She has made good her promise. Let the citizens do theirs.

After the services at the Cathedral they were all marshalled under the guidance of our ho-pitable host Bernard, C. O. Zadek, who locked in with Brookhaus Bowlen and Mr. Drayton, with Madames Pillichody and Sands, and followed in their wake by a goodly number of the musical citizens, terminated with the members of the company, made three champagne lunches suffer, finally bringing up to the Montgomery Ball lookout manner, where dinners, pocket handkerchiefs and gloves went up as the boat backed out.

Let Mrs. Richings-Bernard be equally appreciated this time as the "American Girl" who made "English opera" a success. X.

Sitting Bull in a Corner

Information has been received at the War Department from General Miles, saying that he had had a conference with Sitting Bull under a flag of truce. Sitting Bull proposed to return on condition that his people be permanent in the Hi le Miles replied that the terms could not be accepted, as the only conditions that could be allowed were the same as those granted to other hostiles, unconditional surrender. He also informed Sitting Bull that in case he did not surrender at once he would make immediate war on him. He declined on the ground that by doing so on such conditions he would lose the prestige he had gain d since the war. After the conference Sitting Bull was permitted to return to his command, Miles allowing him sufficient time for that purpose. An attack upon the savage chief's camp was then made by Miles, who after a brisk engagement completely routed the Indian camp, capturing their entire camp, and a number of ponies. At the War Office it is the opinion that the capture of Sitting Bull and his warriors will speedily follow, as General Miles is in hot pursuit, with General Hazen in his front at old Fort Pock.

The Races.

The first race of the fall meeting of the Louisiana Jockey Club will take place on Saturday next. The first race is to be a hurdle race of two miles, over eight hurdles; the second, a mile dash for two-years old; and the third race, closing the programme for the first day, will be a race of mile heats for horses of all ages for a club purse of $400. All the fast horses of the Southern turf will take a turn during the meeting. The stables of Richards, Cottrill and Williamson have been for some days on the ground, and others in full condition are to arrive. There is no reason why the present fall meeting of the Jockey Club should not be more successful than any of the meetings held here for years.

The weather is such as invites visitors and residents to out of-door amusements. The track is in the best possible condition for a fast time, and exciting races may be expected. The grand stand has been entirely rebuilt since the fire. The new bonnets and hats have arrived and the ladies will be out in full force.

Strangers here should know that three lines of street cars, leaving Canal street, run directly to the Fair Grounds. Five cents for a car is as good as $5 for a hack, and the cheaper way of going to the races is quite as fashionable.

Peanuts

Peanuts, or, as they are popularly known in the South, ground nuts or goobers, grow in the ground or the roots of the plants exactly like potatoes. The stalk and leaves of the plant somewhat resemble clover, and to get the nuts when ripe the plants are pulled out of the ground, the nuts adhering firmly to the roots where the greatest trouble with the ground-nuts is in picking them, which has to be done by hand, no machine having as yet been invented to do the work, though it would seem as if such a machine, in the shape of a coarse comb, might be easily invented. But labor is cheap in the places where they are grown, which are in the light sandy soils of Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, in this country. Peanuts are also largely grown in Africa, India, Brazil and other places. The best are raised in the valley of the river Gambia, in Africa and yield large quantities of oil. This product, when properly produced, is esteemed equal to olive oil but it is also used in woolen manufactures, in lamps, and for lubricating machinery. Last year the crop in the United States was as follows: Tennessee, 235,000 bushels; Virginia, 450,000; North Carolina, 100,000. The imports from Africa last year were 846,000 bushels of which Boston imported 28,000 and New York 23,000. The average of the new crop this year is somewhat larger than that of last year, and the yield promises well, the nut being generally better filled and matured than for the past two years and of finer quality. The past year was marked by fewer changes than any former one; by a moderate but steady consumptive demand; by an absence of speculation, and by the small proportion of choice white nuts. Tennessee peanuts are put up in burlap bags of four or five bushels, capacity, and are sold by the pound, the grades being, respectively, inferior, prime, choice and fancy. The crop year begins October 1 and ends September 30 of the ensuing year. The new crop will come forward under very favorable auspices. The previous crop having been well sold up stocks are light in the hands of commission merchants and dealers.—Boston Herald.

THURSDAY.....NOVEMBER 30

Gossip by Telegraph.

The following is from American Press Association dispatches:

HOLDING THEIR OWN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The Tribune says neither party, it is to be feared, is over-scrupulous just now, and yet it is to be observed that in the three Southern States in dispute there was no prima facie reason not to expect a Republican majority; that the party may fairly claim, therefore, to be trying to hold only what it honestly believes to be its own in the contest. To this it refers to the efforts of the Democrats to secure the election of Democratic electors in Oregon, Vermont and Rhode Island, on the ground of ineligibility of Republican electors whose election is not disputed, and asks if this looks as though the Democratic party was trying to hold only what it honestly believes to be its own. It says in fact, is not this about the difference that the Republicans in disputed Southern States are trying to hold what they honestly believe they got, while the Democrats in the Northern States are trying by hair splitting technicalities to grasp what they know the people never intended they should have?

THE NEXT CONGRESS.

The World from latest advices says: Its not possible to state how the Forty-Fifth Congress will stand. In the Senate the Republicans will have a small majority. The House will probably stand 158 Democrats to 138 Republicans. Loss of 22 to the Democrats.

SENSATIONAL PROPOSITION.

The Washington special to the Graphic says that news has reached here that a movement is on foot in leading circles to induce the two Presidential candidates to meet together with a certain number of friends on each side, to see if the present dead lock cannot be overcome. There is such a paralysis of business that anything would be better than the uncertainty that now obtains, and the projectors of this scheme say that neither Mr. Tilden or Mr. Hayes would care to be President it suspicion was entertained that any wrong had been done by either party. It is well known that Mr. Hayes would not accept the Presidency if there were any suspicion as to the manner by which the votes had been secured for him. According to this scheme Hayes and Tilden each, with four friends, are to meet in convention and agree as to the course of action, so as to give the country assurance of peace and prevent civil strife.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—A fire occurred last night on West Madison street in this city. It is supposed to have been caused by the spontaneous combustion of liquor. The fire department was promptly on hand, but before the firemen could arrest the flames four buildings were destroyed. The insurance patrol by the use of ladders saved seven lives, and it was not known until this morning that any lives were lost. Four bodies, however, have been taken from the ruins of one of the buildings, two males and two females, George Board and James Allen, strangers, recently from Boston, and two sewing girls, not known. The total loss of property is $200,000, partially insured. The bodies seem to have been suffocated.

But how William Cobb—(it was our clever and veracious Parisian contemporary which once described a prize-fight between les boxeurs Anglais Harry Brown and Tommy Smith in a style scarcely less epic than Hugo's description of the mill witnessed by Tom Jim Jack—died, it is necessary that the reader should be informed, Says Le Gaulois.—N. PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

(Fifteen Years Established.)

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate paint last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs may be patched and coated, making much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without the slate, for

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about two cents of simply laying them. The paint is fire-proof against sparks or glowing embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER cracks nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water-tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP!

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, tarred boards, or any smooth surface, from two gallons to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition, therefore, is neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. CURLED OR WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, stops the leaks, and although a slow dryer, runs does not affect it a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On

TIN ROOFS

our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For

BRICK WALLS

Our BRIGHT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

These paints are also largely used on cottonhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine building.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.

The Eucalyptus Tree.

In the National Cemetery here, the eucalyptus or lever tree grows rapidly. The St. Louis Republican says, that its cultivation in California has been attended by such manifest benefits that it promises to become a regular business. A very high estimate is set on the tree. In Los Alameda and Sonoma counties there are large plantations devoted entirely to it, and new ones are being constantly set out. Fire wood in that region is worth $10 to $15 a cord. Experiments show that five of these trees four years old will make a cord of wood. They are planted about eight feet apart, making about seven hundred to the acre, so that an acre of trees will yield about one hundred and forty cords of wood, which at $10 per cord, would be worth $1400, or, allowing one half for cutting and hauling, it would yield a net profit of $709 per acre. But the tree has other uses than that of fuel; it is more valuable for ties, posts, piles and building purposes, so that its value as fire wood is its minimum worth.

TELEGRAPH

TWEED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—There was a report widely circulated to-day that arrangements had been made which, after approval by the courts, would result in the liberation, of Tweed, under heavy bail, and that the bondsmen were forthcoming. The sheriff and others denied the rumor. Suit is to be commenced at once against Tweed to compel him to transfer certain real estate in Putnam county, which he, before his flight, refused to do. The property is claimed by the city, and Tweed wanted to be paid more than the amount paid by him, and interest on his money. He still refuses to make the transfer.

A VOTE FOR GRANT.

Fears are entertained by members of the National Committee that some Republican elector may be bribed to vote for Grant instead of Hayes, and thus throw election in the House. This is assuming that Louisiana and Florida are both Republicans.

THE SITUATION.

The Commercial's Washington special says members of Congress come in slowly. There are several prominent and leading Republicans here who it is surmised are called on to consider the situation in the Southern States. Mr. Evarts, Gen. Sickles and many other officers, have settled down more quietly, and the excitement has subsided.

THE HABEAS CORPUS.

The Graphic's special from Washington says it is understood here among leading Democrats that an argument at Columbia to-day in the Supreme Court will deny the jurisdiction of Judge Bond in the heabeas corpus case of the Returning Board on the ground that the Court did not restrain the Board in any matters than those relating to the State ticket, and that the Court did not attempt to dictate in regard to the counting of votes for Electors or Congressmen.

ELECTORAL COMPLICATIONS.

Another special to the Graphic from Washington says Senator Morton arrived here last night, looking very much improved in health. He dislikes to be interviewed in regard to the situation, but is confident of triumph of right. He thinks the Americus people are not so partisan as to desire any person to go into the White House by fraud. He thinks the winter will be spent in discussion of the electoral complications, and is hopeful of the passage of amendments to the constitution providing for the election of President and Vice President by a direct vote of the people. He says we have had enough of Electoral Colleges, and is in favor of having the elections in several of the Southern States investigated, and is of opinion that committees will be appointed immediately upon the commencement of the session.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The members of both Houses are arriving slowly. It is not believed a quorum of the Senate will be here before Sunday, and where it not devolving upon the House to select a Speaker, it is quite probable that no quorum of that body would be here before that time. The Democratic members now in the city say the House will appoint a committee to visit the disturned States on Monday next, and that by Thursday of next week Congressional Committees will be at work in New Orleans Columbus South Carolina, and Tallahassee, Florida.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the travelling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES present by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to all Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being seventeen shorter than the route via Louisville, and by no more changes of cars, and is over a more direct line. New vestibule, sleeping-cars, coaches, and all intermediate points, using four to twelve hours quicker than any other route to or out South.

In thanking them in anticipation for the public favors, we beg leave to remind the South and the East, big leave to remind the public that in arranging their schedules to meet the convenience of the public for greater dispatch in rapid transit, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed entirely inconsistent with the safety of both trains and the ability of frequently missing connections, but in the main shorter time than that of any other route, they have, by running stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.

Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the salubrity of the climate, the purity of the air, and the delightful scenery constitute not a little to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passengers coaches over this route are of a superior grade to Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge. Courteous, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, thereby insuring to travelers

COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A superior class of eating-houses will be found at re ular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals,

QUICK TRANSIT. FEW CHANGES. SURE CONNECTIONS

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties, will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

Words of a dying cannibal:—"Write me down as one who loved his fellow men."

Power is so characteristically calm that calmness in itself has the aspect of power, and forbearance implies strength.—Bulwer Lytton.

In the list of the members for the next Congress published by the N. Y. World Mr. Bromberg is put down for this district of Alabama. It ought to be so, but it is a mistake as far as present appearances are concerned.

To Hons. Messrs Smedes, Muldon and Beers we are again indebted for copies of valuable public documents. The report of the Auditor is especially valuable, for it shows how the state revenues are got, and how they are disposed of. This information is given with much detail. Of course, it is true only as the Auditor received it, but it provokes one's credulity as the sums of the tax returns are concerned. The feeding of our Mobile prisoners cost $15,950 the last fiscal year, but some of them who were sent to the penitentiary have helped to offset that cost.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will be pleased to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

CREMATION.

Some people in New York are trying to estimate the cost of cremation. One man thinks that it is more expensive than a burial in the famous cemetery called Greenwood. So expensive are some of our funerals that it seems to be economy to live.

Of all the vanities this is the least in harmony, with Death, who is never clad in purple. In Mobile we have seen the fellow often, and the wind went through his anatomy. He had no drapery on him.

It is respectable to have friends to go with a funeral cortege to the grave; but the dead are not conscious of any honors and the giving of ice to them with so much expense, is depriving the living of what would help to make households comfortable.

Who lies in this grave! Whose costly casket is it that makes the funeral so imposing! There is nothing in it except a dead body, not waiting for a resurrection, but looking on from a new condition, and, perhaps laughing at the expense, given to the dead and starving the living.

Bishop Hughes, many years regulated this among his parishioners. Six carriages were the greatest number that he thought tolerable, but if friends hire their own vehicles, it is a tribute of much worth to the friends of the dead. This is estimable.

LOUISIANA.—The largest stock of white and red Shaker flannel and cashmere undershirts and drawers, of the star make, at the Mammoth Clothing House, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

TELEGRAPH

SWELLING A STATUE.

MADRID, 28 4 Dec. 1. The ceremonies attending the unveiling of the monument symbolizing religious liberty, erected on the Centennial grounds by the Rebaw order known as the I. O. Birth, took place shortly after noon yesterday.

Although the day was cold and bleak very, an assemblage numbering about 1200 persons, composed chiefly of the Philadelphia members of the order, with representatives from district lodges of Baltimore and New York, members of the Centennial management, headed by Thos. Coobran, of the Board of Finance, and General Hawley, of the Commission, were present.

At 12 o'clock noon, the members of the Order and the invited guests assembled at the Centennial Depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and at 12½ o'clock P. M., marched to the site of the monument, where the exercises were immediately commenced. After music by the band a prayer was offered by Rev. George Jacobs.

The President of Philadelphia District for this district of Alabama. It ought to be so, but it is a mistake as far as present appearances are concerned.

MADRID, December 1.—There is much excitement among shippers over rumors of two Cuban privateers on the high seas, special to the New Orleans Picayune.

IMPEACHMENT OF GRANT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The Herald virtually demands the impeachment of Grant for his interference in South Carolina generally, and particularly for the military interposition at Columbia yesterday. It pronounces that the first business of the House on the assembling of Congress will be the appointment of a committee to draw up articles. Greeley, the Herald further says, cannot plead ignorance as in the case of Louisiana. He stands condemned out of his own mouth.

The World also demands the impeachment of Grant and of every Cabinet officer who sanctioned the ordering of troops to Columbia. The time for mild sequiescence, adds the World, in the revolutionary proceedings of the Administration is at an end.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Great's use of troops in South Carolina is causing a great reaction in the North. The New York Post and other Republican papers denounce it severely.

Republican Congressmen are authority for the statement that Rogers has exceeded his orders and will be repudiated by Grant and Sherman.

WHITTLINGS.

Nos. 29 to 31 South street, Chicago, is burned; loss $200,000.

The debt statement issued at Washington yesterday shows an increase during the last month of $457,662.68.

The fire at Yeddo, Japan, was the most destructive in years. The foreign settlement was partly destroyed.

J. P. Foster, a metal merchant of Birmingham, England, has failed. Liabilities $470,000.

The tobacco warehouse, and stock contained therein, of Newbury Brothers & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, is burned; loss $25,000.

A Madrid dispatch says a motion has been submitted in the Senate calculated to develop a full discussion of the state of affairs in Cuba and the best means of pacification.

A Versailles telegram says in the House of Deputies the report of granting for scholarships was defeated, and all the restrictions recommended by the committee adopted, and all increases demanded by the Government refused, in the Public Worship bill.

The city volunteer military organizations of New Orleans turned over the arms borrowed from the State to Colonel Loan, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, at the request of Governor Kellogg.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 31st, 1876.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, St. John & Co. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LAUNDRY SOAP of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Olive, perfumed."

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from free caustic alkali, that its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official stat ard of the United states Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that no fact of their undoubted purity is fully established.

Walks Around Town.

Joe Murphy matinee today at the Mobile Theatre. Reduced prices, and no reserved seats.

If there is a more delightful climate than that of Mobile, let somebody discover and announce it.

Many of the ladies of Mobile will go to the Joe Murphy matinee today at the theatre and take their little boys and girls with them.

Fresh from Colonel Pleasant's plantation are oranges and eggs, received in large quantities by Owen Farley and sold over to sheep.

The Young Brothers are making a handsome display of gas fixtures and gas fitting goods at their new store, corner Dauphin and St. Emanuel.

Turner's wine dessert sauce, and the ready-cooked plum puddings to use on are sold by W. Crosbie, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson.

It is economy for a large family to go to Young Brothers and order a range for cooking purposes. They have the latest patterns and at the cheapest prices.

That handsome, fashionable, showy suit for the drawing room or a bridal party was bought at the clothing store of Pincus, northeast corner Dauphin and Royal.

Ice was found in buckets and tubs that stood out of doors last Thursday night, and vegetation was frozen. It was one of the coldest nights ever experienced in Mobile.

Such a tempting display of fruits and fancy groceries as is made at Owen Farley's mammoth grocery store, 54, 56, 58, 70 and 72 Government street, is rarely seen in Mobile.

It should be borne in mind that Pincus, northeast corner Dauphin and Royal, has the latest and most fashionable styles of clothing, at the lowest prices, and of durable fabric.

The Mobile police force had a thanksgiving undisturbed by visitus of discharge from the services yesterday, as no reduction recommendation has not been finally adopted.

Orders for staple and fancy groceries left at Walter Crosbie's, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson, filled promptly and at charge made for drayage to any part of the city.

The Standard Company's laundry and toilet soaps, of pure material manufactured in Mobile are sold by W. Crosbie, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson, in large or small quantities.

The new rooms of the Cotton Exchange, on the corner of St. Michael and Commerce streets, were dedicated by the uncorking of champagne and the utterance of appropriate sentiments, last Thursday.

Go to Owen Farley and buy a barrel of nice, fancy apples, for your "dear friend" as a Christmas present for some valued friend at the north, where there are no oranges grown as in sunny Alabama.

W. Crosbie, southeast corner Dauphin and Jackson, carries the fullest assortment of fancy and staple groceries in the city. He gives good weight and measure, and sells for only a fraction above wholesale rates.

The choicest bottle packed rye whisky for eggnogg are on the shelves of Owen Farley, at 54, 56, 58, 70 and 72 Government street. It is nice, pure and excellent. He has eggs, also, fresh from Colonel Pleasant's plantation.

Ben DeLamos, formerly an attache of the Mobile custom house, now a republican representative from a Louisiana county, voted for General Morgan for United States Senator, because he believed him to be a just man, who would make a just senator.

In cold weather a little stimulant is almost a necessity to some thin skin, and in the long resident in this climate. Better than the oldest Bourbon is the genuine Jamaica rum and fine French brandy sold by Owen Farley, 54, 56, 58, 70 and 72 Government street.

Such a cold, blustering, windy day as yesterday was suggestive of the necessity of a warm overcoat. Those who visited the clothing store of Pincus, northeast corner of Dauphin and Royal, and purchased the garment they needed, were amply protected from the bleak winds.

Now that thanksgiving is over, it is time to talk about Christmas. Always the pioneers in goods for Christmas presents, the Bromberg Bros. are beginning to receive a new, large and fresh stock of toys and souvenirs for Christmas and New Years' gifts. They have a full line of musical instruments, pianos, organs, sheet music and ladies stationery.

Drove wells are made to order by the Young Brothers, at their store, corner Dauphin and St. Emanuel streets and put down in any part of the city without expense of drayage. It is the only establishment in Mobile that gets up drove wells in this manner, which are always thoroughly successful. To insure a well of water to be certain to bring up the purest water, before they are put down.

Elisa Brinkston, who was bull-dozed, in Dauphin parish, Louisiana, has been a conspicuous witness before the Louisiana returning board. To impeach her testimony several witnesses were introduced, among them Charles Tidwell, who raised her. He gives her the credit of having a violent temper and a character devoid of veracity, but says he would have taken her to Louisiana if she had not been in jail when he left Alabama.

The Battle House billiard rooms under the gaslight present a lively appearance.

Corn, oats, bran, cotton seed meal and hay, wholesale and retail by Owen Farley.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade will be held next Monday evening as seven o'clock.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 20 barrels apples, 2 cars corn and 1 car wood were received.

Assorted candies, of the purest quality, put up in small packages, expressly for family use, and sold by Owen Farley.

The Battle House has a great number of guests, and its present management is manifestly on the high road to prosperity, pushed on by the public favor that is merited.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade next Monday evening, ought to be attended by every member, and every business man in the city who is not, should become a member before that time.

T. M. LeBaron, auctioneer, will sell at the store next to O. J. Reilly & Co., Commerce street, next Tuesday at half past nine a. m., chairs, tables, lamps and various other articles mentioned in the advertisement.

Chief Justice Brickell, of the Alabama supreme court, was married to Miss Mary B. Goode, of Montgomery, in that city, at St. John's Episcopal church, and left with his bride for New Orleans last Wednesday morning.

Every one in want of Winter Clothing should, by all means, examine those durable and desirable Cassimere and Cheviot Frock Suits, Coats, Pants and Vests, at $10 and $12 guaranteed fast colors, at the Mammoth Clothing House of M. P. Levy & Co.

A new fashion of coal oil lamp is on exhibition in the lower saloon of Hippler's Varieties. No chimney is required, the porcelain shade resting on glass shaped liked a cake stand that fits on the burner. Sometimes chimneys cost more than oil but this burner saves all the expense of them.

Dating any of the hours of meals at the Battle House, the attendance on the tables is prompt, and entries on the bill of fare are as excellent at one time as at another. That is why business men, with their families, find it convenient to board there; and besides the low rates offered make it an object to those who need to economize in the expenses of living.

River News.

The Emma No. 2 arrived from Wilcox Landing, with 243 bales cotton, 51 sacks Alabama corn and 2000 staves.

The Peerless arrived from Selma with 420 bales cotton, 5 sales moss and 8 sacks Alabama corn.

The only departure last evening was the Peerless, for Selma, with a fair freight and several passengers.

The Lulu D. will arrive in time to go out this evening at five o'clock. Shippers will take notice of this and have their freight ready. Spaulding & Co. agents.

Murphy at the Theatre.

Considering the depression in business here, the engagement of Mr. Joseph Murphy, who is the most perfect delineator of Irish character that has ever animated or agitated Mobile, has been very successful. He certainly demonstrated every night, to the satisfaction of his audience, his superiority over others of his profession in that particular line. As a snow ball rolled in the newly fallen snow accumulates to an enormous magnitude, so have the performances of Mr. Murphy gone on from good to the very best, which was "Maum Cue" presented last night and to be repeated this evening. The Academy drama, in company that includes Roland Reed, one of the most promising of the young comedians, gave a splendid support to Mr. Murphy. Matinee today at 12 M.

Circuit Court.

The following orders were made by this court, Judge Dunlavy presiding, in addition to those already published:

Langley, Marsh & Co. vs. Carter & Co., judgment as on verdict for defendant.

Scranton, Barney & Co. vs. same, suit abated.

Marbury vs same, suit abated.

Turner vs same, suit abated.

Baxter, Bell & Co. vs same, suit abated.

Kibler Bros vs same, suit abated.

Today the motion docket will be taken up.

Five pound cans of mince meat at Owen Farley's. Just the article for holiday tables.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 59, minimum 27, a range of 32 degrees.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad was received yesterday 137 cedar logs and 3 barrels turpentine.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad was yesterday received 23 hogsheads sugar, 2 barrels molasses and 2 bales hay.

An attempt was made a few nights ago to set fire to the residence of Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, on Dauphin street, between Broad and Common.

City scrip is getting scarce. There is only about $16,000 of it out. The brokers sell it at the small discount of two and a half per cent.

Pleasant to the taste, healthful to the body and economical to families is the apple, peach and quince butter in five pound cans at Owen Farley's.

N. H. Thomas, with J. Simon & Bro. can give all information in regard to the weather and can sell a cheap suit of clothes besides, at 55 Dauphin street.

The city tax collector receives more greenbacks than city money for taxes. He expects to make large collections during the month of December, parties having promised to pay up before Christmas.

That amiable gentleman, Mr. John Ballou, at Atkinson's Market Exchange, will be glad to see his own friends there during the lunch hours or at any other time, as well as the friends of Mr. Atkinson.

It was so cold Thursday night that hydrants and pumps were frozen, and all vegetation that could be damaged by a freeze was cut down. The surface of the earth remained frozen in shady places during the day.

The dead walls and high fences of the city are extensively filled with mammoth pictorial pictures announcing that Howe's London circus will give performances on Dauphin way on the 18th and 19th day of December.

We learn from the Montgomery Advertiser that the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad have received the beautiful engine which the company had on exhibition at the Centennial. Among other exercises it has painted on each side of the tender a map of Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee and Georgia.

Habeas Corpus.

James Baggett petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus, to recover possession of his daughter Mary Baggett, a child of eleven years, about to be taken to New Orleans, from Grand Bay, where she was with her mother.

After hearing the testimony yesterday, Judge Semmes ordered the child remain in the custody of the mother. Mary Jane Baggett and that the petitioner pay the costs of the proceedings.

Mobile Varieties.

This cosy little place of amusement where there is comedy and farce, song and dance, is long-native to the visitor, as it only costs 25 cents admission. Chris May, Jessie Mallace, May Hendley, Dick Roberts, Chris Matthews and J. H. Cooke, are among the many who contribute to make the entertainments pleasing and agreeable, sparkling with fun and overflowing with mirth-provoking points. Go early or go any time during the evening. A special and lively programme tonight.

Theogera.

The faith-ful advance agent of the Carefline Richings-Bernard troupe, that gave at Odd Fellows' Hall Thursday night the English opera of "Marifiora" and last night the opera of "Il Trovatore," passed by the Tribune; but Mr. Miller, the business manager and Mr. Bernard acknowledge this discourtesy, and volunteer the "amende" in pleasant and satisfactory manner. In sundries the attendance has not been large, but in appreciation, they never have had better audiences than here and now. The return of this opera company to Mobile is anticipated with delight.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 249 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Market easier. Limited demand and fair offerings. Sales about 500 bales."

Closing report "Sales to-day 1000 bales. Market closed dull and weak. Moderate demand by a few. Supply fair.

Quotations: Low ordinary nominal; ordinary nominal; good ordinary 10½; low middling 11½; middling 11¾; good middling 12; middling fair 12½.

The cotton receipts at Mobile this week were 19,240 bales, against 21,397 the week previous.

During the past seven years, the records of the State office show that 6,000,000 acres of land were confiscated by the State of Mississippi and sold for non-payment of taxes. This is an area more than twice the size of Connecticut, larger than either New Hampshire or Vermont. Can anything more plainly illustrate the effects of misrule?

It is said that three crops of German millet were grown last year by Col. Wade, of Red Lick, Texas. German millet has become a great favorite as a forage crop in Tennessee, Kentucky and Upper Mississippi. All kinds of animals seem to like it, and if three crops can be grown in one year in this latitude it adds another step towards the independence of the Southern farmer. It should be extensively produced in Alabama.

Old Si, in the Atlanta Sunday Herald, explains why the negroes do not pay their poll-tax, as follows:

A gentleman at the hotel, after reading that only nine hundred negroes in Fulton county were entitled to vote, asked Old Si: "Why don't more of the colored people vote in this county?" "Kase dey hesn't bin ter de capitol's offis an' put down de sugar." "Why hesn't paid dare poll-tax, dars what I wants ter know." "Ah, yes and why do they not pay the poll-tax, when it is only one dollar!" Fustly, 'kase de dollar aint got so handy as dey might be, and secondly, 'kase ob de big tax principally." "Indeed, and would a man prefer a dog to his vote?" "I sees, sah, dat you is a stranger down heah, an' I has ter splain you dat de nigger am berry peculiar in his interests. When de masesh ob a nigger's hants gits fwined round a dog he does mo' comfort in dat property, dan in all de votes dat you could cram into a hot ballot box—an dats nigger 'sperience, now!"

MIXED READY FOR USE.

Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate paint last for 10 to 20 to 25 years. Old tin roofs may be painted and coated, looking much better and lasting much longer than new shingles without slate, &c.

One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about one-third the cost of shingles laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying cinders, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron roofs no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing and Felt can be made water-tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is

EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, unlathed boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition,

therefore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.

On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. CHALKED OR WATER-STAINED as it brings to vivid places and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in the roofs, stops the leaks, and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is

The Washerwoman's Letter.

THE LITTLE ELECTION BET SHE MADE WITH MR. BINGO.

[Detroit Free Press]

MISTER EDITUR—Wood eny thing a poor old washywooman cood rite be wurth redin', do ye think? Fair, If ye've got so far as this ye may as well go furder an' find out.

It's a washywooman I am, and, by the same token, a widdy woman, too, fur, when me husband (God save him) was livin'—Micheal Callahan was his name, sur—an' a rale man, he was, widout any stuck-up airs at-all at-all. When he was livin' not a bit of hard wurruk did I do, barrin keepin' the house neat an' tidy, an' lookin' arter the three childer (two boys an' a girl. God bless 'em) that we had, an' that I've got yet. So, ye see, he did'nt leve me a poor, lone widdy, for I niver could be lonesome wid those foin childer about the house. As I was sayin', sorry a bit of hard wurruk did I do while me husband was a livin', but, av coorse, since he died, wid those hungry mouths to fill, its taken wurruk, wurruk to keep us along, an' what better could I do than washin'? Av coorse it war long time before I got plenty of customers. What, xid the quare Caineymen that dampen the clothes by shquirtin' water out of their dirty moutus, an' the shteam laundrys, as they call 'em, an' wid all the other washywomen it was a long time before I got enough to do. But, now sir, I'm quite above trouble of that kind, an' I do washin' for some of the foinest families an' shamiest young gentlemen in the city.

An' if it isn't intrudin' I am, it's a story I must tell you about wan of me customers, a shmart young law yer he is, but a Republican, mind ye! Me husband Michael was a good strong Demmycrat, an' he'd luck to the man that tried to talk him down. If ye cood hear how he'd make the dishes rattle, whin he brought his fisht down on the table an' me trembin' all over fo fear he'd wake the childer out of their first sleep.

Howsomever, this young lawyer wood come in, and bein' a pleasant spoken man an' very fond of talkin' —bein' he was a lawyer—he'd try gibe me a little about politics wi he found I was a Demmycrat, I me husband (God save him) an' had many a little argument on subject.

Wan day—a week before eleet —he came in to get his washin'; sez he, "Hayes is goin' to be next President as sure as the shines." "By the same token," I, "Mr. Tilden will be the man, it's very cloudy the day." Mist Callahan," sez he, "I'd like to bet a pair of kid gloves that he won "Kid gloves!" says I, "kid glov an' what should I do wid the like thim, an' me hands in the wash tub every day? But if ye want to bet," sez I, "I'll agree to do yer week's washing for nothing if Hayes is the man, or for double price if Tilden is elected."

"Good enough," sez he, "that suits me."

"Give me the writins," sez I. So he wrote it down in white an' black: "Mrs Callahan agrees to do my next week's washing free of charge if Hayes is elected; Mr. Bingo agrees to pay double price for the same if Tilden is elected."

"There, now, sez I, 'put that in your pipe an' smoke it; and don't have yer wash too big next week, if yer want to economise." Wid that he laughed an' walked off.

The next Monday, day before election he comes with a great big bundle of clothes. Ahl ye rascal," I thinks to myself, "yer thryin' to come shmart over the ould washerwoman," but I said not a word to him, only that he could have them Thursday.

"Well, they were all ready Thursday evenin', and I ses to Johnnie (that's me oldest boy, and quite a scholar, he is; a credit to the Callahan family, as I often tell him, an' quite a beau wid the young ladies, If yerself cood only see him once, all dressed up av a Sunday evenin' to go a sparkin'. Its to be married soon, he is; an' indade, I don't know what I shall do widout him).

Well, I axed him to make out the bill so he wrote them down as I said:

Mr. Philip Joseph Bingo.
Four Shirts at 25 cents a pesse 1 dol.
2 pare Drairs 10 c a Drab 20 c cts
Too under-shirts 10 cents, 20 cents.
5 White Ves at two, fy 5 cents, 1 dollar 25 cts.
Leaven handsercher fe 5 cents, 50 cts cents.
7 collars at ditto, 35 cents.
Nevin pare cuffs at 10c. Do thirty 5 cents
Four pare Sox at ten c 20 cents.
Table rose dollers twenty cents at Dobble price cums to a 4 0 $. cts.

Received pay
MRS. CALLAHAN.
Per Johnnie Callahan.

That's right! Johnnie sez I receet it; for he's surely got it to pay, an then I laid the bill away with his washin' until he called.

Well, as ye may suppose, I was quite anxious to hear that Tilden was elected, for, do ye mind, the mane spalpeen had brought all the clothes he could scrape up, an' even his last summer's linen vests, an' if I hadn't felt sure that I'd win me bet, I shouldn't have taken too much panes with his washin'; but bein' as he had to pay double price for it, I did it up sort av extra like.

Well, when Wednesday mornin" came, right glad I was too see the news about Mr. Tilden bein' elected sure; and when Johnnie came in an' sed all the roosters is a crowin' in the Free Press, I read the bill for Mr. Bingo over again

Mr. Bingo didn't come that day, he didn't come till Friday; and then, sez he, smilin' very pleasant like, "Well, Mrs. Callahan, I believe I'll take me washin' now, since I believe I'se won the wager." But didn't I read that very day how the Republicans was thryin' to cheat us out av it, and that we couldn't tell for sure until the offishul count come in. So, indade, I wasn't goin' to be humbugged that way, at all, at all; an' I just says to him, "Mr. Bingo, this seems to be a little mixed. I'm goin to wait until the offishul count com s in before I wash sure a heap of little I care if he has no clean shirt or nothin' to put on he can wear his dirty ones, and good enough they are for a chatin' Republican; an' no more wood I take his money now until the whole matthers offishully settled.

Look at it, now, Misther Editor! To think of his bringin' such an extra ordinary big wash an' then talkin about takin' the chances to a honest washywoman an' a widdy at that, with three childer! Aint I doin' right now, sure! But me son Jonnie said as perhaps I'd best write to ye about it; an I have now.

Sure, sur! there's lots of things I could tell ye almost, but perhaps I'd bother ye too much; for I hear tell that editors has very little spare time. Howsumever, if its agreeable to ye, I'll write again some other time an' tell ye all about 'em.

So no more at present from yer friend the Widdy Callahan,

WASHERWOMAN.

Of coin there was at the close of last month $80,000,000 in the U. S. Treasury.

There is one thing certain: namely that the anti-administration men will have a majority in the next House of Representatives.

LOUISIANA—The largest stock of white and red Shaker flannel and cashmere undershirts and drawers, of the star make, at the Mammoth Clothing House, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

The Greenville, (Ala.) Advocate gives a high compliment to Gov. Bard who went to Maine and deliver ed some excellent speeches. He has come back, and did the same in Florida, and subsequently in Mississippi. The Advocate says: "We believe Gov. Bard to be one of the best stump orators that we have ever heard."

The expression of Mr. Frank Blair that Gen. Grant would try to institute a monarchy, and that he would never be fetched from the White house, except with his feet foremost, is now much quoted.

This is fudge! although Blair may have had another meaning, namely, that Grant could not stay in the Whitehouse and would be brought out of it with his feet foremost. This is good enough. There will be some Brutus to slay the man who shall attempt to subvert the liberties of his country.

THANKSGIVING IN NEW YORK.

It is stated that nearly all the stores and warehouses of N. Y. city were closed on Thanksgiving Day. The theatres had large audiences and the churches were well-filled. The commissioners of the chief charitable associations made large provisions for the poor persons whom they have in charge. Loads of turkeys and delicacies, of a like kind were sent to them; and dinners were also given to the poor of private charitable institutions. This is well, although the general public pays for it. What Tweed stole would feed all these poor and unskilful people for a score of years. After all, while New York has much rascality, it has a great deal of loveable charity.

Last Wednesday a large meeting in Columbus (Miss.) was held for the purpose of making arrangements for the municipal election. The Index says:

"It was agreed that a Primary Election be held on Monday next, and that all persons, colored and white, who co-operated and voted with the Democratic party in the last election be permitted to participate, and that the colored club be permitted to name the two candidates for Trustees of the colored school. The meeting was unanimous. The next query white man first, white man last, white man all the time,' advocated, and the never would recognize the amendments' emanated some one into the light of Conservatism, and stand pledged to the recognition of the colored democrat in all his rights."

* * * * *

"From this time we turn our back upon the past and go into the future for records."

This is the true philosophy for the blues and we hope that some of our Mobile Democrats will give their attention to it.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Our readers who are in need of a good winter suit, at low prices, will be pleased to learn that the Mammoth Clothing House is opening now over one thousand Cassimere suits, of American, French and English texture, just from the manufactory, and is enabled to sell them 25 per cent. less than the same goods can be purchased in this city. We advise every one that is in need of a winter suit to examine, before purchasing elsewhere, the mammoth clothing stock of M. P. Levy & Co., Nos. 16, 18 and 20 North Water street.

POLITICAL AFFAIRS.

There is no doubt, from what we can gather outside of the telegraph despatches, that the Returning Board of Louisiana will cast the electoral vote of the state for Hayes. It is quite probable that all the machinists of the two other unredeemed states will follow in the same way. As far as South Carolina is concerned, Gen. Ruger has been ordered to meddle with the legislature. He seems not to approve the business, but has been instructed by the Commander-in-Chief, and, like a good soldier, he is not ready to disobey orders. Obedience is the first virtue of a soldier. He is a slave and has to submit to what his superiors order him to do. This condition runs up from the private to the generals and of him there is no superior, except for President, who stands at the top of the edifice.

There is only one thing that a soldier can do with self-respect, and gracefully, if he be ordered to do what he thinks is wrong: we allude to his interposition in civil affairs. He can resign, and, perhaps, starve. Starvation is no agreeable. The abandonment of the means of getting our acorns owned case and luxuries, is no something that any man desires. And so some of our soldiers are instruments of wrong—they knowing it—and or by living so because of those potent elements, bread and butter, and the means of getting good wine to help them to a whole some gastric solubility.

This is an animal ambition—lesirable enough, but by no means as wholesome a motive, by or is a manly point of view, as sky water and plain water, which is one of the best of solvents.

Business in all parts of the country is alarmed by the present political condition, and it has some justification—for money is timid, and all kinds of trade and mercantile are moneyed. Seeing this apprehension,—it may often be the result of panic—is it not strange that to by nothing of our people who can desire nothing on good government, should allow the remainder to scare them, and, by his inactiveness, or ignorance, make them afraid—make the small minority the arbiters of the fate of the country?

We don't think that this is possible. The government seems now to be in a condition of transition. If the vast multitudes quietly submit to it, why they need a master, and for the repose of the country we hope that one man will come as soon as possible.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MOBILE, July 21st, 1866.

HESSIS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Stan dard Company's soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of Standard Company's soap manufactured by your "extra quality, perfumed."

From the results of my analyses, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in it many valuable some fat pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official size and of the United states Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS MOHR.
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and a view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by a analytical Chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no reason in stating that for the lack of their well-used purity is fully established.

Mobile by no means stagnates. The foreign clearances yesterday embraced 12,000 bales cotton, valued at $625,000, and other pressure to the value of $1,000, a total value of $626,000, which is pretty good for one day's transactions.

Mountain & Sons, at their fine mill on St. Louis street, are receiving this shape in small quantities, to be ground and ready for consumption. Alabama has the capacity to produce all the rice that her people consume and ought to do it.

Major T. M. LEBaron, auctioneer, will sell next Tuesday, at mill past nine o'clock a. m., chairs, tables, lamps, farming implements, etc., consecrated to the auctioneering business. Steamboatmen and others should attend.

Our local vis a vis is not well versed in operatic literature, when he asserts that "Il Trovatore is Verdi's masterpiece. On the contrary, it is one of his poorest productions, his Un Ballo in Maschera and Traviata being the poorest. His best is "Aida," written expressly for the Kheidve of Egypt, and recently performed in this country under the leadership of Signor Muzio. Rigoletto, Lombardi, Ernani and Don Carlos are all superior to Il Trovatore. Ne sutor ultra crepidam, etc.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 2,749 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Market weak and irregular. Fair demand and offerings. Sales 2,000 bales."

A Dastardly Murder.

The New Orleans Picayune yesterday contains a graphic report of a dastardly murder:

At 12 o'clock, Thursday morning, Col. R. Brown, a planter of Terre Bœuf, five miles below the Court-House of St. Bernard, was killed by a negro man named Blaize, Col. Brown owed Blaize two dollars for labor done, and, in accordance with custom informed him that he would pay the amount when the rolling had been completed.

At the time stated above, Blaize met his employer in front of his plantation and demanded his money. Col. Brown reiterated his intention of paying him with the other hands, when the work was done, whereupon Blaize leveled a weapon which he was carrying—a double-barrel shot gun—and firing it, shot the unfortunate man in the right breast. The charge took effect on receiving the wound, and was again shot in the back to the right by the second discharge. Col. Brown immediately reeled and fell to the ground, forty-two buck shot being lodged in his body. The negro then escaped and has not since been caught.

The deceased gentleman was a native of Kentucky, and about six or seven years ago was a prominent dealer in live stock in this city. He has been planting in Terre Bœuf for the past four or five years and was highly esteemed.

The Lulu D. from Selma brought 125 sacks cotton seed for Spaulding & Co.

By Mobile and Ohio Railroad was received yesterday 150 barrels and 50 and barrels flour, 100 bales cassities, no barrels apples, no barrels sour and 4 dozen.

The entertainment by the Forrest Club, last Friday night, was well attended, and the audience on that occasion gave a highly creditable dramatic performance.

Every one in want of Winter Clothing, consisting of all grades, examine those immense and well-made Cassimere and Cork Frock Suits, coats, Pants and Vests, at $12 and $14, guaranteed less costs at the Mammoth Clothing House of M. P. Levy & Co.

Mr. Meltee's carriage soap.

At the South Royal street, may be seen work on all kinds of carriages, and all kinds of repairing, painting and varnishing done with neatness and dispatch. Any one wishing their carriages done in the best manner will receive prompt and careful attention, and the most reasonable rates to suit the closest purse. In case of accidents to carriages, there will be nothing gained close to southern carriage builders.

Fire Yesterday Morning.

Early yesterday morning, between 3 or 4 o'clock, the frame building on the east side of the Spaulding street, between Conti and Congress, occupied by John C. Quair, was discovered to be on fire, and was quickly consumed. The brick building on the north side of this house, owned by Thos. J. Riley and occupied by G. O. Warner was also burned. Mr. Quair lost about all his furniture and clothing. Mr. Warner lost about $300 in value. The frame building was insured in Israel Putnam's agency for $1,600 and was owned by Charles Kuhl, Jr. Riley's building was insured by the Mobile Fire Department Insurance Company, for $1,000.

Circuit Court.

The following orders were made in this court, yesterday, Judge Toulmin on the bench:

Leff vs Wheeler & Wilson Manufacturing Company, motion to strike from the file the plea of Peck granted. Leave granted to plaintiff to withdraw demurrers and file replication.

Merritt, Fitch & Allen vs Leslie, demurrer sustained.

Maybury vs Sims, motion for judgment against garnishee refused.

Geiger vs Breitling, order of sale granted.

Walker vs Mobile Life Insurance Company, motion for leave to file another plea granted.

The following cases are set for trial tomorrow:

Johnson vs Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; Patty & Co. vs Dantzler; mayor, aldermen and city council of Mobile vs Storey; Hood vs Wray; Moore vs Stone.

Miss Genevieve Rogers.

The lady will commence a week's engagement at the Mobile Theatre tomorrow evening, supported by Frank Aiken's dramatic combination, the initial performance being "Maud Muller." From the press notices of the New Orleans press, we select the following:

The Times of Wednesday says:

Miss Rogers has won accomplishes success in "Maud Muller," and promises to strengthen her hold upon popular favor, as her engagement continues. Nothing as bright and lovely natural as her performance of "Maud," has been seen on the stage for a long time, while in the emotional phases of the part, she has exerted undivided praise from the most critical.

The Times of Friday has also:

Tonight Miss Genevieve Rogers will have a benefit, when she will repeat her delightful performance of Maud Muller, in the play of that name and in which, although last lately introduced to the New Orleans public, she has already won a signal success. The actress has been a revelation to our playgoers, of whom the most intelligent and critical have been generous in the bestowal of their approbation that our stage has rarely seen anything more fresh or natural than the acting of Miss Rogers.

The Picayune pays this tribute to merit:

The engagement of Miss Rogers is drawing to its termination, and we sincerely say that those of our citizens who neglect to attend her performance will lose a rare dramatic treat. No such young actress we might say, even, that no such magnetic young actress has been seen upon the New Orleans boards in many a long day. She is, in all respects, a most satisfying artiste. Her achievements are not spasmodic outbursts which surprise, but they are the sustained and noble work of an actress who is too conscientious to trifle, and too ambitious to engraze her art work to the level of mere stage handicraft. Taking her characterization of Maud Muller as the criterion of judgment, there are none, we presume, of those who have seen her, who will doubt that in all the attributes of dramatic invention, she is a native and to the manner born.

GREAT FIRE IN NEW ORLEANS

ONE HUNDRED AND TWELVE HOUSES BURNED

LOSS $300,000.

The report of the great fire in New Orleans in Friday, the largest for twenty years, occupies the smallest space in the Republican, and it is, therefore, transferred to the columns of the Tribune:

"Between six and seven o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the unoccupied half of the frame house, No. 113 Columbus street, near Claiborne. Mr. J. L. Eschuit resided in one half. It is asserted that the place was set on fire purposely by an unknown person. Soon after the flames broke out it was reported that a man was seen pitching fire in another place; that somebody went and seized him, and then threw the body into a house that was burning; but this was a current needs confirmation.

"A strong wind was blowing all the morning, taking up large pieces of blazing wood and carrying them to the adjoining houses in the square between the street. It soon became apparent that nearly all the frame buildings would be scathed, but nobody supposed the flames would extend over so wide an eighborhood of residences. A count showed that 112 houses, including the Custom of S. Asus, which was on Esplanade street, were burned.

"On Columbus street thirty houses were destroyed; on Robertson, fourteen; on Kiderer, twenty-three; on Villere, thirty-two; on Esplanade, eight; on Marais, five.

"An alarm was promptly sounded and the fire department quickly on hand, but water was very scarce; even Carlerone canal was empty. As soon as water was obtained many streams were put on, but in some instances the wind was so strong as to spray the water. Hence after hours was reduced to ashes in such a short space that the inhabitants, in many instances were glad to escape with what they had on. Indeed, in one instance that several persons were badly burned, but no names were obtained. If persons were injured they were quickly carried from the scene and no report made of the fact.

During the fire Robert Ferguson attempted to assist in hauling off furniture, but his mule became unmanageable, throwing him down, pulling the wagon over his back, and injuring him so badly that he died soon afterward. Several members of Hope Hook and Ladder were injure; a member of Lafayette No. 1 fell from a burning building; one of the Babcock men was burned; Mr. Osburn, Bulcom No. 4, was nearly suffocated; Mr. Cherri, a fireman, leg broken; George Moeres, Joseph Bires and other members of Perseverance, at their pipe, were caught under a falling roof and burned to death, their lives; although every effort to save their pieces. Mr. E. Colverson, in trying to save his mother's house, No. 325 Valere street, by pouring water on the blazing roof, slipped and fell to the ground, but was not burned.

The confusion was so great that it was quite impossible to obtain the names of the people who were suffering. Many persons had no time to secure effects which to bring out for himself. After the fire was subdued, say about noon, most of the unfortunates had found emporary resting places, and did not care to visit the desolate scene of their former homes.

All the residences that were burned on Esplanade street were of the better kind, and three of them were splendid homes. One of these, occupied by Mr. Gheringer, was a total loss, and what is quite as bad, a splendid library was consumed. The fire did not reach as far up as Esplanade on Valere street, being cut off just below the residence of the late Judge Lecamont.

"Of over 100 hundred houses were destroyed, of course fully 150 families were made homeless.

"The square where the fire first began was left as smooth as a floor; or rything being consumed excepting the chimneys. At the point on Robertson street, where the fire was stopped, halfway between Esplanade and Columbus street, a singular thing occurred. A two story house was entirely destroyed, but the small frame one next above it was scarcely scorched, although the next house was razed.

"As to the loss and insurance there is nothing to conjecture. It is thought that the loss will not fall far short of $300,000. However, further investigation can be made today.

"Time after time has Chief Engineer O'Connor petitioned the City Council to provide the burned portion of our city with better facilities for a water supply, but his appiscations were pigeon-holed, notwithstanding he individually pointed out to the Administrators the great necessity; he told them that in case of fire in that section the loss would be beyond calculation. The consequence of delay is now seen in the form of a hundred bare colmneys."

HALLENTINE AND THOMAS B LYONS

The present crisis is characterized as the American Eagle in doubt where to lay its egg.

The ablest commercial and financial papers concur in the opinion that there is no hope of a renewal of business prosperity until the present political uncertainty is ended.

The bridge of the Boston water works over Charles river is supported by the largest arch, except one in the world. It measures 134 feet in length, and 65 feet from the keystone to the water. The weight at the centre of the structure is 480 pounds to the square inch. It will cost, when completed, $200,000.

Col. J. B. Oliver, editor of the Florida New Yorker, has just presented to Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, whom he met in Florida at the residence of her daughter, forty acres of land to be picked out of 650,000 anywhere on the line of the transit railroad running from Cedar Keys and Fernandina, on the Atlantic, to the Gulf of Mexico. She has gratefully accepted in behalf of her grandchildren.

The Atlantic Cable.

There are many singular facts about the transmission of a message through the Atlantic Cable. The Journal of Commerce has been investigating the matter, and we gather from its reports these points:

"When the electricity is applied to the cable at one end, two tenths of a second pass before any effect is felt at the other end, and three seconds are consumed before the full force of the current is in action. The first signal is felt in fourth-tenths of a second, but the following ones go through more rapidly. As many as seventeen words have been sent over the Atlantic Cable in one minute; fifteen can usually be sent under pressure, and twelve a minute is a good working rate. Messages of twelve words have been sent all the way from New York to London in two minutes. A fact not yet explained by the scientists is that electricity does not move as rapidly from New York to London as in the opposite direction.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!
Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our
Patent Slate Paint
(Fifteen Years Established.)
MIXED READY FOR USE.
Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.
A roof may be covered with every change of shingle, and by application of this slate, will last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs, tarred, painted and coated, or leaky tinned roofs lasting much longer than new shingles. Price $1.50 a bbl., f.o.b.
One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.
The expense of slating new shingles is only about 1-3 cost of simply laying slate. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.
IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,
and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold as well. Never cracks nor flakes. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water tight at a small expense, and preserved for many years.
This Slate Paint is
EXTREMELY CHEAP.
Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, will suit on tin, iron, felt, sheathed boards, or any smooth surface, from ten square to one gallon are required to lap square foot of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.
No Tar is used in this Composition,
therefore, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.
On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. UNLESS SO WARNED sizing as it brings to their places and keeps them in them. It fills up all holes in felt roofs, stops the leaks, and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is
CHOCOLATE COLOR,
when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. Or
TIN ROOFS
our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For
BRICK WALLS
Our masonry RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.
Fence paints are also largely used on cottages and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.
Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, Bronze Red and ORANGE.

A Railroad Windfall.

The New Orleans Times of Saturday says:

It seems beyond question now that New Orleans can look forward to the early completion of railway communication with Texas with confidence. The mission of Mr. E. B. Wheelock, President of the New Orleans Pacific Road, who visited New York for the purpose of conferring with the proprietors of the western branch of the Mobile and Texas Road, was crowned with unexpected success. When it became apparent that Mr. Wheelock desired to connect with the western branch at Vermillionville, thereby making it a trunk for all trains from Northeastern Texas, via Alexandria, the advantage to the line was at once perceived.

Governor Morgan, Messrs. Seligman & Co., Morton Bliss & Co., and Mr. Ames, the sole proprietors of the road, we understand, have pledged themselves to act as early a date as possible and at their own expense complete the line from Bayou Goula, its present terminus, to Vermillionville, and thence to the Trinity River, where it will connect with the road already completed to Houston. The New Orleans Pacific road agrees to run its line from Vermillionville through Alexandria to Marshall.

This will give two routes to Texas, one of which will control the trade of the southern portion of the State and the other its northern cotton and grain belt, while the products of both sections will pass over that portion of the road between Vermillionville and New Orleans. It is confidently believed that such an arrangement will give New Orleans the absolute mastery of the Texas business.

That will help Mobile and its trade.

One of Dickens's Subjects.

Chas. Langheimer, seventy-four years old, was held to-day to answer the charge of stealing an overcoat in the Central Station yesterday. Langheimer is the man described by Dickens in his "American Notes." The novelist speaks of him as he saw him in the Eastern Penitentiary over thirty years ago, a picture of forlorn affliction and distress of mind. Langeimer has served nine terms in the Eastern Penitentiary. The reforma ory teachings of that institution seem to have little effect upon the stolid Dutchman, as upon gaining his liberty he is always on the lookout for something new. He has occupied the same cell every term, and in one corner in a lot of earth he has got a garden which looks much like a grave and in which he takes especial pride.—N. Y. World.

The entire coffee crop of the world last year was nine hundred million pounds, of which the United States imported a full third part.

We are indebted to Hon. S. C. Muldon, W. A. Sickles and L. E. Brooks for copies of public documents.

The cold weather in the north is very severe and great distress is predicted among the poor of New York and we suppose elsewhere.

The Democratic members of the South Carolina legislature are adhering converts from the Republican. It is stated that Lost Finda and Saturday six of them retired over.

Samuel J. Randall, of the third Penn-sylvania District, has been nominated in caucus for the important post of Speaker of the House of Representatives. The nomination was made unanimous, which may be considered as good as an election.

The longest-sea men of New Orleans having not succeeded in deceiving the masters of ships from leaving, and unloading cargoes, have adopted another plan: that is to cease work on all vessels until their terms are assented to. This, it is likely, will be upon able and unreasonable terms. Both parties, for the mas ers seem to have the advantage.

The ship Union at New Orleans, was found last Saturday night to have fifty-one bales of cotton. The hatches were battened down, and not by means of the harbor boat was forced into the vessel. What effect it had is not mentioned, for fire is very tenacious of cotton when it gets hold of the staple. They are trying to keep the atmosphere air out in order to smother the danger.

What is conspicuous by its absence in Mobile—water, is elaborately spoken of by the N. Orleans Picayune, in view of the recent very destructive and distressing fire in that city. The whole city is surrounded by water which, it seems to us, could without much difficulty be utilized. It sits on a subterranean superabundance of the element. It could be found any where by digging a few feet. There is a like abundance here, and we, like New Orleans, think about it after every fire.

The great reliance of Kennedy and his confreres in Louisiana for filling the Republican heart is intimidations. The colored people were scared and were afraid to go to the polls. A simple statement of the returns of the recent election disprove this. In the intimidated so-called parishes, the aggregate vote was as large as it ever was been, and within the whole state 15,000 greater. This, it seems to us, is satisfactory as to the unintruthfulness of the charge.

It is very likely that the differences between the actual Republican returns and the expected ones is due to a change among the colored citizens.

ALABAMA LEGISLATURE.

In the session of the 3 state of Friday the Governor sent a message announcing the approval of the bill amending the act for the construction of a breakwater in the harbor of Mobile.

The committee on Revision of Laws reported favorably on the bill to amend an act amending proceedings in Circuit Court of June approved Feb. 19, 1859, and to repeal an act amendatory thereof, approved March 18, 1875. Passed.

In the House Mr. Muldon offered an amendment to the act regulating the speed of railroad trains through incorporated towns and cities.

The committee on Ways and Means reported a bill which provides that all persons who pay their taxes by the first of November shall be entitled to a reduction of three per cent., by the first of December two per cent. and by the first of January one per cent. The title of the bill is "To encourage the prompt payment of taxes in this State." It was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

In Saturday's session of the Senate there were numerous bills introduced to a second reading. A resolution proposing to rent instead of selling property for taxes, was sent to the Finance Committee. The bill to authorize notaries public to take acknowledgments and proof of conveyance without seal and declare the effect of the same, was passed.

In the House on the call of counties the following is reported:

Mr. Muldon, to amend an act to authorize the Mayor of Mobile to license origin Zation of fire companies and discharge the duties of justice of the peace.

Mr. Germon, to amend section one of an act to provide for the keeping of c e in criminal cases by justices of the peace and notaries public.

There is a great deal of work cut out for the committees, but the reporting of it, at its present stage, would not give much information to our readers.

Low r Rates of Interest Proposed

The Philadelphia Ledger states that it is reported that the directors of the savings banks of New York are contemplating a reduction in the rates of interest to be paid to depositors. Such a reduction (if as stated) would not, of course, necessarily be universal or at a proportionate rate in the case of the various banks, since the earnings of each depend on investments, the returns of which must vary according to the sagacity of the managers or the unforeseen results of the hard times. Nevertheless it is a logical result of such a commercial stringency as that through which we are now passing that capital becomes suspicious, and will seek such investments as are more secure than profitable. It is also true that savings banks, like banks of discount, must find in times like these considerable difficulty in obtaining safe investments, which are so generally sought by the large capitalists, who in ordinary circumstances are willing to put their funds in securities that are not absolutely safe. Such considerations as these have already impelled the Boston savings banks to reduce their rate of interest, and their course is likely to be a forerunner of the decisions of most of the savings-banks of New York. The function of savings banks in the community are so peculiarly delicate, and the interest which these institutions guard are so exceptionally fraught with the weal or woe of the poorer classes, that no one will find fault with any measure that may be adopted towards securing the principal of the depositors, and nothing is more certain than that a reduction of interest looks toward such a result.

THE SITUATION.

There is a conflict of testimony in relation to the interference of the U S army with the rights of the people of South Carolina. Senator Gordon, Wade Hampton and A. C. Haskell have stated that there has been interference. If one cannot believe them, no testimony is of any worth—for any kind of torture would not be sufficient to induce those men to say what they think is false. The story that they tell is plain enough.

It is possible that they may have been mistaken, that the commander, Gen. Roger, was not aware of the responsibility that he was assuming in meddling with the state, and, in order to escape the personal responsibility, he telegraphed to the Secretary of War, and he, after some consultation with the President, sent back word that he had no intention, except to protect Chamberlain (the Governor) in his authority. Gen. Hampton has been elected governor, Chamberlain is the governor. He has been in that position—although his right has been contested—for some time. Gen. Grant has recognized him as governor. That is well enough. But the governor, residing to hold on to his position, he declared that he was environed by bull-dozers, and that unless the army were sent to him, he could not continue in his place.

In great insurrectionary trouble, a governor, if a legislature be not in session to appeal to for the uses of the posse comitatus, may send to the President, asking him for help to keep down what may appear to him, or may be used as a pretext, for sending the U. S. army to his aid, in order to suppress insurrection, or almost anything else. It was the pretext which was used to send Governor Ruger to Columbia. If the Secretary of War gave the general no specific missions, and it is said that he did, the general transcended his instruction, and ought to be considered, or taken away—sent after Sitting Bull instead of being permitted to meddle with affairs of which he is ignorant, and by his ignorance may plunge the country into civil strife.

It is something to know that the President and the Secretary of War have disclaimed responsibility for the acts of Gen. Ruger; and have unbacked out from a method which this supersevicable servitor thought was what they meant.

To our mind there is an evident retrocession in the three contested states. Every where through the country, there are indications that there are enough of men—of all parties—to desire nothing but justice—men who, like Gov. Hayes, would not accept even the presidency, if it were to be got by fraud. And it is this which gives one a lively hope that, out of all this cloud of scheming and mendacity, we shall presently emerge into serene skies, with nothing to fear in the present, and only apprehension of the future.

Walks Around Town.

By Mobile and Montgomery Railroad were received yesterday 10 barrels apples.

Edward Beale, jr., a native of New Orleans, died at the marine hospital in Mobile.

August Stuart, a native of Mobile, fifty years old, died in New Orleans last Saturday.

Watty Wallack and Fanny Wallack performed at the Montgomery Theatre last night.

Be happy when you may, for seasons of gloom and despondency checker the life of every human being.

A colored individual was trying to peddle a patisenake yesterday on Royal street. It had only one ratisk.

By New Orleans and Mobile Railroad was yesterday received 12 bogsheads and 3 barrels sugar, and 10 barrels molasses.

Debt is the great curse of man. It is the source of many woes and the cause of much wretchedness. Therefore keep out of debt.

The funeral of the fireman, Theodore Emanuel, was largely attended Sunday, and thus was attested the esteem in which he was held.

Spaulding & Co., steamboat agents and forwarding merchants, received yesterday 600 sacks cotton seed, to be forwarded to New Orleans.

By the Mobile and Ohio Railroad yesterday 117 barrels and 126 half barrels flour, 260 sacks corn, 1 car cattle and 2 cars corn were received.

The reporter acknowledges the compliment of a ticket to the first assembly of the Social Dancing Association, at Turner Hall next Wednesday evening.

The examination of Russell Stewart, charged with the murder of an unknown man found dead near Mauvilla, has been postponed till this morning.

The Picayune says of the hurdle race in New Orleans Saturday: "The defeat of the favorite, Nelligan, caused considerable surprise among the betting ones."

The pressure on the local columns of the Tribune last Sunday excluded the criticism on the recent operatic performances here which is published this morning.

With limited means and limited earnings buy nothing that you do not absolutely need, pay as you go, and put yourself under no embarrassing pecuniary obligations.

Whatever any one attempts to do should be done thoroughly. Let that maxim be impressed on the youthful mind, and the foundation is laid for success through life.

A Picayune special from Washington says: "As soon as the Louisiana and Florida boards have completed their action, committees of investigation will be sent to those states and to South Carolina."

The blossoms of the Japan plum tree were just in the right stage of advance to be seriously damaged by the recent cold weather and there are apprehensions that this fruit will be a total failure next spring.

A dime saved every day amounts to $36 50 a year and $365 in ten years. This illustrates the correctness of the phrase "Many a dime makes a dollar." Try the saving and be protected from adversity.

The Babcock tug fire extinguisher Protector pumped gas into the hold of the ship Union at the wharf in New Orleans last Saturday evening to extinguish the fire. The Union had 3200 bales cotton in her hold.

At the Magnolia Cemetery, during Friday, Saturday and Sunday night almost every rose in bloom was frozen and geranium and other plants were cut down by the icy coldness. Cape jessamines and japonicas appeared to be uninjured.

It is the first duty of man to provide food, raiment and a home for himself and for his family also, if he has one. But it is better to eat the plainest food, to wear the coarsest raiment, to live in the smallest house rather than run in debt.

Said the New Orleans Republican of Sunday: "Miss Genevieve Rogers, with the play of 'Maud Muller,' goes from here to Mobile. The little lady is one of the most promising young actresses on the stage, and the play is among the best of new plays."

Of all the hotels in the south, the Battle House in this city, under its present management, takes the lead. It is conducted by the resident proprietor, Major Mason, who has given the most convincing proof that he knows how to keep a hotel.

In the Louisiana Jockey Club races at New Orleans last Saturday, Cottrill's b. h. Colonel Nelligan, took the second purse, $75, in a hurdle race of two miles, over eight hurdles. Cottrill's ch. c. Donaugh took the second purse, $75, in the third race, a sixth purse of $400 for all ages, mile heats.

William Twibel, the "best friend" of John Staub, to whom Emma Davis was affianced, took advantage of Staub's absence at Fort Eads, and made improper advances to Emma, persisting in which she shot him Sunday afternoon near her residence on Frankfort street in New Orleans. Wibel died and Emma went to prison.

Charles Morgan's steamship Mary, from Brashear City for Corpus Christi and Rockport, Texas, grounded on Aransas inner bar and both vessel and cargo became a total loss. She had a full cargo of assorted merchandise, the bulk of which was shipped from New Orleans. The Mary was seven years old and valued at $125,000.

TELEGRAPH

CRITICALLY ILL.

MONTPELIER, Dec. 3.—Gov. Fairbanks is critically sick.

TOBACCO SEIZURE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Government officers have seized $60,000 worth of tobacco at Fabbri's bonded warehouses. The tobacco was imported in the steamer Cuba June last. Damages were assessed by the consignees at 18 per cent., but the Government claims that the damage amounted only to 1 per cent. Appraisers who granted alleged fraudulent allowances have been removed.

DEATH OF GENERAL COOPER

NEW YORK, December 4.—A telegram from Cameron, Fairfax county, Va., announces the death in that place of Samuel Cooper, late Adjutant and Inspector General of the Confederate army, in the 78th year of his age.

HEWITT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The following has transpired regarding the visit of Mr. Hewitt to the President:

Mr. Hewitt called upon the President alone and upon his own motion. It was a visit of courtesy and lasted probably half an hour. No proposition of compromise or anything like it was made. The President during the conversation expressed some disappointment that the electoral votes of South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana were still in doubt, as he desired to report them in his message.

It may be stated that the temper of the Democratic leaders here is averse to any course of compromise. They will demand and insist upon what the constitution and the law allow.

HAYES.

In regard to the publication in the Cincinnati Enquirer, of Dec. 2, touching an interview at Columbus, Ohio, between Gov. Hayes and Col. W. H. Roberts, of the New Orleans Times, Col. Roberts desires it to be stated that he stopped at Columbus, en route to Washington, to see Gov. Hayes as the representative of the Times. He talked to Gov. Hayes of the situation in Louisiana, but had no authority to say anything for either Gen. Hampton or Mr. Lamar. The only credentials he had were letters of introduction from Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial, and Hon. J. E. Stevenson, of Ohio. Nothing was said if any compromise by Gov. Hayes. Such a question was not discussed at all. The conversation was on Louisiana matters alone.

COLORADO.

Patterson, delegate from Colorado, is here. He will resume his seat tomorrow and hold it until Colorado is recognized as a State by the admission of her representative.

IMPEACHMENT PLAN.

The impeachment plan includes Grant, Cameron and Sherman and, if subject to impeachment, Roger. Sherman is considered undoubtedly subject, he is a creature of Congress, and his office expires with him; a successor requires special legislation, Lieut. Gen. Sheridan is in the same situation.

AN EARLY PARDON.

An early pardon of Henderson, Bell and Jones, convicted of swindling frauds in New Orleans, and now in the Wyoming penitentiary, may be expected.

FROM MEXICO.

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 3.—A letter has been read here from a member of the Northern Democratic Committee, now in New Orleans, stating that the Secretary of the National Republican Committee had dispatched to Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida asking that the words "in pursuance of the laws of the United States," be inserted in the electoral certificates.

The Democrats here still the absurdity of their committees throughout the country to this point, and suggest the insertion in addition of the words "and also in pursuance of the laws of the State."

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 3.—The day has been quiet. The Democrats are actively preparing recounts for the board. They will be ready in the morning.

Ex Gov. Brown, of Georgia, who has been quite sick, is almost recovered.

NEBRASKA.

OMAHA Dec. 2.—The Democratic electors to day presented a petition to Judge Shiras, of the District Court, for an injunction restraining the Republican electors from casting the vote on account of irregularities in their appointment. Hearing fixed for Monday.

OMAHA, Dec. 3.—The excitement over the movement of the Democrats yesterday in petitioning for an injunction to restrain the Republican electors from casting the vote, is very great and increasing. Leading Republicans claim that there is no danger; that the district court of the county has no authority over electors who are Federal officers, acting under the laws of the United States. Efforts will be made by the Republicans, if necessary, to carry matters to the Supreme Court of the State.

The hearing is set for 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Two most powerful lawyers in the State are engaged on each side. The Democrats, in the petition admit that Hayes has over 154 votes majority. Strenuous efforts are being made by both parties in regard to the extra session of the Legislature called for next Wednesday.

[Special to New Orleans Times.]

SOUTH CAROLINA.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2, 1876.

At special Cabinet meeting this afternoon the decision of yesterday was reversed, so that the Administration will support Chamberlain in South Carolina with troops in doing what he desires in making up a Legislature. This autographs Fish to such an extent, that it is believed he will be forced to resign.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3, 12:40 A. M.

The House caucus nominated Kendall, last evening, as speaker. In the discussion of the resolution for sending an investigating committee to Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, as discussed in the caucus, Mr. Lamar said that the object contemplated might be effected without any definite action by the caucus.

That there was a well grounded prejudice in the country against what was termed caucus legislation. And that he preferred that this resolution be introduced by the gentlemen from New York, "Mr. Hewitt, upon his own motion," and that he was satisfied that the resolution would be such as would meet the views of the majority of the House, and that in this way the object contemplated, would be equally as well subserved, and no room would be given for unfavorable criticism. This view seemed to be received with favor on all sides, and Mr. Hewitt thereupon withdrew his resolution.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MESSRS. ALEXANDER, ST. JOHN & CO. Standard Company's Soap Works, Mobile:

Gentlemen—I have analyzed a sample of LUNDRY soap of your manufacture, stamped "Standard Company's Extra Pure," and find:

From the result of my analysis, I can testify that it is free from foreign matter; that in its manufacture none but pure and fresh materials could have been employed; and that in regard to the percentage of moisture contains, the Soap compares most favorably, and is fully up to the official standard of the United States Dispensatory. Most respectfully yours,

(Signed) CHAS. MOHR,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

MOBILE, August 1st, 1876.

This is to certify that I have inspected the Standard Company's Soap Works, of Messrs Alexander, St. John & Co., in this city, and have carefully examined their soaps and the materials used in their manufacture, as also their mode of manufacture.

From the results of my examination, and in view of the chemical analysis of their soap made by analytical chemist, Dr. Chas Mohr, of this city, I have no hesitation in stating, that the fact of their manufactured purity is fully established.

(Signed) JAS. F. HARRISON, M. D.
Prof. of Chemistry,
Medical college of Alabama.

The crop of beet-root sugar in Europe for the past year, owing possibly to the excessive drouths, has been very late, and as the sugar refiners term it, very short, the estimated deficiency amounting to about four hundred thousand tons less than the average production, of about one-half the sugar production of Cuba.

During the past eight years about three million Texas beeves were put upon the market. In 1874, 450,000 head were hand ed, the cost value of which at the shipping points in Kansas was only $5,000,000; and when finally sold to butchers and packers, $12,000,000 This was a poor year for business.

There were 4,500 books published in Great Britain and Ireland in 1874. Germany is the greatest bookselling country in the world, there being, according to late official count, 3,473 booksellers and stationers in 788 towns in that empire.

There is no reason why the salaries of city officers and employes should be greater than is paid for corn-pounding services to the mass of the people.

The joint special committee of the municipal councils to report on the whole subject of Mayor Hurtel's retrenchment communication, ought to be able to report tonight.

In the present condition of the city finances, there should be no employment of city officials that are not absolutely needed, and there should be a reduction of nearly every salary, from that of mayor to laborers on the streets.

There are some who advocate a reduction of policemen's pay to $40 a month, with the retention of the present number or an increase of the force, rather than a reduction of the force and a retention of the present pay. There are more competent men in the city who do not earn $40 a month than there are policemen who receive $60.

Board of Trade Meeting.

The following gentlemen were last evening elected officers of the Board of Trade for the ensuing year:

Leslie E. Brooks, president.

Leroy Brewer, first vice president; Daniel McNeill, second vice president.

T. A. Hamil on, D. Wheeler, Thos Henry, Jos Hodgson, Ira W. Porter, Jno Maguire, A. C. Danner, L. Tomart, L. F. Irwin, N. H. Dobson, M. McCarthy, F. E. Stollen werck, board of control.

Circuit Court.

In this court yesterday, Judge Toulmin on the bench, the following cases were disposed of in the manner named:

Newton vs Horton, et al. Trial and verdict for plaintiff as to Jos. M. Stone and Joan H. Stone, damages $271; verdict for defendant as to A. J. Stone.

McKinstry vs Fischer, value of property $125.

Sherrard vs Kennedy, Judgment as on verdict, $50.

Rodrigues vs Osborn, order of sale.

The following cases will be tried today:

Walker vs Mobile, Life Insurance Company; Allen, West & Co. vs Hibbler.

The Opera.

The Richings English opera troupe has gone, and, we regret to say, failed to afford the same pleasure to our citizens that it did several years ago. Had Mr. Bernard taken our advice, and given "Bohemian Girl" the first night, Mrs. Richings and her new artists would have made a much more favorable impression than they did in "Maritana."

The last named opera is Wm. Vincent Wallace's masterpiece. It is extravagantly instrumental, and bears all through its tone imagery—the impress of a musical logician. It is what might be called a heavy opera and cannot be rendered by a small troupe. "Bohemian Girl," on the contrary, is a light opera. It abounds in rich and pleasing melody, but is devoid of those orchestral landscapes which serve as a background to the more pretentious operas.

Of the troupe, Mrs. Richings is the facile princeps and the only person of whom we can speak flatteringly. But her voice offers evidences of decay. She uses it with considerable skill, but it was painful to hear her attempt to reach some of the higher notes.

The tenor is a singing automaton—no style and no expression. His rendition of that grand martial song in Maritana, "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," was about the same thing we ever heard. He was honored with rapturous encore, while the baritone who sang "In Happy Moments," was permitted to leave the stage with but a few applausive demonstrations.

A newly married pair were on their way from Birmingham to this city, on the passenger train, one night last week, when the husband took from his pocket a roll of brown paper, which the bride snatched and threw out of the window, remarking "You said you'd quit chewing tobacco when I married you." As gently as he could under the present circumstances, the husband remarked that the brown paper contained not tobacco but $100 in bills.—Mont. Journal.

1776, CENTENNIAL. 1876

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the travelling public generally is invited to the unequalled facilities presented by the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY

The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.

Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over

THIS POPULAR ROUTE.

It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to ninety hours quicker than any other route is or can make.

The management, to assist in adding to the public

UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME

between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging their schedule, so to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequently missing connection, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by

EXPRESS TRAINS

stopping only at important stations, and by making up time, lost by former delays at transfers, been enabled to reduce the time of through passengers between the South and the East of their trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety to the least degree.

MATERIALLY INCREASING THE SPEED

Reducing, as it does, through some of the most picturesque and picturesque sections of the country, the monotony of the ultimate, the purity of the air, the variegated scenery contribute much to relieve the monotony so common to railway traveling.

The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior quality, being Palace sleeping cars on all night trains. Parlor or reclining-chair cars on all day trains, and polite, courteous, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, always on hand to wait upon travelers.

CAUTION! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!

A caution that the eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time allowed for meals.

Quick Transit. Few Changes. Safe Connections!

are the characteristics of this route.

During the Great American Centennial round trip tickets will be issued over this route as low as over any of all rail routes, and visitors, whether desiring to stop off or to accept parties of the Centennial Excursions, or to continue their journey, will find the

PIEDMONT AIR-LINE ROUTE.

the most desirable.

ADDRESS

ASH & ROBBINS,

9 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Daily Tribune.

BY

R. BALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B LYONS

A Remarkable Woman.

From the N. Y. World.

The man who has once been arrested for drunkenness is soon likely to see the inside of a station-house again. A thief who is just out of State prison may safely be accused of the first burglary that takes place in his neighborhood, and a person who is guilty of homicide and escapes hanging for it, rarely rests satisfied with one murder. This tendency towards crime on the part of those who have once transgressed the law, is curiously illustrated in the case of Mrs. Clem, of Indianapolis, the heroine of the greatest murder-mystery in the criminal records of Indiana. She has not, to be sure, been accused of a second murder, but she has been caught at the practices which led to the first, and it is probable that an investigation of the charges against her will let some light in upon the dark tragedy which culminated in the killing of Robert Young and his wife a few years ago. The story of that crime, even as it lingers in our memory with many of the details blurred and half-obliterated, is full of interest. One summer's day some boys who were fishing on the White River, just below Indianapolis, noticed the smoke of a fire ascending from a pleasant sandy reach round a curve in the river. They strolled down to the point, which was known as a favorite resort for parties driving out from the city, and found Robert Young and his wife lying dead on the beach, and the bodies burning. The man had apparently been killed by a gun-shot fired from behind a large sycamore tree a few paces distant, while the woman had been killed by a pistol-bullet, the weapon being placed so close to the back of her head that its discharge set fire to her clothing. The horse and buggy was found hitched to the fence by the roadside, which was separated from the river by a narrow piece of woods, and there were tracks which indicated that another vehicle had lately been driven up and tied close to Young's. The gun with which Young was shot was discovered in the woods. This formed a simple clue which was easily followed. One of the dealers in the city identified the weapon as one which he had sold a day or two before, and pointed out the man who had bought it. This person was at once arrested, and charged with the murder. He called in to defend him two noted criminal lawyers who asked, as a preliminary step, that he should give them a mortgage on his house to secure them payment for their services. As there was already one mortgage on the property and they would not accept a second, it became necessary to pay off the first. To do this the accused called on a relative and directed him to go to Mrs. Clem and tell her that she must have so much money," meaning the amount required. As Mrs. Clem was the wife of a grocer doing a small business on the corner of Massachusetts avenue, and living in a very modest and unpretentious way, the errand seemed a strange one.

The messenger went, however, and told Mrs. Clem his business. She went down cellar, took the tin cover off an old stovepipe hole, put her hand into the well and took out a bundle of money amounting to several thousand dollars, and gave the messenger the sum which was demanded. Suspicions were aroused when this incident became known, and the nature of the connection between the prisoner and Mrs. Clem was soon discovered. She, her brother, the accused and, if our recollection be not astray, the murdered man Young, were engaged in financial transactions of great extent and mysterious purpose. They were not well off, but they had contrived to establish a system of borrowing money on terms very advantageous to the lenders, their paper being generally indorsed by first-class men. Nothing could be better than the promptitude with which they met their obligations, though diligent search failed to reveal any enterprise in which their borrowed capital was invested in any source of profits. One of Mrs. Clem's indorsers was a retired physician of good standing, and another was a member of the Fletcher family, the richest and most reputable men in the city, sons of old Deacon Fletcher, whose name is generally known through Henry Ward Beecher's anecdotes about him. Such an illegitimate business only admitted of the most sinister explanations, and the one commonly received was that those engaged in it were preparing slowly a reputation for honesty, which they might in good time make use of to secure an immense amount of plunder. The day after the murder some of Mrs. Clem's notes were due, and consequently the fate of their sureties depended upon Young, who, it was said had a large amount of their funds in his possession. As the investigation into the crime proceeded, it was found that but one person first accused could not have been more than an accessory to the murder, and suspicion fastened upon Mrs. Clem and her brother as the principals. The latter had been seen driving towards the scene of the crime just previous to the hour when it was committed, and the prosecution adopted the opinion that Mrs. Clem was in company with the murdered man and woman on the river beach, and that when her brother rose up to his place on a mound and shot Young, she put a revolver to Mrs. Young's head and killed her. It was thought they then drove home in company. It must be confessed that the chain of crumbling circumstances, of which we have given only a few links, was slight, but the fact that Mrs. Clem's brother committed suicide in prison, left little doubt on the public mind of the guilt of the parties accused. The accessory was sent to State Prison for life; but Mrs. Clem made a desperate fight for her salvation, and during repeated trials, lasting nearly six years, she never lost courage. She was quietly and determined under circumstances that would have shaken nerves less tough than iron wire. She first escaped through the disagreement of the jury, due to the fact that a little girl who lived with her swore that she was at home on the day of the murder making cakes On the second trial the child when questioned broke into tears and refused to answer. This time there was a conviction, and a new trial and a change of venue followed as a matter of course, and by means of the change Mrs. Clem escaped. Boone County, where she was to be tried, couldn't pay the expense of convicting a Marion County murderess, and the Marion County authorities declared that they had spent all the money they wanted to spend on Mrs. Clem. The result was that she walked out of the prison under a cound of suspicion, because a rich and prosperous State was to0 penurious to pay for dressing upon her guilt or innocence. It is illustrative of her character, its passion as well as its self control, that she never lost her imperturbable calmness during the period of her trials but once. At a time when popular excitement ran highest and opinion set fiercely against her, the dense throng in the court room was accustomed to gather close to her as she was led out and seowl at her with no friendly intent. She stopped suddenly one day, flung up her veil, faced the crowd and said, with a sneer: "Now stare your fill." During her imprisonment her husband stood by her manfully, and never lost faith in her, even though some of the evidence tended to impeach her fidelity to him. When she regained her liberty she retired to her quiet home, and, as it was supposed, to a quiet life. But it seems that she was too fond of excitement to forego her old business and she has therefore been operating extensively of late as a capitalist on the plan formerly adopted. The fate of her old financial associates ought to have been an awful warning against having anything to do with her, either as a partner or a creditor, but the crop of fools is perennial. It seems she has obtained indorsers and lenders, and in her dealings with them has exposed something of the true nature of her old trade. After borrowing at large interest and paying promptly for a time, she has finally cajoled, bowbeaten or blackmailed her creditors. In one instance, after coolly examining her notes held by a wealthy farmer she put them in her pocket and let him whistle for payment. Her proceedings have brought her before the courts in a civil suit, and great interest is felt in every movement connected with the trial. Major Gordon, lately Republican candidate for Attorney General, the man who was mainly instrumental in saving her from the gallows, is now, one of the counsel against her, as well as Ben Harrison, the Republican candidate for Governor, and they will find Mrs. Clem at bay as dangerous as Blue-Jeans Williams.

A newly married pair were on their way from Birmingham to this city, on the passenger train, one night last week, when the husband took from his pocket a roll of brown paper, which the bride snatched and threw out of the window, remarking "You said you'd quit chewing tobacco when I married you." As gently as he could under the present circumstances, the husband remarked that the brown paper contained not tobacco but $100 in bills.—Mont. Journal.

CENTENNIAL.

The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally is directed to the route known as the SUPERIOR FACILITIES presented by the
PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.
Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over
THIS POPULAR ROUTE.
It being 200 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other line to or south of Atlanta.
The management is unremitting to the public in UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME
between the South and the East, leg leaves to put them, in arranging their schedule to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch in transportation, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed, thereby incurring danger to the safety of their trains and the liability of frequent delays in consequence, but by being a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running
EXPRESS TRAINS
stopping only at important stations, and by making up time, lost by minor delays at local points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without unnecessarily increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.
Running, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the entirety of the climate, the purity of the water, and the variegated scenery and mountain ranges combine to relieve the monotony so common to railroad travelling.
The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade, the Palace sleeping cars on all night trains, Parlor or reclining-chair cars without extra charge, courteous, experienced and attentive conductors and employees, ready and unwearying to travelers.
COMFORT! COMFORT!! SAFETY!!!
A reduction of one of eating-houses will be made at the following along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.
Gold Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections!
are the characteristics of this route.
Among the Great American Centennial route only that will be issued over this route as low as any other at all rail routes, and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties, will find the Piedmont Line in connection with the CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!
Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our
Patent Slate Paint
(Fifteen Years Established.),
MIXED READY FOR USE.
Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.
A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by applications of this slate a shingle roof last from 20 to 30 years. Old roofs may be painted and coated, making much better and more durable than new shingles without it.
One-third the Cost of Re-shingling.
The expense of slating new shingles is only about one-third the cost of simply laying them. The cement, as may be easily tested by any one,
IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,
and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and EXTRA thick felt can be made water tight as a small expense. This Slate Paint is
EXTREMELY CHEAP.
Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from one-quarter to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.
No Tar is used in this Composition,
the effect, it neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.
On decayed shingles, it fills up the holes and crevices, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. A GALLON OF WATER-PROOF shingles is also useful in many places, and keeps them there. It fills small holes in flat roofs, stops the leaks in a few hours after applying. As nearly all roofs that are black contain TAR, be sure you get our genuine article, which (for shingle roofs) is
CHOCOLATE COLOR,
when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and it, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. On
TIN ROOFS
our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For
BRICK WALLS
Our ASBORT RED is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.
These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.
Our many colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BISMARK RED and ORANGE.

BY
H. RALLENTYNE AND THOMAS B LYONS

A Remarkable Woman.

From the N. Y. World.

The man who has once been arrested for drunkenness is seen likely to see the inside of a station-house again. A thief who is just out of State prison may safely be accused of the first burglary that takes place in his neighborhood, and a person who is guilty of homicide and escapes hanging for it, rarely rests satisfied with one murder. This tendency towards crime on the part of those who have once transgressed the law, is curiously illustrated in the case of Mrs. Clem, of Indianapolis, the heroine of the greatest murder-mystery in the criminal records of Indiana. She has not, to be sure, been accused of a second murder, but she has been caught at the practices which led to the first, and it is probable that an investigation of the charges against her will let some light in upon the dark tragedy which culminated in the killing of Robert Young and his wife a few years ago. The story of that crime, even as it lingers in our memory with many of the details blurred and half obliterated, is full of interest. One summer's day some boys who were fishing on the White River, just below Indianapolis, noticed the smoke of a fire ascending from a pleasant sandy reach round a curve in the river. They strolled down to the point, which was known as a favorite resort for parties driving out from the city, and found Robert Young and his wife lying dead on the beach, and the bodies burning. The man had apparently been killed by a gun-shot fired from behind a large sycamore of a few paces distant, while the woman had been killed by a pistol-bullet, the weapon being placed so close to the back of her head that its discharge set fire to her clothing. The horse and buggy was found hitched to the fence by the roadside, which was separated from the river by a narrow piece of woods, and there were tracks which indicated that another vehicle had likewise driven up and fled close to Young's. The gun with which Young was shot was discovered in the woods. This formed a simple clue which was easily followed. One of the dealers in the city identified the weapon as one which he had sold a day or two before, and pointed out the man who had bought it. This person was at once arrested, and charged with the murder. He called in to defend him two noted criminal lawyers who asked, as a preliminary step, that he should give them a mortgage on his house to secure them payment for their services. As there was already one mortgage on the property and they would not accept a second, it became necessary to pay off the first. To do this the accused called on a relative and directed him to go to Mrs. Clem and tell her that she must have so much money," naming the amount required. As Mrs. Clem was the wife of a grocer doing a small business on the corner of Massachusetts avenue, and living in a very modest and unpretentious way, the errand seemed a strange one.

The messenger went, however, and told Mrs. Clem his business. She went down cellar, took the tin cover off an old stovepipe hole, put her hand into the well and took out a bundle of money amounting to several thousand dollars, and gave the messenger the sum which was demanded. Suspicions were aroused when this incident became known, and the nature of the connection between the prisoner and Mrs. Clem was soon discovered. She, her brother, the accused and, if our recollection be not astray, the murdered man Young, were engaged in financial transactions of great extent and mysterious purpose. They were not well off, but they had contrived to establish a system of borrowing money on terms very advantageous to the lenders, their paper being generally indorsed by first-class men. Nothing could be better than the promptitude with which they met their obligations, though diligent search failed to reveal any enterprise in which their borrowed capital was invested in any source of profits. One of Mrs. Clem's indorsers was a retired physician of good standing, and another was a member of the Fletcher family, the richest and most reputable men in the city, sons of old Deacon Fletcher, whose name is generally known through Henry Ward Beecher's anecdotes about him. Such an illegitimate business only admitted of the most sinister explanations, and the one commonly received was that those engaged in it were preparing slowly a reputation for honesty, which they might in good time make use of to secure an immense amount of plunder. The day after the murder some of Mrs. Clem's notes were due, and consequently the fate of their sureness depended upon Young, who, it was said had a large amount of their funds in his possession. As the investigation into the crime proceeded, it was found that no person first accused could not have been more than an accessory to the murder, and suspicion fastened upon Mrs. Clem and her brother as the principals. He had been seen driving towards the scene of the crime just previous to the hour when it was committed, and the prosecution adopted the opinion that Mrs. Clem was in company with the murdered man and woman on the river beach, and that when her brother stole up to his place of ambush and shot Young, she put a revolver to Mrs. Young's head and killed her. It was thought they then drove home in company. It must be confessed that the chain of circumstantial evidence was very complete, but the fact that Mrs. Clem's brother committed suicide in prison, left little doubt on the public mind of the guilt of the parties accused. The accessory was sent to State Prison for life; but Mrs. Clem made a desperate fight for her salvation, and during repeated trials, lasting nearly 60 days, she never lost her courage. She was quiet, cool and determined under circumstances that would have shaken nerves less tough than iron wire. She first escaped through the disagreement of the jury, due to the fact that a little girl who lived with her swore that she was at home on the day of the murder making cakes. On the second trial the child when questioned broke into tears and refused to answer. This time there was a conviction, and a new trial and a change of venue followed as a matter of course, and by means of the change Mrs. Clem escaped. Boone County, where she was to be tried, wouldn't pay the expense of convicting a Marion County murderess, and the Marion County authorities declared that they had spent all the money they wanted to spend on Mrs. Clem. The result was that she walked out of the prison under a cloud of suspicion, because a rich and prosperous State was to0 penurious to pay for dragging upon her guilt or innocence. It is illustrative of her character, its passion as well as its self control, that she never lost her imperturbable calmness during the period of her trials but once. At a time when popular excitement ran highest and opinion set fiercely against her, the dense throng in the court room was accustomed to gather close to her as she was led out and seowi at her with no friendly intent. She stopped suddenly one day, flung up her veil, faced the crowd and said, with a sneer: "Now stare your fill." During her imprisonment her husband stood by her manfully, and never lost faith in her, even though some of the evidence tended to impeach her fidelity to him. When she regained her liberty she retired to her quiet home, and, as it was supposed, to a quiet life. But it seems that she was too fond of excitement to forego her old business and she has therefore been operating extensively of late as a capitalist on the plan formerly adopted. The fate of her old financial associates ought to have been an awful warning against having anything to do with her, either as a partner or a creditor, but the crop of fools is perenial. It seems she has obtained indorsers and lenders, and in her dealings with them has exposed something of the true nature of her old trade. After borrowing at large interest and paying promptly for a time, she has finally cajoled, browbeaten or blackmailed her creditors. In one instance, after coolly examining her notes held by a wealthy farmer she put them in her pocket and left him whistle for payment. Her proceedings have brought her before the courts in a civil suit, and great interest is felt in every movement connected with the trial. Major Gordon, lately Republican candidate for Attorney General, the man who was mainly instrumental in saving her from the gallows, is now, one of the counsel against her, as is Ben Harrison, the Republican candidate for Governor, and they will find Mrs. Clem as bay as dangerous as Blue-Beard's Williams.

THE NEW SPEAKER.

Mr. Randall, the new Speaker of the House of Representatives, is familiar with all the laws which govern that body. He is an entirely incorruptible man, and has, also, what is better in any probable emergency which may occur, a resolute nature, that will not flinch before any obstacle that he may encounter in the performance of the duties of his office.

WATER.

There is another spasmodic gush in regard to a lack of water for fire purposes. Within a week it will subside; and then, after the next fire, it will return.

There is no possible reason why an abundance of water should not be provided within this city of Mobile. Yes! there is one; it is called economy. That is a word which is often the synonym of extravagance. The horse lost a shoe, and the owner was too poor, as he said, to supply its place. The horse became lame, and no veterinary skill could restore the animal to usefulness, and the poor thing, finally, went to the bone yard—into the establishment of our friend Smith, who knows how to make dead horses useful for the growth of all sorts of vegetables.

The lost shoe was the cause of the death of the useful brute.

We have had some fires of late. They were occasioned by a neglect similar to that which caused the fool to lose his horse.

Where is the fool? Is he standing in the municipal councils, or is he within the charmed circle of the insurance companies, which are so ready to pay for the losses for which they are responsible?

We are unable to answer these questions. But we do know that one of the essential elements that ought to be provided for the public safety is water.

Near the river there is no trouble. In the west there is no water. Plenty of it there to be hoarded up for emergencies, but there is no man and no authority to hoard it. People in the suburbs, we are informed, pay taxes like the other citizens. In this we may be mistaken, but we think that they ought to have some protection, or a reduction of the taxation which they pay for security against fire and tramps.

OPINIONS.

Judge John A. Campbell, the other day gave to the N. Orleans Times a brief, but very lucid opinion in regard to the powers of Congress in relation to the electoral vote, and also assurance that there is no authority in the laws for Gen. Grant to continue in his place, even if the electoral college, by some party hocus-pocus, should fail to come to a conclusion.

If this opinion be valid, and of course, as it has been given by a gentleman who was a member of the U. S. Supreme Court, and who, if he had chosen to hold his position in it, would have been Chief Justice, we must believe that it is an honest one—not only honest, but one that ought to measure our opinions by. Honest, mainly in this respect, that Judge Campbell is not seeking, as far as we can hear, any office—wants nothing but to be let alone; yet if in any emergency requiring skill, he were called on to serve, we have no doubt he would come to the front. He has the education of a soldier as well as that of jurist.

But this is away from our purpose, which is to give a brief exposition of the opinion of another eminent lawyer—David Dudley Field. This opinion was not volun eered. It was given by the solicitation of the New York World. Mr. Field said:

"I think that the two houses have complete power to reject electoral votes which they judge to be illegal. For example, suppose there should come from any State two sealed envelopes, each purporting to contain the votes of the Electoral College of that State and each bearing the appearance of being in regular form. I conceive it to be the province of the two houses and not at all of the President of the Senate to decide which of the two to count and which reject; or, suppose there comes up from a State only one envelope purporting to contain electoral votes, but on opening it there appears to be no certificate of the Governor as to the names of the electors, but a certificate of a man who is not the Governor, and that for some reasons there has been forwarded no certificate of the real electors from the real Governor, I c n see that though the President of the Senate may choose to count those votes, the two houses have a clear right to say they shall not be counted. Or, to take another case that may arise. If there comes up from Louisiana a certificate purporting to be signed by Kellogg, who is now Governor de facto, though not de jure, certifying the names of persons as having been elected electors in that State and certificates of these persons that they have cast their votes for Governor Hayes—if there should be presented to the two houses any evidence that these certificates have been falsified, which evidence is not satisfactory to the President of the Senate, but is so to the two houses, I conceive the opinion of the two houses is to prevail over the opinion of the presiding officer, and that the votes are to be rejected."

These illustrations are apropos—in fact, proof. Mr. Field said also that President Grant could, under no possible contingency, "hold over." There is nothing in the constitution which can "justify the presence that Gen. Grant will hold over." "All power will drop from the hands of Gen. Grant at 12 o'clock on the 4th of March as completely as if he were that instant stricken with death."

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Gathering of the Clans—Preparing for Action—Arrival of the next Speaker of the House—Sam Randall's China Tea-Pot—A Heterogeneous Third Term Ghost Again—An Extraordinary Public Meeting—Why a War is Impossible—About Our Garrison, Etc.

Correspondence Mobile Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1, 1876.

Bright and crisp, with a clear blue sky and a frosty atmosphere, that makes the breath congeal in tiny crystals on the mustachios (of such as have them) and sends the blood tingling to the ears and to the tip of the nose, opens up December in Washington. How will it close? Congress assembles on Monday, the fourth, and already enough of the "Honorables" are present to make a quorum, both in the House and in the Senate, certain. This is the first time, for many years, that members are so prompt at putting in an appearance, for, as a rule, the said Honorables preferred to eat their Thanksgiving turkey and Christmas dinner, and drink their New Year's egg nogg at their own cosy firesides. North, South, East and West, in preference to coming to Washington before the holidays and spend their money and time solitarily (?) and demurely (?) in their own chambers and hotel bar-rooms.

But, this time, they are all here, full fledged from the stump and their constituents, and, nine tenths of them, with a Cassius-like brow that bodes oratorical thunder and rhetoric lightning, on and after the fourth of December next, whenever circumstances shall permit! For there is scarcely a mother's son among all of them, Republicans and Democrats, who does not in the near future foresee an opportunity to make himself great. "GREATNESS, thou little thought!" exclaims Jean Paul; a half cents a day and rations, yet never a shot has been fired! Those who, two weeks ago, talked war and dug up coffins an overcharged soda water bottle, have had a chance to let the gas escape, and everything is calmness and serenity now! There won't be any war, for the very good reason that people would have to fire at each other across the break fast table, instead of across Morris and Dixon's line, and Mrs Sing muggins, who is a Democrat, would have to attack Mrs Fairplay, who is a Republican, and lives across the way, with the dish-cloths and what her husband's best pick! Because, you see, it's all mixed so that nobody knows what is cauliflower and what is cabbage—as Mr. Sangsby would say!

And while all this bubbub is going on, old Boreas throws dust into our eyes and sends the Northwind carring into us without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude," as the fifteenth amendment says. But my ink is frozen now, and I must come to a close!

Walks Around town.

It was not so cold yesterday as on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The hottest place in summer and the coldest in winter is the circuit court room in the court house.

Clothing and gents furnishing goods at Brisk & Jacobson's, iron building, corner Dauphin and Water streets.

Keep trying. If you fail hopelessly of success in one pursuit pass into another. Don't wait and worry and starve.

While there are a good many republican votes in Alabama, only four counties in Mississippi gave republican majorities.

The dazzle of the gaslights in the Battle House billiard rooms illumines the cheerful faces of those who participate in the games there.

Mary Sims, residing at the corner of St. Louis and Warren streets, was found in a dying condition in her bed, by some people who thought her absence strange.

Charles Howard, switch-tender on the New Orleans and Mobile Railroad, while coupling cars Monday afternoon, had his foot and leg badly jammed between the bumpers.

One of the producers of the United States is cartridges, of which Russia has ordered 20,000,000 recently. Nine cartridges are made in Mobile, but sportsmen here use a good many.

Unto a man tries, he can form no correct idea of how little it takes to supply his real wants. But the people of Mobile are learning to live on small means and within their means.

Sawdust sells readily in New York for from 25 to 50 cents a barrel. It is used for bedding horses and for packing. Sawdust is given away by some of the mill men of Mobile.

Every Ala ama presidential elector is eligible. But it is now stated that General Frost, one of the democratic electors of Missouri, has never had his political disabilities removed.

The principal productions of Mobile these last years are little boys and girls. They may grow up to habits of industry and useful citizens, or to the astonishment of their slow-going progenitors.

It is blessed to be in peace. While no mention of Alabama, the democratic house of representatives at Washington are going to send investigating committees to Florida, Louisiana and South Carolina.

A colored deck hand on the steamer D. L. Tally had the bones of both legs broken by the force of a rope which the boat or its windlass was pulling taut; and his legs were amputa ed at the city hospital.

Lost—a memorandum book of no value except to the owner, containing notes bearing the name of W. Pace. The finder, by leaving the book and the contents at the Tribune office will be suitably rewarded.

Arrivals at the Battle House include the names of guests from Alabama, Florida, Georgia and various states. There is no more pleasant place to pass the winter than Mobile and no better hotel than the Battle House.

Since last Sunday Mobile has been cooled by northerly winds, while there was sunshine, moonshine and a clear sky. But a gale that commenced on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico and reached the Kingfish coast caused floods, disasters to shipping and loss of life.

It seems the United States senate which is controlled by the republicans, has taken the initial step to enquire whether the rights of suffragans were abridged at the late election in South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The freezing spell was bad enough here, but in New Orleans, the Times says, it has killed all the bananas, and is stripping the last deciduous leaf from the trees, causing the forests to look bare and gloomy as in May and withered appearance to the gardens.

Alabahama has no burge transportation company, but in bringing freight to New Orleans, the Mississippi Valley Transportation company have demonstrated that a single towboat and barges can perform the work of three thousand cars and one hundred locomotives.

Merchants' Fire Company No. 4 have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Price Williams, jr., president; O. M. Rowan, foreman; R. F. Neville, assistant foreman; E. B. Kirkbride, second assistant foreman; W. B. Seawell, jr., treasurer; W. W. Turner, steward.

While Alabama is peaceful, South Carolina is in a muddle. The democratic house of representatives has withdrawn from the state house and is holding sessions in Carlina Hall. A quorum of the house is 63 members. The democratic house has 69 members, the republican house only 56.

A poultry house and yard is a source of convenience and profit to every small family. A little cheap lumber for the house, a few laths for the enclosure, constant cleanliness in the palaces of the domestic fowls, and the result will be fresh eggs and fat chickens, that will save much expense in marketing.

There is uncultivated ground enough in and around Mobile to give employment to all the unemployed population of the city. It may not be so remunerative, but he who coaxes the earth to yield substantial products adds something to the general wealth, can find a ready market for all he produces, and earns something.

Board of Aldermen.

At the meeting last evening, President Smith in the chair, fourteen members were present when the roll was called.

The following communication from the mayor was read:

I respectfully return, without my approval, the resolution of Alderman Cahill, "to extend the time of special grievance committees." The simplest opportunity has been afforded for the correction of the assessment list, during the past sixty days. The attention of the tax payers was called both through the official organ, and by special notices placed all throughout the wards of the city, and the sessions of the committee have been regularly advertised.

The year is near its close, and it is time that some firmness should be exercised in the collection of the taxes. The citizen who promptly pays his taxes has a right to demand that his neighbor be made to do the same. Former resolutions passed by your honorable boards, instruct your committee on ways and means to provide United States currency for the current expenses of the city and direct the treasurer to turn all the city scrip in his hands at certain assessed periods. This can only be done by a positive denial of any further delay.

The veto was sustained, 8 voting in favor of passing the resolution notwithstanding the veto and 6 voting against—not two thirds voting in favor.

Report of city assessor, collection of $445 for the week ending Nov. 25, and $854 20 for the week ending December 2. Referred to ways and means.

Reports of city tax collector collection of taxes for 1872, $3 86; for 1873, $18; for 1874, $639 39; for 1875 $848 55, for 1876, $4,484 20. Referred to ways and means.

Report of clerk of Dauphin street market, collection of $49 15, net, for the month of November. Referred to market committee.

Report of chief of police, collection of $161 fines, forfeitures, etc. for November Referred to police committee.

Papers from the common council were acted on in concurrence.

The wharf ordinance, from the common council, lies over one week under the rules.

The report of the laws and ordinances committee on the petition of Washington Fire Company, No. 8, for remuneration for damages done to a horse, expressed the opinion that under a precedent established the city was liable, and recommended that the petition be referred to the street committee to ascertain the amount of damage.

The same committe also reported in the same manner on the petition of Jno. Callahan for damages, No. 8, for remuneration.

The recommendations of both reports were adopted.

The joint special committee on officers, salaries and bonds, reported, recommending the following salaries:

Mayor, $2250.
City treasurer, $2500.
City auditor, $1500.
City clerk, $1400.
City engineer, $1500.
City assessor, $1400.
Tax collector fee of 1½ per cent. on all collections for year 1875, 1876 and 1877 and five per cent. for all years previous to 1875.
Clerk of Southern Market, $900.
City attorney, $1200.
Street commissioner, $1000.
Heal h officer, $1200.
Dispensary clerk, $300.
City printer $1200.
Superintendent of wharves, $1200.
Keeper of powder magazine, $300.
City porter, $600.
One chief of police, $1500.
Two assistant chiefs, each $900.
Four sergeants of police, $750.
One detective, $1000.
One detective, $900.
Forty policemen at $50 per month.
One mounted sergeant, $80 per month.
Ten mounted policemen, $55 per month.

Action on the report was postponed one week.

The board adjourned at half past eight o'clock.

Cotton.

According to the Board of Trade report, the cotton receipts at Mobile yesterday were 3532 bales.

The noon cotton report of the Board of Trade was "Market quiet and steady. Sales about 800 bales. Offerings fair. Moderate demand."

Closing report: "Sales to-day 2500 bales. Market closed quiet and easy. Fair demand and supply.

There are no such cases here, but the supreme court of Louisiana last Monday, gave a decision in the Earle and Garvey case, for the murder of an old woman by smothering her with a pillow while stealing her husband's money, when she was alone in the house, by which decision the accused get a fifth trial on the ground that the confession should have been proved to have been voluntary instead of calling on the defense to show it was compulsory.

Justice McCormick put Addison Jenkins under bond of $100 to keep the peace six months, for going to the residence of a young colored woman, making a row because she wouldn't marry him, when it transpired that he already had one wife or a license to marry a woman whom he had been living with as his wife three or four years.

The Manvilla Tragedy.

The examination of Russell Stewart for the alleged murder of an unknown man, supposed to be named O'Connor, a sailor, found dead at Manvilla, which was commenced last Wednesday, continued till Saturday, and again continued till Monday, was concluded yesterday.

The testimony elicited proved that the deceased was in good health the night previous, when he left Whistler on a freight train in company with Stewart and Woods. That he was not intoxicated.

That angry words passed between deceased and accused at Whistler.

That while on the train between Whistler and Manvilla deceased was beaten by Stewart.

That, by order of the conductor, all three of the men (Woods and Stewart stealing a ride) and the unknown man having permission to work his way on the road, were put off at Manvilla.

That deceased was insensible and could not or did not speak when he was put off.

That he was found at Manvilla next morning by a down train, with wounds on his face, and blood on his face, whiskers and hat.

That a day or two afterwards, at Macon, Mississippi, Stewart picked out of the witnesses what became of the old man who was put off the train at Manvilla.

That being told by the witness that he was dead, Stewart remarked: "If a few blows and stumps would kill him, damn him, let him go."

Judge Flanagan, after hearing the testimony and arguments of Mr. Sloxy for the prosecution and T. T. Shepherd, Esq., for the defense, held the prisoner in a bond of $1000 to appear before the next term of the city court, to answer the alleged charge of murder.

River News.

The favorite steamer Mary, left last evening for Montgomery, with a large freight and several passengers.

The palatial iron steamer Jno. T. Moore the monarch of the Alabama rivers, will leave this evening at five o'clock for Selma, and intermediate points. Captain Owen Finnegan will take her safely through with all the passengers and freight that may offer. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Mary Boyd, Captain Woodie Stone, is expected to arrive in season to depart this evening on her return trip. Spaulding & Co. agents.

The Maggie C., came out of the dock yesterday evening, thoroughly overhauled and painted, and we learn from Captain Alexanders that she will shortly resume her trips.

Genevieve Rogers.

It is a long time since any lady debutante on the boards of the Mobile Theatre has made such a favorable impression on an audience as is Miss Genevieve Rogers. Her acting is natural, and the simplicity and artlessness of her manners are so striking that she captivates those who witness her impersonations and elicits only the most unhesitating admiration. Her Maud Muller is one of the most charming characters and the heart that is not moved by the loveable traits and the griefs and sorrows of the heroine of the play is hardly human. The box office is open every morning at nine and reserved seats can be secured during the day. "Maud Muller" again this evening.

Let Alabama produce less cotton, more corn, more small grains, more hay, all the sugar, molasses and rice that her people need, and then there will be greater prosperity.

Plant fewer acres and cultivate more perfectly and th roughly. The result: larger crops and greater profits.

The maximum temperature at Mobile yesterday was 44, minimum 27, a range of 17 degrees.

TELEGRAPH

VERM ST.

MONTPELLIER, Vt., December 5.—Governor Fairbanks out of danger.

The Republican electors are in secret caucus here to-day.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, December 5.—The Democratic House gained two more from the Republican House with certificates of the Board of Canvassers, making 62 and lacking only one of a constitutional quorum. Both houses are in session, as also the Senate. The troops are being removed, and special constables now supply their places.

ELECTORS ENJOINED.

OMAHA, December 5.—Judge Savage held a night session here, enjoining the Republican electors. The Republicans are making energetic efforts to get a quorum at the extra session of the Legislature at Lincoln.

WHAT TROOPS DID.

WASHINGTON, December 5.—Chamberlain punishes another dispatch in the New York Tribune, to which he says the United States troops at Columbia have remained on duties unless properly called upon to do so. He called upon Col. Black for a sufficient force on the 27th to protect the State House. He did this, he says, upon evidence of a matured plan to take possession of the halls of the Legislature and carry out the shotgun policy in the organization of the two houses. Col. Black, as he was bound to do Chamberlain continues, ordered a company of soldiers to guard the State House, whom he (Chamberlain) detailed on the 27th a State officer to take charge of the admissions. Tais officer's orders were enforced by the military officer on duty. Chamberlain proceeds at great length in justification of his own action which he claims was military properly supported.

C NGRESS.

WASHINGTON, December 5.—In the Senate Mr. Edmunds moved to take up the resolution submitted by him yesterday, ordering an enquiry into the election in various Southern States, which motion led to a lengthy debate, after which the motion to take up the resolution was agreed to—yeas 38, nays 22, a strict party vote.

The Senatorial Committees are arranging to provide for five sub committees in Louisiana, three in South Carolina and two in Florida, with two Democrats and one Republican on each. Thompson of Massachusetts is chairman of the Florida Committee. All committees leave Friday night.

HEWITT AND GRANT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Post's Washington dispatch says there is no truth whatever in the story that President Grant, in an interview with Mr. Hewitt, yesterday, said that their had been no fair election in Louisiana and the vote should be thrown out. The Post itself in reply to an inquiry admitting the report from this office, Mr. Hewitt telegraphs as follows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4, 1876

The President stated that it was not his province to decide whether the elections in the States had been fair are not, but assuming that Congress should decide to throw out the electoral vote of Louisiana in consequence of fraud in the returns, we discussed the effect of such action on the final result, whether it would necessarily throw the election of President into the House of Representatives and of Vice President into the Senate.

[Signed] ABRAM S. HEWITT.

CABINET CONSULTATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The cabinet, waiting a message from Kellogg, read the report of the withdrawal of the Democrats from the State House. The message and reports of secretaries are being considered.

CABINET RUPTURE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4, 1876.

There is a serious rupture in the Cabinet upon the Southern question. There would have been an open breach between the President and Secretary Fish in regard to the President's position on the South Carolina case but for Mr. Tait. If the Administration persists Mr. Fish will resign. It is understood that Secretary Morton, of Indiana, will be tendered the position thus made vacant. Mr. Morton is in full accord with the President's Southern policy. The situation in South Carolina is regarded as threatening. Preparations were made on Saturday to remove to-day the Democratic Speaker from office by force. The people will resist the State Militia, but not United States troops. Prominent Southern men here have telegraphed to Columbia advising peace.

S UTH CAROLINA.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4, 11:10 P. M

The quiet at Columbia, S. C. today was because of an understanding here, and the advice of prominent Southern members of Congress who do not intend to give the Administration any occasion for the use of troops. The quiet withdrawal of the Democrats from the Legislative Hall puzzles the President. He does not know how it was done.

Special to New Orleans Picayune.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4, 11:10 P. M.—Grant's assurances to Hewitt are generally regarded asinsincere. The Democrats in Congress are not inclined to favor impeachment, but will investigate all the outrages of the Returning Board, the Federal military and the United States marshals.

There are strong indications of a split among the Republicans. The President and Cabinet are much disappointed by the action of the Democrats in South Carolina to day. They had hoped for a conflict.

Mr. Hewitt has written out an account of his conversation with the President. The Democrats regret his having anything to do with Grant.

Congress.

The associated press furnishes the subjoined report of the first day's session of congress, on Monday:

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, December 4.—After the usual formalities, Edmunds offered a resolution which was laid on the table and ordered printed, setting forth that Whereas, The Constitution provides for the method of electing Representatives to Congress, and recites who are entitled to vote for such Representatives; and,

Whereas, it is alleged that in the states of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama Louisiana and Missis-ippi the rights of many such persons were denied and abridged during the late election; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be authorized to enquire whether such rights were denied and abridged; and if so, to what extent such abridgment and denial has been carried on, and who have been affected by such denial and abridgment; also, that said committee enquire into the fact whether any Presidential Electors in the late election were disqualified, and whether any of them have been interfered with in their rights and qualifications, and whether there is any constitutional remedy therefor; and that said committee employ clerks and stenographers, and be empowered to take testimony and administer oaths.

Adjourned.

HOUSE.

Two hundred and forty members answered to the roll. The election of speaker preceded all other business, and Hon. Sam Randall was chosen for that position. Mr. Randall addressed the House, thanking the members for the honor conferred upon him and calling attention to the fact that he was elected to the post on account of the death of Speaker Kerr, to whom he paid a high eulogy for the purity of his public and private life. No one could appreciate more than he [Randall] did the great the great honor of being called upon to preside over the deliberations of the representatives of the American people, and in the discharge of his duties he should endeavor to be absolutely fair and impartial, and while upholding all the rights of the House, he should protect each and every member in his individual rights. The House stands now in the presence of events, which, in the last degree, demand the most careful consideration of every officer of the Government, and he expressed the hope that the representatives of the people would act only with a keen sense of right and so as to carry out the just expectation of the people and to enforce the right.

C. W. Bate, of South Carolina, was presented. Mr. Morrison objected, and the credentials were laid over.

Banks presented the credentials of Jas. B. Belford, of Colorado.

Springer objected, and moved that the certificate be referred to the Committee on Judiciary, with instructions to ascertain and report if Colorado is a State in the Union, and whether the person presenting the credentials was elected a member of the House.

Banks proceeded to address the House in favor of the admission of Belford.

The credentials of Belford were finally referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Committees to go to South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, were ordered—12 to Florida, nine to South Carolina, and fifteen to Louisiana.

The credentials of Batts, from South Carolina, were referred to the Committee on Elections, under protest filed by counsel for contestant.

The South Carolina Committee consists of Seyler of Ohio, Abbott of Massachusetts, Stringer of Pennsylvania, Eden of Illinois, Jones of Kentucky, Phillips of Missouri, Banks of Massachusetts, Lawrence of Ohio, and Lapham of New York.

The suspension of the rules to pass the resolution ordering committees to South ern States was obtained by votes of three Republicans, which gave the necessary two thirds, namely; George Bagley of New York, and Henry L. Pierce and Julius Seelye, both of Massachusetts.

THE HOUSE SOUTHERN COMMITTEES.

The South Carolina Committee meet to morrow, and leave for Columbia, to-morrow night. The resolution provides that the committees proceed to the respective States to investigate the recent elections in those States and the action of the Returning Boards in reference thereto, and to report all the facts essential to an honest return of the votes of Electors for President and Vice President, and to a fair understanding thereof by the people, and whether the Electoral votes of those States should be counted.

Louisiana.

Every body in Mobile who is interested in politics, wants to know something about Louisiana. The New Orleans Republican, which make a official utterances, in its issue of Tuesday says:

The board of returning officers have been hard at work, and probably could succeed to finish yesterday, though it was not absolutely necessary that they should promulgate the result of the election to-day. As is natural to everybody who carries a fair and well-balanced mind in his head there are many points that require careful consideration and much deliberation to do justice to all may be attained.

War in Washington.

Not long since civil war broke out in the kitchen of the White House. It seems that while the President and family were at dinner with a few invited guests the cook unearthed a bell doze a waiter. She brought a rolling-pin to bear upon his emaciated, reconstructed skull with such force that the blow nearly dislocated her colored elbow and knocked her culinary shoulder out of joint. The waiter, not even shocked by the blow upon his head, responded with a dish or canvass back ducks that nearly choked the corporeated cook.

The wild yells of the combatants reached the dining-room, and General Grant, excusing himself, left the room. It was thought at first he had gone to consult his Cabinet. It was certainly a case for the profound brain of Don Cameron, with certain subtle legal points for Father Taft. Should the military be introduced? Did the Constitution allow the use of the regular army? There was no Legislature in session. The Hon. Spittons and Featherdusters went out long since, and we have no governor. But His Excellency was equal to the occasion. He stuck his executive head out out of a window and shouted "Police." Sixteen retainers put their heads out at sixteen windows and shouted "Police." Sergeant Spike, on duty at the White House, hearing the cry and believing the President was being bull dozed, came up in full force of one man, blowing his signal of alarm with such force that it sounded like a steam whistle.

Sergeant S. was followed by a squad that gathered in, and led by the President they entered the kitchen to find the combatants locked in each other's embrace, rolling, kicking and gouging with the wildest yells heard since the Indians left. About the kitchen were the broken remnants of the dinner, pastry considerably mixed in a salad more amazing to contemplate than to taste.

They were gathered up as they lay in the finger of each confined to the wool of the other, and so clinging, kicking and fighting, they were carted off to the lock up. After they were gone His Excellency made one of his terse, clear, incisive speeches. Contemplating the ruined dinner, he said:

"Well, I'll be damned!"

Hon. Samuel J. Randall of Pennsylvania was in town yesterday on his way from New Orleans. He stopped at the Grand Hotel, and during the day was called upon. Mr. Randall was looking well, and doubtless feeling so, having been down to the theatre of our political war, and having got so far as this point, without having met with personal harm or political damage. In the course of his talk Mr. Randall said:

"I think the Returning Board down at New Orleans cannot count us out. Ten thousand majority is rather too much for them to overcome. Still it should come about that they did, there was a chance yet when the electoral vote came before Congress to be counted that they could throw out the vote of Louisiana and bring the election into the House of Representatives.

"Then you hold to the twenty second joint rule?"

"I certainly do."

"But the Senate will make the claim that it is abrogated."

"Can one House of Congress enact joint rules that are binding on both?"

"Assuredly not."

"Then they cannot repeal them, either, after they have been made."

The Goteborg Insurance Company have just voted a substantial sum as a reward to the Swedish boy or twelve years of age who has just successfully navigated the schooner Tekla Maria, of Goteborg, from Lagos to Pr mouth. He is the son of the captain of the schooner, and she had scarcely left Lagos when his father, the mate and some of the crew were taken ill and obliged to remain in their beds. None of the sailors who maintained their health possessed any knowledge of navigation; but the boy, who knew how to take solar observation, navigated the ship, and after a voyage which lasted six months, brought her into Falmouth, where the sick men were taken into hospital.

Boucicault, the famous play wright devised a curious memorial of his son who was killed by a railway accident at Huntingsdon, England. He proposed to erect in his name any public building the people of Huntingdon might desire. They decided to ask that the grammar school should be rebuilt. Mr. Boucicault acceded. In the completed school a portrait of Willie Boucicault hangs over the master's desk, and it is arranged that on the tenth of each May the pupils shall elect from their number one, "not selected for proficiency in studies," but "for amiability, honor and good nature;" who shall receive a silver medal suitably inscribed. Mr. Boucicault says that his son was since a one as he desires to have the medal conferred upon.

One very curious thing connected with the Servian military bands is the manner in which nearly all the regiments carry the big drum. Instead, as in other armies, of being slung in front or the man who plays it, this instrument is placed upon a small two-wheeled cart, drawn by a large dog, the latter being so trained that he keeps his place in the band even through the longest marches. The drummer walks behind the cart, and performs on the instrument as he goes along.

The Supreme Court of South Carolina consists of Judges Moses, Willard and Wright. Judge Moses is a native of the State and a Republican. Judge Willard is a native of New York and a Republican. Judge Wright is a native of Pennsylvania, a negro, and a Republican. No one of them can be classed as a Radical.

Cold in the Head, no breath, Sneezing, &c., Dr. J. H. McLean's Catarrh Snuff, soothes & cures all nose & throat diseases. Trial Boxes 50c. s, by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean's office, 315 Chestnut, St. Louis.

Thousands have used it.

And pronounce it superior to all others and will now use no other yeast on "Gillet's Cream Dry Hop."

Released on Bail.

Walter B. Chandler, who in attempting to shoot Mr P. K. Mayers, editor of the Hawkinsboro Age killed a train boy named Ferguson came before the Circuit Court in Fayette last week, on a writ of habeas corpus. He was held to bail by Judge Smiley in the sum of $3,000.—Fayette Chronicle.

FARM PRODUCTS OF VARIOUS STATES.—Iowa pre-emps the farg est spring wheat crop of any State, the production of the United States being 112,349,380 bushels, and that of Iowa 28,108,312 bushels, while of Wisconsin, ranks next with 24,375,435 bushels. Ohio raises the most winter wheat, 37,623,736 of the 173,193,193 bushels produced in the United States. Pennsylvania supplies one-fifth of rye produced in this country, or 3,577,641 bushels out of 16,918,795. Illinois grows a larger amount of corn than any other State, or 329,921,395 of the 760,044,249 bushels the country produces. Illinois also takes the lead in the oat crop, growing 42,789,581 out of the total 282,107,159 bushels. California produces the largest barley crop, or 8,785,590 out of a total of 29,701,305 bushels. New York is the largest cultivator of buckwheat, raising 3,903,030 of a total of 8,921,721 bushels. Mississippi takes the lead among the cotton growing States. Ohio produces more than half the flax of the United States. Kentucky grows more than half the hemp crop of our country. California produces nine tenths of our native silk cocoons. Ohio contributes one fifth of all the wool produced in the United States, or twice as much as New York and nearly twice as much as California.

New York produces more than one fifth of the hay crop, or nearly twice as much as Pennsylvania, which furnishes the next largest figure in that line. New York furnishes more than two-thirds of the hop crop of the country. Georgia is next, or 7,000,000 lbs ahead of Louisiana. Nearly all the rice comes from these three States. Of the 272,745,341 pounds of tobacco produced in the country, 105,305,828 pounds are grown in Kentucky. Virginia comes next with 38,086,364 pounds. Louisiana contributes nearly all the sugar and molasses from cane, and Vermont nearly one-third of the sugar of maple, while New York produces one-fourth the sugar from maple. Ohio and Indiana (the latter most) produce each one-eighth of the sorghum molasses. New York grows one fifth of the whole potato crop. North Carolina produces more sweet potatoes than any other State. New York raises one fifth of the national supply of peas and beans. California produces more than one half of the native wine.—N. Y. Bulletin.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!
Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our
Patent Slate Paint
(Fifteen Years' stabilshed.)
MIXED READY FOR USE.
Fire-proof, Water-proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.
A roof may be covered with a very thin layer, and by application of hot irons a man can put on 100 sq. feet per day. And roofs may be laid over old ones, as it is much better and cheaper than to remove shingles without adding.
Considered the Cost of Re-shingling.
The expense of shingling one square is only $4 00, and LESS for slopes of 3 inch. The others, as may be easily seen, are $5 00 or $6 00.
IT STICKS EVERY LEAK.
And if tin or iron has corroded, as it often is by heat, condensing by cold, and STICKS there as one has ever been with Tar Paint, a small expense, and the leaks are stopped for many years.
This Slate Paint is
EXTREMELY CHEAP.
Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of ordinary roof, while on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of roofing, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.
No Tar is used in this Composition, the effect of neither cracks in winter nor runs in summer.
On charred shingles, it fills up the holes and cracks, and gives a new, beautiful roof that will last for years. Chilled or warm weather is no hindrance to our Slate Paint, and keeps in motion, it will adhere to brick or shingles, and although a thick coating is put on, there is not often a few hours after applying. As much as is put on will not crack, run, or peel off, but on the contrary will become one solid, tough (for slate) coating.
CHOCOLATE COLOR,
when first applied, changing in six or a month to a mottled dark or green, and is, of all shades and purposes, FAST.
TIN ROOFS
Our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to four of any other kind. For
BRICK WALLS
Our masonry mix is the only reliable slate paint ever introduced, that will effectually prevent the water from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.
These paints are also largely used on outbuildings and fences, or on a plumber coat on fine work.
Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BUFF, SLATE and ORANGE.

The Daily Tribune.
WEDNESDAY,....DECEMBER 6
An eminent judge used to say that in his opinion, the very best thing ever said by a witness to a counsel was the reply given to Mossop, the barrister, at the time leader of his circuit. He was defending a prisoner charged with stealing a donkey. The prosecutor had left the animal tied up to a gate, and when he returned, it was gone. Mossop was very severe in his examination of the witness. "Do you mean to say, witness, the donkey was stolen from that gate?" "I mean to say, sir," giving the judge and jury a sly look, at the same time pointing to the counsel, "the ass was Mossop."
Benjamin F. Butler seems to take a very sensible view of how the Electoral vote is to be counted. He says both Houses of Congress will count and scrutinize the vote, and that the President of the Senate is only head clerk or the job, and not boss as some of the papers intimate.
Imagination, too much indulged in, soon is tortured in monkeyfuls in one way that good boss thieves are made by a man leans over a fence all day, and laughing the loss belongs to him, and sure enough, the first dark night the boss does.

1776. CENTENNIAL. 1876
The attention of visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and the traveling public generally northward or eastward is called to the SUPERIOR FACILITIES presented by the
PIEDMONT AIR-LINE RAILWAY
The Great Central Through Route to All Points North and East.
Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation and transportation of visitors over
THIS POPULAR ROUTE.
It being 300 miles shorter than the route via Louisville, and 70 to 100 miles shorter than any other route, and it is now making the quickest time ever made between New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all intermediate points, being four to twelve hours quicker than any other route in or east of Atlanta.
The management, in announcing to the public the UNPRECEDENTED FAST TIME between the South and the East, beg leave to say that, in arranging new schedules to meet the demands of the public for greater dispatch, they have not found it necessary to run their trains at a high rate of speed thereby incurring danger to the safety of the trains and the comfort and pleasure of passengers, but having a much shorter line than that of any other route, they have, by running
EXPRESS TRAINS
stopping only at important stations, and by taking up time, lost by former delays at intermediate points, been enabled to reduce the time of transit between the South and the East without materially increasing the speed of trains, thereby securing to passengers greater comfort and dispatch, without sacrificing safety in the least degree.
Passing, as it does, through some of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of the country, the stability of the roadbed, the purity of the air, and the unrivaled scenery constantly in view, render it a most desirable route to railway travelers.
The passenger coaches over this route are of a superior grade; Palace sleeping cars on all night trains; Parlor or reclining-chair car without extra charge, on certain trains. Elegant smoking conveniences and cuspidores, thereby insuring its traveling
COMFORT! ATTENTION!! SAFETY!!!
A superior class of eating-houses will be found at regular intervals along the line, and ample time afforded for meals.
Quick Transit. Few Changes. Sure Connections! are the characteristics of this route.
During the Great American Centennial running time will be lessened over this route as low as over any other all rail route; and visitors, whether traveling singly or in social parties will find it to their interest to purchase their tickets via CHARLOTTE, GREENSBORO' and RICHMOND.
